EL PASO, July 3.—Gen. Victoriano Huerta, who was rearrested today by the Federal authorities, granted an interview to the Los Angeles Times.

"Gen. Huerta, the Los Angeles Times, which I represent, wishes an expression from you for publication," said the newspaper representative.

"My position at the present time is such that I cannot make an extended statement, much as I would like to,"

FILL LONDON WITH SMOKE.

Unskilled Stokers Make the City Much Worse than Pittsburgh.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONDON, June 15.—One of the curious effects of the war is that London is smokier than ever. War has filled the factories with unskilled stokers, who do not know how to feed the furnaces so as to produce the best combustive results. All London is now complaining of the smoke nuisance.

BELGIAN STEAMER TORPEDOED, SUNK.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, July 3. — The Belgian steamship Boduognat was torpedoed and sunk today by a German submarine. The crew was landed at Falmouth.

German submarines also accounted for two British steamships today, the Larchmore, of 4355 tons gross, and the Renfrew, of 2248 tons, being torpedoed and sunk.

The Beduognat was of 1441 tons gross and was built at Sunderland in 1909. She was 250 feet long, 38 feet beam and 17 feet deep. She was last reported at Port Talbot, Eng., on June 12. The steamer was owned by the Antwerp Shipping Company.

QUIGLEY'S GREAT BATTLE.

SUMMARY.

THE SKY. Clear. Wind at 5 p.m., southwest; velocity, 10 miles. Thermometer, highest, 75 deg.; lowest, 58 deg. Forecast: Fair. For complete weather report see last page, Part I.

THE CITY. A building boom has begun in the Imperial Valley that has almost effaced the memory of the recent temblor, which is considered a mere incident.

With prices of copper, lead and zinc soaring, mining in the Southwest has had a gratifying revival of direct benefit to this city.

Announcements showed the great host of Elks will begin to move westward today for next week's big convention.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA. Women of the Universalist church have planned to fight efforts to oust them from office at the Pasadena convention this week.

Imperial Valley is to have a big Fourth of July celebration tomorrow.

PACIFIC SLOPE. The wrecking of a Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul train near Tacoma resulted in the death of three persons and several others are badly wounded.

A hold-up of a cashier in the daylight occurred at San Francisco and the bandits escaped with several thousand dollars.

GENERAL EASTERN. An attempt on the life of J. P. Morgan was made in New York by the same man who tried to dynamite the Senate chamber in Washington.

The torpedo boat destroyer Winslow exceeded its speed requirements at a test in the East yesterday.

WASHINGTON. Ambassador Page has cabled more details concerning the status of the Armenian, but it is not thought the United States will proceed further in the matter.

MEXICO. Huerta was rearrested by the Federal authorities at El Paso and is now held in the County Jail, being unable to find bail.

Private reports from Mexico City indicate that confiscation of private property is becoming common by the authorities.

FOREIGN. In an interview the Pope is quoted as denouncing atrocities that have been committed in the present war.

THE GREAT WAR. The Situation to Date: Retreat of the Russians.

Quiet on the British front in Flanders.

French and Germans at grips again in the Argonne.

Germans capture the lowlands of Labunka.

Germans forced to give up gains made in the Hilgen ridge of the Vosges mountains.

COMMENT ON THE SITUATION.

The Italians and the Russians seem to be doing very little for the Triple Entente that suddenly swelled into a Quadruple Entente with the entry of Italy. The Italian war bulletins read like weather bureau reports with iterated complaints of climatic conditions in a region long inhabited by Latins. The Russians are saying little as they dare not stop in their protracted retreat. Moreover, the British line in Flanders is inactive. Only the Germans and the French seem to be at it still in the western theater of war.

Most of the Mexican news is coming to have American date lines, with Huerta and his friends in jail on the border, but there is a belated dispatch from Mexico City telling of the confiscation there of private property.

Editorial Note: War-news headlines are constructed, as nearly as may be in the space available, to reflect the text of the several news reports, not the editorial opinion of The Times.

SAFEGUARD PRESIDENT.

Extra Precautions by the Authorities.

Chief of the Secret Service to be Constant Companion of Executive.

Foreign Ambassadors to Share Additional Protection of Police Detectives.

Unusual Number of Dangerous Cranks Captured Near White House.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON BUREAU OF THE TIMES, July 3.—Government authorities are gravely concerned over the dynamite explosion in the Capitol last night, followed so closely by the attempt on the life of J. P. Morgan, by Frank Holt, who has confessed to the New York police that he committed both crimes.

Government officials see in these attempts at destruction and murder the beginning of a series of similar events by fanatics, calculated to terrorize the American government and individuals. For some time threatening letters have been received by President Wilson and other officials, based upon the foreign policies of the administration. Little has been said about these threats. An unusual number of dangerous cranks have been captured in and around the White House. These have been quietly transferred to the Government Asylum for the Insane and but little said about the affairs.

Redoubled precautions have been taken to prevent any attack upon the President and the White House has been guarded by an active detail of police. At the Capitol precautions also have been taken. The authorities believe that the minds of a great many persons have been affected by the tragedy of the war in Europe. The condition of these unfortunates has been aggravated by the hot weather and they are liable to commit any crime their disordered fancy suggests in order that they may pose as martyrs to the "cause of peace."

Therefore it has been deemed necessary to adopt rigid measures for the defense of public officials and public buildings which are certain to be more effective in the future. It is hardly necessary to say that even if a serious outrage were to be successful, it would have no influence whatever upon the policy of the government, particularly with reference to the sale of munitions of war to the allies. Even former Secretary Bryan has been forced to admit that an embargo on munitions would make the United States guilty of unneutral service.

CONCERN FOR THE DIPLOMATS.

So far as the President is concerned, it has been deemed advisable that Chief of the Secret Service Flynn shall hereafter accompany him. There is a great deal of concern, also, for the safety of Ambassadors of the belligerent countries. The police have been instructed to watch the Embassies with increased vigilance and secret service men have been assigned to guard the summer homes of the diplomats.

EXPLOSION EXPLAINED.

Here is the dramatic explanation of the bomb explosion in the Capitol: "This is the exclamation point to my appeal for peace."

The epigram is contained in an identical letter signed "R. Pearce," received by all the Washington newspapers today. The letter was mailed at 10 o'clock last night and shows intimate knowledge of the affair.

As a further explanation there is the following statement: "We get rich by the exportation of explosives. But ought we to enrich ourselves when it means the untold suffering and death of millions of our brethren? A prostitute sells out for a dollar. Fi!—Columbia, too!"

SERIOUS ASPECT.

The most serious aspect of the matter lies in the indication that the criminal was for some weeks in doubt as to where to place the bomb. His letter is dated June 1. Evidently it was typed on that date, but uncertain where the bomb was to be set off, the place for the explosion was omitted and, when selected, the word "senate" was printed in ink, probably after the bomb was in position.

The police are of opinion that "Pearce" or Holt, visited the White House, War, State and Navy buildings, the Treasury Department and other public buildings and finally came to the conclusion that the most effective place for his crime, from a publicity point of view, would be the reception-room of the Senate, next to the office of the Vice-President of the United States.

The explosion in the Capitol and the attempt to assassinate Mr. Morgan were immediately linked by detectives working on both crimes. Investiga-

J. P. Morgan,

Head of the banking house of J. P. Morgan & Co., whose conference with the British Ambassador to the United States was interrupted yesterday at Mr. Morgan's summer home near Glencove, N. Y., by the intrusion of one Frank Holt, son of a Texas minister and former instructor in Cornell University. Holt fired two shots at Mr. Morgan, both of which took effect. The above picture of Mr. Morgan is from a photograph taken on board ship just before Mr. Morgan landed from a recent trip to England.

LOS ANGELES "LARK" IS SAVED FROM HOLD-UP.

Iron Bolted to the Rails Near San Jose Discovered in the Nick of Time by Denver Tourist, Who, Flagging the Train, is Shot Through the Arm by One of the Highwaymen.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN JOSE, July 3.—After he had been shot through the arm by a highwayman, who fired two shots at him at a range of less than twelve feet, Rocan P. Brun, foreman in the Stoll motorcycle accessories factory at Denver, tonight flagged the southbound Southern Pacific fast train, the "Lark," at College Park and prevented a wreck and hold-up.

Two pieces of iron had been bolted to both rails. Brun, walking back from a visit to Santa Clara, came on the obstruction apparently only a few minutes after it had been placed and while the wreckers were waiting for the "Lark" to run on to it. He started to examine the fastenings when a man rose from the cattle guard close by with a revolver in his hand. Before Brun could think, the man fired twice.

Although wounded, the tourist ran to a street crossing close by and siezed a lantern. Waving it madly, he stopped the train and the engine crew removed the iron. Brun was taken to the office of Dr. D. A. Beattie in the Ryland Building, where his wound was dressed and where he told his story to railroad detectives.

The attempt to wreck the train occurred just after 9 o'clock. The train, heavily laden with through passengers for Los Angeles, was just pulling into San Jose. The neighborhood is unfrequented, and it is believed that the robbers planned to derail the train and rob the passengers at their leisure. The train runs slowly at this point on account of the curve approaching San Jose.

Street work in progress, close by furnished Brun with the lantern for flagging the train. He started to remove the iron when the roar of the on-coming train forced him to quit and devote his attention to stopping the engine. The hero of the attempted wreck and robbery is 30 years old and of German descent.

OROZCO HAS DISAPPEARED; ELUDES EL PASO GUARDS.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

EL PASO (Tex.) July 3.—Pascual Orozco, second only to Huerta in importance, appears to have disappeared. He is not in his house where six men have been guarding him. The authorities, however, have not yet abandoned hope of recapturing him if he attempts to escape across the border to Mexico.

Orozco was arrested last Sunday with Gen. Huerta on charges of conspiracy to violate the United States neutrality laws. He was placed on a bond of $7500. Notwithstanding his bond, Federal authorities kept his residence under close watch.

Word of his disappearance reached Federal headquarters early today. Officers were rushed to the Orozco residence at No. 1319 Wyoming street. A thorough search was made, but no trace of the former Mexican general could be found. While not definitely known, it was believed Orozco slipped away between midnight and daylight.

His disappearance has revived rumors that an attempt to carry out the alleged plan to launch a new revolutionary movement in Mexico might be made in the next few days, selecting some remote point along the border for the crossing. Border patrols were notified and steps taken to apprehend Orozco before he could cross the boundary.

NEW YORK, July 3.—A statement issued by the Morgan firm shortly before 7 p.m., reads:

A further examination of Mr. Morgan's wounds shows that the bullets did not involve any vital organ. The condition of the patient continues excellent.

[Signed] J. W. MARKOE.

Time, 6:15 p.m.

Glen Cove (N. Y.) July 3.

There will be no further bulletins tonight as to the condition of the patient, none being regarded as necessary.

GLENCOVE (N. Y.) July 3.—Frank Holt, aged 35, describing himself as the son of a Methodist minister in Dallas, Tex., today made an unsuccessful attempt to assassinate J. P. Morgan, head of the banking house of J. P. Morgan & Co.

Mr. Morgan was shot twice at his country home near here by Holt, a native American, a former student and instructor at Cornell University, who was to have become the head of the department of French in the Southern Methodist University at Dallas, Tex., next fall.

Mr. Morgan was said by specialists at his bedside to be resting well tonight. No vital organ, the physicians announced, had been involved in his injury. The physicians, however, declined to state the exact location of Mr. Morgan's wounds. Junius Spencer Morgan, eldest son of the financier, was asked to state the exact nature of the wound. After conferring with the physicians, young Mr. Morgan asserted that the doctors had decided to add nothing to their previous bulletins. It is believed, however, that both bullets fired at Mr. Morgan had penetrated his hip and that neither had pierced the abdomen. The first shot is said to have struck the right hip and went through in a line almost horizontal, deflecting slightly downward. The second shot, it is said, struck nearer the groin and was deflected much more sharply downward. This shot came out of the upper leg.

Holt was overpowered by Morgan and Henry Fiske, the butler in the Morgan household. He was jailed here, where he issued a statement saying he had intended no harm to Mr. Morgan, but had come to Glencove to persuade the banker to stop the shipment abroad of munitions of war. He went into the Morgan home, he said, with a pistol in his hand and a stick of dynamite in his pocket, intending to remain there until Mr. Morgan "did something."

Another loaded pistol was found in Holt's pocket and more dynamite was in a suit case, which he had taken to the Morgan house. There were numerous newspaper clippings in the suit case, all bearing on the European war.

HOLT'S ARRIVAL.

Holt called at the Morgan home at 9 o'clock, while Mr. and Mrs. Morgan were at breakfast. Fiske, the butler, answered Holt's ring at the door. Holt handed the butler his card, telling him to inform Mr. Morgan it was from a friend. As the butler started back through the hallway Holt slipped a pistol from his pocket and pressed it against the butler's stomach.

"See this gun?" he demanded. "I have another one."

The butler backed into the hallway, Holt following. As the front door closed behind them the butler realized the determination of the assassin and spoke in a loud voice, so that Mr. Morgan might hear, "Mr. Morgan is in the library."

Holt continued to press the butler backward toward the dining-room. As they neared it the butler spoke again.

"Upstairs, Mr. Morgan; upstairs," he shouted.

Alarmed by the shout, Mr. Morgan and his wife left the dining-room by another door, entered the rear hallway and went upstairs. They found nothing amiss there and started back, using the front stairway. They walked almost into the assassin's arms. Mrs. Morgan saw him first, screamed and drew back.

THE TRAGEDY.

Holt turned and fired twice before Mr. Morgan could seize him. Fiske, no longer menaced by the pistol, grabbed the assassin's right hand. Mr. Morgan, with two bullet wounds in his body, threw himself on his assailant and the three men fell on the floor.

Sir Cecil Spring-Rice, British Ambassador to the United States, an overnight guest at the Morgan home, was with Mr. and Mrs. Morgan at the breakfast table when Holt entered the house.

The struggle on the floor was short.

"MR. MORGAN VERY COOL; WAS TRYING TO SAVE ME."

Wife of Financier Declares She and Her Husband Rushed Upstairs, When They Saw the Assailant Coming up with Pistol in Either Hand — Servants Tied Him up Later with Trunk Straps.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK BUREAU OF THE TIMES, July 3.—Here is the story of the shooting as told by Mrs. J. P. Morgan to a group of friends who called to offer sympathy:

"We were with Sir Cecil and Lady Spring-Rice and other guests at breakfast when the bell rang and Fiske left to answer it. In a few moments we heard him cry, 'Mr. Morgan, Mr. Morgan; quick, upstairs.' Instantly Mr. Morgan jumped up and started upstairs and I with him. It was his idea and mine that something was wrong upstairs. Just what, we did not know. It was not our idea that there was any danger in the hall that Fiske was trying to get Mr. Morgan away from. Our idea, I think, was that there might be a fire up there.

"We got upstairs and went through room after room and everything was all right until we came out into the front hallway. I was out first and I saw the fellow coming up the stairs, a pistol in either hand. Then I knew that he was a lunatic or worse, intent on murdering Jack, and I screamed and jumped at him. Mr. Morgan jumped at the same time and brushed me to one side just as the man shot. Mr. Morgan landed upon him and they went to the floor together. I think I got one of the revolvers. Mr. Morgan got the other and was trying to subdue him when the servants and others came in. Fiske had something in his hand, with which he hit the fellow, and then he was not so troublesome to handle; for a little man he was very active and strong. Then the servants came and tied the fellow up with trunk straps and ropes.

"I asked him why he wanted to kill Mr. Morgan. He said he didn't want to kill Mr. Morgan, but that he did want him to stop sending ammunition to the allies and stop murdering able-bodied men.

"The first that I knew that Mr. Morgan was hurt was when he called Dr. Zabriskie's number, and said he had been hit.

"After the doctors came I asked Fiske what had happened. He said the man had given him a card and that when he saw that it was no one that Mr. Morgan would want to see at the house he told him to wait, when Holt pushed the pistol against him and forced his way into the hall. Fiske very shrewdly tried to get him into the library and risked his own life to get a chance to warn Mr. Morgan.

"As he came up the stairs at us he said something. It sounded like 'I want to see you, Mr. Morgan.' Mr. Morgan made no answer to that, but jumped for him. All the time the fellow was on the floor trying to wrestle his way out he kept talking, but I could not make out what he was saying. I guess I was too excited.

"Then the police came and took the fellow away.

"Mr. Morgan was very cool through the whole thing. His idea seemed to be to save me from harm."

Son of Texas Minister Recounts Details of Struggle at Financier's Home.

Declares His Victim Sprang at Him Before He had a Chance to Say a Word and that He Fired in the Air, "Thinking to Scare Him"—Admires His Courage and Hopes He Isn't Badly Injured.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

GLENCOVE (N. Y.) July 3.—F. Holt, who today shot J. P. Morgan twice and confessed he placed the bomb that damaged a room in the Capitol building at Washington, this afternoon made the following statement to the Associated Press:

"My home is in Dallas, Tex. I have a wife and children and am 40 years old. I was born in this country and so were my father and mother. My ancestors were French and German; it was all mixed up. I received a degree of Doctor of Philosophy from Cornell in 1904 but before that I was an instructor in French. I was formerly an instructor in Vanderbilt University.

"I came to New York two weeks ago from Ithaca and put up at the Mills Hotel at Thirty-sixth and Seventh avenue. I took no pains to conceal my identity and registered under my own name.

"About a month ago I conceived the idea to see J. Pierpont Morgan and get him to use his influence in stopping the exportation of arms which make you and me responsible for the murder which is going on over there.

"I could not go from manufacturer to manufacturer myself but I thought that Mr. Morgan's banking connections would render it more easy for him to accomplish this.

"I have not been influenced to do this by anybody else. I think President Wilson's notes were fine, but they did not seem to do anything to stop the war.

"I came down here from New York this morning to put my idea before Mr. Morgan, but I depended upon him to formulate the plan. Of course, I did not mean to shoot Mr. Morgan, but I intended to stay there until something was done. I had a stick of dynamite in my pocket; I thought it might come in handy somehow. Some fool has said that I had nitrogylcerine in the suit case, but that was only benzine to clean my clothes.

"I went up to the house and got by the butler and walked upstairs. I had my gun in my hand. In the hall on the second floor I met Mr. Morgan. A woman whom I took to be his wife immediately preceded him down the hall.

"She screamed and jumped away from where—I don't know exactly where. Mr. Morgan did not give me a chance to say anything. He jumped at me and grappled with me and I fired in the air, thinking to scare him. They tell me I hit him. I don't know, for somebody hit me on the head.

"I hope Mr. Morgan is not badly hurt. I admire Mr. Morgan's courage in grappling with me. If he would only use his courage in the right direction and for the right things, he would get somewhere and do something worth while."

With a pencil borrowed from the newspaper man, Holt addressed a telegram to his wife at No. 101 Marseilles street, Dallas, Tex. The telegram follows:

"Man proposes, God disposes. Don't come here until you get my letter. Be strong."

The telegram was signed "Frank."

Holt sat in his cell with a white cloth, stained red, over the wound on his head. He appeared to be a man of about 35. He was dressed in a gray suit without collar or tie and at first was rather taciturn and sullen, but was soon talking freely and asking many questions. He is about five feet nine inches tall, angular in his build and features, with the nose especially prominent, and a dark curly hair and small grayish blue eyes. He said that he had written "war articles" for an evening paper in Ithaca and that in these articles he had asked the editor of the paper to be neutral. The articles, he said, were published over his signature. Shortly before the war, he said, he had traveled through Europe, spending about fifteen months there. No one had influenced him in his determination to see Mr. Morgan, he asserted.

Holt declined to say where he was born, except that it was in the United States. A great quantity of newspaper clippings relating to the European war was found in Holt's suit case. There also was a sum of money—about $30. Among the papers was an express company's receipt for a package sent by Holt from Ithaca, June 11, to D. F. Sinsabaugh, No. 101 South Marseilles street, Dallas, Tex.

Two Bullet Wounds.

The pistol was torn from Holt's fingers and he was beaten by the butler and other servants who came running at the sound of the shots. The Glencove police and a physician were summoned and Holt was placed in one of the Morgan automobiles and hurried to the jail here.

Mr. Morgan walked, calmly and collectedly, feeling, he said, that he had been shot, but experiencing no sensation of weakness, up the stairs and went to the telephone. He called up the doctor and afterward his office in New York City and told the story of the shooting, asserting that he did not regard his wounds as serious. Then he went to his bed and lay down, awaiting the doctor.

Soon after Mr. Morgan insisted on having a telephone extension brought to his side and over the wire he talked with his mother, assuring her he was not dangerously wounded and telling her she need not worry about his condition. He wished her to hear the news from his own lips first.

Holt is the man who set the bomb that exploded in the United States Capitol at Washington last night.

In a statement made to Justice Luyster and Thomas Tunney, head of the bomb and anarchist squad of the New York City detective bureau, Holt confessed setting the bomb and described it in detail. As a missile of terror it was said to be unique in the annals of the New York police department.

"I made this bomb," Holt is quoted as having said in his confession, "with three sticks of dynamite, some match heads and a bottle of sulphuric acid."

"Pretty slick," commented Capt. Tunney. "I don't see how you did it."

HOLT EXPLAINS.

"Well, you see," Holt answered, his eyes brightening, "I had experimented on it before. Not once you know, but many times. I knew just what I was doing and how to do it. I really didn't take any chances, for all my observations had been checked up, and I knew when the bomb would go off, almost to the minute. In fact, I waited in Washington till I heard it go off. Then I hurried away as fast as I could and caught the train for New York. I didn't have much time so I had to hurry."

"How did you make the bomb?" he was asked.

"Well," he answered, "I took three sticks of dynamite and bound them together. Then I took my knife and hollowed out a place in one of the sticks. When I had cleaned it out deep enough I put some match heads into the hole.

"When the match heads were put in the hole I took a little bottle of sulphuric acid out of my pocket and put a regular cork in the neck. I turned the bottle upside down and fastened the cork in the hole in the dynamite, just above the match heads. You see I had timed the sulphuric acids in my tests before, and I knew just how long it would take to eat through the cork and get to the match heads. When the acid reached the match heads it set them on fire and caused the explosion. There wasn't any guesswork about it. I knew how much time I had, so I hung around while the acid was eating its way through the cork. I pulled out my watch and said to myself, that it ought to be going pretty soon. And sure enough, it did go pretty soon. Then I hurried away."

CONFESSION FOLLOWS DENIAL.

Holt's confession of the Capitol outrage came fast on the heels of his denial to newspaper men of the same charge. Reporters told him the story from Washington, calling his attention to the marked similarity in the language used by him in his statement today and that of the writer of a letter relating to the bomb in Washington.

"Don't you know anything about this?" they asked him.

"No, I do not," he asserted. "I wasn't in Washington yesterday at all. I was in New York. I had my breakfast and my luncheon at the Mills Hotel at Thirty-sixth street and Seventh avenue. So you see, I couldn't have been in Washington."

"What were you doing all day?"

"I was walking around the streets in New York, trying to make up my mind to come out here today and do my duty. That was all. I was thinking it over."

When Holt was told that the Mills Hotel clerks had not recalled seeing him there yesterday, he still stuck to his story.

"It does look strange, doesn't it?" he asked, after reading the Washington story for the second time. "It seems that the man who did that thought about like I do, too, doesn't it? It was rather odd that he used almost the same words as I did. I can't explain it."

When the newspaper reporters left, Justice Luyster and Capt. Tunney began to question him. They soon obtained his confession, they asserted.

HOLT ARRAIGNED.

Holt was arraigned late today on a charge of assault with intent at malicious killing. He demurred to the word malicious and finally pleaded not guilty. Justice Luyster held him without bail for further examination next Wednesday afternoon.

According to the legal papers upon which Holt was committed, one of the bullets passed through Mr. Morgan and the other remained in the tissues and was afterwards removed by a surgical operation.

QUESTIONS THE PRISONER.

Justice Luyster questioned the prisoner. "I am a Christian gentleman," was the only reply the man would give when pressed for his name. He declined also to say where he came from. As to his reasons for shooting Mr. Morgan, however, he was more communicative. He told the justice that he had no quarrel with Mr. Morgan personally, but felt that the time had come for the war to end. It was becoming more and more unbearable, he said, and it was his firm belief that he should go to Mr. Morgan and ask him to end it. This, he knew, Mr. Morgan could accomplish because of his great influence.

"I wanted to see Mr. Morgan and to reason with him," the man said. "I have nothing against him."

The assailant was cut over the eye by the blow from a coal hod and had been bleeding freely. He also was limping as a result of his encounter with the Morgan servant.

HOLT'S STATEMENT.

A statement prepared by Holt was addressed to William E. Luyster, the justice of the peace. Holt signed the communication "F. Holt, Dallas, Tex., and Ithaca."

The statement reads:

"My motive in coming here was to try to force Mr. Morgan to use his influence with the manufacturers of munitions in the States and with the millionaires who are financing the war loans to have an embargo put on shipments of war munitions so as to relieve the American people from complicity in the death of thousands of our European brothers.

"If Germany should be able to buy munitions here we would, of course, positively refuse to sell to her. The reason that the American people have not as yet stopped the shipments seems to be that we are getting rich out of this traffic; but we do not get enough prosperity out of noncontraband shipments and would it not be better for us to make what money we can without causing the slaughter of thousands of Europeans?

"I am very sorry that I had to cause the Morgan family this unpleasantness, but I believe that if Mr. Morgan will put his shoulder to the wheel, he could accomplish what I have endeavored to. Of course I did not want to injure Mr. Morgan, as I wanted him to do the work I could not do. I hope that he will do his share anyhow. We must stop our participation in the killing of Europeans and God will take care of the rest."

HIS ROLE AS DYNAMITER.

At first the police thought the dynamite played a minor role in his plans to assassinate Mr. Morgan. When they listened in undisguised amazement to the story he told of the Washington bomb's construction, they concluded that he possessed a knowledge of explosives far beyond that of the ordinary bomb makers.

Under the persuasion of the third degree Holt talked freely of his bomb-designing qualifications.

The man who unfolded this unusual story of bomb placing and attempted assassination talked coolly and with dramatic frankness. He had been a student at Cornell, he said, and later an instructor there in French. The records show he taught German instead. Next fall he had expected to be the head of the department of French at the Southern Methodist University at Dallas, Tex.

His wife, a daughter of Dr. Sensabaugh, presiding elder of the Dallas district of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, is with her father in Dallas.

Holt told his story in a cell of the Glencove jail. He had discarded his shirt and collar and had bound across his forehead a white cloth through which blood showed from a cut on his forehead. His grayish eyes sparkled as he spoke and he talked at first with great animation.

As the day wore on he weakened. The quantity of blood he had lost from a terrific blow on the head—a blow that knocked him unconscious as he grappled with Mr. Morgan and his butler on the floor of a hallway in the Morgan home—was great and the strain told on him during the afternoon.

HOLT A WRECK.

When night came, and with it his confession of the Washington outrage, Holt was a wreck. He huddled back in a corner in his cell, breathing hard and apparently comatose. But the detectives refused to let him rest. They dragged him out to the corridor, with a man on each side to support him, and walked him up and down until his stumbling feet dragged listlessly over the flooring. Then they would sit him down and surround him. They pumped questions at him so rapidly that at times his half-audible answers were interrupted by succeeding questions. And still he refused to answer what he did not wish to answer.

They let him rest a few moments and when he refused to answer pulled him up and began once more the tedious promenade the length of the corridor, talking to him all the time.

After two hours of this treatment Holt wilted and replied wearily to the questions. Apparently he was close to exhaustion and the wound over his eye was bothering him.

TRIP TO WASHINGTON.

Holt's story was that he left Jersey City yesterday morning, arrived in Washington at noon and went to a house at Delaware avenue and C street, where he rented a room. Before taking the ferry from New York to Jersey City he purchased a supply of so-called trick matches at a Sixth-avenue store in New York City. These he took with him. The popping of the matches, he explained, furnished the concussion which exploded the dynamite.

Holt said he took the dynamite with him and walked around the Capitol grounds. He strolled around the Capitol corridors without meeting a guard or a policeman. He spent about half an hour in the building, he added, looking for a spot to place his bomb where it would not injure anyone or cause great damage.

"I did not want to hurt anybody," he said. "I just wanted to call the attention of the nation to the terrible murders committed in Europe."

After placing the bomb Holt walked slowly away. He went back to his room, he said, and to the Union station. Later he decided to write to the newspapers and the President and explain why he had set the bomb.

He did this, he said, before the bomb exploded and mailed the letter during the early evening. And at this point he refused to tell more.

"Didn't you have an accomplice?" he was asked.

"No," he muttered, weakly, "none whatever. I did the whole thing myself. I planned it. I executed it. Nobody knew anything about it but myself."

Before Holt had recovered consciousness in the Morgan home servants bound him. Holt was bleeding profusely when the police arrived. Before they came he recovered his senses. He looked up at the butler.

"Kill me now, please," he said. "You might as well do it and end my suffering. For six months I have lived in hell. I could not rest because of the frightful murders in Europe."

Holt became so weak toward midnight that it was decided to let him rest in his cell until tomorrow, when the examination will be resumed. He still refused to tell where he bought the dynamite.

Arrangements for Financing Debated by the Lords.

Highest Efficiency Assured, Earl Curzon Declares.

Confiscation of the German Spelter Stock Urged.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, July 3.—The British government's arrangements with the banking firm of J. P. Morgan & Co. for financing purchases in the United States was again debated in the House of Lords Friday. Lord Grinthorpe, who is a banker by profession, urged that Canada should have the preference in the order for shells and added that "one reason why more orders are not going to Canada is that the big shadow of an interloper stands between her and the government." He continued:

"I am not saying a word against the Morgans. No better firm could have been chosen if it were necessary to employ American bankers to conduct our business in America, but this arrangement has been very severely criticised. Although the government declares the arrangement productive of large savings, business men state that on the contrary we have spent millions unproductively."

Earl Curzon, Lord of the Privy Seal, replying to this speech, informed the House that he had made a mistake on a previous occasion when he said the commission of J. P. Morgan & Co. was 2 per cent. He stated that it really was only 1 per cent., and continued:

"I beg Lord Grinthorpe to be more cautious before condemning in such strong language the arrangements made in America. Within the past forty-eight hours I have seen testimony of the highest authority that the Morgan arrangement assures us the highest efficiency and economy and has been most beneficial to both the government and the country."

Lord Grinthorpe called attention to the fact that huge supplies of spelter are lying idle in Australia because they are owned by Germans, and he urged that the government confiscate the same. Earl Curzon replied that the government was employing the resources of the colony to the greatest possible extent.

UNVEIL STATUE OF GEN. GREENE.

BATTLE AT GUILFORD COURTHOUSE COMMEMORATED.

Exercises in North Carolina Recall the Services of Revolutionary Commander, Considered Ablest in the War for Freedom Next to Washington.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

BATTLE GROUND (N. C.) July 3.—One hundred and thirty-four years after he led his command to victory over Gen. Cornwallis's redcoats at Guilford Courthouse, a monument was unveiled today on this famous battlefield in honor of the memory of Gen. Nathaniel Greene, who commanded the Colonial forces in the South during the latter part of the American Revolution. It was in this vicinity that the battle was fought on March 15, 1781, which resulted in such heavy losses to Cornwallis, the British leader, that he was forced to retreat to Wilmington, N. C.

Troops from the colonies of Rhode Island, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, North Carolina and South Carolina took part in the battle, and today's exercises provided for the participation of representatives of these States, including several Governors. Both State and Federal troops participated, among them the Kentish Guards of Greenwich, R. I., of which Gen. Greene was a charter member.

The monument was erected with funds appropriated by Congress in February 1911, and its dedication is the culmination of a movement begun more than twenty years ago to honor this Revolutionary hero. The bill for the appropriation first was introduced in Congress more than a score of years ago and was re-introduced at every subsequent session until its final passage.

The monument is in the form of an equestrian statue of Gen. Greene, made of bronze, on a granite base. It is thirty feet high. F. H. Parker of New York was the sculptor.

Some historians have declared Gen. Greene the ablest soldier of the Revolution, next to Washington. During the latter part of the American colonies' struggle for independence Gen. Greene won many victories over the British forces in the Carolinas with the aid of Gens. Marion, Sumter and Pickens. It was after these reverses that Cornwallis decided to transfer his activities to Virginia. The result was his surrender at Yorktown on October 19, 1781, which virtually ended the war.

tion showed that it would have been very easy for "Pearce" to leave Washington on the evening train and arrive at Glen Cove, L. I., where Mr. Morgan was shot, by 9 o'clock this morning. Federal secret service men at once got in touch with New York authorities and a clear case was established against Holt even before he made his confession.

Steps will be taken at once to discover, if possible, what agency is supplying dynamite bombs to various cranks. The German sympathizer who attempted to destroy the Canadian bridge admits a man in Boston, to whom he had been directed by German officials in New York, handed him the prepared bombs. The bomb used last night in the Capitol was evidently a fine piece of scientific work and must have been prepared by an expert. The authorities are anxious to know if this bomb was supplied by the same agency that furnished those secreted on French ships, to be set off by clockwork when far out at sea.

That Holt was indisposed to shed the blood of men whom he did not regard as responsible for the foreign policy of the government is apparent from the fact he timed the explosion at an hour when there was little likelihood of anyone being in the neighborhood of the Vice-President's office.

The local police and Federal secret service agents, upon being advised of the attempt on the life of Mr. Morgan, promptly connected the assailant of the latter with the Capitol explosion. The only flaw in their theory was that the name "R. Pearce" was signed to the letters and it was argued that Holt, anticipating arrest after his murderous assault on Mr. Morgan, most likely would have signed his own name to the communications. However, the chief of detectives here deemed it advisable to send this message to Maj. Raymond T. Pullman, the Chief of the Washington police force, who happened to be in New York City: "Ascertain from Holt, in custody at Glen Cove, N. Y., for shooting J. P. Morgan, his whereabouts Thursday and Friday, as he may have placed the bomb in the Capitol here Friday night."

This telegram was sent in care of Inspector Faurot of the New York police department. Maj. Pullman placed himself in touch with Inspector Head of the New York police department, who communicated with the detectives engaged in the Glen Cove investigation. A little over three hours later the following telegram was received from Chief McCahill of Glen Cove:

"F. Holt was in Glen Cove, Thursday, July 1, p.m."

At 6 o'clock a second message from Chief McCahill afforded a definite clew, for it showed that Holt was in Washington yesterday:

"F. Holt is at Glencove. He was in Washington Friday a.m. and p.m., will wire more particulars later."

TRACING HIS MOVEMENTS.

Detectives were sent scampering over the city in an effort to trace the movements of Holt while he was here yesterday, in an effort to trail his path to the reception room of the Senate, where the bomb explosion had occurred.

At 7 o'clock the chief of detectives, Capt. Boardman, obtained his first newspaper flash bulletin that Holt had "confessed he had planted the bomb," and this was soon verified, without details, in a long distance telephone message officially received from New York. Maj. Pullman, chief of the Washington police department, as soon as he learned of the confession, notified his assistants in Washington that he was en route to Glencove to obtain a detailed confession from Holt. At 8:45 o'clock tonight, Capt. Boardman received this telegram from Chief of Police McCahill of Glencove:

"Frank Holt placed a dynamite bomb in Capitol building at 4 p. m. yesterday. Left Washington on midnight train for New York. Confession 5:30 p.m. this evening."

THEORY CONFIRMED.

This telegram confirmed the theory of Dr. Munroe, the expert on explosives, who spent the day examining the scene of the explosion at the Capitol.

Dr. Munroe said early in the afternoon there was every indication that the explosion was that of a bomb, probably containing dynamite and that it may have been placed in the Capitol any time during the day or early evening yesterday. The surest clue to the belief that Holt had gone straight from Washington to Glencove to attack Mr. Morgan was found in a close comparison of the letters signed "R. Pearce" that had been sent to the Washington newspaper and the "F. Holt" statement addressed to Justice of the Peace Luyster at Glencove. In a statement attributed to the man who attacked J. P. Morgan, this expression was used: "I am a Christian, gentleman—Morgan could stop the war, no one was in this but me and God Almighty."

In the letters signed by "R. Pearce" received by the Washington papers appeared this sentence: "I am an old-fashioned American with a conscience; if it is not a sin to have a conscience." and also this sentence: "This is the exclamation point in my appeal to Peace."

With few slight changes in phraseology the "R. Pearce" letters were generally similar. Two of them were originals, the other two carbon copies. One of the originals, which is believed to have been written on a No. 6 Remington typewriter, was sent to the Washington Star. A carbon copy of this letter was sent to the Washington Post. The second original was sent to the Washington Herald. A carbon copy of this second original was sent to the Washington Times. Scrutiny of the four letters at police headquarters tonight led to the belief that Holt wrote two originals only because he possessed a single sheet of carbon paper at the time he wrote them.

During the morning the police here searched industriously for "R. Pearce." They found a mechanic by the name, but he accounted for every moment of his time during the past few days.

CONDITIONS IN POLAND DESCRIBED AS TERRIBL

More than Nine Thousand Villages a Cities have been Destroyed.

It is Said this Unhappy Land has Suffered More th Any Other Country in the War—Thousands Up Thousands are Starving and in Some Places the Peopl are Eating the Decayed Carcasses of Horses.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

WARSAW, June 18.—The devastation of property and the suffering of millions of human beings in Poland is increased so stupendously from day to day that, with communication demoralized, it is becoming increasingly difficult to gather anything like a comprehensive summary of the havoc which the war is causing. It is evident from facts now at hand that of all the regions suffering from the conflict now so widespread in Europe, Poland not only is the worst sufferer at present, but that it will require more time than any other country to recover from the effects of the war.

The case of the Belgians, which aroused world-wide sympathy and unparalleled generosity for their assistance, is plainly not so bad as the case of the Polanders, which as yet has not been so thoroughly understood by the outside world and which,—by reason of this lack of information or other causes, has not attracted the interest that was aroused by the plight of Belgium. In comparison, however, the Belgians had an easy time in escaping the horrors of war by flight to England and France, but with the Polanders it has been a case of facing a gun, no matter in which direction its distressed might turn. In the case of Belgium the sweep of war was swift and final, while with the Polanders it has been, and still is, a matter of being swept in one direction and then the other. The area and population affected in Poland is also more than ten times that of Belgium, considering both the kingdom of Poland in Russia, and Galicia, Austrian Poland, equally devastated by the war.

While at least three large committees are at work in the relief of the conditions in Poland, they have, unlike the Belgian committees, been handicapped by the fact that the war has been waged actively there ever since the European conflict began, and that it is even more fierce today.

In attempting a summary of the situation, The Associated Press has been given access to some of the reports made by the Central Citizens' Committee in Warsaw, the Committee for the Relief of the Kingdom of Poland and the General Relief Committee for Poland in Geneva, Switzerland, and a mass of private correspondence, covering mainly the period between the 1st of January and the 15th of April. It appears from these that out of the eleven provinces or governments of the kingdom of Poland, only one, the province of Siedlce, has escaped invasion. The devastated territory of the kingdom amounts to more than 40,000 square miles, in which 200 cities and town and 9000 villages have been partially or entirely destroyed. Five thousand villages have been razed to the ground.

EVEN THE SOIL IS RUINED.

Railroad tracks for a distance of 1000 miles have been torn up. Even the plain soil has been rendered unfit for agricultural purposes by innumerable trenches and big holes bored into it by the projectiles of heavy artillery. The agricultural production of this part of Poland, representing a value of $500,000,000 per annum, has been stopped in its entirety for lack of funds, seeds, farm-hands and battle.

An agricultural population of 7,000,000 people are starving. They hide themselves in forests or under the ruins of their former dwellings having as food only roots, bark, rind and decaying carcasses of horses killed on the battlefields.

The fate of cities and industrial regions is no better. Some of them suffered depopulation, some were flooded by a tremendous wave of refugees who had deserted the fighting zone. Eighty per cent. of this class of refugees are Jews.

The city of Kalisz, capital of the province of the same name, which before the war had a population of nearly 80,000, numbers now 10,000 inhabitants. Warsaw the capital of the kingdom, twice as large as Brussels, harbors at the present over 200,000 refugees.

LOOKS LIKE CEMETERY.

The city of Lodz (500,000 inhabitants,) the center of the great Polish textile industry, twice captured by the Russian and German armies, looks like a cemetery. Important industrial centers like Chenstohova, Sosnoviec and the coal basin of Dombrova, have shared the same fate. The industrial output of the kingdom of Poland, valued at $400,000,000 per annum, has been annihilated. Three millions of people earning their daily bread in factories and mines are starving. The coal mines, though not in the fighting zone, have been flooded by the Germans for strategical reasons and all the costly machinery destroyed. The kingdom that used all of its monthly output of 30,000 carloads receives now less than 100 carloads of coal from the distant Don basin in Southern Russia. Meanwhile 50,000 miners in Dombrova and the adjoining mines have lost their work "for strategical reasons." All commerce of the kingdom with the Russian Empire has been practically stopped as well on account of a lack of transportation facilities as because of the interrupted international relations. These commercial transactions between the kingdom and the empire amounted for the year preceding the war to 1,000,000,000 roubles, or $500,000,000.

The same conditions prevail in the banking business. The transactions of the big corporations, of mutual credit associations and of savings banks have been limited to the paying out of deposits. The notes portefeuil of local banks, representing a nominal value of many hundreds of million roubles, bear no interest whatever, having, temporarily at least the mere value of millions of "scraps of paper."

The total of material losses in movable and immovable properties is valued at $700,000,000.

HUNGER, DISEASE AND RUIN.

On all sides there is hunger, disease and ruin. Out of a total of 1,500,000 horses in this part of Poland have been requisitioned by both ing armies. Not less than 2,0 cattle have been confiscated f same purpose. Milk is rare mortality among infants shows rific increase. Sanitary conditi worse than deplorable. Insu nourishment, a fatal congestion ulation in certain cities reputed safe from immediate war dang some temporary asylums in W sixty people sleep in rooms of —and a lack of medical hel gravate daily the evil condition the country they are still wors proximity of shallow graves in the air and the water of wells poisonous germs. Especially provinces of Lublin and Suval graves of fallen soldiers have quently been dug in the imm neighborhood of human dwelli

The conditions in Galicia (A Poland) may be still worse.

Embracing eighty-two co Galicia has an area of 32,000 miles and a population of over 000. All of her territory, exc Cracow and its immediate vicinity suffered. The country extending the Russian frontier, from Pod ziska up west to Bochnia, for a tance of 450 miles has been dest by fire and cannon. The wave from the east, was repulsed and turned again. Many places were jected to these invasions as many seven times. A hundred cities towns and 6000 villages suffered ly; 2500 villages have virtually appeared from sight. Eight hun thousand horses and 1,500,000 have been taken away by the arm as well as almost all provisions corn, potatoes and fodder.

The total agricultural producti Galicia, valued at $200,000,000 and the industrial output of $100,000,000 per annum, have destroyed. The loss will be gr increased if the reports that the drawing Russian army has set fi the Carpathian oil wells prove

CLOUDS STATUS OF ARMENIAN.

Ambassador Page has Cabled Confusing Details.

But United States Regards Incident as Settled.

Many of the Survivors are on the Way to America.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, July 3.—Ambassador Page at London cabled the State Department today that the British liner Armenian, torpedoed and sunk by a German submarine, had been "requisitioned" by the British government, but that the requisition had been cancelled before she sailed from Newport News. The status of the ship as heretofore understood, however, is unchanged, as the dispatch not yet made public does not clear up the question of charter.

Official advices to the State Department today established that the British liner Armenian attempted to escape the German submarine which sank her in consequence of her efforts to evade capture.

Previously the British government had informed Ambassador Page that the ship was engaged in Admiralty business.

The status is not regarded as essential by officials in view of the fact that the sinking of a ship making repeated attempts to escape is held to be justifiable under international law. So far as the United States is concerned, the incident seems to be closed.

The State Department was advised today that four survivors of the Armenian had left for Newport News from Bristol on the Victoria and fifty-six others on the Winifredian via Cardiff. This accounts for sixty of the members of the crew. There were no passengers.

HAMBURG, June 20.—Not content with urging that back yards and tennis courts be made to grow vegetables, the proponents of what may be called "window-box gardening" are now hard at work. It is the exception rather than the rule that a German city or country house is without its window or its balcony flower box. It is urged that these boxes, instead of being used for flowers, be devoted to beans, hops, or cucumbers. The proponents of the new plan outline carefully just what kinds of vegetables can be grown practically in such limited quarters, and just how they should be tended.

Six men, some of them police department officials, are understood to be involved in the statement Becker has prepared while awaiting the outcome of appeals to Gov. RELATIONS OF MORGAN WITH BRITISH GOVERNMENT

Crossed the Ocean not Long Ago to Arrange Credits for the War with Germany—American and English Criticism of His Dealings—An Issue in Parliament. Comment of Wall Street.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, July 3.—When the news of the shooting of Mr. Morgan reached financial circles in New York the question was raised as to whether the financier's activities in connection with the European war had anything to do with the motive for the attack upon him. The house of J. P. Morgan & Co. was the purchasing agent of the British government for munitions and supplies bought in this country. It was only yesterday morning that the announcement had been made prominently in New York newspapers of details of a plan of a group of bankers, of which Mr. Morgan was one of the leaders, for flotation in this country of $100,000,000 of the new British war loan. In March last Mr. Morgan crossed the ocean on a mission which he himself did not disclose, but which was generally supposed to be the arranging of credits in this country for the nations at war with Germany.

The arrangement under which the Morgan firm was appointed commercial agent of the British government in the United States during the war was widely criticised. On the one hand it was not met with satisfaction among a large number of American contractors for supplies. They complained that in some cases they were rivals of the Morgan firm in special lines of commerce. In England the criticism of the arrangement was carried into Parliament and only yesterday it was debated there.

Lord Grimthorpe, a banker member of the House of Lords, urged that Canada should have the preference in the orders for shells and added that "one reason why more orders are not going to Canada is that the big shadow of an interloper stands between her and the government."

Earl Curzon, Lord of the Privy Seal, replying to this speech, informed the House that the Morgan company was acting as British agent on a commission of 1 per cent. "Within the past forty-eight hours," he said, "I have seen testimony from the highest authority that the Morgan arrangement has assured us the highest efficiency and economy and been most beneficial to both the goverament and the country."

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

BERLIN, July 3 (via London.)—The official statement given out today by the general army headquarters announces that the Germans have gained possession of the lowlands of the Labunka River in Russian Poland, province of Lublin. The statement also admits the Germans lost the gains made by them yesterday against the French on Hilgenfirst in the Vosges Mountains. The statement says:

"In the western theater a French attack was repulsed northwest of Souchez.

"At Les Eparges a French attack, prepared for by the enemy with intense hand grenades and bombs containing asphyxiating gases, failed.

"The fortifications which we captured the day before yesterday on Hilgenfirst were lost again to the French yesterday.

"In the eastern theater there is nothing of importance to report. In the southeastern theater, north of the Dniester River, our troops are advancing against furious fighting in pursuit of the enemy and penetrating by way of the line of Mariampol, Nárajou and Miatio toward the Zlota Lipa section. They reached the Bug at several places between Kamionka and Strzumilowa and below Krylow, and are quickly advancing in a northerly direction between the Bug and the Vistula. The lowlands of Labunka now are in our possession after stubborn resistance at certain places.

"German troops also obtained a firm foothold on the northern bank of the river in the Wysnica section between Krasnik and the mouth of Labunka.

"Between the left bank of the Vistula and the Pilica River the situation remains generally unchanged.

"A Russian counter-attack southeast of Radom was repulsed."

GEN. GOURAUD IS WOUNDED.

Commander in Dardanelles is Returning to France.

Is Injured by Shells Which Fell Near Ambulance.

British Repulse is Reported from Constantinople.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

PARIS, July 3.—Gen. H. J. E. Gouraud, commander of the French expeditionary force at the Dardanelles, has been wounded and is returning to France. This announcement is made in the French official statement issued tonight, which adds that the general, who received his injuries by the explosion of shells, which fell near an ambulance, is not dangerously wounded.

The text of the communication follows:

"The day has been marked by renewed activity by the artillery of the enemy, particularly in Belgium in the region of Neuville, Ecurie and Roclincourt and on the front from the Somme to the Aisne. We have replied against the trenches and the batteries of the enemy.

"On the right bank of the Aisne, in the region of Soupir and Troyon, as well as in Champagne, on the Perthes-Beasejour front, mining operations have been carried out.

"In the Argonne the day has been calmer. In the heights of the Meuse at the Calonne trench and on the La Haye front the cannonade continues. In the Vosges there has been artillery actions at Fonteinelle and Hartmanns-Weilerkopf.

"Gen. Gouraud, commander of the French forces at the Dardanelles, has been wounded by the explosion of a shell, which fell near an ambulance, where the general had gone to visit the wounded. He is returning to France, his life not being endangered.

"Gen. Bailloud (formerly commanding the French troops in Algeria.) has taken Gen. Gouraud's place provisionally."

THE TURKISH REPORT.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

CONSTANTINOPLE, July 2 (via German wireless to London, July 3.)—The repulse of British assaults on the Gallipoli Peninsula is reported in an official statement issued today at the Turkish War Office. The communication follows:

"Renewed attacks by the British during the past three days near Avi Burnu and Seddul Bahr were beaten off with heavy enemy losses.

"The British were driven back into their old positions."

THE ALIGNMENT IN GALICIA.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

PETROGRAD, July 3 (via London.)—The present alignment of the tremendous forces engaged in Galicia and Southern Russia is roughly divisible into the seventy-five-mile fronts, one running north from Halicz and the Gnila Lipa River, and the other traveling east from the junction of the San and Vistula rivers. Together the fronts form an obtuse angle at Sokal, on the River Bug, and on the Galician side of the Russian border.

TAKE BOOTY FROM RUSSIANS.

[BY WIRELESS AND A. P.]

BERLIN, July 3 (via Sayville.)—Military writers figure that the Russians, from May 2 until June 27, left in the hands of the Germans 1630 officers and 520,000 men prisoners and 300 field guns and 770 machine guns besides incalculable war material.

SALVADOR ROSA IS EXECUTED.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

EL PASO (Tex.) July 3.—Salvador Rosa was executed in Juarez today, accused of sedition. Rosa formerly was a major in Gen. Pascual Orozco's army. He had been in custody of the Juarez military authorities for several days.

LONDON MEMBER IS ON WARPATH.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, July 3.—Sir Henry Dalziel, Liberal Member of Parliament and newspaper proprietor, whose arraignment of the ordnance department in the House of Commons last Thursday startled the British nation, announced today his intention to continue on the warpath until, in his own words, "the men directly guilty for the failures of the past year are cleared out, bag and baggage."

SCIENTISTS.

Dr. Richard H. Creel of the United States Health Service has accepted the position of health commissioner of Boston at a salary of $7500 a year.

Surgeon Long of the United States Public Health Service is the new director of public health of the Philippine Islands, a position created under the new Philippine health laws. Dr. Long has secured an indeterminate leave of absence to permit his occupancy of the post. The new legislation provides for a health body which will have supervision over all matters of sanitation in the Philippines.

Dr. Charles D. Walcott, secretary of the Smithsonian Institution, and Mrs. Walcott left Washington on Saturday to be absent in the West until October. Preparations are now completed for field exploration in the Yellowstone National Park and adjacent areas in Wyoming and Montana, for the purpose of collecting and studying field occurrence of ancient and modern fresh-water algal remains. This is in continuation of previous study of these forms, from which Dr. Walcott recently announced the discovery of pre-Gambrian Algonkian bacteria. A large number of specimens of certain rocks, such as the black obsidian and silicious sinter hot-spring deposits, will be gathered for the educational series of rocks which are distributed by the National Museum to high schools and colleges. Mrs. Walcott will do the photographic work of the expedition.

RIO GRANDE BLOWS UP.

Dillon and Blankenship stated yesterday that they had been notified that the Rio Grande League will disband tomorrow. This league, which has been used as a "farm" for Coast League players, will leave a number of athletes out of employment, including Jack Bliss, who has been managing the El Paso team.

Dillon will claim Oscar Horstman as his part of the wreck. Horstman is still on the Los Angeles reserve list, and was sent to the Rio Grande to gain experience. Blankenship will try and make a place for Outfielder Nutt, who was with the Bees in the spring, while President Maier in all probability will recall Don Rader, who was sent to Tucson under an optional agreement.

Conditions in Poland.

epidemic. But having in that region only two military surgeons, they soon dropped every effort in that line and left the unfortunate population to their fate. Recent news from the townships of Sosnoviec, Myszkov and Zawiercie inform us that over 200 persons succumbed there to typhoid fever within two weeks.

The devastation of Poland is the worst between Lodz and Warsaw. Every house, that for some reason or chance has been left intact by the Germans, is being razed to the ground by the Russians "for strategical reasons."

An army officer enters a once prosperous village and informs its inhabitants that he gives them thirty minutes' time to evacuate their homes. Panic-stricken, everyone seizes what he can. They flee, carrying infants in their arms and helping the old and invalid. Meanwhile the soldiers have already begun with the work of destruction. The houses are being set afire or blown up with dynamite. On the shore of the near-by river some hundred miserable people look at the flames and weep. They do not feel the cold or the rain that soaks their ragged clothes. They see only the flames that devour their homes; they hear only the thunder of dynamite explosives that destroy what was dearest to them, to their fathers and grandfathers, the fruit of generations of labor. . . . And they cry. . . .

Two hundred villages surrounding the big cities of Warsaw and Lodz have thus been destroyed, because—a friendly army needed more space for shooting

When his house is burnt down the peasant returns to the ruins and hides among them. At night, when no sentinel can see him, he creeps to the weeping willows that stand mournfully on the shore of the near-by river and chews their bark or roots to stay the hunger that gnaws him. But they are shooting at night, too. And this is how it happens that when the sun has risen bodies of peasants are found lying on the vast Polish plain.

POPE SCORES ATROCITIES.

"I Have Prayed for Peace," He Informs a Visitor.

Asked Kaiser to Spare the Rheims Cathedral.

Condemns Recent Martyrdom of Belgian Priests.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

PARIS, July 3.—An account of a visit paid to Pope Benedict last Monday by Fernand Laudet, director of the Revue Hebdomadaire, who formerly was secretary of the French Embassy to the Vatican, is published in the Figaro.

While M. Laudet does not pretend that the report of his reception at the Vatican is an interview, he quotes the words said to have been used by the Pontiff after being told by the journalist of the impression caused in France by Louis Latapie's interview with His Holiness printed by La Liberte. When he mentioned neutrality M. Laudet says he was interrupted by the Pope with the exclamation, "Oh, that France would understand well that this neutrality is not indifference. I love France as I did fifteen years ago and I have remained the same."

The Pope referred to efforts in behalf of a French mother who wrote him regarding her son, who was a prisoner in Germany, and told of sending a modest sum to France for charity.

PRAYS FOR PEACE.

"I have prayed for peace," the Pope is quoted as saying, "having no other concern than to implore the Lord to restore tranquility to a world thrown into disorder. You speak to me of the cathedral of Rheims which the Germans continue to attack. But from the beginning I directed the cardinal archbishop of Cologne to express my complaints to the Emperor and to ask him to spare religious edifices in the future. The reply has been the best would be done. If this promise has not been kept what can I do about it? I have done all I have been able to do in this and many other things which France ignores.

"You ask me if I condemn in principle the atrocities committed. In principle is not sufficient, I condemn them concretely. Everybody knows Germany has committed some atrocities; but I cannot specify reprobation as some would have it, because I have not the necessary information."

At the sound of the Angelus Pope Benedict withdrew, M. Laudet asserts, wit hthe words: "In any case I condemn highly the martyrdom of poor Belgian priests and so many other horrors on which the light has been thrown. I await only the occasion to convince France of my sympathy."

REPEAL SEAMEN'S LAW, DEMAND ON THE COAST.

Sales Managers' Association Insists that Immediate Effort Must be Made to Save American Commerce from Destruction and Urges Support of Every Large Firm—C. S. Hutchinson of Los Angeles Boosts.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, July 3.—A committee to draft resolutions calling upon President Wilson and Congress to repeal the LaFollette seamen's bill was named at today's session of the National Sales Managers' Association of America. It was decided to ask the President to meet a commission of shippers that will prepare a bill for Congress "which will wipe out obsolete laws that hamper commercial development, and regulate American shipping at least on a par with the rules governing the commerce of competing maritime countries." The set order of the convention was interrupted to permit this action under the leadership of C. S. Hutchinson of Los Angeles.

Members of the association said that "to save American commerce from destruction they would commence a vigorous campaign and enlist the support of every division and every large firm represented in the association."

It was decided to make the association an international organization. Officers elected were:

President, M. Louis Wooley, San Francisco; vice-presidents, W. L. Bilger, Seattle, E. S. Daniels, London, B. F. Neff, Duluth, Minn. D. G. Parker, Dallas, Tex.; directors, R. E. Rose, New York, A. C. Secrest, Cleveland, and A. Y. Soule, Los Angeles, director and treasurer; advisory board, T. H. Munroe, Lisbon, Ohio, Charles H. Victor, San Francisco, C. W. Summerfield, Philadelphia, F. C. Stratford, San Francisco, Louis A. Keller, Omaha, Neb., W. R. Patterson, Dallas, Tex., D. P. Gregg, St. Paul, John G. McGraw, Chicago.

Money for the War.

TO FOREIGN INVESTORS CZAR LOOKING FOR CASH.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

PETROGRAD, July 3 (via London, 11:35 a.m.)—The official journal today published an imperial edict authorizing the Russian Minister of Finance to make two issues of treasury obligations of $250,000,000 each. The issue is to be in the shape of 5 per cent. short term notes, free of income tax.

The issue will be in denominations from $50 upward. This low denomination is expected to give the loan a popular aspect and to appeal to foreign as well as Russian investors. The issue is to run for six months, beginning today.

Baltic.

SINKING OF ALBATROSS IS CONFIRMED BY BERLIN.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

BERLIN, July 3 (via London.)—A statement issued by the German Admiralty tonight relative to Friday's engagement in the Baltic Sea confirms the report that the German mine layer Albatross was forced to run aground on the coast of the Island of Gothland and states that twenty of her crew were killed in the fight and twenty-seven were wounded. The Albatross ran aground in a sinking condition after two hours of heavy fighting with four Russian cruisers.

The text of the statement follows:

"The Admiralty reports that a portion of the light Baltic naval forces returning from outpost duty met at about 6 o'clock on the morning of July 2, Russian armored cruisers patrolling between Gothland and Windau, Russia. Isolated fighting developed, our weak forces attempting to draw the Russian vessels within range of the other German ships.

"In the course of the fighting the Albatross was unable to regain touch with her own forces. After two hours of heavy fighting against four armored cruisers which continued firing within Swedish territorial waters, the Albatross was compelled to go aground near Oestgarns in Gothland. Twenty were killed and twenty-seven wounded. The wounded were well tended by the Swedish officials.

LABOR SHORT IN BRITAIN.

Scarcity Now Extends to Women and Boys in All Lines of Industry.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONDON, June 20.—Shortage of male labor in the United Kingdom, which was reported by nearly all trades in April, has now extended to female and boy labor, according to the Board of Trade Labor Gazette's monthly review of the labor market. Enlistment makes the working of the coal-mining industry and building trades difficult; metal trades are active; while engineering and shipbuilding trades continue to work at high pressure with night shifts, Sunday work and much overtime. Textile trades are well employed and various other industries show improvement. In agriculture there is a general scarcity of labor. Increases in wages coming into operation in May amounted to $940,000 per week, the largest ever recorded in any month.

THE UNCHLOROFORMED.

Rev. Albert Vogel, 98 years old, of Pittsburgh, Pa., preached the other Sunday for an hour and fifteen minutes. He is said to have preached nearly every day for the past month, and presumably intends to keep right at it.

After more than forty years' service as juryman in the Macon County Circuit Court of Georgia, Uncle Ebe Reynolds, aged 77, has announced his official retirement on account of enfeebled health.

A Mexican who dwells in Acton, Cal., has been chopping and hauling wood for the last fifty years, and now thinks of retiring from business and giving the young fellows a chance. His age is 112, and he thinks he is entitled to a rest.

Ira Howsand, 105 years of age, of Hutchinson, claims he is the oldest man in Kansas and that he has many more years to live. His unbroken fidelity to Democracy, his record of seventy-five years as an active church member and the fact that his birthday anniversary is February 22, the same day the father of his country was born, are the pride of the old man.

HICKS MAKES FAIR SCORE.

Fred W. Hicks of the Virginia Country Club of Long Beach, who tied for first honors in the recent Tom Morris trophy contest, with a score of 70 or 6 down on par, played the Virginia course yesterday in 73 in order to play off the tie. At a late hour last night nothing had been heard from his eastern rival.

BIG INCREASE FOR REICHSBANK.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

BERLIN, June 30 (via London, July 1.)—(Delayed by censor.) The statement of the Reichsbank issued June 30, showed the following increases:

Metal stocks, treasury certificates and notes of other banks, 153,746,000 marks; gold, 3,035,000 marks; discounts, 697,636,000 marks; loans, 633,000 marks; note circulation, 315,424,000 marks; deposits, 185,452,000 marks.

There was a decrease in treasury bills of 858,000 marks.

MRS. A. BASLEY

MRS. A. BASLEY TO GIVE FREE POULTRY LECTURE

Was Former Instructor in Poultrycraft at California State University. Author of "Western Poultry Book."

The Angeles Mesa Land Company has been extremely fortunate in being able to secure the services of Mrs. A. Basley, formerly instructor in Poultrycraft at the California State University and author of the well-known "Western Poultry Book," to deliver a free illustrated lecture in their large ground floor lecture hall at 433 South Hill Street, Tuesday evening, July 6th. Mrs. Basley will take as her subject, "Making a Success of Poultry and Turkey Raising."

It is seldom that local poultry fanciers and breeders are given the opportunity of listening to a lecturer of such notable importance. Mrs. Basley is recognized as an authority by poultry-crafters from coast to coast. The lecture will begin promptly at 7:45 p.m. Those who attend are urged to come early in order to procure good seats as the seating capacity of the hall is limited to 700.

CONNICK WILL RESIGN.

Director of Works at Panama-Pacific Exposition to Quit Soon, as His Task is Nearly Finished.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, July 3.—Harris De Haven Connick, director of works of the Panama-Pacific Exposition, and supervising constructor of the buildings which were reported to have cost $50,000,000, announced today he would resign soon.

His final task, now nearly finished, is the plan for demolishing speedily the great structures which took several years to build. Salvage on these, he said, probably would not be more than $500,000. None of the buildings will be saved, according to present plans. The temporary character of the construction would make maintenance too costly.

THE WEATHER BACK EAST.

Heavy Rains in the Southwest, with Ohio Valley Three Degrees Cooler than Chicago.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO BUREAU OF THE TIMES, July 3.—Heavy rains fell in the East and Southwest today. The South also was drenched, Mobile reporting 3.76 inches and New Orleans 2.68 inches. The Middle West had light showers, which lowered the temperature somewhat. Chicago had 73 deg., or 1 deg. under Los Angeles. This was about the average around the lakes. The Ohio Valley was 3 deg. cooler than Chicago. Other temperatures:

San Francisco Inventor Puts Plan Before Powers.

Begins Negotiations with the British Government.

Declares His Boat Can Travel Five Thousand Miles.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, July 3.—That he has invented a new type of submarine torpedo boat powerful enough to put an end to hostilities in Europe was the claim made here last night by Washington B. Vanderlip, inventor, explorer and member of the Institute of American Mining Engineers.

After telling of secret conferences during the last six weeks with Commander von Knoor of the Imperial German navy, sent here, Vanderlip said, by Count von Bernstorff, German Ambassador at Washington, which failed to mature in actual agreement, the inventor said that he had begun negotiations with the British government with a view to the construction of several of his undersea fighters.

"Before making my claims known to any foreign nation," Vanderlip said tonight, "I offered my invention to the United States government, but was unable to come to a satisfactory agreement with Naval Constructor Gleason at Mare Island Navy Yard, to whom I was referred by the Navy Department at Washington.

"After much consultation, the matter was referred back to Washington and I finally received the information that if I would build one of my submarines and prove to the department that it would do all I claim for it, the government would then enter into a contract to build a fleet of my type of vessel.

"As the cost of building one submarine would be nearly $500,000 this was out of the question, and I believed my chances were poor to do business with Uncle Sam."

Vanderlip said that Germany still has under advisement an offer made by him to go to Germany with plans and blueprints of his invention. While waiting for his reply from Berlin, he said, he has opened similar negotiations with Great Britain.

Some of the improvements which Vanderlip claims for his type of vessel are shown in the following table of comparisons between his invention and the latest type of submarines employed in European navies:

Present type, reserve buoyancy, 800 pounds; Vanderlip type, reserve buoyancy, 30 tons.

Present type, height periscope, 14 feet; Vanderlip type, height periscope, 40 feet.

Present type, scope periscope, 30 deg.; Vanderlip type, scope periscope, 60 deg.

Present type, limit run submerged, 500 miles; Vanderlip type, limit run submerged, 5000 miles.

Present type, limit speed submerged, 14 knots; Vanderlip type, limit speed submerged, 30 to 40 knots.

Present type, power when submerged, batteries only; Vanderlip type, power when submerged, Deisel engine underwater exhaust.

Present type, submerging method, large tanks; Vanderlip type, submerging method (secret method,) no tanks.

Present type, torpedo capacity, 6; Vanderlip type, torpedo capacity, 50.

POLICE SEEK "M. GAILLARD."

Special Agents of Corporations Would Like an Explanation of Alleged Letter of Credit.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, July 3.—Police and special agents of several corporations began active search today for a man who signed his name "M. Gaillard" to many checks, which, it is alleged, were not honored by the Denver bank on which Gaillard had a letter of credit for $3000. The bank, police said, notified them the letter of credit was forged.

A reward of $1000 offered by the Wells-Fargo Express Company for the arrest and conviction of an alleged passer of bad checks was said today to have been directed at Gaillard. He eluded those searching for him because his pursuers said they expected him to avoid the exposition, while he reasoned likewise and lived in a hotel on the grounds.

Dr. Langley Porter Says Advantage Should Have been Taken of Opportunity Afforded by Great Fire, but that People Apparently Failed in a Lamentable Manner.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, July 3.—Housing conditions, hygiene and sex instruction in the schools were discussed today at the final session of "Child Welfare" week at the Panma-Pacific Exposition, given by the United States Children's Bureau.

"Housing conditions in San Francisco are worse than they were before the fire," Dr. Langley Porter of San Francisco said, "Because in the chaotic days of reconstruction immediately following the 1906 disaster the crying need of San Francisco was shelter. As a consequence there was a lack of proper building inspection and organization which reflects itself in San Francisco's housing conditions today."

"People outside imagine that because San Francisco was destroyed in a measure, the rebuilt city is better," said Dr. Porter.

"The people here had a great opportunity, but it was not realized.

"A great enemy of children and mothers is the speculative builder who puts up buildings for profit with insufficient provision for lighting, ventilation and so forth."

Mrs. Florence Sherborn of Colfax, Iowa, member of the Federal Children's Bureau, termed the "average mother incompetent to teach children sanitation, and what they should know of reproduction without help."

To correct this she suggested that the "solution lay in domestic science."

She said "it is time to establish a course in the schools to teach girls how to become efficient mothers. Science has been applied to other things, but only lately to the most important subject of all, how to raise children."

BUSH FIRES IN CANADA.

Tremendous Damage Being Done in Logging Districts of British Columbia—People Forced to Flee.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

VANCOUVER (B. C.) July 3.—Extensive bush fires are raging in logging districts up the coast, the scenes of the largest damage being from 90 to 100 miles from this city. The forests are dry from deficient rainfall.

A fire started yesterday at Hatfield Camp, near Okis Hollow and spread to Higgins' Camp, a few miles away. There the main camp buildings were burned and 60 men were forced to flee.

Charles Lee's camp at Loughborough Inlet was burned two days ago, as was that of Ed. Dalby. Thirty-five men employed in these camps have come to Vancouver. South Gates camp is reported to have been closed, owing to the proximity of fire. Other camps are threatened.

The couple met two years ago in New York. The bride is a niece of the late A. T. Stewart, merchant prince of New York, and was educated abroad with Mrs. Reginald Vanderbilt. After their wedding trip they will make their home in San Francisco.

GUILTY IN FRAUD CASE.

Joseph Hunter, Salesman, Under Indictment in United States Cashier Suit, Will be Sentenced.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

PORTLAND (Or.) July 3.—On the eve of the trial next Tuesday of the officers and salesmen of the United States Cashier Company on charges of using the mails in furtherance of a million dollar fraud, Joseph Hunter, one of the salesmen under indictment, appeared in Judge Bean's division of the Federal Court today, withdrew his plea of not guilty and entered a plea of guilty.

Judge Bean set Monday, July 12, for pronouncing sentence.

Hunter faced a charge of fraud, together with Frank Menefee, president of the company; F. E. Lemonn, sales manager; Oscar A. Campbell of Eugene and Thomas A. Bilyeu of Hillsboro, directors; O. E. Bernert, B. F. Bonnewell, H. M. Todd, P. E. Muraine and O. L. Hopson, salesmen.

Except Hopson all the men are at liberty under bond. Hopson has not been apprehended.

The government charges that the company sold all its treasury stock of $1,250,000 for more than $1,000,000 on the fraudulent representation that it owned the patents to five change-making machines, which it purposed manufacturing. Legal entanglements led to dissolution of the company, whose business is now handled by a concern in Terre Haute, Ind. At one time it operated a factory here.

truth of this assertion is self- admitted by all who have subject any thought. The of public-service property instances has worked a gross upon the small householder his home adjacent to the for which he may or may not labor. Naturally, the withdrawal of the large operating property from local assessment has thrown a larger burden upon the small property owner in the maintenance of the municipal activities. Amendment No. 1 in no way permits the remedying of such an evil.

"Amendment No. 1 has equalized the burden between the national bank and the State bank, and caused a better taxation of bank values. It has pointed a better way to assess values of property which is distributed outside of one locality.

"I do not say that under Amendment No. 1, taken as a whole, the conditions are any worse than they were under the old system. If in many ways Amendment No. 1 could have been adjusted by the Legislature from time to time, many of the errors of its administration could have been overcome, and it could have been far in advance of the old system and of the present condition.

"The burden of my argument is to the effect that no system of taxation in detail can be placed in the Constitution, where it cannot be adjusted from time to time, without causing the same inequalities and the same injustice as obtained under the old ad valorem system, and that obtain now under Amendment No. 1.

"The only argument which the opponents of Senate Constitutional Amendment No. 38 finally fall back upon is that it will force the Southern Pacific Company and other corporations to go back into politics.

"Public corporations have a better excuse now to get into politics than they would under Senate Constitutional Amendment No. 38, for the reasons set forth hereafter.

"Senate Constitutional Amendment No. 38 is simply an enabling provision, and does not bind the Legislature or the people to any particular method of taxation. As before stated, its prime object is to allow freedom of action by the Legislature to effect more quickly the desire of the majority of the people of the State.

"Amendment No. 38 makes no change whatever in any of the existing laws relative to revenue and taxation, but leaves them in full force and effect until changed by the Legislature.

"The proposed amendment takes out of the Constitution the present provisions relative to the State Board of Equalization, and provides for a State tax commission to administer revenue and taxation laws and to sit constantly as a forum before which inequalities and injustices may be remedied.

"The proposed amendment does not interfere in any way whatever with the local assessors or other local officers. It does not interfere in any way with the local levy and collection of taxes for local purposes. In fact, there is a specific provision in the proposed amendment prohibiting any interference in local matters.

"Amendment No. 38 carries the exemptions from tax as they now exist in our Constitution.

"Senate Constitutional Amendment No. 38 is necessary to permit a just and equitable system of taxation for all the people of California."

HAWSON'S OPPOSITION.

Assemblyman Henry Hawson of Fresno opposed submitting amendment No. 38 to the people of the State for ratification and fought it all one afternoon. Hawson is a Democrat with a strong leaning towards single tax. In his closing argument, he said in part:

"I confess that I approach the vote on constitutional amendment No. 38 with an increasing sense of its importance. When the bill first came to our attention, I realized that it was one of the important measures to be considered by the Legislature, but it was not until this morning, when I found the lobby of this House thronged by representatives of the administration actively engaged in working to secure its adoption that I fully realized the importance that seems to be attached to it by those responsible for its introduction.

"When we voted in this House in January on the revenue and taxation measure I was the only one who voted against it and I availed myself of the opportunity afforded a member of this House to print in the Journal my reasons for that vote. They were, substantially, that our present system is without basis of equity or justice and substitutes for a definite, certain and easily ascertained basis one that is fluctuating and uncertain.

"For the reasons then given, I naturally welcome a proposal for a thorough investigation of our present system and of possible new methods of establishing a fair and equitable taxation system. Therefore, Senate bill No. 962, providing for the appointment of a tax commission, seemed to me to be in line with the needs of the State as a step toward the establishment of a better system. But this constitutional amendment now before us seems to me to be a premature effort to establish a system before the investigating commission to be appointed has even been created.

"Let me call your attention to the complete lack of information vouchsafed to the members of this House by the proponents of this measure. We are furnished with no details as to the failure of our present system nor any reason for the proposal of a new constitutional amendment such as that before us. We are told by the gentleman who introduced this measure this afternoon that other States have a more flexible system of revenue and taxation and that it is desirable that California should adopt a system which would yield more readily to fluctuating needs. I agree with that proposition, but I am a firm believer in a system of taxation based upon fixed and comparatively stable land values, instead of a system which places a burden upon every kind of enterprise and upon all forms of industry.

"I am in favor of a system so flexible that it will leave to the people of cities and counties the right and the authority to adopt whatever system they desire, believing that by this method only is it possible for communities to place the incidence of taxation upon its legitimate and only equitable object, the values created by the community, based upo nthe land, which is the foundation of all values. I am in favor of a system which will allow the people of each community to exempt from taxation the creations of enterprise and industry and when I am told that the system now proposed is a flexible system, I answer that it gives to the Legislature the sole authority to prescribe the manner and method of assessing, levying, equalizing and collecting taxes, for State, county, city and county, municipal and district revenues. Such a system gives no such flexibility as is necessary and it seems appropriate to ask whether the members of this House realize that, instead of being asked to establish a really flexible system, they are being persuaded to assist in the establishment of a centralized bureaucratic authority here in Sacramento which shall dominate and control, by usurpation, all the legitimate functions belonging to the communities of the State.

"I am further justified in this attitude when I find that a radical organ, an outspoken advocate of true progressive principles and of sound doctrines of taxation, the San Francisco Star, views this proposed legislation with suspicion and distrust. The Star asks some pertinent questions, which, coming from such a source, may be deemed more worthy of answer than if asked by myself. The policy of contemptuous silence pursued toward the members of this House upon all matters involved in the policy of the administration is one of the most unfortunate facts impressed upon a member of this House. But these questions, coming from a source usually in hearty accord with the administration, merit, almost demand an answer.

"Let me quote: 'Does anyone in the Legislature really know anything about the proposed constitutional amendment for abolishing the State Board of Equalization and reorganizing the tax system of California under a tax commission?

" 'It is alleged that the amendment was prepared by Senator Thompson of Los Angeles, but it is improbable that the Senator is the author of it. It is said that the measure is approved by Gov. Johnson; but does the Governor know the real purpose and meaning of the amendment?

" 'The fact that the measure would abolish the State Board of Equalization is in its favor, but evidently that is not its real purpose.

" 'The proposed amendmegt would remove the present constitutional restrictions on legislative action on taxation, and that is desirable. But is the measure drawn for the benefit of the people, or for the benefit of the corporations? Who drew up the measure, a member of the Legislature or a corporation attorney?'

"Upon the answers to these questions should largely depend our attitude toward this legislation. We have a right to know something more than that the passage of this bill is demanded. Our duty as legislators requires that we should be in possession of the fullest information, and our rights as representatives of the people of California entitle us to demand that before a new system of taxation be approved by us, even for submission to the people, it should be based upon equity and justice and that it will not be the substitution of a new system open to even greater abuse and more certainly doomed to failure than the one for which it is proposed it shall be substituted."

SCHMITT'S OPPOSITION.

Milton L. Schmitt, Republican Assemblyman from San Francisco, voiced his opposition to the proposed amendment in the following terms:

"I am strongly opposed to the adoption of A.C.A. 38; the principal reason for my opposition being that it places the power in the hands of the Legislature to define and classify the subject of taxes and to prescribe the manner and method of assessing, levying, equalizing and collecting the taxes for State, county, city and county, municipal and district revenues. This in substance means that what one Legislature might adopt as a taxation system, the next following Legislature two years thereafter might completely overturn, and in lieu thereof establish an entirely different system.

"The basis of all investment of money is, of course, upon the return which that money will bring to the investor. Investors of money are naturally timid, and it appears to me that if this new method should be written into the law, it will serve to discourage the investment of capital either in big or little business. No man wants to engage in any business where he may be taxed out of existence at any time, at the whim and caprice of a Legislature. At the present time it is true that our system is unsatisfactory to almost everybody, but, I am a firm believer in establishing in the Constitution, a method of taxation, and not conferring the right upon any legislative body by a majority vote to completely or at all change the tax system.

"The law prevailing today provides that the corporation taxes shall pay for the support of the State government, and the Legislature is merely given the power to adjust the rates, but notwithstanding that, the constitutional provision is that two-thirds of the members of the Legislature must agree before any change can be made in the rates.

"I attempted to amend the amendment so as to require a two-thirds vote before any tax measure could be adopted or thereafter amended, in order to make the tax regulation somewhat more stable.

"My next objection to this proposed change in the Constitution is that there is another measure pending before this session of the Legislature, which provides for the appointment of a commission for the purpose of investigating proposed changes in the Constitution with reference to taxation, which commission is supposed to report to the next session of the Legislature. Now, then, if we are going to authorize the expenditure of $75,000 for the purpose of making such investigation why should we at this time submit to the people a constitutional amendment which, if adopted, may practically nullify the result of the investigation of that commission? The sensible way to proceed, in my judgment, is to have the commission make its investigation and report its recommendation back to the next session of the Legislature, and at that session, if it is deemed advisable and correct, a constitutional amendment can then be offered to the people.

"It has been stated by the proponents of the bill that it is necessary to raise more money for the conduct of the State's business and that the present system does not derive sufficient for that purpose. The present rates were established in 1910. At the session of 1913, we were told that there was a deficiency of about three and one-half million in the State's funds; we were then called upon to raise the rates of the various classifications of corporations in order to derive more money. This was done but notwithstanding, at this present session of the Legislature we were told that there was a further deficiency of about two million dollars and we were again called upon to raise the rates paid by the corporations. Once again this was done and now we are told that unless the entire system is changed, unless we take away constitutional restrictions and give to the Legislature the right to establish rates, etc., we will not have sufficient money to run the State. I take issue with this statement, because I do not believe it is so. The reason for this crying demand is because as soon as more money is raised, there are more bureaus, more boards, and commissions created for the purpose of consuming what money is left.

"In conclusion, I wish to assign this proposition of giving this power into the hands of a majority of the legislators as being positively vicious and opposed to all sense of encouraging development and growth of our various resources and industries. From past occurrences we all know that the chief executive directs the course of the Legislature with respect to these matters, and while on its face it would appear to give the people, through their chosen representatives, the right to define and classify property for taxation and to levy rates, it is merely an indirect method of giving into the hands of the chief executive the absolute power to dictate everything with reference to taxation."

THE WAY WE CELEBRATE.

BY EUGENE BROWN.

GREAT SCOTT! how time flies.

For some 139 years the American people have been independent—or thought they were. Not independently rich, or independent of social or moral obligations, but holding as independence such personal privileges as the right to run in debt, to run to fires, to run for office, to run after grass widows or to run a hand laundry.

The Americans are great runners—except from the enemy.

Just 139 years ago this morning one Thomas Jefferson—who was afterward accused, but not convicted, of founding the Democratic party—remarked to his friend John Hancock: "Let's be independent."

He had just melded eighty kings at pinochle and was feeling fine.

"I'll go you," answered John, heartily.

So that day the historic declaration of independence was issued. Hancock picked up a big quill from an American eagle, and plunging it in a barrel of ink, affixed his signature to the document in a hand so bold it could be seen a block away.

When King George heard about it he exclaimed: "Zounds! Declarations are made of waste paper." But he felt sore about it just the same, and sent a bunch of soldiers over here to shoot up the country. But the visiting troops fell down on the job, and the next film shows the King hiding under his throne while George Washington is running all over the place with a pitchfork trying to poke him out. "Anyway, we're a free country," remarked Washington as he walked up Chestnut street.

We have free speech, free lunch and free love. So for a hundred years or more the stalwart Americans have been celebrating the birthday of the nation.

They burnt powder, barns, schoolhouses and asylums in indiscriminate enthusiasm over the anniversary, until it got so that officials of the insurance companies could get no sleep during the month of July. Of late, however, there has been a drift toward what the highbrows call safety and sanity in celebration. As a result, the juvenile mortality from tetanus and gunshot wounds has been materially lessened.

A generation ago a triple-headed holiday was an unholy terror. When the glorious Fourth came on Sunday it meant three days of fireworke, fire water and fire fighting. The kids had their celebration Saturday, he women Sunday and the men Monday. There was something going on all the time. Some who began to celebrate Friday night never really knew how long it lasted. I recall a convivial acquaintance who attended a brewery opening on a Friday afternoon, July 2, and knew nothing much further until the porter woke him up in a room in a strange hotel on the morning of Tuesday, July 6. After that he always confined his observance of Independence Day to the 4th itself.

But with three possible days before us this year, some of our people in Rosedale pulled off our own little celebration on Saturday. We figured that if anything else came along we could join in if we wished, but would have our own out of the way. We would be that much ahead, anyhow. We wanted an old-fashioned blowout with its games and speeches and a picnic dinner. So we appointed a committee and decided "what who all was to do."

The committee inspected my hen foundry and kindly permitted me to furnish the fried chicken, the ice cream, the decorations and the transportation as my share, and in return I was invited to deliver the oration of the day. This latter was a delicate tribute to the circumstance that back in Illinois Bill Lorimer had once beaten me in running for the Senate.

Judge Malachi Pettibone was asked to read the Declaration of Independence, and the Nazarene preacher was invited along to look after the theological end of the game.

We passed the hat, and Hezekiah Poffenberger was made a committee of one to go to the city and get $15 worth of fireworks.

Well, we got to the picnic with all our fodder, and then the trouble began. The first hiatus came from Judge Pettibone. The judge is distressingly absent-minded, and instead of his printed copy of the immortal Declaration he had carelessly slipped in his pocket at the starting the notice of a street assessment he had received the night before. He began by memory, all right enough, but in a moment he had to dip into his reading, and what he really did say was this:

"When, in the course of political events is becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bonds which connect them with lots 57 and 58 of Eagledale tract, being 2.55 acres more or less fronting on the aforesaid Colorado boulevard," and so on.

There was hardly a dry eye on the place when the judge finished and the applause was deafening.

Those present did not know much about the Declaration, but they could understand the assessment notice the first dash out of the box.

When it came time for my ovation the party became uneasy, and Prof. Julius Dingbat pulled out a big brass watch and looked at it meaningly.

I did not detain them as long as they feared. My remarks were about as follows:

"Fellow-citizens: Standing as I am, before the select of the earth, in the most enlightened land on God's green globe, I should be a dodo-domed derelict if my mind did not unconsciously traverse the aisles of the centuries to scan the stately procession of events that have accentuated the world's progress since the dawn of history. I shall ask you to go back with me to the primitive days when Sciaticus, the cave man, fought Rhoom Atiz, the mound builder, for his mate. I will take you through the Garden of Eden over the field of the Cloth of Gold to Griffith Park, stopping at Thermopylae and Runnymede on the way. We shall watch the inspired crusaders as they cross the hot sands of the desert in quest of the Shrine Auditorium, and we shall go with Charlemagne's heroes into the vale of Roucesvalles. We shall sail with the adventurous Columbus over an uncharted sea to a land that should be filled with light and laughter. But we shall not do all this today. Hunger and thirst forbid that I should much longer entertain, and I shall take leave to print the major portion of my remarks."

"Thank God!" exclaimed the preacher in a voice throbbing with emotion.

While I was speaking my hat was tossed carelessly on the grass. There were a couple of packages of firecrackers in it, and some fiend in human form touched them off with a cigar. When I finally resumed my dome shield it looked as if it had been shot at by the whole German army. My wife had not seen the accident, and when she saw me with the shredded helmet she grimly remarked, "That's what you get for trying to think with your hat on."

When Hezekiah Poffenberger arrived with his fireworks I also noticed he had a few strange-shaped glass receptacles containing an odd-colored liquid. He explained that they were hand grenades, to be used in the accidental explosion of the fireworks.

As the day wore on we noticed that Hezekiah was growing quite cheerful and convivial. Finally I came upon him in a patch of timber trying to take one of the grenades apart with a corkscrew.

Then I realized the truth. It is only in prohibition towns that they bait the fire extinguishers with bock beer. In other respects, our picnic was quite a success.

CATHEDRAL WITH SYMMETRY.

Salisbury's Noted Edifice is the Most Graceful Religious Structure in England and Well Placed.

[Thme Pathfinder:] Salisbur's (pronounced Salusbury") is a very ancient place, and like Exeter, Lincoln, Winchester, York and other old English cathedral towns, is a a very charming place to visit; there is a quiet dignity and a restfulness and repose about them which is unique. This cathedral of course is Salisbury's chief object of interest, and with good reason, for it is generally regarded as the most graceful of all the English religious structures.

Any building like this should have ample space around it so that it may be viewed in its full grandeur. Salisbury cathedral is peculiarly favored in this respect, for the cathedral close or yard is a very broad green, whereas, as a rule, the other great churches of the world, and public buildings generally, are so crowded in among other buildings that they cannot be seen to advantage.

We had been to Salisbury on a former trip and we had a special fondness for the place. As you approach the town from any direction you see at a great distance the delicately designed spire looming up as a landmark. This spire is the highest in England, being a little over 400 feet. As a rule, the cathedrals and other buildings of Europe have been built a little at a time; one part may date from the dark ages while another part only goes back to the Middle Ages, and there will be various minor features which have been added on at later dates, according to the whims of those in charge at the time.

Salisbury cathedral, however, was all completed within about forty years, and it is one of the few great churches which possess unity and symmetry of plan.

RAID UNCOVERS BEER BY THE AUTO-LOAD.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

POMONA, July 3.—Four hundred bottles of Fourth of July enthusiasm occupy the bars in the City Jail tonight as a result of a raid on "Bee Farms" which was made by Deputy District Attorney Keyes, County Detectives Hunter, Glover and Margolis of Los Angeles, Constable Slanker of this city and Deputy Constable Doutt of Lordsburg.

Warren Gale is in jail and John Ahrens and Percy Howell are out on bail to appear before Judge Erasmus Barnes Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock for preliminary examination, the charge against each and all of them being that they have been conducting alleged blind-pigs in the foothills north of this city. All three claim to be bee ranchers.

When the officers made their unexpected swoop Saturday afternoon, they gathered in seventeen sacks containing twenty-two dozen bottles labeled beer. Howell said that he and his wife and sister were going to take it with them to the beach Sunday morning. Several boxes and sacks of alleged liquor were seized at Gale's place, and three boxes of alleged beer in bottles was brought to light at the Ahrens ranch.

It took three autos to haul the moisture to the city jug. Ahrens handed over his personal check for $500, guaranteed by a bank, for bail.

In commenting on the raid Capt. Hunter says: "We have the goods on these men. My men have been working around Pomona at least two months. It took a long while to get the evidence we wanted, but we have it this time, I feel sure. It has long been my desire to rake these fellows in and I don't believe we have left a loop-hole anywhere."

Unsettling.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE WEAK, CAPITAL PRICES RISING.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, July 3.—A more or less active week, which included unprecedented weakness in foreign exchange, the United States Rubber episode and a sudden break in St. Paul shares, closed with an attempt on the life of J. P. Morgan. This latter event caused only a brief unsettlement, on assurances that the distinguished financier's injuries were not of a serious nature. The rising price of capital continues to be the leading phenomenon of the markets. This week's sale of New York City bond confirmed the evidence on this point of last week's British loan.

Bonds prices reflected the process of readjustment to the new basis of return. Pending the completion for this process, capital remains reluctant for fixed investments. The half-year's issues of new securities were the smallest in any similar period for some years. Hence the immense surplus reserves in banks, low money rates and high prices of short term notes, compared with bonds.

Foreign sales of American bonds have been large, induced by the increased returns of the new British loans. London exchange, nevertheless, sank to new low levels. The price of the New York City loan counteracts the British flotation. The favorable trade balance, having exceeded the billion-dollar mark for the fiscal year, continues to mount, "affording grounds of comment," the British Prime Minister says, "I don't say for anxiety but for serious thought."

Bank of England gold in Ottawa approaches depletion. Fresh computation of recognized authority discloses much smaller holding of American securities abroad than previously accepted estimates. Nevertheless, arrangement of foreign loans here seem difficult. There are circumstantial reports of another British loan here to be exempt from tax by the borrower. It is clear, however, that American banks, however, prefer American bank notes owned abroad as collateral. Approach of a double holiday and the imminence of Germany's reply to Washington's note on marine warfare, conduced the market to dullness. General trade conditions gave promise of improvement in various lines, with increased demand for iron and steel.

SHIP FROM TEXAS SUNK BY GERMANS.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, July 3.—The British steamship Craigard, of 3286 tons gross, was sunk today by a torpedo fired by a German submarine. The crew was landed at Plymouth.

The Craigard sailed from Galveston June 3 and Newport News June 11 for Havre and the first suggestion that she had met with some mishap was when an empty lifeboat and another boat marked "Craigard Leith" were towed into Penzance.

WHEAT

Los Angeles, Cal.

Gentlemen:

I weighed wheat this year grown on 65 acres of Delta land that ran as high as 72 lbs. to the bushel, and averaged 46 2-3 bushels to the acre. This was "Turkey Red" No. 1 hard wheat, and was sold unsacked for 80 cents a bushel. The land was watered once in the fall of 1913, and a part of it again in the spring of 1914. About 20 acres of the land was not plowed at all, the grain being planted in the stubble of the previous year's crop. This record may seem unbelievable to many people, but I am willing to testify under oath that the above statements are absolutely true because I planted the land and weighed the grain myself.

(Signed) F. E. BELSTON.

State of Utah, County of Millard. } ss.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 18th day of December, 1914. A. M. McPHERSON, Notary Public.

My commission expires November 9, 1918.

Pahvant Valley is on the main line of the Salt Lake Railroad in Southwestern Utah—under $1,000,000 irrigation system. Estimated annual cost of maintenance from forty to fifty cents per acre.

$70 Per Acre for Land and Perpetual (Gravity) Water Right. $25 An Acre Down, Balance in 10 Years.

Although sugar beets, alfalfa-seed and hogs are the real big money-makers in Pahvant Valley—wheat is a quick, dependable "mortgage-lifter." Thousands of acres of No. Turkey Red Wheat will soon be harvested. The farmers say the crop will easily average better than 40 bushels to the acre—and many farms will yield over 50 bushels to the acre. This statement may seem unbelievable to you—and we wouldn't dare to make it if the actual evidence wasn't right now on the ground. Seeing is believing.

If the Middle West wheat farmers have become rich during the past few years—where the normal average wheat yield is only 16 to 18 bushels to the acre—will the Pahvant Valley farmers make money on land yielding 40 to 50 bushels to the acre? Figure it out for yourself. Even if peace were declared today, experts predict that the results of the European war will favorably affect the American wheat market for at least five years. Under these conditions doesn't Pahvant Valley wheat (40 to 50 bushels to the acre,) look like absolute insurance of success right from the start?

Go up to Pahvant Valley and get the facts—talk to the growers—see the crops. This is harvest time. Go and get your own evidence. Sugar beets, alfalfa, alfalfa-seed, grain, hogs and dairying are absolutely proven money-makers in Pahvant Valley.

These crops are rapidly paying off mortgages—they are making bank accounts. The water maintenance cost is so low that Pahvant Valley farmers say that it seems like getting water for nothing as compared with other Western irrigation districts.

If you are tired of a lazy soil and high water cost—if you are weary of low average crop-yields—if you want to make real money in sufficient quantities to become absolutely independent—investigate Pahvant Valley at once. Booklet will be forwarded upon request. Special excursions at low homeseekers' rates from Los Angeles.

YOUR WEIGHT AND HEALTH.

People Past Thirty Years of Age Should Combat any Increase of Adipose Tissue.

[New York Sun:] Recent investigations show that the longest life and best health is not to be found among those of average build at any particular age. On the contrary, it is discovered that in those at the younger ages who are slightly overweight and at the older ages among those who are distinctly underweight the longest life and best health will be found.

Overweight is, above thirty odd years, a definite disadvantage to health. It means staleness, lack of elasticity, clogged up tissues and lack of the power of adaptability to invading germs. It is utter nonsense to excuse overweight by such phrases as "overweight due to muscular development," "no excess fat present to explain overweight." The very fact that there is too much weight precludes any escape from the facts of experience.

A tall man may escape the penalties of overweight better than a short man. Ill health and worse comes oftener to fat or chunky short men than tall ones. Less excess weight is permissible between twenty-five years and fifty and increasingly less as you go up. There is one-third more deaths among men between sixty-five and eighty who are fifty to sixty pounds fatter than they should be for a given height.

At the ages of thirty-four to forty-five years, from thirty-five to forty-five pounds heavier weight than a man should have doubles his risk of death. For anyone above thirty-five who is thirty pounds too obese life insurance companies hereafter will consider poor risks or raise their insurance rates.

Alcohol and slight overweight go hand in hand with approaching illness or early death. Whenever the abdomen is larger than the chest, if the blood pressure is higher than normal in a fat person, if the parents and grandparents were short lived and the person is very much above weight, appropriate measures must be undertaken to reduce the weight.

There is no better way for persons above thirty to reduce their avoirdupois than by a sane diet combined with muscular work every night between 9 and 12 o'clock.

Three pounds a week can be thus sent to the scrap heap. There should be an utter avoidance of all hot victuals, soups, greases, gravies, pepper, salt, mustard, sauces, condiments and seasoning.

Meat absolutely bare of fat and without butter or lard may be eaten. Peas, spinach, and string beans, clear broth and water, only, however, between meals, may be drunk.

Teetotal abstinence from bread, sugar, potatoes, cream, candies, cakes, pastries, sweets, milk, butter, oils, starches and bulky vegetables, cereals and fats must be rigidly maintained.

Dancing and gymnasium work at night—if your heart and kidneys are sound—with drinks of sugarless egg albumen and lemonade or whey or a fatless piece of meat will do much toward bringing you to a proper weight.

The New Silhouette.

[Cincinnati Enquirer:] Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, at a tea in her studio in McDougal's alley, praised the new spring fashions.

"They give a quite new silhouette," she said. " a slim, narrow-sholdered, very girlish silhouette.'

Mrs. Whitney laughed and added:

"A painter asked me the other day how we women could prove that we were more capable than men.

" 'Why we can prove it by our clothes,' I answered. 'A man has clothes made to fit his figure, but a woman has her figure made to fit her clothes.' "

No Trouble to Keep Skin Free From Hairs.

(The Modern Beauty)

There is no need for any woman to countenance superfluous hairs, because with a paste made by mixing some powdered delatone with water it is easy to get rid of them. The paste is applied for 2 to 3 minutes, then rubbed off and the skin washed. This treatment will rid the skin of hair without leaving a blemish, but care should be taken to see that you get real delatone.

Justice.

EXTRADITION IS DEMANDED.

HUERTA ACCUSED OF MADERO ASSASSINATION.

Charges Filed with United States Declare Former President with Felix Diaz and Others are Guilty of Murder and Their Return to Mexico is Asked.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN ANTONIO (Tex.) July 3.—An application to the United States for formal extradition of Victoriano Huerta, Felix Diaz, Manuel Mondragon and Aureliano Blanquet was filed with Secretary of State Lansing yesterday afternoon by Eliso Arredondo, confidential agent for Carranza.

The text of the application was received here this morning by wire. It calls the attention of the American government to alleged crimes committed during the February, 1913, uprising in Mexico City and lays the blame for Madero's death to the alleged combination. It then asserts that they are planning another revolution and asks that they be detained and sent back to Mexico for trial.

TEXT OF REQUEST.

The request reads:

"The bloody events in the City of Mexico, from February 9 to 23, in 1913, which concluded with the assassination of President Madero and Vice-President Pino Suarez are notorious thoughout the world. It is equally well known that these events and the overthrow of the legitimate government of President Madero were brought about by Gens. Felix Diaz, Blanquet and the dead General Bernardo Reyes and saw their consummation through the concerted action of these with Gen. Victoriano Huerta, whom President Madero had named military commander of the Plaza; and finally it is also well known that Gen. Huerta turned against the legitimate government, the sword it had placed in his hands to defend its institutions, usurped the executive power of the republic and ending with the assassination of the President by soldiers under orders of these men who have never been prosecuted for these crimes of high treason against the Mexican republic.

"The co-authors with Huerta are Gens. Mondragon, Blanquet and Diaz, the civilians who formed the so-called Cabinet of Huerta, various senators and deputies of the general congress and various native and foreign capitalists who co-operated. Huerta was placed in power through the medium of this crime and Venustiano Carranza, constitutional governor of the State of Coahuila, protested against this usurpation, refusing to recognize the authority of Huerta and his so-called government."

FLIGHT OF HUERTA.

The fight of Huerta and his supporters is noted and the petition adds:

"A month and a half ago Huerta returned to America and made his residence in New York, giving out a statement that he came to reside in this country in order to partake of its hospitality and for whose people he entertained the grandest sympathies.

"All the New York press advanced the proposition that Huerta would not take part in a new intervention in the political affairs of Mexico. But on the arrival of Blanquet and Mondragon and the conference in that city of Felix Diaz with a large number of friends and partisans who had been with Huerta, all the American press announced profusely that Huerta, Blanquet, Felix Diaz, Mondragon and other partisans had been meeting daily and arranging a new plan of revolution against Mexico."

The request then recites the fact of Huerta's alleged attempt to launch a revolution in El Paso.

VILLA WANTS HIM TOO.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, July 3.—Eliseo Arredondo, Gen. Carranza's agent here, said today he based the request for extradition of Huerta and other Mexican exiles principally on the deaths of President Madero and Vice-president Suarez. Gen. Villa has asked for the extradition of Huerta in proceedings between the Governor of Chihuahua and the Governor of Texas.

AMERICA'S GREAT WEALTH.

The United States is Sweeping Forward to Enormous Opulence Compared with Europe.

[Philadelphia Ledger:] English economists have declared that America's wealth grows $5,000,000,000 a year. Since the official estimate of our national wealth three years ago exceeds $187,000,000,000 the total today must now have passed beyond the $200,000,000,000 point. These figures are colossal beyond compare. They mean $2000 of wealth for every inhabitant. They represent more than double the wealth of the United Kingdom, our closest competitor, and they very nearly match the combined wealth of England, France and Germany.

Our wealth is ten times that of Italy, eight times that of Austria and four times that of France. These leading European countries are now tearing at one another's vitals and destroying property much faster than they can create it. Hence all Europe is today actually moving backward while the United States is sweeping swiftly forward to a state of still greater opulence. Ours is the land of plenty, of peace and of opportunity. These three factors are aiding powerfully in persuading the individual investors of Europe to hold fast their American securities, since here is the spot where their capital will be freest of perils and surest of winning a large reward.

Rearrested.

HUERTA PARTY IN COUNTY JAIL.

With Five Companions Unable to Obtain a Bond.

Thirty Thousand Dollars is Security Required.

Makes Violent Protest When Arraigned in Court.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

EL PASO (Tex.) July 3.—Gen. Huerta and the five persons arrested with him this afternoon failed to obtain bond and shortly after 5 o'clock were taken to the County Jail. A military guard probably will be stationed around the building.

Just before he left his home with the officers Huerta dictated a telegram to the Chief Justice of the United States Supreme Court. The message follows:

"I have the honor to inform you on the following affairs: That the representatives of the judicial department of the government in this city have, without just reason, molested me and my family here. I am already under arrest and under certain charges, and have furnished bond with the local authorities. Now I have been rearrested.

"I respectfully ask an order from your court that your representatives here be instructed to tell me of the duties I am to perform and the conduct I must pursue in order that henceforth they may leave me and my family unmolested."

ADDS TO PROTEST.

Huerta reiterated and added to this protest when he appeared before Commissioner Oliver. R. E. Crawford, Assistant United States District Attorney, had just asked that Huerta's bond be fixed at $100,000 and $15,000 for each of the other defendants, When Huerta asked to be heard.

"While I respect the laws of this country," said the former President of Mexico, "I must protest against the methods that have been used here since I was arrested. I gave the bond demanded. Then I was guarded like a prisoner who had not given bond. The doors and windows of my house have been kept open in order that guards might watch me and might listen to all I had to say to my friends and to my family even. Agents appeared from time to time in my house in search of those they would arrest."

Huerta's eye flashed as he turned in the direction of the deputy United States Marshal and personally directed to him an accusation of failure to treat with respect him and his family.

"Having held high position," continued Huerta, "it is natural that I should have enemies and these are the ones who are making the trouble."

CAUSE OF REARREST.

Huerta's rearrest was on a Federal warrant issued at San Antonio, charging conspiracy to violate the neutrality laws of the United States by attempting to launch a revolutionary movement in Mexico.

Arrested with him were Gen. Ignacio Bravo and Jose Delguado.

Although Federal authorities were silent as to the significance of the case it was understood that the San Antonio charges probably will supersede those filed here. It was believed that the new bonds would be materially increased and that after a speedy hearing the defendants would be taken to San Antonio.

Commissioner Oliver fixed the bond of each defendant at $15,000 despite the fact that R. E. Crawford asked that Huerta's bond be set at $100,000 and the bond of each of the others at $15,000.

Huerta is now held under a total of $30,000 bond to appear July 12.

CAMP TO TAKE CHARGE.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, July 3.—United States Attorney Camp at San Antonio has been ordered to El Paso by Atty.-Gen. Gregory to take personal charge of the government's case against Gen. Huerta. The administration has decided to prosecute Huerta for conspiracy to incite a revolution against a friendly nation. For the present no effort will be made to deport him as an undesirable alien. If a conviction is not returned, recourse may be had to the immigration laws. Officials here feel the case against Huerta is strong.

A CENTURY OF TROUSERS.

The First Wearers of Loose Breeches Excited a Stir, but the Duke of Wellington Helped the Innovation.

[St. Joseph News Press:] Long trousers are a hundred years old this year. It was just a century ago that a London tailor, one bright morning, walked jauntily down Bond street in London clad in the odd loose breeches that hung to his toes. He was a great curiosity, and his "freak" apparel created no small stir. The wits of our day who ply their pens vigorously on the subject of women's dress were far outdone by the jokesmiths of a century ago when trousers were first worn. But the valiant tailor persisted, was the butt of London town, and thereby gave to modern man the clothing for his nether limbs.

It is hard at this distance of time to realize the storm of disapproval that attended the transition from knee breeches to trousers. The jaunty tailor was assaulted by a mob and was arrested for indecency. The Duke of Wellington, fresh from his laurels at Waterloo, was later impressed with the greater convenience of the new garment and determined to popularize long trousers. So he had a pair made, and wore them to a ball. Despite his high standing as a popular hero, he was turned away with the ultimatum "the guests at this ball must be dressed." But slowly and surely the fashion of long trousers displaced that of breeches, stockings, shoes and buckles. The reason was economy of time in dressing. Chauncey Depew, referring to this saving, recently said: "A century of ten minutes saved each day by countless millions invents machinery, accumulates fortunes and fills libraries."

A Kindly Wish.

[Washington Star:] "You missed the train," said Mrs. Kermoot, reproachfully.

"Yes," replied her husband.

"Well, perhaps it's just as well to cultivate the habit. I wish I could be sure you were as likely to miss the train when your motor car hits a railway crossing as you are in ordinary travel."

Denounced by Huerta.

replied the general. "I have sent to the Chief Justice of the United States Supreme Court a protest against the constant molestations which I have suffered since I came to El Paso. I cannot sleep, I cannot shave, I cannot eat or do anything else for these deputies and soldiers who are in my apartment all the time. If I had had a pistol and circumstances had been different I would have shot that deputy (Edward Bryant) who rearrested me today.

"Say to your paper for me that I have nothing to say of Mexican politics. At some future time I would be glad to discuss it in detail, but circumstances at this time will not permit. I had hoped to go to Los Angeles and see the great city of which I have heard so much, but I am detained here without cause and my plans all upset. I have thought your country and its people were wonderful, but this has given me a different view of American affairs.

"This afternoon the marshal who arrested me pushed my little granddaughter away rudely when she asked me where I was going and that angered me so much that, had I been armed, I would have shot the officer without hesitation. I do not object to officers doing their duty, but I cannot stand to see a child abused.

"This is nothing short of an outrage. I insist and reiterate that I have come to the border for no other purpose than to see my daughter and to spend a few days with her. If there was a revolutionary plot I know nothing of it and have had no part in it. I feel that I am a victim of circumstances and should have been treated with more consideration by your government officials.

"Do you know that I never permitted a single American to be mistreated while I was in charge of affairs in Mexico? I gave orders that none were to be disturbed and enforced my orders with troops wherever possible. When your American troops landed in Vera Cruz I spent more time going about the capital seeing that no Americans were harmed than I did at the executive palace attending to the momentous duties of my office. American members of the American colony in Mexico will vouch for what I say and I did not expect this treatment at the hands of the government whose people I have protected.

"It seems a strange coincidence that I should be ordered to prison on the eve of your celebration of Independence Day. I remember three years ago when, on July 3, we were fighting against Orozco at Bachimba. Capt. Burnside, the United States army attache, was with our forces and that night I sent my drum corps to serenade him right after midnight, and on the next day, the 4th, I sent my bands to play the American national airs in front of the car which he occupied. Now, on the third anniversary of that day, I am to be taken to jail in the country I was honoring.

"I will not discuss Mexican politics. It would not be fitting that I should do that at this time, nor that I discuss American affairs with relation to Mexico. My ears and lips are sealed for the present and no one knows what I think in my mind. Some day I may say what is in my heart, but that will come later."

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

PETROGRAD, July 3 (via London.)—When the Russian naval squadron in the Baltic gave battle to five German cruisers and a flotilla of torpedo boats off the east coast of Gothland on July 2, one German cruiser was beached and the other warships were put to flight, according to an official statement issued today by the Russian Admiralty under date of July 2. The damage to the Russian cruisers, the statement adds, was insignificant.

The text of the statement follows:

"This morning (July 2) along the parallel of the Oestegarn Lighthouse, on the east coast of the Island of Gothland, our cruisers encountered in a fog two of the enemy's light cruisers and some torpedo boats and engaged them in battle.

"At 9 o'clock in the morning a German cruiser badly damaged lowered her flag and ran ashore. The other cruiser and the torpedo boats fled.

"At 10 o'clock our squadron encountered the armored cruiser Roon, one light cruiser and one torpedo boat and renewed the battle.

"At 10:30 o'clock the enemy began to retire toward the south.

"During the retreat the enemy was joined by another light cruiser. This vessel was attacked by our cruisers and fled. At 11:30 o'clock the pursuit ceased.

"After the battle our squadron was unsuccessfully attacked by rines.

"The damage to our cr quite insignificant."

LIBERTY BELL READY FOR TRIP.

Leaves Philadelphia Tomorrow for the Coast.

Special Train, Special Guard to Convey Aged Relic.

Every Precaution Taken to Prevent an Accident.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

PHILADELPHIA, July 3.—The Liberty Bell, precious relic of the American Revolution, will start Monday on its eighth and longest journey from Philadelphia since it was first hung in the old State House of the Province of Pennsylvania in 1752. It goes to the Panama-Pacific International Exposition and before it is returned to its big glass case in Independence Hall next November or December it will have traveled more than ten thousand miles and will have been seen by millions of people.

On its journey to San Francisco, the Liberty Bell special train will traverse Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Iowa, Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska, Colorado, Wyoming, Utah, Idaho, Washington, Oregon and California.

Elaborate arrangements have been made for the journey and everything that will aid in safeguarding the bell from injury has been done. Four policemen from the Philadelphia traffic squad will guard the relic until it is again returned to its home.

At sunrise on Monday workmen will remove the bell from its case and put it on the special hanger that will support it across the country. It will be wheeled on a truck into Independence Square, where patriotic exercises will be held. At noon the First Brigade, Pennsylvania National Guard, will escort the bell to the West Philadelphia station of the Pennsylvania Railroad where it will be hoisted on a special car. The First Troop, Philadelphia City Cavalry, which organization escorted George Washington on State functions in Philadelphia, will be the special escort of the bell as on previous occasions. At 3 p.m., the bell train, with a party of twenty-six city Councilmen, will start on the journey.

THE SPECIAL TRAIN.

The train will consist of a baggage car, diner, three sleepers, a special car for the reception of guests en route, and a car for the bell, which will be in the rear. This is a specially constructed flat car, with an iron railing at the sides and ends. American flags will wave from staffs at each corner and there will be other decorations in American colors.

The councilmanic committee in charge of the journey announced that in hanging the bell the crack in it will be on the right hand side of the car as it journeys west.

Even cities traversed in the night will get a glimpse of the relic, a system of illumination having been devised that will throw a blaze of light on the bell as it passes through in the darkness.

Shock absorbers have been installed on the flat car to keep the bell from being jolted. The train crews will be specially picked for their carefulness in starting and stopping trains. The speed limits across the continent will not be less than eighteen miles an hour nor more than thirty-five miles. The schedule will be rigidly observed so that crowds may not be kept waiting beyond the time appointed for the train to go through their communities.

MUST STAY ON CAR.

Another absolute rule the committee has made is that the bell will not under any circumstances be taken from the car for the purpose of parading it though the streets. Many municipalities have been advised to build movable platforms the height of the flat car with an incline at each end so that children may go up one incline, pass the bell, touch it if they care to, and then pass down the incline at the other end of the platform. Where these platforms are provided, the railing on one side of the car will be removed.

During stops, booklets containing the history of the bell, cards with a picture of the relic and buttons olsa containing a picture of the bell and the American flag will be distributed to children. It will take hundreds of thousands of these souvenirs to supply the demand. To the governors and mayors, the history of the bell in small bound volume will be presented. Governors have been invited to journey with the bell through their respective States.

There will be no official souvenirs of the journey except those distributed free by the escorting committee. The committee also refused to make any concessions to moving picture concerns, virtually every such enterprise in the country having applied for the privilege of sending representatives on the trip. The committee, however, purchased a special moving picture machine for its own use. Pictures will be taken through the journey and films will be furnished to public schools without expense. In short the City Council has placed a strict ban upon commercialism in connection with the trip.

ARRIVAL AT EXPOSITION.

The train will arrive in San Francisco Friday night, July 16, and Saturday, July 17, will be Liberty Bell Day at the exposition. Early in the morning the relic will be conveyed to its place in the Pennsylvania Building on the exposition grounds, where exercises will be held.

The bell will leave San Francisco in November and will return by the southern route, through Los Angeles, San Diego, Arizona and Texas. The details of the return trip have not yet been completed, but it is virtually certain that the special train will go through St. Louis, Indianapolis and Cincinnati.

After each return of the bell there has been a movement started to prevent the precious metal from leaving the city again. The crack in it has been slowly extending and there has been fear that in its journey the bell might split in two. Opposition to its leaving the city on this trip was bitter, but the City Council voted that it belonged to the American people and that opportunities to view it should be given, whenever possible.

Sending the bell to the western coast will cost the City of Philadelphia $75,000. The escorting committee of twenty-six Councilmen will pay their own expenses.

The four policemen who will constantly guard the bell were specially picked for their fitness. Each is more than six feet in height.

The head of the police department, in designating the four men, called them to the front and impressed upon them the following don'ts:

Don't taste any intoxicating liquor while away from Philadelphia.

Don't lose your temper at any time.

Don't fail to uphold the reputation of Philadelphia policemen for courtesy.

Don't fail to answer every question, however foolish.

Don't fail to at once read the history of the bell, so that you can answer questions accurately.

The first time the bell left Philadelphia was under different circumstances from those which caused the later pilgrimages from the "Cradle of Liberty." That was when the British army occupied the city of Philadelphia in 1777-1778 and George Washington with his Continental army spent the winter at Valley Forge. As the British approached the city in September, it was hurriedly taken to Allentown, Pa., and was kept in the Zion Lutheran Church of that place until June, 1778, when it was returned to Philadelphia. Its subsequent journeys were:

In 1885—to the World's Industrial and Cotton Exposition, New Orleans.

In 1893—World's Columbian Exposition, Chicago.

In 1895—Cotton States and International Exposition, Atlanta.

In 1902—Charleston Exposition.

In 1903—Battle of Bunker Hill Celebration, Boston.

In 1904— Louisiana Purchase Exposition, St. Louis.

BARNEY MAKES FAST RECORD.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

TACOMA, July 3.—Barney Oldfield broke three world's records on the Tacoma speedway last evening, said E. H. Pendleton, authorized timekeeper for the American Automobile Association, today. His time for two miles was 1:10, compared to 1:15 made by Bragg at Los Angeles. He made one mile in 31:36 seconds against 35:35 made by Burman at Indianapolis.

He made one-half mile in 16:36 against the record made by Burman in Indianapolis. All records were recorded electrically, there being five tapes over the course and connected through a series of cutout switches with the timing instrument in the judges' stand.

GLENDALE, July 3.—The young citizens of Glendale are very happy over the opening of the vacation playgrounds. There will be three of these playgrounds opened Monday and kept running for two months. They will be fully equipped with apparatus and properly supervised by competent and trained supervisors during the summer.

The formal opening will be held on the Union High School grounds, R. D. White, superintendent of schools, presiding. There will be music, patriotic addresses by Rev. R. T. Smith and Dr. Edmunds, to be followed by athletic sports.

The Federation of P. T. A. will serve ice cream and lemonade throughout the afternoon, the proceeds to be used for playgrounds.

NEW LEGAL TENDER.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

POMONA, July 3.—The police department of this city established a precedent by placing automobile tires on a par with legal tender. E. Sivens, an automobilist from up State, was arrested Friday for speeding. He didn't have the required amount of money on him to meet the bail fixed by the Chief of Police as a guarantee that he would appear and answer to the complaint, but he did have an extra Kelly-Springfield casing, so he put it up with Officer Brunton and went on his way rejoicing.

BAKERSFIELD, July 3.—Tossing his gun on to his bed caused the death Monday of Vernon Tibbetts, a young man at Manache Meadows. The word reached Kernville today and W. E. Tibbetts, his uncle there, at once left to get the body, which will be shipped to Oakland, where his mother and sister live.

SALUTE BOOMS FOR PRESIDENT.

Veterans Honor Emancipator with Gift to City.

Two Persons Saved from Tide Rip by Guards.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONG BEACH, July 3.—More than 20,000 persons gathered in Pacific Park today to witness the unveiling of a monument to Abraham Lincoln and to receive the work of art from the veterans of the Civil War, who presented it to the city. As the memorial was unveiled, the guns of the Cruiser Chattanooga boomed out a Presidential salute.

Great was the patriotic fervor of the multitude which pressed around the base of the monument with its pedestrian statue of the Emancipator draped in the Stars and Stripes. Master John W. Hair, grandson of Maj. J. W. Hair, chairman of the G.A.R. Memorial Committee, pulled the cord which bared the granite form to the crowd.

George W. Wilcox, Past Grand Commander of the G.A.R. post here, introduced the speakers. Commander Thomas J. Senn of the Chattanooga was on the platform. The dedicatory prayer was delivered by Rev. A. R. Moore after which Maj. Hair told of the history of the monument project. Col. J. M. Emery then presented the monument to the city.

Mayor Whealton, in receiving it, stated that when the Legislature appropriated $1000 toward the building of the monument, it was the first time the State had ever extended financial co-operation toward a movement or improvement in Long Beach.

ACCEPTS MONUMENT.

"The city accepts this memorial to the veterans of the Civil War, and is honored beyond measure by honoring those to whom unmeasured honor is due," the Mayor said. "Its broad foundation rests upon the valor of both victor and vanquished. Its lofty purpose lifts all hearts to the heights of patriotic comradeship. Its capstone marks the summit of triumphant union and beneficent freedom.

"We accept this monument and memorial as a municipal inspiration. Here let us bring our children to learn the story of him who mastered adversities, in spite of the greatest obscurity and the keenest poverty. Let us tell them of his abiding faith in God and humanity that they may know from his life that the path of honor in our land is bordered by virtue and scented with service."

Lieut.-Gov. Eshleman, Congressman Randall, Assemblyman Rominger, Mrs. Lydia C. Stormont, Mrs. C. E. McDaniel, Mrs. Sallie Spooner and Mrs. Fannie Archer spoke. Tonight Maj. Hair and the Civil War veterans tendered the speakers and Commander Senn of the Chattanooga a banquet at Hotel Virginia.

RESCUED BY GUARDS.

The excellent life guard service this year was demonstrated this afternoon when four of the fourteen guards on duty rescued from a perilous position in the surf Dr. James Hansen of Los Angeles and Miss Mildred Bon, aged 20, of Cheyenne, Wyo.

Pete Lenz, football player and swimmer, and Beverly Anderson, also a gridiron star, saw the two bathers swirling in a tide rip at the foot of Linden avenue. They put out immediately for the pair, and Douglass McDonell and Curley Mitchell, two guards, also started for the scene from the Linden-avenue station. The two, who were drifting helplessly in the tide rip, were soon brought to shore uninjured.

BEACH BRIEFS.

Friends of Mayor Whealton late this afternoon gathered in the parlors of Hotel Alexander to present tokens of appreciation of his administration which virtually ends tonight. A hand-engrossed parchment, in colors, and a set of law books were presented him by the various city commissions and the people in general

The Los Angeles police department notified the officers here to be on the lookout for C. W. Badger of Los Angeles, who started for Long Beach with the avowed intention of committing suicide. Among the 20,000 visitors who came to the beach today the officers are having a hard time trying to stop a man of 60, of medium height and weight, from jumping in the ocean.

THREE DEAD, TWO DYING; RAILWAY WRECK VICTIMS.

Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Passenger Train Plunges off Trestle Near Rainier—Parlor Car Remains on the Bridge After Engine and Two Coaches had Taken Leap to the Tracks Below.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

TACOMA (Wash.) July 3.—Three persons are dead and two are believed to be dying in Tacoma hospitals as a result of a railroad wreck early today, when a Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul train bound from Tacoma to Aberdeen plunged off a trestle near Rainier.

The dead:

W. B. BALDWIN, engineer in charge, Seattle.

LOUIS BRADEEN, freight solicitor of the Milwaukee, Seattle.

W. J. PENEGOR, fireman, No. 5606 Thirtieth avenue, Seattle.

Harry Rowe of Seattle, freight solicitor for the Milwaukee road, is mortally wounded at a Tacoma hospital. Mrs. Rowe's life is despaired of. Walter Holden, a 6-year-old boy of Ford, Wash., is also believed to be dying.

OTHERS INJURED.

Others injured are:

Mrs. Louis Bradeen, Seattle, serious internal injuries.

C. M. Converse, Seattle, express agent; badly bruised.

Francis Walker, No. 3825 Linden avenue, Seattle; body bruised.

Bruce Walker, same address, broken nose.

H. J. Holden, Milwaukee yard foreman, McKenna; bruised and cut.

John Albestos, South Aberdeen, head cut.

L. A. Dahlstrom, No. 4135 South J street; leg broken, and bruised.

Mrs. W. H. Dalstrom, South Sixth street, Tacoma; badly shaken and bruised.

Mrs. Angeles, No. 2116 West Dakota avenue, Seattle; internal injuries.

Mrs. U. M. Stafford, Harts Lake; internal injuries.

A. L. Truher, conductor; leg bruised.

THE RESPONSIBILITY.

Northern Pacific officials here are said to have admitted partial responsibility for the accident. A Northern Pacific freight train had passed under the Milwaukee trestle and a crane, which extended from the side of a car, tore out a bend from the trestle.

In an attempt to prevent a catastrophe Frank Ruffel, brakeman on the freight train risked his own life by mounting the trestle to flag the approaching string of passenger cars. He was too late to prevent the accident and leaped to safety.

The engine, a combination coach and a day coach, plunged through the breach. The parlor car stayed on the trestle.

The dead engineer was known as "Lucky" Baldwin. He had never been in an accident before in his thirty-four years of continuous service with the railroad.

Several doctors from Tacoma were rushed to the scene of the wreck in a train carrying an American Red Cross emergency car. Most of the injured were brought to Tacoma.

VAST FORTUNE IN KELP BEDS.

Might Pay Ninety Millions a Year, Says Expert.

Beginnings of Really Great Industry Already Made.

Will German Octopus Seize Domestic Trade Again?

BY R. BRINSMEAD.

The vast kelp beds off the coast of Southern California are capable of annually producing potash worth, at current prices, over $90,000,000. This statement, made by Commercial Agent Thomas A. Norton of the Federal Department of Commerce, Washington, who has been investigating the possibilities of potash production in California, following the great shortage caused by the European war, serves to emphasize one more of California's marvelous latent resources. Germany, by reason of its potash syndicate or trust, which controls the production and export of potash from that country, had built up a practical world monopoly in the industry

"With the cessation in the customary import of potash salts from Germany, and the danger of this interruption being prolonged indefinitely, there is renewed interest in the possibility of securing a supply of the much-needed compounds from domestic sources, especially from our Pacific States," says Commercial Agent Norton. "The 'potash famine' is being felt almost as keenly as the 'dyestuff famine.' Potash salts which sold currently a year ago for $38 per ton are now quoted at $160 and $175."

Here at our doors lies one more war-taught lesson, again pointing to the vital importance of placing the home producer, by means of a fair and adequate protective tariff, on a footing where he can successfully compete—and cope—with foreign competition such as that offered by the State-governed German potash syndicate.

Among many others there are now three important items, all entering into the details of daily life, for which the consumer in this country since the opening of hostilities in Europe has indeed had to pay the piper, simply and solely because profitable production in this country has been eliminated by the foreign trust-fostered products—dyestuffs, sugar and potash.

COSTLY LESSONS.

Lessons which in the learning have already cost the ultimate consumer—you and I, and man next door and the man around the corner—many millions of dollars. And the end is not yet in sight. We have not finished footing the bill.

Given fair and adequate protection from unfair competition and the Pacific States, California can produce a full quota of sugar and more than all the potash products required by the entire country; and these millions, even hundreds of millions, of dollars would have been saved—to the man in the street—in addition to providing employment to thousands and annually producing untold wealth.

The German potash syndicate (or trust) rests upon the same foundation as the other great German government-favored export syndicates; for, as reported by the Federal Department of Commerce, "the State is an interested party in the kali (German potash) industry, and the exploitation of the mines and the sale of the products are regulated by special law." While, furthermore, "the state collects a tax (14 cents per quintal of pure potash) on all sales, and a portion of this revenue is devoted to a propaganda in favor of the use of potash fertilizers." This tax the past few years has amounted to between $3,000,000 and $4,000,000.

"The exploitation of potash mines is free, but so hedged about with limitations and restrictions that it is practically under the control of the state through the syndicate," the report adds.

In this manner Germany has built a monopoly in the world's potash trade, as she has built up a monopoly in the aniline dye trade, eliminating all competition by the mere weight of government aid—by the use of typical "trust" methods wherever and whenever considered necessary.

OUR RESOURCES.

But here in California are to be found practically unlimited quantities of undeveloped potash, although, as Commercial Agent Norton points out, attempts to develop a domestic potash industry are more advanced in California than in any other section, no less than six companies being actively engaged in this field.

The richest mineral potash deposits outside of Germany are found in California, notably at Searles Lake in San Bernardino county, and in the Imperial Valley. From the vast kelp beds off the coast of Southern California government experts estimate an annual possible yield, including two cuttings per annum, of 59,000,000 tons. This is equivalent to 2,300,000 tons of potassium chloride, which if marketed at current rates, would be worth about $90,000,000. If, however, this crop were dried and sold at current prices for both potash and nitrogen content, its value would exceed $150,000,000. Kelp contains some 4 per cent. of potassium chloride. It is readily air-dried, when it contains about 15 per cent. of pure potassium, 2 per cent. of nitrogen and 1½ per cent. of phosphoric acid—the three most important and valuable fertilizer constituents. Easily pulverized when dried, in that shape it is of equal value as a fertilizer with equivalent amounts of potash in the customary form of chloride and sulphate. With "kelp" potash works already established at Long Beach and elsewhere in Los Angeles county, a great industry has been already started. All the potash fertilizer in the Pacific States is here at hand, requiring but sun-drying and pulverizing to be in shape for shipment.

MIGHT EXPORT IT.

The United States imported from Germany during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1914, over 1,000,000 tons of potash salts, worth nearly $17,000,000, practically the entire requirements of the country, industrially and agriculturally. So, as the Department of Commerce points out, successful development of the Southern California kelp beds alone (their total area along our Pacific Coast, including Alaska, is over 400 square miles,) would "ultimately place this country in a position to cover not only the large domestic demand for those compounds, but to meet the German competition in other lands, more especially in supplying the wants of countries on the Pacific."

Unless the industry is adequately protected in this country, will Germany at the end of the war permit the establishment of a potash industry of any importance on the Pacific Coast? Given a fair and legitimate protection a great industry can be established within a short radius of Los Angeles. But lacking such protection, will private capital in Southern California feel prepared to enter into direct competition with the state-controlled German syndicate? For, the war ended, backed by a wideawake and thoroughly organized industrial system and government, German industries will at once enter upon the most widely organized and stupendous trade campaign the world has ever seen. She is laying the foundation for it today.

So far as potash—so widely used and vital to so many industries and of such great agricultural importance—is concerned, California has ample supplies merely awaiting development. Will Uncle Sam allow a foreign trust to once more monopolize the domestic markets, or will he see to it that a domestic industry will have an opportunity to be built up, to the great benefit of the country at large as well as the consumer.

Howard Berry, the University of Pennsylvania freshman and former Quaker City High School boy star who carried off the honors so handily in the Pentathlon event of Pennsylvania's recent relay carnival, is more than an all-round track and field athlete. Berry is a clever baseball player at shortstop and is expected to prove a sensation on the Red and Blue football team at quarterback this fall. Berry is 19 years old, five feet eight and one half inches tall and weighs only 155 pounds.

LANSING A MA NOF GENIUS.

Besides Being a Good International Lawyer, He is a Painter, a Draftsman and a Writer of Verses.

[Baltimore News:] The appointment of Robert Lansing, counselor of the State Department, to the position of Secretary of State ad interim, brings to the important position of premier of the American government a man who possesses many interesting qualifications. Not only is he a great international lawyer, but he is probably a more versatile citizen than any man who has preceded him in the position.

To begin with, Mr. Lansing has had long experience in international affairs. He has represented the United States in more international arbitration than any living American. He has appeared more frequently before international tribunals than any living lawyer. He is a writer of books, and is an editor of the American Journal of International Law, to which he has contributed many editorials, articles and book reviews. He is an indefatigable worker.

Outside of office hours, Mr. Lansing is a painter, a draftsman of great ability, a writer of exquisite verse, an ardent fisherman, a good golf player and an enthusiastic baseball fan.

All of these things keep Mr. Lansing very busy, but it is one of the characteristics of the new Secretary that he is never too busy to smile, never too busy to be courteous and affable. There have been in public life men whose smiles have made them famous, but it is doubtful if there ever has been one who had a more engaging smile than Robert Lansing. The new Secretary smiles with his eyes as well as his lips. He may smile with his eyes and not with his lips, but he never reverses the process.

Another thing about the new Secretary which is conspicuous in these strenuous times is his remarkable self-possession. He is always cool and unruffled, almot to the point of imperturbability.

The new Secretary is a handsome man. He is of good height and carriage, with neat graying hair, and a small gray mustache, always perfectly trimmed. Furthermore, he is one of the best-dressed men in public life.

It is one of the things about Mr. Lansing, however, that he never appears "dressed up." The sight of the new Secretary in full afternoon garb seated at his desk, working on a diplomatic document, and puffing comfortably at a rich black pipe, is not uncommon.

It is a curious coincidence that when James G. Blaine resigned from the office of Secretary of State in the Cabinet of President Harrison, twenty-three years ago, he was succeeded by Gen. John W. Foster, the father-in-law of Mr. Lansing, who now succeeds Mr. Bryan. Mr. and Mrs. Lansing have celebrated their silver wedding anniversary since coming to the State Department.

FASHIONS IN NAMES.

The European War has Put an End to the Use of "William" When Christening English Babies.

[Philadelphia Ledger:] It is stated that since the war broke out the name William has been ostracized by patriotic English parents. In forty recent baptisms of male infants it does not appear. Is not this form of rebuking the Kaiser illogical as well as ineffective? "Why should the devil have all the good tunes?" asked Rowland Hill. Why should the Germans be allowed to monopolize a good English name? The memory of such great Englishmen as Shakespeare and Wadsworth should suffice to stay William from oblivion. American parents never gave vent to their resentment against George III by boycotting the name which Washington also bore.

There are fashions in names, it is true, as in other things. The lives of great men remind us that they serve unconsciously as godfathers for hundreds of obscure offspring. Presidents of the United States have always been honored in this way. There are many Williams who date back to the time of McKinley and others to the time of Taft. The Theodores are beginning to grow up, but the Woodrows are still infants in arms. Even in the names that own no distinguished bearer, tastes vary with the cycle of the years. The Nettie and Hattie period ended long ago. Earl and Harold, Dorothy and Gladys have lost their popularity. The plainer names have come into their heritage again.

But a name is so much a matter of parental caprice that it may be dangerous to dogmatize upon the subject. There are reversions to type; then the painful Biblical nomenclature occasionally reappears undisguised by an initial. "What reason is there?" asks a recent authority, "for the comparative disappearance of Elizabeth?" But is this disappearance a fact? Until within a very short time, at least, Elizabeth has shared with Mary, Anne and Jane a phenomenal popularity. The discussion calls for far more definite data than we possess. Cannot Mr. Herkimer Johnson go into the whole matter exhaustively in his forthcoming monumental work?

ECZEMA ON FACE AND HANDS

Began With Red Rash. Itched and Burned Intensely. Did Not Sleep. Face Disfigured.

HEALED BY CUTICURA SOAP AND OINTMENT

"I had eczema on my face and hands. It began with a red rash which itched and burned especially if water came in contact with it. I kept my hands out of water as much as possible. The more I rubbed or scratched, the more irritated it became. I did not sleep well. My face was disfigured by being red, and itched and burned intensely.

"I tried —— and anything people told me about, without relief, then I tried Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I used them according to directions, and in a few months I was entirely healed." (Signed) Mrs. F. B. Bird, Lompoc, Santa Barbara Co., Cal., Jan. 20, 1915.

Assistant General Manager, The Times.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 3rd day of July, 1915.

[Seal]

T. L. CHAPIN,
Notary Public in and for the County of Los Angeles, State of California.

The Times is the only newspaper in Los Angeles that does not make a practice of permitting agents, newsboys and dealers to return unsold copies in its issue. Neither does it misbrand nor predate its editions, nor inflate its circulation by printing more copies than are actually necessary to supply its patrons.

The Times' entire circulation is practically net, and it is more genuine and superior in every respect to that of any other newspaper published in Los Angeles.

PATRIOTISM SUBDUED.

Four Boys Celebrating Independence of America Taken in Custody. They Discharged Firecrackers.

Determined to rigidly enforce the ordinance relating to the discharge of dangerous fireworks, Acting Chief of Police Home gave the patrolmen orders yesterday to arrest all violators, and before evening four youths were taken into custody at No. 800 California street. They were caught in the act of shooting firecrackers.

"Gee whiz, I didn't know it was against the law to shoot a firecracker," said little Joe Kaufmann. "What's the matter with this city, anyhow? Firecrackers won't hurt nobody. I aint afraid to sit down on a whole bunch of them."

With Ben Margolis, Alex Selover and Humie Myerson, young Kaufmann was taken before the juvenile matron and all were given a severe lecture. They promised to spend their money for candy instead of firecrackers and were released.

SOCIETY LEFT OUT.

Cousins of the President Visit at Pasadena Without Their Presence Becoming Known.

Surprise and deep regret were expressed yesterday in social circles of this city and Pasadena when it was learned that Misses Lucy and Mary Smith of New Orleans, cousins of President Wilson, had been visiting an entire week with friends in Pasadena without their presence here being known. The Misses Smith left for La Jolla Friday afternoon. They will stay in that city several weeks and will then proceed to Berkeley, where they will visit their cousin, Prof. Stockton Axson.

While stopping in Pasadena, the Misses Smith were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Gates of No. 500 Columbia street.

"FAIRYLAND" AND REALITIES.

How Musical Pageant Looks when the Glamor which Attended the First Performance Wears Off.

BY EDWIN F. SCHALLERT.

NOW that we have had our view of "Fairyland," and awakened in the world of reality again, we may well ask the question, will "Fairyland" live or verifying its name pass into dim region of the unbelievable. It is, perhaps, a question which has been asked and answered many times, each choosing his own particular method. The decisive answer will come, mayhap has already come, from the public at large.

From the standpoint of intrinsic demand for seats, the work has been a great success, and it also was from the standpoint of the first night's audience.

From the standpoint of evtrinsic merit, show and glamor, it has also been a success; the question may arise as regards the intrinsic merit of the opera.

But there are many things beside the merit itself which would govern the success of an American opera at this time. There are the questions of conditions in the country at large, the receptivity of the public to American opera, the question of whether our country has reached such a stage in its development where the operatic works of the American can be considered seriously, as compared with European standards. This is secondary, however, to the merit of the work itself.

Friday evening I attended the second performance of "Fairland." I was so unfortunate as to have been unable to remain beyond the beginning of the last act on the opening night, on account of the length of the production. Rehearsals in the case of this opera are no guide as to the results achieved in presentation. The aspect changes greatly with the wealth of scenic detail which is made use of, the costumes and so on.

I saw no reason Friday evening to change my opinion as to the pageant character of the opera. I did, however, see a very good reason to change my views regarding the audience's appreciation of the work. Aside from the fact that the first nigth lent a glamor to the affair and created a strangely unreal atmosphere, it is to be remembered that the audience was made up largely of musicians, by whom the structure of the score in its modern tendencies is far more easily to be comprehended than is the case with the average individual. There are comparatively few dull moments from the musician's viewpoint in the score.

The libretto of "Fairyland" is better than a great many other librettos from a literary standpoint; from the dramatic situation side, it is the equal of many. In its human aspect it is decidedly weak, and aside from what it would secure in the realm of pure pageantry, it is uncertain in the effects it would realize in the transition scenes. There is too much of a mixing of values in the last act, where Mr. Hooker would weld together the realm of the real and, mind you, not the ideal, as he would have you think, but the unreal. Mr. Hooker's dream of "Fairyland" looks very pretty on paper, but it has very little place in the realities of human life or stage life; the practical application is too vague.

Now the audience, Friday night, was a receptive one, almost as receptive as the audience of the first night, but there was something essentially lacking and that was the enthusiasm. This was indicated not only by the comparatively small amount of applause, but also by the listless attitude which a large portion of the audience maintained. Now this same audience was made up of business men of the city, a limited number of professional men probably, and casual art lovers, and perhaps a scattering of the returning first-nighters, including myself, who hoped to verify their first impressions.

The performance went with greater smoothness, if anything. The orchestra played better and the work of the principals for the most part, showed improvement, except that there was a kind of uncertainty about their acting at times. Mr. Parker, Mr. Hooker, Mr. Hertz and Mr. Gottschalk had even perhaps undertaken a few changes in the production, the better to bring out the meaning, but it fell short of reality.

"Fairyland" has color and scenic beauty in unlimited quantity, especially in the "fairyland" scenes. The close of the first act is the crowning triumph of the work in this respect. And there are plenty of dramatic moments during the progress of the score. But this fails to relieve the sense of the illogical, the incongruous that so frequently occurs when the world of the real is mixed with the unreal.

Every time a man is struck on the head with a crown or burnt at the stake is no reason why he should be immediately hoisted into "fairyland." Mr. Hooker's symbolism is too vague, too unearthly to appeal to a practical audience. The very persons Mr. Hooker makes his prototypes for his ideal, the peasants, would be the last to understand that ideal.

And why the basis upon which Mr. Hooker's "Fairyland" in the final act would apparently rest, should be the triumph of a crowd of brawling drunkards is more than one can guess.

Of course, there are perhaps many interpretations which might be put on the text. The theme is diffuse enough in its treatment to allow a great deal of freedom in this respect, if one wishes. For myself, I would rather forget the text and keeping with me only the memory of that beautiful fairyland music in the first and a few of the exquisite set pieces, closing my eyes on the ineffectual efforts to range from the realm of the real to the ideal.

"Fairyland" has brought a greater message to Los Angeles than any which could possibly lie in the text. It has shown us to what an extent the people of this city are alive to American opera possibilities. The mad rush for tickets, the crowded Auditorium, and the enthusiastic reception which the audience gave the production on the first night bespoke the hearty co-operation which would be lent to aid in the advancement of American operatic music if properly presented.

Musically, "Fairyland" is not a work which one would pass judgment on with one, with two or more hearings. First impressions contain much in the way of surprises. The score is much varied, at times vigorous and wonderfully orchestrated. Furthermore, I believe that a great deal of inspiration is shown in the work, but its effect is spoiled by the composer's continuously breaking in on and interrupting himself perhaps in an effort to follow the libretto. The spontaneity of the "Fairyland" music and certain other lyrical passages is readily to be conceded.

Mr. Parker has frequently been termed an academician in his operatic writing. There is much less of the academic in the present work than one would imagine. I should say upon repeated hearing that an effort is made to sound the note of popularity, that is, in the elevated sense of the term, at many points in the opera. There is even a bit of the splendor of Meyerbeer, as far as the atmosphere is concerned, at times.

For the rest we are dealing mainly with modern tendencies even as far back on the one hand as Brahms, up to that restless unsettlement of Debussy on the other—less harmonically than in a rhythmical sense. Fragmentary as much of the music of "Fairyland" is, it is wonderfully descriptive. There are even moments when it grips one hard and fast like a great master's.

Now all this is not to say that "Fairyland" was not wonderfully well presented in nearly every respect. There was a unanimity of effort in the putting on of the production, which will probably find its equal on few similar occasions. There was a spirit of self-sacrifice about the work of Alfred Hertz and Louis F. Gottschalk, the principals, the chorus and others concerned, which has been rarely duplicated. The faults to find with the execution of the work were of a minor order, on the whole.

I think that in the ultimate analysis "Fairyland" may be described as a piece d'occasion. It was a prize work, produced in prize fashion, with a prize attendance, almost a prize cast, and a prize conductor. There will never again be a performance like the premiere.

SIMPLE LIFE IN JAMAICA.

Nature Provides Easy Food and Climate Relieves the Need for Much if any Habitation.

[Kansas City Journal:] In Jamaica, where earthquakes disrupt and fire destroys the houses in cities and towns, nature is specially kind to the man who chooses to live in the country.

It provides him, in the branches and leaves of the palm tree, material with which to build a light and graceful house that will sustain no injury from an earthquake, and it also gives him, with lavish hand, an abundance of food at a minimum of labor.

It is not necessary in Jamaica laboriously to plant crops and rear cattle in order to live.

The trees of the forest supply the native with all the foods needed in a tropical climate to sustain life and maintain the proper balance of chemical properties in the body's nourishment.

While nearly all the island's many fruits are under cultivation, there are several, like bananas, oranges and lemons, that grow wild. Yet the cultivated banana tree requires very little attention, and the native who has two or three near his thatched palm hut may sleep away the drowsy hours in his hammock, as he loves to do, while his staple food goes on growing without attention in the front yard.

There is much nourishment in bananas, and the Jamaicans eat them daily, both raw and cooked.

Another important food, of which northern people read but seldom see, is grown in perfection in Jamaica. This is breadfruit, which, as its name implies, is a substitute for bread in its nourishing properties.

The breadfruit of Jamaica is a coarser kind that that of the East Indian countries, and of Java, where the tree is native. It is called jackfruit. The yield of a tree is enormous, in proportion to its size, the fruit being as large as a canteloupe, as generally described, the size of a child's head.

The outside rind is rough and colored like a melon. The inside is pulpy. It is prepared for eating by roasting in ashes, and when so prepared is palatable and highly nourishing.

One of the interesting sights of Jamaica to the tourist is a breadfruit tree in full yield.

Another important food product of Jamaica, in which the island ranks third in output, is cocoa. Few northern people know how cocoa grows. The large pods are colored purple, or yellow, with many varying shades, and the tree is highly picturesque when filled with its yield.

The cocoa known to trade is manufactured from the seeds of the plant, which are fermented before ready for shipment. Cocoa "nibs," a common article of food, are composed of the natural shells of the seed. Other preparations of cocoa are made by grinding the shells, while chocolate is ground cocoa and sugar compressed.

In the exportation of cocoa Jamaica ranks second to Ceylon and third to Trinidad.

A product of the island of Jamaica which grows without attention is sago.

This is the juicy pith of the sago palm. It is prepared by soaking and drying in the form of white kernels. The delicate flavor of sago is loved by all natives of tropical countries, who know nothing of cooking it as it is cooked for desserts in northern countries, but make it one of their staple dishes, in the form of porridge.

TRACES OF A LOST RACE.

Gathering all Possible Material About the Arawak Indians Exterminated by Spanish Taskmasters.

[Youth's Companion:] A lost race. When in 1494, on his second voyage, Columbus discovered the island of Jamaica, it was populated by the Arawak Indians, who, although at first hostile to him, became friendly on his giving them clothing and other articles hitherto unknown to them. When later the Spaniards settled the island, they forced the Indians not only to do agricultural work in their own island, but to labor in the gold mines of Haiti. So hard were the Spanish taskmasters that by 1558 the whole Arawak nation was exterminated. During the past six years G. C. Longley of Pelham Manor, in New York, has been seeking to recover all possible traces of the lost race. To that end he has spent the winter on the island in exploring the old kitchen middens, or refuse heaps, of the Arawaks, in which he has found, besides shells and pottery, and fish, turtle and cony bones, many celts, or rude chisels, grinding stones, stone pendants, and axes—1500 objects in all. The whole collection he has given to the American Museum of Natural History in New York City. To the anthropologist, the most interesting objects are the cylindrical stone pendants, which were fashioned with sand and stone and endless rubbing. Pendants of exactly the same sort are worn today as insignia of office by chiefs or headmen of tribes in Northern South America.

THE POLITICAL WATCHTOWER

For the sake of scooping every other newspaper in town, The Watchman hereby announces that the reconciliation between the Whiffen and Sebastian forces was effected by none other than himself. Bless you, this announcement is not made for the purpose of pluming a bankok or blowing a trumpet, but just to show the folks that The Watchman is, as Harry Williams might say, a regular guy.

I was inspired by a genuine motive. There are thousands of people from other States in Los Angeles this summer. This month the "Bills" from all over the country will come here. The tourists and the Elks and others have heard of the wonderful spirit of Los Angeles and when they come here they expect to meet that spirit standing out like a gonfalon on the first Southland breeze that swishes across the observation platform. It was for the sake of saving them from disappointment that I became a political peace envoy.

The tedious art of writing politics comprises the dealing in scandal, to a large extent, for the most salacious political gossip is hinged upon scandal in one form or another. So that a continuance of the Whiffen-Sebastian imbroglio during the summer would mean an abundance of copy. This is added for the purpose of eliminating any suspicion of selfishness on my part. I interviewed Mr. Sebastian. He said he had no desire to press the Prettyman scandal. He wanted peace during his administration. Mr. Whiffen said he was not desirous of insisting on a recount of the Mayoralty vote. Right there entered the element of barter. The friends of both were agreeable to a cessation of hostilities, solely in the interest of political peace and in deference to the thousands of visitors who are commonly reported to have a fair knowledge of the English language and who read Los Angeles dailies when they are in town.

To bring the matter to a head, I called a meeting of both sides, recited the injury that might be done the fair name of the Los Angeles Spirit, and urged the factions to get together and let bygones be last year's bird's nests.

After some days of dickering the war was ended. The protocol of peace went unsigned, but the recount was dropped, the Prettyman matter will be allowed to slide and the evidence collected in both cases will be stored for future campaigns to be used in the event election officials do not obey the law and political crooks like Prettyman get too active.

California politics are made rotten by the loopholes in the complex election laws. Purity is impossible if unscrupulous politicians desire to play a crooked game. The practices that were held up to public ridicule and scorn under the old system are circumscribed under the new only by the appetites of those who play the game.

Mr. Whiffen showed a breadth of character when he greeted Mayor-elect Sebastian at City Hall on Friday, shook hands, wished him well and offered his assistance to make the incoming administration a success. And the Mayor-elect, who has a reputation for conciliation, begged him to come often to the Mayor's office and advise on big problems.

And, if everything goes well, we will have two years of peace and harmony. The Mayor-elect is given the assurance by a united Council that he will have harmonious support, and in turn he has expressed a desire to mix with the legislators and be a part of them.

In the meantime, let's hope that something will be done for the general uplift of Los Angeles and that spirit which has lighted the development of a great city will permeate our politics.

In the interest of the flagging jitney industry, let me suggest that the new Council give serious consideration to an amendment of the traffic ordinance which requires that street cars stop ten feet in the rear of any jitbus juggernaut which is stopping to receive or discharge passengers.

Frank H. Mouser is trimming up his political organization for a plunge into the Supervisorial fight. He may be found contesting the election next year with Supervisor Norton, in which event the Second District will see an interesting scramble between two political characters that are far out of the ordinary.

One of the elements that contributed to his success in the recent election is just coming to the attention of Mr. Sebastian. During the campaign friends and relatives of almost every Chief of Police in the United States received letters from them, urging the election of the Los Angeles Chief. Now that it has been demonstrated that a Chief of Police can be elected Mayor, others may be trying it. THE WATCHMAN.

"Huck" Finn at Ninety.

[Portland (Or.) Journal:] Huckleberry Finn, Mark Twain's famous character, is 90 years old. And even with ninety years behind him, this robust old man, toughened to the fiber of old hickory, his eyes still bright and with the full vigor of a man of thirty years his junior, recalls vividly his steamboat days spent with Mark Twain and Tom Sawyer on the Gray Eagle, the fastest steamboat on the Mississippi in its day.

He tells with a thrill of the great boat race as it really occurred, with Samuel L. Clemens, himself, as pilot.

For forty-five years Huckleberry Finn has been a character of the McKenzie River, in Lane county, Oregon. The entire McKenzie Valley has known him as long as he can remember, and the thousands of fishermen who annually cast for redside trout in its swift waters know Huckleberry. They have listened to his stories, and many have wondered if this character, B. F. Finn, is the same Huck Finn of whom Clemens wrote.

To his intimate friends he tells of his boyhood days on the Missouri farm, near that of Clemens, of his rough life on the Mississippi before and during the war, and how he finally crossed the plains and the Rockies to find himself on the McKenzie River without money and looking for a place to winter.

He tells hoy he lived by his rifle, sold hides in Eugene and came out at the end of the winter with money ahead and so pleased with the McKenzie River that he made it his permanent home. Since then he has erected the largest turpentine factory in the State and sells the turpentine, rosin and a linament of his own preparation all over the Pacific Coast. He also has conducted a hotel for years, catering to the fishermen who come from all parts of the United States.

Inspiring.

MUSIC GRACES PAGEANT; THOUSANDS ENCHANTED.

Illumined Spectacle, with Cohort of Sweet Singers and Fair Women, is Graceful and Popular Finale to Great Festival — Church Choirs Play a Conspicuous Part. Electrical Floats Have New Beauty.

THERE was music in the air in Los Angeles last night—from "Love's Old Sweet Song" to the opera of "Faust"—in the melodious electrical pageant which marked the close of the great musical festival, when operatic history was made in America. Combined with the electrical floats which have done valiant service several times during the present season of festivities were motor cars, trucks and decorated floats, carrying members of the leading musical and singing societies of the city.

The outdoor festival of music, enjoyed by thousands last evening, was the purely democratic side of the great convention of music masters, which has been in session in Los Angeles during the past week. For the nonce the downtown district became the stage for a "Fairyland" which was enjoyed free of charge by the multitude.

The song birds on the brilliant floats warbled selections from the world-famous operas, hymns that gladden the spirits of Christians and the love melodies that touch the hearts of youth. The events of last evening further demonstrate the general love of harmony in the city and its growing importance as a musical center.

There were miles and miles of applause for the singers as they passed down the canyons of tall buildings. The choirs of several of the large churches played a conspicuous part in the procession.

CHOIRS SING.

The vested choirs of Trinity Auditorium and of the First Methodist Church were conveyed in several well-filled trucks. Prof. Thomas Taylor Drill, leader of the Trinity chorus, directed his singers with an illuminated baton. Their offering, "Love's Old Sweet Song," was popular with the crowds. Back of the singers were motor cars, carrying Rev. Charles C. Selecman, pastor of the church; Rev. A. L. Marshall, assistant pastor, and Mrs. Marshall; R. C. Mitchell, president of the board of stewards; Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Burge, Mrs. T. Harris Cheatham, Mrs. Shaw and others.

Prof. Carl Bronson, leader of the choir of the First Methodist Church, was immaculate and conspicuous in an "ice cream" suit. He was a graceful wielder of the baton as he stood up in a motor car at the head of the procession trucks carrying his well-trained singers. The choir boys of St. Paul's Pro-Cathedral were an attractive feature of the procession.

At the head of the parade were about thirty motor cars carrying the members of the Gamut Club, the organization which has been especially active in the affairs of the biennial and the production of the opera "Fairyland." The initial and later financial arrangements were made by the members of the club, headed by its president, F. W. Blanchard.

The fifteen electrical floats, appearing for the fourth time in public, were even more beautiful and attractive than in the preceding pageants. Perhaps the music had something to do with this, as the singing undoubtedly affected the girl riders, making them more vivacious and enhancing their beauty.

For the most part, the floats were unchanged from their previous appearances. Here and there the master artist had switched decorations or altered lights. But they were all there, even the Big Bear float, unfortunate victim of a misplaced short circuit in the last pageant. The bear's exterior has been entirely redecorated and he himself has grown a new set of furs. Nevertheless, to quiet the apprehensions of the eleven fair riders, a diminutive hose cart dragged along 100 feet behind the great wagging tail.

SOME CHANGES.

The order in which the floats appeared in the first three pageants was changed somewhat last night. This was no doubt caused by the exigencies arising from the number of additions to the parade. The electrical floats rolled in the following order: America, California Poppy, Bear, Queen Flora, Snowdrop and Crocus, Tulip, Blue Bell, Rose, Peony, Sunflower, Violet Hybiscus, Water Lily, Evenin- Primrose and Forget-me-not. The pretty brunette that has hitherto ridden in the chariot of the Evening Primrose float was missing last night, her place being taken by a statuesque blonde, whose beautiful coloring blended in harmony with the peculiar shading of that float.

Despite the fact that the electrical floats were more beautiful than ever before, they by no means held the center of the stage at last night's performance as they have done in other pageants. In addition to the church choirs and clubs appearing, there were a number of automobile floats of various organizations that deserve mention.

Perhaps the most fantastic and picturesque of these was the float entered by the Jovian Electric League. Shaped to resemble a miniature entrance to the inferno, its riders clad in the garb Mephistopheles is generally supposed to wear on warm evenings, and with a myriad of small flashing lights playing about it, the float drew unstinted applause from the wall of humanity that lined the sidewalks. And the embryo devils were excellent singers, too.

What remains of the Orpheus Club, a large number of whose membership is now assisting in the "Fairyland" production, was present, encased between the high sides of two huge automobile trucks. Their singing, as always, was excellent.

RIVERSIDE SINGERS.

Another float, designed on more benevolent ideas than that of the Jovians, was that of the Cantadores Club of Riverside. The occupants of the trucks assigned to this section were dressed as monks, their cowls thrown back, and their mouths for the greater part of the parade, wide open, emitting melodious music timed to the baton of a stately monk.

The Los Angeles Oratorio members were out to be heard, between three trucks of singing humanity, the instruments blending in the many-throated music.

The Tone Weavers Club of the College of Music made an attractive appearance, clad in multi-colored college gowns and caps. What they lacked in quantity they made up for in quality.

The pageant, for all practical purposes, closes the music festival which opened here June 22. The last echo of the affair will be heard next week Thursday and Friday, when the remaining two performances of "Fairyland" will be given. There were two big productions of the prize work yesterday, both of which registered capacity attendances.

The success of the festival from a social and artistic standpoint has been very great and it is believed it will have a musical value of no little import for the city. The magnificent works presented during the ten-day session and the important lectures which have been heard will, it is contended, be reflected in a much stronger interest in musical events here in the future.

WANT ALL HELD TO OBLIGATIONS.

L.A.I. STOCKHOLDERS OPPOSE IDEA OF RELEASING THE DEBTORS.

The following letter has been received by the board of directors of the Los Angeles Investment Company:

Gentlemen—We have read in the newspapers, with considerable surprise, a letter to yourselves from one of your number, Mr Joseph Scott, in which he takes the stand at this late date that the debtor stockholders ought not to be compelled to pay their indebtedness to the company, notwithstanding the fact that approximately 15,000 of the stockholders have paid their indebtedness to the company and there is no possibility of such stockholders getting the slightest relief at the present time.

Those of us who bought stock in the company, on the same representations that were made to debtor stockholders, are now called upon by some of the debtor stockholders, and by Mr. Joseph Scott, to make a sacrifice for the benefit of the said debtor stockholders who, in a great many cases, are fully able to meet their obligations, and they should be compelled to do so. It is unfortunate that some of the stockholders bought more stock than they could pay for, but we are not willing to be held responsible for their rashness, and in this connection we may as well remind you that the paid-up stockholders have some rights in the matter.

We wish to say to you that we are opposed to any further concessions being made to any of the stockholders. We look to you to settle this matter in an absolutely fair and unbiased manner and without further loss of time, in accordance with the policy announced by you two months ago, and which is in line with the decision of Mr. Henry W. O'Melveny some fifteen months ago, since which time action thereon has been awaited by the stockholders. This long delay has been one of the concessions referred to above.

The election of the board of directors will occur within six months, and the conditions which permitted the disgraceful riot following the last election must be removed; hence the necessity for proceeding with the settlement of the debtor-stockholder notes as rapidly as possible.

Yours very truly,

[Signed]
STOCKHOLDERS' CO-OPERATIVE LEAGUE,
A. L. Cavanagh, Chairman,
Frances Cook, Secretary.

BLETHEN LITTLE BETTER.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

SEATTLE, July 3.—The condition of Col. Alden J. Blethen, editor of the Seattle Times, is slightly improved today.

At this Port.

BIG CRAFT LANDS OVER HALF HER PASSENGERS.

LOS ANGELES double-clinched its title as the gateway city to exposition land yesterday afternoon, when the steamer Finland landed 350 of its 550 listed passengers at this port. The Finland was inbound from New York after calling at San Diego. She left at 5 o'clock last evening for San Francisco.

One of the interested persons that gazed over the Finland's rails as the big boat was made fast at Municipal Dock No. 1, in the Outer Harbor, was Senator Benjamin R. Tillman of South Carolina, the "Pitchfork Ben" of our younger days. Senator Tillman is on his way to Portland after inspecting the Panama Canal. He is accompanied by his wife and daughter.

This is the Finland's second trip to the Pacific Coast from the Atlantic seaboard. The boat maintained the record of its previous cruise of drawing passengers from practically every State east of the Mississippi River, as well as some States west of it. New York, as on the previous trip of this boat, as well as on that of its sister ship, the Kroonland, headed the reservation list, closely followed by Philadelphia.

Among the more prominent passengers listed were: Mrs. J. Low Harriman, Miss Elizabeth Templeton Harriman, and Miss Mary B. Harriman of Rosemont Farm and New York; Mrs. Geoffrey Brown, who is returning to her home in Melbourne, and Dr. and Mrs. A. M. Willis, prominent Richmond society persons, who were recently married.

The arrival of the big 22,000-ton steamer at this port and its progress through the inner harbor, with flags flying and pennants waving in the breeze, made an impressive sight. The unloading of the passengers at Municipal Dock No. 1 was the second time that a steamer has unloaded at the still unfinished sheds of this big municipal improvement.

The Finland carried 365 first-class and 185 intermediate passengers, in addition to 3400 tons of freight. Nearly all this freight is billed to San Francisco.

Capt. R. Prager, commander of the big boat, reported a pleasant voyage from New York through the Panama Canal to this port. The boat will call here next Sunday on its way East through the canal.

Resume.

LASTING RESULTS LEFT BY BIG TRADE CONTEST.

Good Feeling and Appreciation of its Effects are General—Great Pile of Cans, Evidence of Success, Presents a Problem—Prizes Presented to the Winners—Some Reminiscences of the Campaign.

BY BERTHA A. RICH.
Contest Manager.

THE Prosperity and Trade Contest is finished. The contest office is closed. The contestants come no more to the second floor of The Times Building and only one thing remains, on this same floor, to indicate that a Trade Contest has ever been—the huge pile of Ben Hur coffee, tea and spice cans.

The sales slips, cash register slips, credit slips of other merchants, the flour sacks, labels and cartons have all been disposed of, but what to do with the—literally—tons of Ben Hur cans is, as yet, an unsolved problem. Shall we send them East to be made into automobiles or shall we use them to fill in the hollows where some of the popular residence "heights" of Los Angeles are located?

The disposal of the A1 flour sacks has not been a serious problem, in fact, the only difficulty that has confronted us, was to induce the contestants to leave any sacks at all. Even the little five-pound sacks make excellent wash cloths; the larger ones are invaluable as dish towels. One thrifty housewife and boarding-house keeper informed us that she bleaches the ninety-eight-pound sacks, hems them nicely and uses them as pillow cases. Altogether not over 1 per cent. of the A1 flour sacks cancelled at the contest office was left for "exhibition purposes." The A1 paper cartons of cereals were left, however, and make a wonderful showing.

The Prosperity and Trade Contest has literally put Sego milk on the map in Los Angeles. There are scores of instances where bakeries, cafes, cafeterias and boarding-houses have ordered from one to twenty cases of Sego milk—at the urgent solicitation of a contestant who wanted the labels. On the bills and statements brought in by contestants from co-operating merchants, sales of Sego milk appeared more and more often as the contest progressed. Investigation showed that many of these stores had never carried Sego milk in stock until the contest was well under way.

And so it was with many other lines. Contestants and their friends who had never used Violet Brand Shortening before, "tried" a small pail at first—just to get the credits—then bought the ten-pound size, because they liked the shortening as well as the credits. Many of the contestants have induced boarding-house keepers and the heads of large families to purchase the fifty-pound pails, because each pail of that size meant 5500 credits for the lucky contestant.

BANK'S EXPERIENCE.

The Citizens Trust and Savings Bank has had some interesting experiences in the savings department during the four months of the contest. The results have been most gratifying and there is every reason to believe the bank has made many new and permanent friends for itself. The attitude of the Citizens Trust and Savings Bank toward the accounts opened by the contestants, or their friends, is to be highly commended. The officials of the bank maintained a strictly neutral attitude. The contestant who wished to open a new savings account for a large amount and who expected larger credits than the offer of "1000 credits for every new savings account" were doomed to disappointment when they visited the bank. They were told politely but firmly, that the contestant of wealth could not be given any advantage over the contestant of small means. A new savings account was a new savings account whether the initial amount was for $1 or $1000. It is only fair to the contestants to say that they accepted this attitude of the Citizens Trust and Savings Bank toward their money in the right spirit and put it in just the same—accepting cheerfully the credits to which they were lawfully entitled.

Hydro-Pura has jumped into popular favor as a water softener since the Prosperity and Trade Contest began, as the huge pile of empty cartons in the storeroom can testify.

Clow's Waffle Flour is also a new favorite, introduced by the Trade Contest. When one has eaten a delicious Clow's waffle—just once—there can be no question in their minds as to the permanency of the popularity of Clow's waffles or the flour with which to make them.

The Pacific Wood and Coal Company, in spite of the handicap which the last two months of hot weather has been to the sale of wood, coal and oil, has made a splendid showing in all branches of their business. On April 19 this company made a special offer of two trips to the San Diego exposition to the two contestants turning in the greatest tonnage in coal orders from that time until the end of the contest. The result was that there were orders for over 500 tons of coal turned in by contestants.

WITH THE RETAILERS.

With a retail concern it is almost impossible to estimate the amount of business brought in through the medium of the Prosperity and Trade Contest. Much new business comes in, of which the merchant never knows the source. Contestants say to their friends, "Go to Walter E. Smith's for your groceries and save me the cash-register slips or the monthly bills, so that I may have the credits," and, of course, when the new customer makes her purchases at Smith's, or wherever the contestant may have directed her, she naturally does not explain to the clerk just how she came to be buying there instead of elsewhere. The after effects of a campaign such as the Prosperity and Trade Contest are very far-reaching. For example, Cotton Boll Laundry Soap was practically unknown to the contestants until the last ten days of the contest, but from the moment Walter E. Smith announced that there would be credits of ten to one on that soap it jumped into popularity. With the first purchase the contestants did not care a rap about the soap—they only wanted the credits—but after they had used the soap once or twice they immediately went back for more. As one contestant expressed it, "It has the punch behind it, as well as the credits."

To be sure, all of the cash-register slips that were turned in from the Walter E. Smith Company were not evidences of purchases made by contestants or their friends. Some of them were picked up off the floor by overzealous contestants, but the Walter E. Smith Company "should worry" about that. As Mr. Smith very aptly remarked when discussing the results of the campaign, as applied to their store: "We cannot expect 100 per cent. of returns from any advertising campaign. One thing that was very noticeable was that as the contest progressed there were less and less of our cash-register slips thrown on the floor by purchasers, which indicates clearly that more and more of the customers were saving them, either for themselves or some contestant.

"There was one little incident that was rather pathetic as compared with the amusing incidents that were constantly occurring. A little girl, a quiet, rather shy little thing about 10 or 12 years old, used to come in the store every day about 11 o'clock and stay until about 3, spending all her time searching for the cash-register slips dropped by the patrons of the store. When the matter was called to my attention I—well, to be honest, I did not have the heart to stop her—so I turned the matter over to Mr. Atkins and told him he had better have her stay away; but I am afraid he felt just as I did, for I caught him once slipping into her hand a little bundle of cash-register slips that had accumulated at the lunch counter. I do not suppose it was quite the thing to do, but all that she collected amounted to so very little that it did not make much difference anyway, and it made her happy to think she was helping in the contest."

Of the Prosperity and Trade Contest. STAFF OF LIFE.

Murray's bread has become the "staff of life" to a great many people in Los Angeles since the Murray Baking Company joined the big family of co-operating merchants in The Times Prosperity and Trade Contest. Many a co-operating grocer has been obliged to keep Murray's bread on hand all the time, owing to the demand created by the contestants and their scores of helpers. Now it has become a part of the day's work to order a supply of Murray's breads with practically all of the contest's grocers.

The Old Plantation Distilling Company has taken advantage of this unusual publicity campaign to change the taste of discriminating patrons from various brands of wines, beers, liquors, etc., to the Old Plantation's own special brands—"born and bred in old Kentucky," many of them. The Old Plantation beer has become especially popular, so much so that in practically every bundle of credits brought in since the hot weather set in there has been a goodly nmber of Old Plantation beer labels, some of them still wet, as though the contestants had refreshed themselves with the contents of the bottle before taking off the label—which was all very aggravating to a thirsty contest force, with throats parched with A-1 flour and Ben-Hur pepper.

The Swanfeldt Company really became too popular for its own comfort during the last two months of the contest. This is the way it all happened: Receipted bills of the Swanfeldt Company were good for credits of 10 to 1 cent when turned in to the contest office and it did not take the contestants long to learn that the Swanfeldt bills were usually quite large ones, which meant very generous additions to their totals whenever they turned one in. Therefore, they all got busy and wherever one saw a house sporting Swanfeldt awnings he went in and asked the owner of the house to please hurry up and pay the bill and give the contestant the credits. All of which was very nice for the contestant and not at all bad for the Swanfeldt Company, but sometimes it sorely peeved the owner of the house. However, the contestants took it goodnaturedly when they were gently but firmly told to desist from so much collection business and to try to turn in a little new business of their own on which they would be given still greater credits. They did get busy, too, and whenever they saw a new building going up went in and suggested that the builder order his awnings from Swanfeldt. One of the very last credits turned in Saturday night was a Swanfeldt bill for $50, which was accompanied by a letter from the Swanfeldt Company to the contest manager, reading as follows: "Kindly give the bearer, Mrs. Ida Gossage, credit for the enclosed bill—new business—in consideration of the very excellent work she has done for us since the contest started."

A CLEAN-UP.

The Balloon Dye Works, with its ten stores, made an excellent showing for the last two months of the contest. As the weather became warmer the cleaning and dyeing bills became bigger and the contestants became more anxious to add to their credits from every source. The Balloon Dye Works, either the main office or one of the ten stores, is so conveniently located that no matter in what section of the city one resides, it is the easiest thing in the world to go to one of the stores—or to have a wagon sent for the clothing that needs cleaning, so after a few weeks the contestants began to line up their friends and their friends' friends, and talk to them something like this: "Where do you send your cleaning?" "Well, why don't you send it to the Balloon Dye Works? They do excellent work and are just as reasonable in price and, besides, I want the bills to turn into the Prosperity and Trade Contest to help me win a piano or a trip to the fair, or something." And, of course, the friend was willing to try the "Balloon" just once to oblige her friend, and then—having no occasion to change—she kept on sending things there to be cleaned, and the contestant kept on getting the credits.

The New Method Laundry has been exceedingly fortunate in the amount of new business which the contest has brought to its doors—or, perhaps I had better say, to its tubs. Mrs. Kress, one of the most active of the contestants, specialized in New Method Laundry bills—and also in Balloon Dye Works bills—and as she was a member of the Apartment-house Keepers' Association, she was able to direct a great deal of new business in the directions most popular with apartment-houses—the New Method and the Balloon Dye Works being one of the roads pointed out by her.

The Orange Blossom Candy Company was the only co-operating store that catered exclusively to the "sweet tooth" of contestants and their friends. Not only did it cater to the taste for sweets, but it stimulated that taste for sweets by offering a special prize, very early in the contest, of a five-pound box of their very best candy to the contestant who turned in to the contest office, in one week, the greatest amount of their credits. This special prize was won by Mrs. Ida Gossage, who, however, continued to turn in almost as many Orange Blossom credits each succeeding week of the contest as during the week of the special prize.

ABOUT BRIDES.

Barker Bros., always a popular resort for brides, or brides-to-be, in search of furnishings for the new nest, must have done an unusual amount of business of that kind during the past two months. At the very lowest estimate, at least fifty bills must have been brought in showing an assortment of purchases that could spell only one thing—June brides. Some of the contestants watched the society columns eagerly and as soon as an announcement was made of the marriage of some courageous young couple, followed by the statement that the aforesaid young couple would move into their own home just as soon as it could get it furnished, these same eager contestants would hasten out to the bride's former home and, after due apologies and explanations, suggest that the furniture be purchased at Barker Bros.—either for cash or on the installment plan.

Wood Bros., A. K. Brauer & Co. and Lou Groman are among the enterprizing caterers to men's necessities and vanities who reaped a liberal harvest by "going after" the contestants occasionally—using the list with which we gladly supplied them—calling attention to their special lines of goods and liberal prices. Hollander & Funke, being exclusive in their particular line, showed fine results, especially during the last six weeks of the contest. Among the bills from their stores turned in by contestants, outing shoes, slippers and tennis shoes predominated, though there was a liberal showing of hose, also, for men, women and children. At first it was arranged to give the credits only on shoes, but the contestants were so insistent about having the credits on anything purchased at the Hollander & Funke stores that the concession was made. After all, the main point was that the money should be spent in these stores, whether it was for shoes or for stockings.

The Central Drug Company and the Pacific Drug Company also supplied furnishings for the tired feet of the contestants, in the form of lotions, witch hazel and "sich like," and the stocks of toilet articles that were accumulated "because they will keep" were astonishing—but it meant added credits—and that was the main object in life during the four months of the contest.

Logan the Hatter came in for his share of returns from the Trade Contest, as did the Typewriter Service Company, that made special contest prices and reaped the profits thereby.

DEPARTMENT STORES.

The two department stores on our list, the J. M. Hale Company and Spears', are well represented by receipted bills in the contest storeroom. At first it seemed as though the Hale company was going to do all of the dry goods business for the contestants, but when they realized that Spears' was "just around the corner" from the contest office, they began to drop in frequently until, by the time the contest ended, both stores were getting their share of the returns. The Hale company showed the greater amount of sales in ready-to-wear garments, hose, etc., and Spears' predominated in staple lines, such as sheeting, threads, pins, needles, etc. Hoffman's Millinery and the Baby's Specialty Shop each had contestants who especially favored their credits, though Hoffman's had the advantage because it was prepared to supply the wants of all its customers—as to headgear—while the Baby Shop carried bonnets for babies only.

The F. E. Newberry Electric Company did its best work for the contest—or vice versa—during the last two months. In fact, the business that was turned in during the last three weeks was really remarkable. Much of it was traceable to apartment houses and hotels—again Mrs. Kress.

Among the jewelry companies that co-operated with the Prosperity and Trade Contest—Feagans and Company, Montgomery Bros., Nordlinger and Company, Emma C. Flemming and O. L. Wuerker—the honors were pretty equally divided. It is quite a coincidence that the very first sales slip to come into the contest department, to be credited to a contestant, was a receipted bill from Feagans and Company and in the very last bundle of credits brought in at the last moment Saturday night, there were several bills from Feagans and Company.

If time and space permitted it would make interesting reading to go over the entire list of co-operating merchants and review their experiences with the Trade contest. Most of the out-of-town merchants are highly pleased with the results of the contest and I am sure all of them feel repaid for the very modest expenditure required of them as a co-operation fee. District No. 4, the out-of-town district, was large and eight additional prizes were offered for that district alone, in order that the contestants might be encouraged to continue their efforts and the merchants reap the benefit, thereby. The majority of smaller special prizes were won by contestants of District No. 4.

Our two co-operating theaters, Millers and The Regal, added to the interest of the contestants, for, by their co-operation, contestants were able to drop into one of the theaters, rest a while, enjoy themselves and receive credits for their amusement as well as for their work. During the last month, Miller's programmes were turned in for credits instead of the credit slips and the number that came in was amazing. Were they all spread out, we would certainly have enough to paper the whole second floor of The Times Building.

TWO MARKETS.

The L. A. Market and Ludwig and Mathews, housed under one roof, attracted many thrifty housewives who lived in a neighborhood where there did not happen to be any co-operating green grocer or meat market. Even some of the out-of-town contestants, on their weekly visits to the contest office, used to take home a supply of "unperishables" of both meats and vegetables—first leaving the credits at the contest office.

The Fitzgerald Music Company's sales slips were almost as eagerly sought for as Swanfeldt's or the Pacific Wood and Coal, because they "counted up" so rapidly and, besides, to quote one of the contestants, "It is always safe to urge some one to go to Fitzgerald's for a piano, for they will surely get the best there is and everybody is pleased." One contestant had a keen disappointment over this piano business. She had a friend—one of those June brides, by the way, who had promised faithfully to get a piano from the Fitzgerald Company and pay cash for it before the contest ended. Well, the bride bought the piano, all right, but at the very last moment informed her friend, the contestant, that she was not going to pay for it till "next month, for George has to buy a car." So the contestant could not get her credits for which she had worked so hard—and it was a baby grand, too, which would have meant a lot of credits.

The co-operating grocers all came in for their share of new business as a result of the contest. People must eat, no matter how hard the times are, and it was just as easy to buy where one could have the credits, as elsewhere. N. E. Wilson and Marshall's Bakery and Grocery, out West Adams way did a splendid business and secured quite a number of new customers, as did also W. H. Barber, the Bon Ton Grocery and L. D. Hines of Highland Park. Speaking of groceries, however, the king bee of them all—as regards the number of cash register slips turned in—is Chaffee's. Of course, Chaffee and Company is represented by ten or twelve of their stores so that the showing in cash register slips was bound to be considerable. At the very end of the contest—in fact on Monday after the contest closed—there came by mail, from an out-of-town contestant, two shoe-boxes of Chaffee's cash register slips, which when run up on the adding machine, required forty yards of tape. Think of it, forty yards—120 feet. The amounts were all small, so that the total did not reach such a large figure, after all. But, how the clerk who added them up had a terrible arm ache afterwards.

One of the results of the Prosperity and Trade Contest.

H. L. Joannes "caught in the act" of taking a farewell look at his veritable mountain of Ben Hur coffee cans.

RESTAURANTS AND CAFES.

The co-operating restaurants and cafes did a good business with contestants and their assistants during the run of the contest and there is every reason to believe that many of them have acquired the habit now and will continue to eat at their favorite cafe whether it be the Roma, Shay's Cafeteria, or Zeigler's Bakery, and will undoubtedly continue to quench their thirst with buttermilk from the Golden Cow Butter Shop.

The Prosperity and Trade Contest, looked at from every side, has been a remarkable success. From start to finish everything has run along smoothly, everybody working together amicably, and only an occasional bit of friction to lend interest. There was bound to be some surprise when the winners were announced. In fact the workers of the contest department, themselves, were greatly amazed at the turn affairs took, just the last day or two, in two or three instances. All during the campaign the contestants were given their day's credits each time they called at the office, as well as their total amount of credits, including that day's donation. In this way it was possible for the contestant to keep close account of her standing and thus avoid any possibility of misunderstandings. We did not give out totals during the last week, but all contestants were given their day's count and could easily keep their own total in this way. The result was that, at the very last, while there was, of course, much nervous strain and rush of work, there was no confusion. The doors closed at 6 p.m., sharp, and only two belated contestants called after that hour. One was a small boy not over 8 years of age, who met the contest manager in the hall and seizing her frantically by the hand, gasped out, "Is the doors locked; say, is they locked?" When he was informed they "is locked" the little chap's eyes filled with tears and he said, "O, isn't that too bad. I have 500 credits from the Citizens' Trust and Savings Bank for Carl Bedell." It was too bad, but there was no help for it.

The very last contestant to enter the contest office on Saturday was Frank Forester, the blind boy of Pomona. Frank was accompanied by a friend and was much interested in the crowded office and its busy hum of voices. Frank did not win a prize, but that was not due to lack of effort or lack of friends to assist him, but because in a contest of this kind one must be able to get about, in all the byways and highways, and urge upon their friends the necessity of purchasing where credits can be obtained, and then, many return trips must be made to collect these credits. Frank is studying hard and that takes nearly all the time at his command.

FINAL PICTURE.

One of the pictures that stood out clearly in the contest office, just before closing time, was that of a tall, soldierly-looking, gray-haired father standing between his two daughters, watching the count of the credits brought in by one of the daughters, who was a contestant. He had helped the daughter through the entire campaign and the light of fatherly love, pride and the joy of accomplishment, that shone on his face was beautiful.

Late in the afternoon, on Saturday, an automobile— a seven-passenger, at that—drove up in front of The Times and there alighted a trim, well-dressed little lady, who hurriedly took the elevator and alighted at the contest office. After some hesitation she explained that she had, down stairs in the car, nineteen fifty-pound Violet brand shortening pails, and she did not see how she was ever going to get them up stairs, as it would be so embarrassing to bring them in the elevator. After some consultation it was decided to send our one male clerk down to the car to remove and cancel the pails one by one, and return them to the automobile. A considerable crowd gathered while the process of cancellation was under way and one curious woman asked the little lady who escorted the pails if she was running some kind of a side show. The little lady was Margaret Young, winner of the first grand prize.

The very last thing to come in, either by mail or otherwise, that were eligible to be used by the contestant, was a huge box of those ever-present Ben-Hur cans. They came by freight over the Santa Fe from Redlands and were sent by Miss Helen Royce, a contestant of that city—a winner, too, by the way. Miss Royce won a trip to the fair and she must give the entire credit to Ben Hur, for until that last consignment arrived, she was not in line for the prize, or any district prize. The cans were shipped on Saturday, so it was quite right that Miss Royce should have the credit for them.

THE JUDGING.

On Thursday the five judges, Will C. Heffelfinger of Hamburger's, Emil Firth, real estate; E. W. Murphy of Johnson, Carvell and Murphy; E. L. Clymer of the Title Insurance and Trust Company, and Otto Herbert Schons of the Maier Brewing Company, made their final visit at the contest office. They went over the entire system from the first day of the contest to the last. They paid special attention to the credits of the winners and complimented the work that was done by many of them as shown on the daily credit slips of each contestant. They were especially generous in their praise of the work done by Mrs. Ida Gossage, winner of the second grand prize, the high character of which was attested to by letters from many of the merchants asking that Mrs. Gossage be given credit for some especially good work that had come in to them through her efforts and of which she had, as yet, no knowledge. The judges expressed their entire approval of the system of awarding the credits and keeping the count and were amazed at the thoroughness of it and the barriers by which unfairness was prevented.

After the office details had been thoroughly looked into, a visit was made to the storeroom, where earlier in the day H. L. Joannes of Joannes Brothers was caught in the act of taking a farewell look at the colossal pile of cans. The judges had found plenty to say in the contest office, but here in the storeroom they were speechless with amazement—until they got their breath back, when questions fell thick and fast. One and all expressed themselves as almost unable to believe the evidences of their own eyes. It seemed impossible that a contest of any kind could have stirred up so much interest in the various lines of business represented in that wonder room and yet, there was no disputing the tangible and visible evidences in piles and tiers and bundles and boxes and drawers right there before their eyes.

When the judges had seen enough and convinced themselves that the Ben Hur cans were as real as they looked and that the pile of Sego milk labels was solid all the way through and not built up with something else underneath, they went back to the contest office and tendered the following expression of their combined opinions of the Prosperity and Trade Contest.

"We, the undersigned judges, having made a careful and exhaustive investigation of the system by which the Prosperity and Trade Contest has been conducted, do hereby take pleasure in stating that in our opinion, the contest has been conducted in a highly efficient and equitable manner.

"The method by which the credits are allowed and totaled is eminently fair and to be recommended by any contest of a like nature. The totals are obtained by adding machines and the contest department is equipped with every facility for making the contest, what it undoubtedly was—an absolutely fair, practical, trade-stimulating campaign, in which the merchant and contestant both benefited.

ESTIMATE OF BENEFITS.

While it is impossible to estimate exactly the total amount of business which the Prosperity and Trade Contest has brought to the various co-operating merchants, it is, in some instances, possible to state the exact amount of the business done for the various "label" goods.

For example: During the four months run of the contest there were brought into the contest office and credited to contestants, exactly 9538 half-pound Ben Hur Coffee cans, 23,778 pound cans, and 6541 three-pound cans, aggregating approximately an expenditure of $18,613 for Ben Hur coffee. This amount of cans does not include the not inconsiderable number that were refused by the contest management because of rust or evidences of age. It is a conservative estimate to say that 85 per cent. of cans, flour sacks, milk labels and other "label" goods, was purchased after the opening date of the contest. The surprising newness of the contents of the storeroom is a silent witness to that statement. Besides the coffee cans there were brought in 16,281 Ben Hur spice, baking powder and tea cans, indicating an expenditure of considerably more than $2000.

Of A1 Flour sacks, there were brought in 8998 ninety-eight-pound sacks, 7879 forty-nine-pound sacks, 4520 twenty-four-pound sacks, 14,303 ten-pound sacks, and 1511 five-pound sacks, showing a total expenditure of $61,790.35, at retail prices. It must be remembered these flour sacks have come from all over the southern part of the State, for it made no difference to the Globe Milling Company where their sales were made—just so they were made. If a contestant living in Los Angeles should happen to have a friend in San Diego, in the bakery business, or owner of a big cafe and should induce this friend to order a supply of A1 Flour, the business was just as acceptable to the Globe Mills as though it came through the regular channels.

Of Sego milk labels there came in 113,482 large and 50,633 small. Of these, also, it is suspected that some of them came from pretty far out of town, but, in any event, someone had to buy and pay for them before the wrappers were available. Hence, an expenditure of $13,849.45 for Sego milk. Doubtless much of this will remain in stock for some weeks, as a great many cases were bought by bakeries and cafes at the suggestion of contestants.

Murray's bread, German Toast, etc., was represented by 5351 wrappers, practically all 10 and 15 cent wrappers, showing an expenditure of close to $1000, which, considering that the Murray Baking Company did not join the contest family until it was well under way, shows a sale of "some bread."

Another of the late comers was Hydro-Pura, of whose cartons we received 2015 large, and 1998 small, or a total expenditure of $703.05, which buys a whole lot of water softener.

Violet Brand Shortening—still another late comer—was well represented to the extent of eighty-nine fifty-pound pails, 123 ten-pound pails, 221 five-pound pails and 267 three-pound pails. Converted into coin of the realm, this number of pails of Violet Brand Shortening means an outlay of approximately $750.

From Shays Cafeteria came 709,809 credit slips, of fifty credits each, which were given out with meals—one to a meal. These few instances will serve to show in a very small measure the direct results to the co-operating merchant but do not give the faintest idea of the indirect results which will continue to be felt for years to come.

In conclusion there is only one thing more to be said for every one interested in The Prosperity and Trade Contest. We have each tried to do our part as we saw it. Perhaps we did not all see things in the same light at the same time but just the same we all did the best we could, though, doubtless, we might do some things differently, if we were to do them over again. When I say "we," I do not refer solely to the contest department, but to the contestants and the merchants as well. Many of the merchants, I am sure, would "wake up" a little earlier, next time, to the possibilities of the contest and many of the contestants would work along broader lines and strive for more tangible results, but, all in all, the contest family is a fairly happy and satisfied one and I do not believe there is one of us who would not join hands again on a similar issue, and get just as much fun and profit out of it as we did out of the Prosperity and Trade Contest.

Yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock, the prizes were formally presented in the assembly rooms on the second floor of The Times Building. Practically all the winning contestants were present—and some of those who did not win came also, to extend congratulations to the lucky ones—not to bewail their own ill luck. The spirit of good fellowship prevailed and the spirit of envy and discontent was conspicuous by its absence.

Harry E. Andrews, managing editor of The Times, made the presentation address, briefly reviewing the Royal Sport.

WORLD'S ELITE DRAWN BY POLO.

Next Winter Expected to be Most Brilliant Season.

Santa Monica Country Club to Put in Fine Field.

Summer Play is Innovation of Note at Coronado.

Santa Monica, which with Riverside divides the honor of being the birthplace of polo in California, has again occupied the center of the polo stage by announcing that at the recently-organized Santa Monica Country Club a superb polo field will be set out and that competitions in the royal sport will become fixtures of the gay life at the "Mother of the Beaches" hereafter.

An ideal spot has been selected for the estate of the country club. It is located at Westgate and overlooks the ocean, with the Santa Monica Mountains as the background.

A list of 200 members has been selected and they embrace the names of many who have been very prominent not only in the recent revival of polo in California, but in golf and tennis as well.

Thomas C. Bundy who, with Maurice McLoughlin, holds the national doubles title in the tennis world, is president of the new club, and Thomas McCall is vice-president. M. E. Flowers, a former polo expert and a member of the old Riverside team which was so prominent some years ago, is, with Mayor Dudley of Santa Monica, himself a former polo player of note, actively supporting the new club.

This revival of interest in polo by Santa Monica is a direct result of the wonderfully brilliant polo seasons of the past few years. It may also be directly traced to the success of Carleton F. Burke's Midwick polo team in winning every trophy offered at the recent universal polo tournament at the Panama-Pacific Exposition, in which the best teams in the United States competed.

The revival of interest in polo is not confined to Santa Monica alone, but Coronado, Riverside and Santa Barbara have seen the keenest awakening of interest in the wonderful game. Fields have been installed at a cost of many thousands of dollars; new clubhouses have been built, and the intelligent breeding of the finest strains of polo ponies has been taken up by gentlemen of means and leisure.

ATTRACTS BIG PEOPLE.

This intense interest has been fostered also by the fact that the polo competitions in California have attracted here the most distinguished groups of cosmopolitans that have ever come to this State, winter or summer.

In the list of participants and spectators that have come to Coronado, Riverside and Pasadena are seen names that are internationally famous, not alone for the enormous fortunes which they control, but for their soundness of breeding and family and for the place they occupy in the lists of patrons and patronesses of outdoor sports.

These folk have adopted polo as peculiarly their own game and wherever they can have good polo they will go. It has been only in the last few years that they have begun to realize that California is destined to be the polo capital of the United States. A few venturesome spirits came here and played polo, returning East with glowing accounts of the excellence of the turf fields, the superb ponies that were available, and the additional fact that they had been soundly trounced for their pains in coming to this State.

One of these gentlemen, namely, C. Perry Beadleston of the Cooperstown team, champions of America, has been coming here for three or four years, and by his winter polo has improved his game until he is ranked among America's best players. Fred L. McLoughlin of the Onwentsia team of Chicago, has done likewise. Lord Tweedmouth and Lord Innes Ker of England paid several winter visits here as the guests of Walter H. Dupee of Coronado and returned to England with the knowledge that California polo is of the highest grade.

Malcolm Stevenson, the famous back of the Cooperstown team, has been playing in California in winter for several seasons. Mr. Stevenson is believed by some to be a second Devereaux Milburn, the greatest back that polo has ever seen. Mr. Stevenson lays his improvement to his winter polo in California.

POLO AND ART.

Then there is Charles Cary ("Pad") Rumsey, the sculptor, who married Miss Mary Harriman, daughter of the late E. H. Harriman. Rumsey plays No. 1 on the Cooperstown team. His playing the last season was good and although his team lost to our brilliant Midwick four he put up a wonderful game. He is a great poloist as well as a great artist. F. S. von Stade, whose recent marriage to Miss Katherine Steele was a direct result of their last winter's visit to California's polo tournaments, played here last year and will return early the coming winter. He would have come out this summer had it not been for an accident in which several of his ribs were fractured, which puts him out of the game for several months.

Miss Eleonora R. Sears plays polo even better than she plays tennis. At Coronado recently she played every morning with Mrs. Rumsey, Mrs. J. Watson Webb, Miss Kathryne Steele and several of the men players.

Last winter she was referee at the famous round robin match there and proved herself highly efficient, riding around the field with a dash that surprised many men. Miss Sears is called "Eleo" by her intimates.

Then there was J. Watson Webb, a son of the head of the Vanderbilt lines, who played No. 2 on Mr. Burke's Midwick team. Mr. Webb is perhaps the most brilliant forward ever seen in action in California, and his playing easily ranked him as international timber. This was his first winter's polo campaign in California and he was so well pleased that he will return by the first of the year.

Thomas Le Boutillier, II, of Westbury, L. I., who played No. 3 for Cooperstown, came to California in December last and remained five months. He added many ponies to his string, and will return November 1.

Col. Max and Julius Fleischmann, the yeast kings of Cincinnati, were additions to the polo set this last year, and they will come back again this winter. J. Langford Stack of Chicago, whose marriage to Miss Elizabeth Wood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Modini Wood of Los Angeles, was a social event of the winter season, has played polo here several seasons and will come annually.

These wealthy men have been attracted only after a strenuous campaign by Californians interested in this sport, and a word concerning these latter will not be amiss.

CONTROL OF GAME.

Polo on the Coast is controlled by a subcommittee of the American Polo Association. John B. Miller, president of the Southern California Edison Company, is chairman. Carleton F. Burke, J. Cheever Cowdin and Harry Pattee are members of the committee. They have worked hard to make polo what it now is in the State and have given freely of their means in support of the game. John D. Spreckels of Coronado has also been a strong sponsor for the game. For years polo was conducted at the southern resort at a financial loss. Fields the equal of any in the world were established after years of careful attention and prominent polo visitors having once played on them were eager to return. Harry Weiss, one of the greatest judges of polo ponies in America, did a great part in placing the game where it now is by his success with polo pony breeding. Five of his ponies have been selected in recent years to play for the American team in the international matches. No other owner of ponies in America has had this distinction. Walter H. Dupee of Coronado has been one of the strongest supporters of the game in that he has enlisted the attention of prominent Englishmen in California and has entertained such international players as Lord Tweedmouth, Lord Innes Ker, the Earl of Pembroke, the Viscount Lucien Gower and others. He also was active in securing the Cooperstown team for the various tournaments of the recent winter.

Too much attention can hardly be given to the men who have brought California polo into national and international fame, for at a time when the local polo enthusiasts had about abandoned the game, they brought in prominent eastern and European players who caused a revival of interest among the local players. Riverside came "back" one year ago and sent a team to Pasadena and to Coronado, where although soundly threshed, they proved themselves stickers and came back for more. Now their team shows signs of being a factor in next winter's matches. Harry Pattee, Robert Lee Bettner, Hilary Lett, Dwight Hutchins and L. V. W. Brown, not to mention the two Pedley boys, who also play tennis so well, are all eager over their new polo veld.

BIG MONEY.

The amount of money represented in polo in California is astonishing to the layman. The fields at the Midwick Country Club have been two and a half years in the growing and so far not a polo pony has set his foot on the turf. It has been cared for like the lawn of a private residence. This winter some of the best polo matches of the year will be seen at Midwick. The fields at Coronado have cost a king's ransom, and $180,000 was subscribed to establish two fields at Santa Barbara. Polo ponies have risen in value until now it is not uncommon for animals of exceptional merit to be purchased for as high as $2500 and $3000, where a few years ago a pony costing a few hundred dollars was thought good enough for the best playing.

Mayor Dudley played three years with the Santa Monica team and was the second president of the Southern California polo team. He did much for the game, kept a fine string of ponies, and today is a great polo enthusiast. He tells how in early days he owned two ponies costing $35 each, and how he used to drive these ponies and play polo with them also. And he schooled these ponies himself and took care of them.

In the train of the prominent cosmopolitan players polo has brought came a long retinue of friends, supporters and lovers of both the game and the intense social activity that always follows polo matches. In this train are seen again names of ladies and gentlemen who are as much at home in any of the capitals of Europe as they are in New York.

They have established a season for themselves in California that, short as it is, rivals in brilliancy any season at any European spa. It generally runs from New Year's Day up to May, although there is great activity both before and after this short period.

SUMMER POLO.

The fact that California players are again awakening to the attractiveness of polo is bringing about a season of summer polo at Coronado, where Mode Wineman, who is so well known for his wonderful photographs of the national parks, is passing the summer at the big hotel. Mr. Wineman has taken it upon himself to write entertainingly of California polo, and his excellent articles and camera studies are making a hit in eastern magazines and newspapers and boosting the game here. He has struck a new keynote.

The summer polo tournament at the Coronado Country Club, with John J. Hernan as sponsor, will begin the 20th inst., and is attracting a number of the elect of California's smart set. Thomas Driscol, the crack left-hand player of the San Mateo "Slashers," will, with Mrs. Driscol, go to Coronado for a month. J. Cheever Cowdin, No. 3 of the same team, will also be at the southern resort with Mrs. Cowdin. Robert Neustadt, who played No. 1 on the old Pasadena and Midwick teams, is already on the ground. John B. Miller, who will return from the East this month, will go to Coronado with Mrs. Miller, Miss Phila Miller and his two sons, Edgar and John B. Miller, Jr. Carleton F. Burke, whose captaincy of the champion Midwick polo team last season marked a distinct epoch in polo on the Coast, will probably run down for a few weeks' polo. Miss Louise Burke will accompany her brother. Reggie Weiss of the Pasadena and Midwick teams has been traveling back and forth for week-ends at Coronado and will probably take a few of his ponies south the middle of this month.

All in all, Californians are busily selecting their best ponies and training them diligently and "prepping" themselves for what they expect will be a tremendous revival of polo this fall and winter.

With Europe practically closed to the wealthy poloists of this country and also with the hunting in England abandoned, the local sponsors for polo look eagerly forward to the presence here next winter of the most brilliant galaxy of cosmopolitans that the State has ever seen.

The Big Trade Contest.

Prosperity and Trade Contest from the beginning of the campaign to its successful close. On behalf of The Times management and of the contest department, Mr. Andrews thanked the contestants for their hearty co-operation and the clean and high-grade character of their work.

Mrs. Ida Gossage was especially commended for her successful efforts to direct new business into the channels of the co-operating advertisers. Mrs. Margaret Young and Mrs. V. T. Reuter were also commended for the volume of general business which they stimulated during the campaign, as were also Mrs. A. H. Redmond, Mrs. Lena Mead, Miss Ola Reavis, Mrs. Bernice Kress, Miss Billie Dayton, Mrs. Eva Wood, Mrs. F. B. Washburn and many others.

Mr. Andrews concluded with a few words of commendation for the manager of the Prosperity and Trade Contest and the system by which the contest was conducted, especially commending the work of Mrs. Myra Hales, on whose shoulders rested the entire burden of keeping the records of the contestants' credits, totals, etc., and at the same time, keeping the contestants in good humor.

Little Jacqueline Barton, the cunning baby contestant, came in for really more than her share of attention during the distribution of the prizes and every one was glad that "Jackie" won the diamond ring. "Jackie" was glad, too, though she will appreciate the ring more when she is 14 than she does now at 4.

The pleasure of Irene Becker, 13 years old, who won a $25 Grafonola, was touching, especially to the contest management, who know so much better than anyone else how hard the little girl worked and how earnestly she desired to win a prize.

Altogether, it was an entirely happy afternoon and we all shook hands and said good-by to each other with mutual regrets and good wishes.

THE BLACK SEA.

A Unique War Theater Where European Affairs May be Reorganized as Result of Conflict.

"The Black Sea is unique among the war theaters," says the National Geographic Society. "It is the least regarded by the people of the West, and yet operations there may result in a permanent reorganization of European affairs. Half-possession has just served to whet the desires of each of the two empires for full possession and the Ottoman and the Muscovite have long frowned at one another over the waters of this inland sea.

"Inclosed on the north by the southern coast of Russia, on the east by Russian Caucasia, on the south and west by Turkey in Asia and Turkey in Europe, and on the northwest by Bulgaria and Rumania, the Black Sea is in every respect an oriental water body.

"The Black, Caspian and Baltic seas are about the same size, but of them all the Black Sea drains the country of greater natural resources, of most advantageous connections with the trading world, and, by far, of the most commercial importance. From east to west the Black Sea has a length of 750 miles; its greatest width is 380 miles, and it covers an area of 180,000 square miles, or is considerably greater than the sum of the areas of the American Great Lakes. It has a coastal line of 2000 miles and a large part of its central basin reaches the extreme depth of 6000 feet.

"A million square miles of land in Europe and Asia drain into the Black Sea. The Danube, Dneiper, Dniester and Bug of Central Europe; the Don of Eastern Russia, the Kurban and smaller rivers of Caucasia, and the Tcharuk, Kizil Irmak, Sakiria and other rivers of Asia Minor, carry enormous volumes of water to its basin; it rises and falls according to the increase and decrease in the volume of its tributary waters. Of tidal action there is little or none.

"Chief among the port cities are Odessa, Sevastopol and Botum, in Russia; Trebizond and Sincpe, in Asia Minor; Varna, in Bulgaria, and Kostenje, in Rumania. Greatest of all the commercial ports is Odessa, one of Russia's most important cities for the shipment of agricultural produce. Batum is a famous oil port.

"The Black Sea is better known to the people of the West in fable than in history, for the myth-laden Cimmerian region is upon its northern shores, and many of the early Grecian heroes carried on their knight-errantry along its coasts, while Colchis, where Jason and brother Argonauts sought the Golden Fleece, lies on its east bank."

DON'T MIND THE WAR.

People of France go About Their Home Business as Unconcernedly as During Days of Peace.

[Toledo Blade:] It was Carlyle, we believe, who remarked the narrow orbit of great events. While mobs were tearing at the stones of the Bastile groups of men in other parts of Paris haggled over copper coins, quarreled over the depredations of house cats, discussed poetry and philosophy or matched predictions on the weather. The fall of the Bastile was to echo down the ages. But the world of accustomed ways continued its way unchecked.

An American, lately returned from Europe, reports that the most astonishing thing about the war to him was the absence of signs of war.

"When you travel by rail if you did not know that war was in the country you would never suspect it unless you wondered why a red-hatted, blue-coated guard, with a rifle carelessly swung over his shoulder, was noticeable now and then by crossroad or near the buttress of an important railroad bridge.

"The big black and white horses are plowing the fields, the red and black cattle and the sheep and hogs are grazing in the fields and pastures.

"As you approach Paris at night you see families dining by uncurtained windows in blazing light. You are astonished after your London experience of semidarkness to find the boulevards ablaze and no apparent fear of aerial enemies or any invasion, although aeroplanes and Zeppelins and bombs may be flying and fighting only eighty miles away.

"The inhabitants, young and old, picnic in the Bois de Boulogne.

"You smile and join with the people in their curiosity excursions."

War, for all its earth-shaking, devastating, upheaving violence, is yet weaker than human habit.

Asquith a Plain Politician.

[The Atlantic:] It is the accident of events that has made Mr. Asquith the pilot during the most stormy period of British politics, for, certainly, a century. He is himself, by temperament, the least adventurous of statesmen. His quality is intellectual rather than imaginative, and he is congenitally indisposed to pluck the peach before it is ripe. At no time in his career has he forced issues on the public. He is content to leave the pioneering work to those who like it, and prefers to make his appearance when the air has been warmed. It would be wholly wrong to assume from this that he is an opportunist, or that he is governed by the motions of the weather cock. Nothing, indeed, could be further from the truth. It is simply that he is neither an adventurer, nor a political gambler, nor an idealist; but a plain politician, interested only in practicable things and a little indifferent to dreams, even though they are on the point of becoming realities. But once engaged, his mind works with unrivaled power. All the resources of the most capacious intellect that has been placed at the service of Parliament since Gladstone disappeared are brought into play with an economy of method, a startling clearness of thought, and a passionless detachment of spirit that give him an unrivaled mastery of the House.

Pasadena.

WOMEN ARMED FOR THE FRAY.

Will Defend Sex in Conflict for Big Offices.

Universalist Men-folks Have Something Coming.

Plans for Fourth of July in Pasadena are Laid.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

PASADENA, July 4.—At last the cat is out of the bag and the reason for the anticipated struggle to prevent women from holding official positions in the Universalist Church is made apparent.

Rev. Athalia L. J. Irwin, pastor of the Riverside Universalist Church and one of the most prominent women in Universalist circles in Southern California, stated yesterday that there is a definite movement on foot to elect a woman to one of the important offices in the national convention which opens in Pasadena next Sunday.

"I'm a delegate to the convention," she said, "and if I don't nominate the woman I'll be one of those who will second the nomination. If any effort is made in the convention to limit the activities of women, I am sure it will be defeated."

In the past no women have held positions on the board of trustees and information had been given out that not only would the sphere of the woman in the church be restricted but that an attempt would be made to prevent them from holding any of the important public offices.

Mrs. Irwin characterized as "nonsense" the statement that Universalism is a rational religion rather than one of emotionalism. She said that it was the work of the women that is keeping the Universalist Church together. She predicted a victory for the progressive element if the reactionaries precipitated a struggle.

Thirty members of the Riverside Universalist Church will be in Pasadena with their leader to attend the convention and they all declare they will be "in the thick of the fray."

Mrs. Irwin said she thought she knew the identity of the "big man in the church" who is going to oppose any effort of the women to gain representation in the national officiary, but when urged to make public the name of the arch reactionary she refused to do so. She mentioned, however, that he "is going to have his hands full in California," thus intimating that he is not a California man.

FOURTH OF JULY.

Pasadena will officially celebrate Independence Day this afternoon by giving a special welcome to all new citizens, including those just 21 and those recently naturalized, at La Pintoresca Park. The welcoming address will be delivered by Seward A. Simons and will be followed with an address on "Peace" by Congressman C. H. Randall.

The official celebration started out on a very small scale but has now assumed gigantic proportions owing to the strenuous and whole-hearted assistance of prominent North Pasadena citizens. Assurances have been given that the Grand Army of the Republic, the Sons of Veterans, the Woman's Relief Corps, the Ladies of the G.A.R., the auxiliary of the Sons of Veterans, the Spanish War Veterans and auxiliary will send delegations to the celebration.

Mr. Simons's subject will be "The Old and New Citizen," and will be along the lines of a new interpretation of Independence Day.

The celebration at Brookside Park tomorrow will be of a more frivolous character. More than 1200 reservations have been made for space at the luncheon tables.

Pasadena's new regulation baseball diamond will be christened with a game between the Good Templars of the local city and Los Angeles. This game will attract especial interest as the Good Templars have selected Brookside Park for their district picnic and will be out in full force to root for their favorites. During the luncheon hour they will be addressed by Congressman Randall and others.

The park has been gaily decorated for the occasion with flags and bunting. In anticipation of the crowds which are expected to take advantage of the municipal plunge, Supt. Scherer has arranged for several large tents to be used as dressing-rooms.

PRISON BARS.

While Dr. Daniel F. Fox, pastor of the First Congregational Church, was preaching last Sunday night on "Behind Prison Bars," Charles Kelly and Frank Murphy absconded with his machine, which was standing before the church.

As later events demonstrated, they should have been listening to the sermon rather than being out joy-riding, for several days later they were behind the bars themselves.

Yesterday Kelly, who earns $12 a week, was ordered by the police judge to pay a fine of $100. As he did not have the money he will have to turn over a portion of his $12 per until the debt is paid. Murphy will come up for sentence Tuesday.

CITY BRIEFS.

If J. S. Culver puts his hand to the wheel of an automobile for the next six months he will be sent to jail to serve a suspended sentence of thirty days. Culver was found guilty of driving his jitney bus in a reckless manner and was not given the option of paying a fine.

Hon. Philander P. Claxton, United States Commissioner of Education, will arrive in Pasadena next Friday and will give an address on "Lessons for America from the European War" at the High School Friday evening.

TO DEDICATE CHURCH.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

BAKERSFIELD, July 3.—Bishop Lambuth of the Methodist Church, South, will officiate here tomorrow at the dedication of the local church of this denomination as it is now freed from debt. This bishop is one of the most famous of present-day missionaries and his feat of walking 800 miles in the Congo district to establish a church is well known. And he points with pride to the fact that that African church is still in existence.

BUSINESS HOUSE SWEPT BY FIRE.

RIFLE CARTRIDGES EXPLODE BUT HARM NO ONE — HUSBAND HIDES FROM TWO.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

FRESNO, July 3.—Six business houses in one block in the heart of the downtown district were completely wiped out by fire this morning. The loss is estimated at $60,000. The flames were discovered by a night watchman in the rear of a small restaurant in the center of the burned district.

Occupants of a rooming-house, adjoining the restaurant, were forced to flee in their night clothes. The flames spread to a bicycle store, where hundreds of rifle cartridges were discharged. Nobody was injured. A clothing store also was destroyed.

CATCH FUGITIVE.

W. H. Godfrey, a real estate broker of Oakland, was arrested in Fresno this morning on a charge of bigamy preferred by wife No. 1. Godfrey was found by the police in hiding under the house of wife No. 1. According to the police, Godfrey confessed to the police that he was not divorced from wife No. 1 when he married wife No. 2.

The accused man has been in hiding for several days. He told the police he hid in the Fresno Cemetery and in the Courthouse park until he was starved out. He crawled under the home of wife No. 1 last night, and was discovered this morning.

Wife No. 2 returned to Oakland yesterday. She announced her intention of bringing suit to annul her marriage to Godfrey.

ROLE OF MARTYR NOT ATTRACTIVE.

EL CENTRO JUROR PAYS FINE RATHER THAN STAY IN JAIL LONGER.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

EL CENTRO, July 3.—The role of martyr having palled after two days among the trained insects of the County Jail, Jacob Duman, property owner and one of the landmarks of El Centro, bought his liberty today by paying a double dosage of fines. Duman, after being adjudged in contempt of court by Justice Mayfield for disrespect, was fined $25. He said he would rather languish in durance vile.

Inside the jail he was haled before the Kangaroo Court. He came face to face with Charley Ross, now awaiting trial for intent to commit murder. A year ago, Duman was on a jury that convicted Ross of resisting an officer. Another fellow-prisoner he found to be Jack Clark, convicted of burglary in Holtville by a jury of which Duman was a member, and awaiting transportation to San Quentin.

The prisoners made Duman a defendant and in this trial Rose and Clark were members of the jury to try him. That they were not entirely without prejudice is indicated by their verdict which found Duman guilty of breaking into jail through a hair-line crack made by the earthquake, whereas the evidence of Under-Sheriff Anderson is that Duman entered in the approved manner.

Duman paid a Kangaroo Court fine of $1 and then $21 of the contempt fine and walked out, threatening damage suits for false imprisonment.

GIANT CRACKER BIG AS PERSON.

VENICE TO FIRE DADDY OF FOURTH OF JULY EXPLOSION.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

VENICE, July 3.—The biggest firecracker in Southern California will be exploded on the end of the pier. The giant cracker is four feet two and one-half inches long, ten inches in diameter and is loaded with two pounds of highly explosive powder made additionally effective by the heavy wrapping of paper and adhesive gum.

The explosion of the giant cracker has been left in the hands of Bob Vernon and Misses Edna Payne and Lillian Stewart, who yesterday rehearsed on the sands their modus operandi. They don't intend to take any chances of accident.

The explosion of the bomb at 2:30 o'clock is to be a signal for the opening skirmish between two aeroplanes under the command of B. F. Schiller, who has constructed a new naval-type machine in which an exhibition flight will be made.

Plans are big for the celebration here tomorrow and Monday of the Fourth and many special events, many aquatic in nature, have been arranged.

TO FLEE FOUR WINDS.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

PUENTE, July 5.—Crimson peach labels, consigned to the Pomona Valley Canning Company, were scattered for just about one mile this morning, beginning at the intersection of the boulevard with the Southern Pacific tracks and dribbling in bunches and showers in the direction of Bassett. The trouble was caused by the breaking away of a trail wagon that was being hauled by the truck of a Los Angeles transfer company. The trailer stopped dead on the tracks at the famous "letter S" curve. The Southern Pacific Limited, bound into Los Angeles, struck it while moving sixty miles an hour. Over $1000 worth of labels and the trailer were entirely destroyed.

ROYALTY AND LUNATICS.

Many an Inmate of the Asylums Believe Themselves Allied to Some of the Ruling Families.

[New York Times:] Lunatic asylums in the Old World abound in inmates who are firmly convinced that they are closely related to the anointed of the Lord. It is a very common form of delusion. Until the outbreak of the present war hardly a week passed without some crank calling either at Buckingham Palace or at Windsor Castle, demanding immediate admittance to the royal presence. The men usually insisted that they were the real husband of the Queen or else an elder brother of George V. and consequently the lawful heir to the throne. The women professed to be the lawful wife of the monarch or else a daughter of Edward VII, born under romantic circumstances. The stories which they told were of the most extraordinary description. As they insisted on haunting the approaches of the palace, and in dogging the movements of the members of the reigning house, whom they persecuted with their attentions, they ended by being arrested and quietly consigned to the public lunatic asylums, where they either remained as permanent inmates or else were permitted to go free, after undergoing a fortnight of medical observation, the enforced detention serving as a salutary warning.

Much of the same practice has been followed at Berlin and Potsdam, where the Emperor and Empress have, ever since their accession to the throne in 1888, been troubled in much the same fashion by mentally unbalanced visitors. In fact, there is not a reigning sovereign in Europe who has escaped this particular form of annoyance.

It is practically understood in France that the Grand Prix, the famous horse-racing event, will not be run this year, and there is little possibility that this race or any other French "classic" contests will be run before 1918 because of the war.

Imperial Valley.

BUOYANT FUN FOR IMPERIAL.

Undaunted Spirit of Valley Rises Triumphant.

Celebration to be Carried Out as Planned.

Earthquake Shocks Fail to Dampen Ardor.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

EL CENTRO, July 3.—Under flags and bunting hung for a great patriotic celebration on Monday, several hundred couples danced in the streets tonight as the guests of the municipality. The posters advertising the affair alluded to the earthquake by the phrase "El Centro hit but not hurt."

With wounds dealt by the earthquake hidden under a great maze of festive bunting, El Centro is to pause Monday in her haste of rebuilding to be hostess at the most ambitious patriotic celebration in the short history of Imperial Valley.

With undaunted spirit that seems native to the land, the promoters of the event on the day following the earthquake announced that not only would the plans be carried out fully, but the scope would be widened to celebrate the birth of a new, bigger and better El Centro.

Following the decoration of the streets the exteriors of business houses one by one blossomed out into the national colors and Monday, when the visitors begin pouring in, all debris will have been removed.

Special excursion trains will land residents from all sections of the valley empire into El Centro, which is its center. A military touch will be given the celebration by the presence of two troops of cavalry now encamped near Calexico and an international tone will be given by the attendance of Col. Esteban Cantu, Governor of Lower California, who has accepted an invitation to be present with his staff.

BIG DOINGS.

The day will be crowded with the events, which have been arranged by the members of the volunteer fire department. This organization is limited to twenty-five members and is now recruited from the ranks of business and professional men in El Centro. An executive committee composed of Charles Folsom, Joseph F. Seymour, Jr., William Egerer and James Crearer, has had charge of the arrangements, but every member, as the head of a particular committee, has worked diligently for the success of the affair.

The parade is scheduled to move at 10 o'clock with Sheriff Mobley Meadows as grand marshal. The cavalry, bands, floats entered by the municipalities of the valley and by merchants, fire departments, city and county officials and Gov. Cantu and staff, industrial and fraternal organizations will participate.

A programme of literary exercises will be given in a great tent erected at Sixth and Broadway. The speeches will be short. After patriotic musical selections Mayor Swanson will officially greet visitors and Joseph F. Seymour, Jr., will deliver the oration of the day.

Field events follow and from 12 to 1 at the main reception tent a feast of melons is scheduled. Cantaloupes and watermelons will be shipped in by growers over the valley and these will be given out in abundance.

AUTOMOBILE RACE.

At 1 o'clock a starter's pistol will crack at Imperial and drivers will be off in a fifty-mile automobile race, the course of which is between Imperial over Imperial avenue to and through El Centro and back to Imperial by way of the Dogwood road. The race will cover three and a half laps, the finish being in El Centro. Many entries have been received and the committee promises a real speed duel.

At 2:15 the soldiers of Troops A and K of the First Cavalry will give an exhibition drill in a field near Eighth and Main streets. An hour later the fire departments of the valley towns will compete for a silver cup, the stunt being a race in the auto truck some 1300 feet to a hydrant, where some of the firemen will swing off and connect the hose. The department first stringing out the 200-foot hose and getting water to the nozzle will be declared winner.

Fireworks are scheduled for 8 o'clock and the committee says this is a $4000 event. Many special set pieces of local significance have been made. The display will be followed by a pavement dance, excursion trains leaving for the north at 10 o'clock and south half an hour later.

Members of the El Centro department are as follows: Charles Folsom, Frank Winslow, William Egerer, Tom Reams, H. E. Zurcher, Robert Devore, Ed Young, Charles E. Sones, J. A. Alcorn, James Crearer, William Cass, Guy Beynon, Harry Jones, Ban McCarrell, Tom Livingston, Clint Folkes, Charles Fields, Paul Swanson, William Reams, C. E. Sawyer, C. E. Ferguson, W. B. Gipson, Harry Loomis, C. Daily and Joseph F. Seymour, Jr.

BAKERSFIELD CLEARINGS.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

BAKERSFIELD, July 3. — Bank clearings show a decided upward trend for the month of June, and the report of the building inspector's office for the same period also denotes improved conditions in business. The sale of automobiles leads every other line of trade, and the fact that practically every one of these cars is bought for pleasure indicates that people have the money for the things they want.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL PICNIC.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

HERMOSA BEACH, JULY 3.—Coming in a special train of two coaches members of the West Hollywood Presbyterian Church Sunday-school invaded this resort yesterday at the annual picnic of that body. G. D. Harper, superintendent of the school, was in charge of the host, which was 125 strong. A lunch on the pier and games, bathing and athletics comprised the day's programme.

FRIGHT KILLS CITY AUDITOR.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN BERNARDINO, July 3.—A. C. Bernhardt, for six years cashier of the Southern Pacific at Colton and City Auditor there, died of fright this afternoon while doctors were preparing for an operation on his tonsils at a local hospital. Following an autopsy surgeons reported that death was the result of the effect of the nervous strain on an acutely dilated heart.

Bernhardt was placed on the operating table and cocain had been administered when the realization of the ordeal he was about to go through violently agitated him and he expired suddenly. Death defied all efforts of physicians to revive him with a pulmotor. Bernhardt was prominent in lodge circles. The inquest will be held in Colton tomorrow.

THIRD OF JULY AT OCEANSIDE.

CITY GETS CELEBRATION OFF ITS MIND FOR TRIP TO SAN DIEGO.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

OCEANSIDE, July 3.—In spite of the big counter-attraction at San Diego, Oceanside had a Fourth of July celebration today, thus affording opportunity for the people to take in the celebration in San Diego Monday.

Forenoon events included a monster parade and a basketball game between the Escondido and Oceanside girls' teams. A baby show was held during the noon hour and in the afternoon there were various athletic sports on the beach and a baseball game between the Oceanside and Escondido teams at Athletic Park. The closing events of the celebration were fireworks and a dance.

The July meeting of the Chamber of Commerce of Northern San Diego county was also held, over which Timothy Brownhill of Ramona presided. The programme included brief speeches on the work of the chamber in the northern part of the county and an oration by James T. Van Rensellaer of Fallbrook. Reports of various committees were made, including that of the Santa Fe Temecula Cut-off Committee and the Water Committee, which contemplates the taking of steps for the formation of a reclamation district in order to conserve the flood waters of the San Luis Rey River at present running to the sea.

Resolutions were adopted indorsing the following "big days" in the northern part of the county: Julian Day at Julian, August 11; Ramona Day at Ramona, August 27; Indian Peace Pipe Pageant at Moosa August 21; Grape Day in Escondido, September 9.

The chamber had a division in the morning parade.

DEATHS OF VETERANS.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SOLDIERS' HOME, July 3.—The following are recent deaths at Soldiers' Home.

Patrick Fielding, formerly of Co. B, Thirty-fifth Missouri Infantry, a native of Ireland, admitted from Los Angeles in 1899, died June 28, aged 79.

William J. Oliver, formerly of Co. I, Thirtieth Ohio Infantry, a native of Ohio, admitted from Sacramento in 1908, died June 26, aged 68.

William R. Seagrave, formerly of Co. G, Fifty-seventh Indiana Infantry, a native of Indiana, admitted from Antioch, Cal., in 1914, died June 30, aged 78.

William C. Sowell, formerly of Co. B, Seventy-eighth Illinois Infantry, a native of Illinois, admitted in 1909 from Los Angeles, died in that city June 24, aged 76.

AND ENVIRONS.

EVENTS BRIEFLY TOLD.

Seminary Reunion.

The Monticello Seminary reunion will be held at the San Diego Hotel in San Diego for three days, beginning on the 15th inst. A cordial invitation has been extended to students and graduates.

Nine Hundred Swimmers.

The plunge at the Y.W.C.A. was patronized by 900 girls and young women during June. This is the only large plunge in the city used exclusively for women and girls. Swimming classes are conducted mornings, afternoons and evenings.

Still Helping Mrs. Schneider.

The Times received $5 more yesterday for the relief of Mrs. Max Schneider of Hawthorne. A generous lady, to whom The Times gave a receipt, left the money at the Branch Office, and it will be delivered to Mrs. Schneider at once.

Wisconsin Society Meeting.

Mrs. Herbert Clark, well-known vocalist of Cleveland, will sing at the monthly meeting of the Wisconsin State Society of Los Angeles county at 8:30 o'clock tomorrow evening in the assembly rooms in the Times' Building. The musical and literary programme will be followed by dancing and refreshments.

Sings for Orphans.

Madame Ellen Beach Yaw has accepted an invitation to sing for orphans, on July 7, at a garden party to be given by Mrs. Rose E. Whitley, at her home, Sherman Way and Hazeltime avenue, Van Nuys. The party is solely in the interest of charity, and the fact that Miss Yaw will sing, indicates that it will be well attended.

Talk on Rose Culture.

Frank Lewin of Hawthorne will give a talk on rose culture at a meeting of the Los Angeles County Horticultural Society at No. 237 Franklin street next Tuesday night at 8 o'clock. Mr. Lewin will describe best methods of pruning, fertilizing and trimming plants and will be prepared to answer questions concerning the care of rose plants.

Iowa County Picnic.

Former residents of Louisa county, Iowa, will hold a reunion and basket picnic at Sycamore Park, August 15, under the auspices of the alumni and students of the Grand View Normal and Academic Institute of Iowa. The Committee on Arrangements is composed of G. B. Morgan of Los Angeles, W. A. Long of Hanford and A. W. Thompson of San Jacinto.

Utah Society Meeting.

Mrs. E. N. Dooley, one of the popular soloists at the concerts given last winter by the People's Orchestra, will sing at a meeting of the Utah State Society next Friday evening in the assembly rooms in the Times Building. Her accompaniest will be Maestro Eduardo Lebegott, also a popular musician. Mrs. Silverwood will read. The musical programme will be followed with dancing. Tourists from Utah and former residents of the State will be welcome.

Huntington Beach Services.

Brown and Curry, the evangelists, will begin a two weeks' revival tomorrow morning at the Methodist Tabernacle at Huntington Beach. Dr. D. F. Howe, pastor of the Westlake Methodist Church, will conduct a prayer meeting at 7:30 o'clock every morning during the revival. An address will be delivered at 10:30 o'clock every morning preceding the preaching service. Dr. Locke of the First Methodist Church will give the address in the morning.

Louisa County (Iowa) Picnic.

The annual reunion and basket picnic of former residents of Louisa county, Iowa, will be held under the auspices of alumni and former students of the Grand View Normal and Academic Institute of Iowa at Sycamore Grove, Tuesday, August 3. All such residents and students will be expected to be on hand with biographies of themselves for the use of the committee in charge, which consists of A. W. Thompson, San Jacinto; W. A. Long, Hanford, and G. B. Morgan, Los Angeles.

Death of Land Owner.

Peter Haack, a successful land dealer, who lived in California forty-six years and in Los Angeles thirty-five years, died yesterday morning at the Sisters' Hospital at the age of 59 years. He leaves a widow and one son, Henry Haack. Funeral services will be held at 9:30 o'clock tomorrow morning at St. Vibiana's Cathedral. Burial will be in Calvary Cemetery. Mr. Haack owned a handsome beach home at Ocean Park. At one time he owned 2000 acres in the Hollywood district.

Flagman and Motorman Responsible.

Responsibility for the accident at the Aliso-street bridge, May 7, in which a number of persons were killed and many injured, is placed by the Interstate Commerce Commission on the Pacific Electric flagman and the motorman of the wrecked electric car, according to advice received yesterday by the Santa Fe. The flagman is held culpable of giving a proceed signal to an eastbound car in such a way as to be misinterpreted by the motorman of the westbound car, while the motorman of this car is held to have violated the Pacific Electric rule that crossings must be approached under control.

PERSONALS

F. M. Dimmick, manager of the Clark, received a request yesterday to make reservations for a party of 200 eastern tourists, who will arrive in the city in three weeks.

William W. McClench, president of the Massachusetts Mutual Life Insurance Company, is in this city, the guest of his general agent here, F. E. McMullen. Mr. McClench is on a western business tour.

Dr. W. T. Thompson and J. M. Bailey, business man, both of Warren, Ark., are registered at the Hollenbeck. They come from the celebrated turpentine district of the State, in which industry both are financially interested.

Thomas McClure, vice-president of the Standard Chemical Company of Oakland, is a guest at the Hayward. Another guest at the same hotel is Miss O. Jewett, matron of the government school for Indian girls at Riverside.

Col. and Mrs. Henry Laub and Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Frank went to San Diego yesterday, where for a few days they will visit the exposition. During the week they will go to San Francisco to see the larger exposition and will later take a vacation at Lake Tahoe.

Wilhelm V. Munthe of Morgenstierne, Assistant Commissioner of Norway at the Panama-Pacific Exposition, is in the city on a pleasure visit, registered at the Alexandria. He expects to meet a number of his fellow-countrymen during his stay of several days.

AMERICA'S BIG DAIRYMEN HERE.

PRIVATE CARS BEAR CREAM OF CONVENTIONISTS.

Fifty Principal Milk Dealers of this Country and Canada, Going to Convention at San Francisco, will See Advantages of South in Tour Today.

The cream of all conventionists, members of the International Milk Dealers Association, are in Los Angeles today, having arrived last night over the Salt Lake from Riverside, Redlands and adjoining communities, where they were guests at a dinner at the Glenwood Mission Inn and on sightseeing trips about the valley.

Only fifty of the principal dealers of this country and Canada are in the party, which is traveling in private cars. They have come by the way of Yellowstone Park, where they visited for a week. On arrival here, a delegation of local dairymen, headed by S. A. W. Carver, greeted them and carried them in machines to the Alexandria, which is their headquarters until tomorrow, when they are to leave for San Diego.

Fruits, flowers and other tokens of welcome were showered on the visitors on reaching here. Today they will be given a memorable outing. A tour of many neighboring communities. Their first stop will be at the model dairy farm of the Los Angeles Dairy Company on the Whittier road near Montebello. From there they travel via El Monte to Covina, then Azusa, Monrovia and Pasadena.

After a visit at the Busch gardens and several other Pasadena places of interest, the vsitors will be landed in Verdugo Canyon, where a picnic luncheon will be waiting them. Glendale, Hollywood, Beverly Hills, Sawtelle and Santa Monica are next on the itinerary and at Ocean Park and Venice the travelers will have an opportunity of swimming or enjoying any other amusements they may choose.

In the party that arrived yesterday are Charles H. Hood, president of the association, who comes from Boston, where he is at the head of the H. P. Hood and Sons Dairy Company; John Lefeber, vice-president and head of the Gridley Dairy Company of Milwaukee; S. O. Dungan, secretary-treasurer of the Polk Sanitary Milk Company of Indianapolis, and a group of directors including John Bingham of the Ottawa Dairy Company of Ottawa, Can; Edward M. Bailey of the McJunkin-Straight Dairy Company of Pittsburgh; Thomas B. Harbison of the Harbison Dairies, Philadelphia; C. E. Potter of the City Dairy Company, Toronto, Can.; Charles M. Schmager of the Alamito Sanitary Dairy Company of Omaha; Isaac Van Bornel of the Sheffield Farms and the Slawson-Decker Dairy Company of New York City.

The visitors will remain in San Diego until Tuesday afternoon and will return to this city in time to take in the Mission Play that evening. The following morning they are to leave for San Francisco, stopping at several places en route and arriving in time for the opening session of their convention in the exposition auditorium, Thursday.

Prof. H. E. Van Norman, dean of the University of California farm at Davis, will be the official welcomer. Another distinguished dairy authority who will speak at one of the sessions, is Prof. H. L. Russell, dean of the College of Agriculture at the University of Wisconsin, who is from Madison in that State. He will discuss the best safeguards for the milk supply of a large city.

"The Production of Milk in California on a Large Scale" is the title of the paper which will be read by S. A. W. Carver, the only man from Southern California who is on the official programme. D. M. Dorman and Frank Nazro are among the Los Angeles committeemen who are assisting in the local entertainment and will go to San Diego and possibly San Francisco.

RESERVATION FIGURES.

Commissioner of the General Land Office Announces Ruling for Reservoir Acreages.

The Commissioner of the General Land Office at Washington has modified the rules regulating rights of way over public lands and reservations along lines that will be of general interest.

The new rules provide that no reservations will be made for a reservoir of less than 250,000 gallons capacity, and for a reservoir of less than 500,000 gallons capacity not more than forty acres can be reserved. For a reservoir of 500,000 gallons and less than 1,000,000 gallons not more than eighty acres will be reserved. For a reservoir of 1,000,000 gallons and less than 1,500,000 gallons capacity not more than 120 acres can be reserved. For a reservoir of 1,500,000 gallons capacity, or more, 160 acres can be reserved.

In cases where the water is furnished live stock by artificial means, such as by windmill, pumps, tanks, troughs, etc., the regulation requiring the minimum of 250,000 gallons capacity will be waived upon the claimant submitting a satisfactory showing that by such artificial means he will be able to furnish sufficient water and provide proper troughs to accommodate all cattle likely to water at the place in question.

Important Notice to Gas Users and the Public!

The Economic Gas Company announces that it is today beginning the delivery of unmixed Natural Gas. As the use of this gas may necessitate a readjustment of gas consuming appliances, gas users may be slightly inconvenienced for a short time pending the necessary adjustments, after which they will enjoy a better quality of gas at a lower price than has heretofore been delivered in Los Angeles.

WARNING!

Gas users are warned that natural gas lacks the pungent, disagreeable odor of the manufactured gas which has heretofore been served, the Natural Gas having a distinctive odor somewhat similar to that of gasoline, hence gas users are particularly cautioned to immediately notify this company, by telephone or otherwise, at the address given above, if they detect any odor which may arise from an escape of gas.

Respectfully,

HAIR IS GRAY; YOU LOOK OLD
Look Young by Darkening Gray Hair With Q-Ban—No Dye—Harmless.
If your hair is gray, faded, wispy, thin, prematurely gray, or streaked with gray, you will look twelve or fifteen years younger if you darken your gray hair by shampooing your hair and scalp a few times with Q-Ban Hair Color Restorer. It is not a dye, but acts on the roots, makes gray hair healthy, turning your gray hair to a beautiful, lustrous, soft, natural dark shade, darkening your gray hair and entire head of hair so evenly that no one need suspect you use Q-Ban. Besides, Q-Ban stops dandruff, itching scalp and falling hair, promotes its growth, makes hair and scalp clean and feel fine, and always darkens gray hair. Try it at our risk. Only 50c for a big 7-oz. bottle at McKay and Monkman's Drug Stores, Bdwy. and Ninth, Pico and Flower, Daly and North Bdwy., Los Angeles. Out-of-town folks supplied by mail. Classified Liners.

AGATE TYPE ONLY.

Accepted subject to the following rates and rules: The rate for inserting Want Ads in the Daily Times is 1c per word each insertion; in Sunday issue 1½ c per word each insertion. Minimum charge applicable is a single insertion [illegible] each non-consecutive insertion, 25c. The rate for the following classifications [illegible] 2c per word daily, 2½c per word Sunday, [illegible] charge applicable to a single insertion [illegible] each non-consecutive insertion, 30c daily; [illegible] "Society Meetings," "Church Notices," "Personals," "Business," "Bonds," "Money to Loan," "Salary and [illegible]," "Clairvoyants," "Medical," "Detectives," and "Baths and Massage."

An extra charge of 25 per cent. is made for [illegible] capital letters.

[illegible] space for classified advertisements ordered more than one insertion, 14 words.

[illegible] figures and dashes are charged for on the basis of [illegible] words to a line.

[illegible] are counted strictly by the word.

[illegible] paragraphed or lined-up matter set in caps, [illegible] (6) average words to a line. Not [illegible] estimate five (5) average words to the line and eight (8) average words to the line [illegible]. In this kind of advertising the [illegible] number of words set solid is counted, and [illegible] words added for each unfilled line.

The Times reserves the right to classify all advertisements under appropriate headings.

The Times cannot guarantee accuracy or assume responsibility for errors of any kind occurring in telephoned advertisements.

The Times will not be responsible for more than one incorrect insertion of any advertisement ordered for more than one time.

Errors not the fault of the advertiser which clearly lessen the value of an advertisement will be rectified only by republication, without extra charge, on presentation of receipt, within five days after insertion. No allowance will be made where errors do not materially affect the value of the advertisement.

No adjustment will be made for advertising items not affected by an error or errors which may occur in other items in the same advertisement. Advertisers should retain receipts given by The Times for payment for "liners," as no mistake can be rectified without them.

The Times will not accept phone or verbal orders to discontinue or change "till forbid" advertisements.

Telephoned orders to discontinue advertising in The Times are numbered in the order of their receipt, and in each instance the number of the order is given to the advertiser, who should make a note thereof. In case of dispute no charge for advertising will be rebated unless the "stop order" number is presented to The Times by the advertiser.

Sunday real estate advertisements, to be classified properly, must be in The Times office before [illegible] Saturday night. Other classified "Wants," "To Lets," etc., received over counter or by telephone until 11 p.m. Saturday. Ads. received after above hours for each division will be inserted under heading "Too Late to Classify." Rate 1½c per word.

The Sunday circulation of The Times exceeds [illegible] copies, and more "liners" are regularly printed in its columns than in the five other Los Angeles newspapers combined.

Telephone your want advertisements. Ring up "The Times," Main 8200; Home 10391, any time of day or night, and secure prompt and careful service.

"BE QUICK TO KICK IF THINGS SEEM WRONG, BUT KICK TO US AND MAKE IT STRONG."

INSTANT SERVICE FOR TIMES PATRONS.

For the convenience of persons who may desire to reply to classified advertisements printed in The Times, and communications to this newspaper and "liner" and other advertisements inserted, Times letter boxes have been placed in various downtown buildings for the purpose indicated.

Collections will be made from these boxes every [illegible]

Each piece of advertising copy must contain the name and address of the advertiser, number of insertions and heading under which it is desired that the announcement be printed.

PROF. C. IRVIN ALTHOUSE,

NOTED ASTROLOGER AND PALMIST OF NATIONAL FAME AND REPUTATION.

STUDIO PARLORS, 621 S. BROADWAY.
A RESIDENT OF LOS ANGELES 30 YEARS.

PROF. ALTHOUSE is an experienced practitioner in the science of modern ASTROLOGY, by which he has made many REMARKABLE PREDICTIONS. The horoscope shows the powerful influence of the planets in ALL AFFAIRS OF LIFE. It shows diseases, deaths, love and marriage, financial affairs, investments, changes, talents, environment, about children, relatives, when and where to travel, what to seek or avoid, when in danger of losses, troubles, etc., etc., also your good periods coming—GIVING DATES of these events for the FUTURE.

PROF. ALTHOUSE read E. H. Sothern, Nat Goodwin, Schumann-Heink, Gadski, Admiral Schley, David Starr Jordan, ex-Gov. Pardee, ex-Senator Clark, Senator Smoot, Baron Rothschild, Gen. Chaffee, Edison, Sousa, Modjeska, Capt. Hobson, Julia Marlowe, Anna Held, Jefferson, Sembrich, Lillian Russell, Calve, Admiral Evans, H. E. Huntington, etc.

EXPERT PALM READINGS. READINGS BY MAIL.

DR. J. A. LARSON writes, "Your reading was the most satisfactory I ever had in my life. I know a great deal about these sciences, and I consider your work the most THOROUGH and RELIABLE of any reader in the United States."

PROF. ALTHOUSE'S wonderful proficiency in the casting of HOROSCOPES and in HAND readings has brought him a LARGE and SUCCESSFUL PRACTICE. The most private confidences are reposed in him, and his advice is sought in the most difficult and critical circumstances. Personal attention given. STRICT PRIVACY, HIGHEST GRADE OF WORK that skill and many years' experience can produce. HIGH-CLASS PATRONAGE SOLICITED.

Daily and evenings, Sundays 10 to 4.

SCIENTIFIC PSYCHIC READINGS
Given by Adepts
At CALIFORNIA INSTITUTE OF OCCULT SCIENCE,
247 NORTH PACIFIC BOULEVARD,
HUNTINGTON PARK, LOS ANGELES.

"Griffith and Griffin ave." cars pass the door, 5c fare; leave car at Sauson ave.

READ THIS CAREFULLY.

The time has arrived when EVERY ONE SHOULD CONSULT THE TRAINED PSYCHIC OR ASTROLOGER as a matter of course and in the same spirit they would select the exponent of any other profession when their services or advice are required. OUR INSTITUTE has been established to fill this need and give those seeking STRICTLY SCIENTIFIC READINGS an opportunity to do so in confidence and at stated and reasonable fees. We invite all needing advice to CALL AND CONSULT OUR PSYCHIC, she is a true sensitive, highly developed and HER READINGS embrace a full and complete history of PRESENT CONDITIONS and FUTURE HAPPENINGS with sound advice and counsel. OUR ASTROLOGICAL DEPARTMENT is in charge of a competent astrologer. HOROSCOPES CAST—ASTROLOGY TAUGHT.

WE ARE OPEN FOR BUSINESS JULY 4TH AND 5TH ALL DAY, ALSO EVERY DAY THIS WEEK AS USUAL. HOURS: 10 TO 8.

Cut this adv. out for reference, as it will only appear Sunday.

PERSONAL—
MRS. MASSON,
the noted palmist, of London, England, may be consulted at 322 SOUTH SPRING STREET, by those desiring CAREFUL, CONSCIENTIOUS AND SCIENTIFIC HAND READINGS, FROM ONE OF THE FOREMOST PALMISTS OF THE DAY.

The earnest student and thinker will soon learn in his investigations along psychological lines that that which pertains to occult phenomena proper can readily be distinguished from crude and oft-exposed SLEIGHT-OF-HAND TRICKS, the most common of which is the telling of the subject's name, age, etc., AFTER HE HIMSELF HAS WRITTEN THAT information.

PALMISTRY HONESTLY PRACTICED WILL NOT tell your name, but it WILL give you information of considerably greater value in every-day life. Your vocation, your present line of work, matters of health and domestic life, financial conditions and ways and means of climbing out of a rut of ill luck into wide paths of success and prosperity, can all be told you through scientific palmistry, WITHOUT A SINGLE QUESTION, WRITTEN OR VERBAL.

MRS. MASSON DOES NOT APPEAL TO IGNORANT SUPERSTITION, BUT TO THE FINEST INTELLIGENCE.

HIGH-CLASS PATRONAGE SOLICITED.

WANTED—THE BEST! WHY?

Every teacher offers you HIS best. But too often his best is not THE BEST. We hold that a teacher who has worked in the line of what he teaches is worth more as an instructor than one who has spent a few weeks or months under some other teacher, and has had no practical experience.

OUR TEACHERS HAVE HAD MANY YEARS' EXPERIENCE in actual business, as well as in teaching.

You pay the same price at other schools for less than one-fourth the details we teach you here. We are absolutely thorough, omitting nothing essential. We are absolutely practical, omitting the non-essentials. WE GUARANTEE TO GIVE YOU THE BEST. Book-keeping, shorthand, typewriting, penmanship, the English branches, telegraphy and EVERYTHING PERTAINING TO STATION DUTIES—the latter taught nowhere else so thoroughly as we teach it. BELDING-GROMMET MODERN BUSINESS COLLEGE, First and Broadway. Main 3383. THE BEST! Coolest Business College rooms in Los Angeles. Reduced rates until September in commercial department.

Local Naturalists on Coronado Islands.

Cormorants, sea lion herd, and camp scene.

It is a rocky place, as the photographs show, and hard to negotiate, but the explorers made interesting discoveries.

On Rocky Isle.

ODD-HUED SALAMANDER DISCOVERED OFF COAST.

HAVING conducted nocturnal investigations with a searchlight, a party of five motorists has returned to this city from a ten-day tour of the Coronado islands. The naturalists brought back many interesting discoveries, two of which are of particular note. The first is what is supposed to be a new kind of salamander never before seen by any naturalists of this region. The second, a great herd of California sea lions inhabiting the west side of North Island. This herd, they say, is perhaps larger than any on the Coast and is increasing rapidly.

Albert E. Colburn and Dr. I. D. Noakes, members of the Cooper Club, organized the trip, taking with them G. W. Stowe, taxidermist, Harry Hinds and Jack Reese. The object of the expedition was to study the various classes of birds on the islands, their habits and young. To facilitate this study Mr. Colburn took one of the electric headlights of his automobile for use in the night work necessary in a thorough examination.

Deciding upon North Island as a location in which to make their studies, the explorers made arrangements with the Crescent Boat Company of San Diego to keep them alive on that barren and waterless peak.

"We had a very hard time landing," Mr. Colburn said yesterday. "That island is nothing but a great rock sticking out of the water. It is sheer up and down.

"After much searching we discovered a niche just large enough for our tent. On leaving the camp one had to go either up or down. Everything was rock.

"Mr. Stowe volunteered as cook and official photographer of the expedition, and he did wonderfully well in both capacities. As soon as we were settled we started to investigate the island.

"The south end harbors a multitude of Farallone cormorants. The north end is the home of a vast number of pelicans. We spent several days studying the lives and habits of both species. At night we would take our searchlight, to which I had connected dry batteries, and would in this way be able to watch them more closely.

While we were hunting this way one night we came across a colony of salamanders, or peculiar class of lizards. These salamanders were different from those found scattered along the rocky sections of the mainland coast. These latter are reddish brown in color. The salamanders we discovered are a pale salmon. Their heads are broader and they have eyes like black, shiny beads, sticking out of their sockets. I have preserved several in alcohol and will send them to the Smithsonian Institution for identification.

"If we had not had our electric searchlight we never would have discovered these salamanders. Others who have searched the Coronado islands have used candles and lanterns and have therefore missed much that is visible when a high-power light is used.

"We have already had many local naturalists inspect these salamanders, and no one has ever seen anything like them before.

"During our second day on the islands we came across a great herd of California sea lions resting on the west side. Of course it is known that sea lions have been seen about the Coronados, but it was supposed that only a few were there. I believe there are more of these animals there than any place else on the Coast. And they are breeding fast.

"The large number of young sea lions we saw were very tame. It was possible to walk up to them and pet them. At first they would be a little frightened, but after a minute or two would be tame enough to submit to any kind of caress. The cows would sit close by and gaze apathetically while their young were being handled."

Mr. Colburn said his party will probably return soon to investigate South and Middle islands of the same group, although they do not expect to find the animal life there much different from North Island.

CHINESE "NEW" WOMEN CHARM.

Ladies of the Orient Adopt Occidental Ways.

But Native Dignity Stands as a Barrier Yet.

While Little Cantonese Add Color to Our Crowds.

BY LAURA ANNA COTTON.

When some unsuccessful scribbler grumbles "There is nothing new under the sun" it is because he has no eyes with which to see. In Los Angeles there is a lovely woman so "new" that, like Galatea, she stands upon our shores wide-eyed with bewilderment, aglow with joy, wholly charming—the sisterhood of coy little Cantonese. Like bright flowers in our crowded thoroughfares they catch the occidental eye and fancy, quicken the pulse and cause a whirl of complex thoughts.

Gorgeous in shimmering Chinese blue, dull wine red, or silk of purest white — their favorite colors — these trousered bits of woman-folk move modestly, with downcast looks, through a veritable lane of human eyes. For what man, woman or child of us can withstand the fascination of their lithe, round little bodies; their glistening jet-black hair, their lips that speak a language we can rarely learn, their demure-roguish eyes suggesting thoughts we scarcely comprehend?

These paradoxical beings are compounded of the newest and the oldest that the whole world owns, whence come the great and essential factors in their peculiar charm. Out of an ancient seclusion—than which no race has known a greater—these women migrated into the land of greatest feminine freedom, and—gradually in western reckoning, though scarcely the space of a breath to the east—during three generations they have thrown off timidity, inherent through age-old compulsion, and plunged into the complex life of their American sisters.

COSTUMES.

As a result, the curious mental complications through which they must be ceaselessly passing is evidenced, among other things less apparent, by the odd yet quaintly-pleasing combinations of their attire. Native trousers they retain, together with such unconscious modesty as makes many of us wish to shape our apparel—and manners—after theirs. Feet almost too small for mention fit into latest style American shoes. Above the high collar of the split Chinese jacket, black hair coils in native fashion, oiled and secured with gold-jade ornaments—this mostly among the older generation, now—or fluffs into luxuriant braids topped by a huge bow of the hue of the costume. Of hats these "new women" will have none, for which we give devout thanks! The surest way to destroy all charm of the Far East is to grotesque its ancient classic lines with a modern western hat. But they do encase the slim brown hands in gloves.

SUCH EYES.

From oval faces, with dark skin smooth as an ivory statuette, their eyes look out. Such eyes! In every one—when the almond lids forget to droop, and like bursting buds, flutter apart—in every one there sits a tiny Angel and a red little Imp. I know. For I have gazed searchingly into the deep wells of withered grandmothers and into the black orbs—so flush with the face that they are like beans in a pod—of baby girls, and never once did the Red Spark fail to flash back an answer to my challenging smile, an answer not alone friendly, but full of roguery. Yet from girlhood on the Angel tempers all with rays of such pure dignity that, notwithstanding the rich allurement of their very presences, these diminutive women walk abroad free from offensive boldness, the brazenness that too often sets its mark upon each occidental girl whose clothes or bearing bring her into frequent public notice.

WHERE TO SEE THEM.

There you have them; hatless, yet gloved, oriental trousers, occidental boots (boots is used figuratively, for they may be anything from broad-soled college footwear to French-heel laced slippers,) a free stride and unfailing modesty, eyes that attract you—and check you—and laugh at you all the while. This is on the streets. Not only Broadway or Spring street, dodging the thundering traffic as fearlessly as our gymnastic Americans, but in every nook and corner of our foreign-filled city. Especially are they to be found where flowers, brightness or good cheer abound, groups of them and the jewel-bright atoms that are their children in the parks, mothers and daughters much together, young girls strolling through the more attractive residence districts; and, in theaters, concerts, at night on street cars bound on friendly visits, their beaming faces appear side by side with their men escorts—a breaking away from the rigid customs of the East so radical and still so new as to fill them with the delicious consciousness of adventure plainly evidenced by excited manner and sparkling eyes.

NATIVE DIGNITY.

Perhaps you think I came back to the eyes too often. But there is no help for it. If you go to the San Francisco exposition and wander through the orchid room you find yourself instinctively bending nearer every spray of wondrous form and hue to see the mysteries that glow in vivid single or mosaic coloring in the heart of each. Even so it is with the eyes of Chinese women. However, it must not be inferred that a stranger dare approach them familiarly. One trial would convince such a one that in the range of socially-trained Americans no haughty beauty could more effectively rebuke him—silently—than these mask-faced little Celestials. But if some happy accident brings one in touch with them, and they are made to realize that not vulgar curiosity, but a genuine friendly interest in them and in their ways inspires the otherwise impertinent looks and questions, they open like flowers in the sun. And if they speak your language, which is probably the case even if imperfectly—though there is scarcely one chance in 1000 that you speak theirs—they recount with naive pride their race's attainments in American work and play and art, and in the same breath tell the beautiful customs, forms and traditions that have hitherto governed the Chinese people.

Concerning the language an illuminating fact is brought to light in this, that the classes in oriental languages in our western colleges are increasing with incredible rapidity, owing to a growing demand for western training and occidental methods in the new commercialism of the Orient—an enticing and unlimited field for the best of our energetic young men—and women.

MEANINGS OF NAMES.

As with the American Indian, and the early ancestors of all occidentals, most Chinese names have significance, a pretty circumstance that vests individuals with distinctiveness aside from natural characteristics. Birds, flowers, jewels, symbols of abstract virtues or ambitions, also the best and most powerful forces in nature, are favorite sources of supply for names. Thus, one young girl—whose pure English delighted my heart—explained that her name, Ying, bears the double meaning of Eagle or English, an appropriate cognomen, for she seems superior as the royal bird in graces and attainments. "Gum," meaning gold; "Ngun," silver; Yoke," jade-stone; "Sum," heart," are all well-known names for girls; and this same love for the beautiful and symbolical governs their adoption of occidental appelations when they call themselves Rose or Violet, Naomi, Ruth or Esther. The custom carries even into business, one firm of world renown bearing the significant suggestion, in Chinese of course, of "Greater Growth."

A SHOPPING TRIP.

One rainy morning, early, on taking a friend through Chinatown, we

As we see them.

The quaint Chinese girls, women and children of Los Angeles, taking on American ways.

watched some older women at their marketing. Plainly they were homekeepers from very near by, for their graying hair hung unconventionally in braids, and white-stockinged feet slithered along in the old-time heelless slippers. Such critical inspection as our matrons use these gave, causing them to visit many shops before filling the morning needs. From candy jars on the shelves of open corner stalls they bought small objects resembling dried figs and prunes, and dark roots, unsavory-looking to our eyes, but a delicate confection if they were the same root that, crystalized and sweetened, is served in tea houses. From stalls filled with crisp vegetables they selected much as we do. It was when they entered fish markets heaped to overflowing with great variety of fine fresh fish of strikingly brilliant colors that particular native delicacies came under consideration. Squid, with its flabby white bag-like body and eight wriggly feelers, stands in high favor. Ranking it is another member of the cephalopod family, the octopus or devil-fish, though the Chinese, objecting vigorously to such names for their food, call it "swimming-fish." At any rate these long-armed creatures, suction-tubes studding the full four feet of them, hung conspicuously in every market. The meat appears to be of the consistency of an abalone or scallop, and rare flavor is claimed for it, though it is far from beautiful.

IN THE FISH MARKET.

Shops devoted to dried fish and meat presented to our startled gaze what seemed to be an edible museum of natural history. Shrimps were there, from grandparent to babe; and a minnow-sized fish flattened to transparency in the drying—appalling mounds of piscatory ghosts. Said Ariel: "He hath suffered a sea-change into something new and strange." Shade of Neptune! Could that venerable god look in at one of these shops and see what China has wrought upon his bass, his cod, his halibut and all their finny brethren, he would vow they came not out of his sea, but were spawned in the dark chambers of some furrier and reared amid desolating moths. Above these gray and weary-looking fish hung row upon row of dried oysters, and dried abalones — an oriental staple rapidly coming into high favor with American epicures. Its flavor is like nothing else, but once tasted it leaves with the palate forever the haunting wish for more. These in great number swayed pendant like bats in daytime, while beside them, each upon its own string, quantities of "Lop Cheung" dangled its spotted red and white lengths. Lop Cheung — a toothsome word, is it not? — translated means simply pork sausage, of a kind that is put upon a portion of rice till it steams soft, when it is cut into long, slanting slices, very thin, and eaten with the rice—unusually delicious, according to the verdict of these celestial matrons. Dried crab legs we could understand, perhaps, but when one merchant presented a jar of sea-horses credulity as to their food value ceased! And rightly, for, though food shops keep them, they are used for making pictures and decorations only.

SONG AND PIANO.

Chinese women are taking up the study of singing and the piano with astonishing eagerness and success. Doubtless it is astonishing only to us, for those few westerners who make

BUILDING RUSH AND REALTY STIR IN IMPERIAL VALLEY.

Rich Region Bustles with Business Activity as Founder of Two Cities Adds Heavily to Extensive Holdings. Quake is Only an Incident.

A BUILDING BOOM has been begun in Imperial Valley that has almost effaced even the memory of the recent earthquake, which is now considered only an incident. Reconstruction was started last week and now almost every city in the valley has adopted new building regulations. That means that the Imperial Valley of the future will have not only more but better buildings. At least ten new business buildings will be built in addition to replacing those destroyed or damaged.

The Holton Power Company will spend ten times as much money in new buildings and construction as the earthquake repair bill will be. W. F. Holt, president of the company, yesterday added to his personal holdings of business property in El Centro and is understood to be negotiating on behalf of himself and others for other valley property. These activities in the southern end of the valley, where the shocks were most severe, will be matched by extension of development of urban and agricultural property in the north end. Brawley, Calipatria and Niland will have many new buildings next winter and each of those cities will have to prepare for the increasing population that the greater development of the surrounding farmlands will bring.

F. Holt, founder of El Centro Holtville, said yesterday that Im- Valley has not been seriously by the earthquake. Imperial Valley needs no prop. Its doubtful or experimental stages, if they ever existed, have passed long ago. To be entirely frank I bought the property because I believe it will soon be worth very much more. I expect to make money on the transaction."

PROPHECY FULFILLED.

When Mr. Holt first became interested in Imperial Valley twelve years ago he was convinced that, aided by the matchless fertility of its soil, warm climate and abundant water supply, the valley would some day become a garden spot of great productivity and enormously rich.

He predicted in detail how many people would be living in the valley in 1915, how much they would be producing, how the cities would grow and the various activities of a prosperous community extend. Only the few believed all that he foretold, but the facts in each case are just a little bigger than the prophecies, extravagant though they seemed at that time.

Mr. Holt now declares his belief that the valley will grow much more rapidly in the next ten years than in the past. He says the cities will be twice as large as will the rural population. "The valley, even now," he says, "is only in its infancy. Farmers are mostly confining themselves to staple products and only skimming the surface of their possibilities. Imperial Valley will continue to grow as its vast resources are developed.

"The actual damage by the earthquake was really insignificant. Whatever uneasiness has been caused is temporary and will pass off and be forgotten in the next few months. Business conditions are good in the valley. The Holton Power Company's business is better this year than ever before. Every department shows a big gain over any previous year."

BETTER BUILDINGS NOW.

The earthquake is now accepted as having been an agent of some good. No lives were lost on the American side of the line and the material damage was distributed over a large number of proprietors. The great service of the quake was to expose the shoddy construction of some buildings in the valley, while the period of the cities' greatest growth is a matter of the future rather than of history. The experience of the valley in that respect was no different from that of other fast-growing communities, where early buildings are of flimsy construction. In the valley, earthquakes were not feared, nor storms of rain, hail or snow. A roof to give shade from the sun was the main requirement. But the earthquake brought a lesson.

In what good spirit the people of the valley accepted it is now well known. They began clearing the debris away the next morning and where rebuilding could be started, it was done and in the face of the threats carried by recurrent temblors. The sincerity of the valley people in their desire to take advantage of what the shocks taught, was manifest in their action in coming to Los Angeles to secure qualified and disinterested persons to inspect damaged buildings and direct their repairs. These men ordered some walls, which appeared safe to the layman, to be torn down. Some buildings they ordered razed entirely. But if complaint from the owners was expected through such action, the expectation was not fulfilled.

INSPECTION COMMISSION.

Calexico took the lead in securing the Inspection Commission. She secured Architect George E. Bergstrom, a member of the Los Angeles housing commission, Albert C. Martin, an architect and engineer, who helped frame Los Angeles' building ordinances and J. A. Crook, a contractor in Los Angeles. After making recommendations relative to rebuilding in Calexico, they were retained by El Centro for a similar inspection. In their recommendation to the City Trustees of Calexico they said:

"We find the greatest part of the damage was due to faulty methods of construction. The lack of proper anchoring of floor and ceiling joists to roof rafters to the masonry, the lack of proper bonding of masonry, the lack of bonding iron or steel in the masonry over the openings and at the corners, and the poor quality of the mortar, combined with a failure to keep the masonry material wet until the mortar had set, were responsible for at least ninety per cent. of the damage done by the earthquake.

"We earnestly recommend that you frame a simple building ordinance for your city, embodying therein a few standards of building materials and methods of construcion and follow this up with an honest inspection of the buildings built under this ordinance. If this ordinance be kept simple, but ample enough to cover the ordinary materials and problems of construction, and the inspection be strict, we can assure you that you need never fear another earthquake like the present one, unless the quakes be far more violent. Use good cement in the lime mortar, wet the masonry and keep it wet, bond the masonry, anchor the walls together, anchor the floors, ceilings, roofs and partitions through masonry.

"These are construction points to be covered in your new ordinance. Cover in your ordinance, a few simple fire preventive methods. You can then go forward to build up your city, feeling that you have insured good, safe construction and a reasonable insurance against a general fire loss."

It is probable that the valley towns that have no building ordinances along the line recommended will adopt the suggestions made by the commission, and insure a more solid and substantial construction.

ERECTING MANY BUILDINGS.

Not only has the earthquake given an impetus to building because of repairs, but several projected buildings will be put up immediately. One such, is that for Varney Brothers, on the main street in El Centro. Four storerooms, having a frontage of 100 feet, are being torn down for a new one-story mercantile building to take their place.

Other buildings that will probably be hurried along as a result of the shake, are the projected County Court House and Jail. The jail is admittedly inadequate and agitations for a new structure have sprung up several times, but to no effect. The south wall has now been weakened to such an extent that repairs will probably be of only a temporary nature. Supervisor Arthur Shepard has taken the lead for a new $35,000 jail and is also advocating the issuance of bonds to build a $150,000 courthouse. The present structure is considered almost an eyesore and being of frame construction, would be swept up in a few minutes by fire. The recorder's vault was cracked by the earthquake and had fire followed, Mr. Shepard says, the records of the county would have been lost.

EL CENTRO LOSSES.

The largest single loss was that of the Delta Mercantile Company, whose Miles S. Gregory, former City Councilman, and at present a member of the Annexation Commission, is slated to be the next City Treasurer, succeeding Capt. C. H. Hance.

This announcement was made at the City Hall yesterday as Mayor-elect Sebastian was taking his oath of office. The Mayor-elect would neither deny nor confirm the report that he will ask City Treasurer Hance to resign.

It is understood, however, that the City Treasurer will tender his resignation along with the resignations of other officials who hold appointment at the pleasure of the Mayor. His term, however, extends to January 1.

Mr. Gregory was at the City Hall yesterday when the Mayor-elect was sworn in, but would not discuss the proposed appointment. It is understood, on good authority, that he has accepted the offer in the event there is a vacancy.

City Treasurer Hance would not announce his intentions yesterday and declined to say whether he is preparing to quit the city service.

Another announcement that will set at rest considerable speculation was made by Mayor-elect Sebastian himself. He stated that Chief Eley will remain at the head of the fire de-

Prosperity.

MINING IN THE SOUTHWEST HAS GRATIFYING REVIVAL.

Prices of Copper, Lead and Zinc Vaulting, and Los Angeles Stands to Reap a Rich Harvest—May be Made a Smelting Center.

BY OLIVE GRAY, the Woman Miner.

COPPER HAS NEARLY DOUBLED in price within the past year. Lead is worth more than twice as much as it was nine months ago. The market value of zinc has been multiplied by from five to six or more.

Is it any wonder that mines producing these metals are almost feverishly worked, and prospects promising them eagerly sought? Zealots in the production of these and some other metals greatly in demand are prone to estimate gold as a mere by-product. And yet, the staple yellow metal has by no means diminished in value. On the contrary, more actual coin is needed than in many years, since it must fill the vacuum created some months ago by the lack of financial confidence, and must continue to do its share in the arts and industries. And there's a tremendous revival in mining in the Great Southwest.

The war in Europe has played a double part in the stimulation of mining in the United States. It has cut off supplies of metal heretofore provided for us by the warring countries and it has created a demand for those metals used in warfare.

The world's production of copper in 1913 was 2,198,732,130 pounds. Of this amount, the United States produced 1,224,484,098 pounds, or more than half of the grand total. The value was $198,795,035—about 15 cents per pound.

The world's production of zinc was 1,093,635 short tons, the United States leading all other countries with 312,075 short tons or about one-third of the world's production. The value was about $27,772,224, or $11 per ton.

Lead has gone from $3.80 to $7 in a few months, and spelter—which is the trade name for zinc—from $100 to $500 per ton. To be more specific, lead which in October last was 3.6 cents per pound, is now 7.25 cents, and zinc, which was at that time 4.53 cents is now 26 cents. Copper has, during the same period, gone in price from 11.4 to 20.5 cents per pound.

WHY THE ADVANCE.

The depression which came after the opening of the European war, owing to the obliteration of industrial demands, has been more than covered by the increase in the call for these metals in the making of ammunition and machinery of warfare. Then, too, metals which we have usually received from foreign countries we have been obliged to supply for ourselves. Thus the war is teaching us self-reliance in many fields. Antimony, used in the manufacture of bullets, has increased in price from 7 cents per pound to 36 cents. Even tin has felt the impetus toward higher prices and has gone from 30 to 42 1-2 cents per pound. Long Beach now has an antimony smelter in operation. California producing the bulk of antimony in the United States. Formerly we imported this metal from Austria, but the closing of Austrian mines has thrown us upon our own resources.

In Southwestern Nevada, where recent developments in lead, zinc and platinum have rather overshadowed the interest in gold, the summer promises something verging upon the sensational. The Platina, or Yellow Pine District, located in the southern triangle of Nevada, west of the station of Jean on the Salt Lake railroad, covers the Spring Mountain Range for an area of about twenty miles and in some of the mines of the locality, sensational values in lead, zinc and platinum have been found. The discoveries in the Boss Mine of this district were of sufficient importance to justify a special United States Geological report, dated last April 12, and entitled "A Gold-Platinum-Palladium Lode in Southern Nevada." A single ton of ore from the Boss Mine has run up to $23,200 per ton. This was, of course, from an especially rich shoot, said to run 570 ounces in gold, 230 ounces in platinum and 30 ounces in palladium. Several mines in this district run high in zinc, which at present prices and with the increasing demand, is as welcome to mine owners as gold and more so than silver. The Green Monster, the Potosi, the Azalia and many others in this locality are producing more or less sensational values in zinc, gold and copper. The Azalia is owned and operated by a group of Los Angeles capitalists headed by S. E. Vermilyea. Recent carload shipments from the Azalia returned value of $2000 net per ton in zinc and platinum.

The Potosi is an old Mormon camp, worked during the days of silver's supremacy. The Whale, the Mobile, the Addison, the Yellow Pine and the Keystone are other producers of the Platina district, there being somewhere in the vicinity of twenty-five producers in the district. Los Angeles capital is doing much of the development in this district and most of the supplies for the work are being drawn from Los Angeles.

The district has reached the stage where controversy is rife as to the best route for a branch railroad from the main line and the most advantageous site for the principal town, Platina lying ready for the prize. The name comes from the Spanish word "plata" meaning silver, which metal platinum closely resembles in appearance, although valued at more than 100 times as much as that metal. Platinum is largely used in the manufacture of jewelry. It is usually accompanied with iridium, in its natural state, which metal is utilized in making pen points.

The lead and zinc mine owners of Nevada and Utah have recently moved toward forming an association to promote the interests of the industry.

ARIZONA BUSY.

Arizona, which is a huge storehouse of mineral treasures, is enjoying an era of important development under the revival of the market for its principal ores, copper, lead and zinc. Los Angeles capital is interested in most of the principal districts here and there is opportunity for untold benefits to our city, not only in the way of the actual mining, but in the marketing of supplies and even in the treatment of ores, which could well be accomplished here, instead of in remote localities.

Miami is an important mining center, the Inspiration Copper Company at that point having a new concentration plant of a capacity of 10,000 tons per day, while the New Cornelia, near Ajo, under Calumet and Arizona ownership will, during the year, begin producing on a large scale.

Ray Copper, a good dividend payer, is owned in Los Angeles, as is also the Pilgrim Mine, near Chloride.

There is much new activity in the vicinity of Kingman and many new properties are under development. Among the Angelenos there none is more enthusiastic than Vin Fortune, who is planning to add new emphasis to his family name by means of holdings in that locality.

The Tom Reed Mine, passing through many vicissitudes, in its early days when Pasadena capital was launched and lost in the enterprise, has long been known as a big producer. This mine has produced, to date, over $500,000,000 in gold on an average of $40 ore, with a prospect of continuing its career at the same pace indefinitely. Investors in this property have received $2.49 for every $1 put in. The Tom Reed is well equipped and its camp-town Oatman, has several hundred inhabitants and is possessed of electric lights, running

ELKS' WESTWARD MARCH ON TODAY IN EARNEST.

Greatest Gathering of Humanity this City has Seen Due Soon—First Arrivals Tuesday—Hotels of Neighboring Places to Take Overflow—Elaborate Arrangements Made for Entertaining the Host.

TODAY the stream of Elks will begin to move westward in earnest. In distant eastern States long specials filled to capacity are pulling out of the depots for their journey across the continent to Los Angeles for the great convention from July 11 to 17. A few of the trains are already well on their way and the Black Hills and Deadwood lodges of South Dakota are going to arrive here almost a week in advance of actual business sessions of the Grand Lodge. They even precede the Grand Lodge officers, reaching here over the Salt Lake Wednesday afternoon.

And every day of the week will see more special trains under way, all lines converging at this great central point, where the estimated number of travelers can barely be stated. The delegates, their relatives and friends, according to close observation and calculation by local officials, will number from 60,000 to 75,000. In addition, there will be many other visitors attracted by the lower railroad rates.

The Elks will come in twenty special trains and, in addition, fifty special-car parties on regular trains. The railroads also plan to run their limited trains in two or three sections, to adequately care for the rush.

The special train and car arrivals for the three days, Saturday, Sunday and Monday, will set up a new record for the Pacific Coast, even exceeding the cross-country movement for the big Shrine gathering in Seattle this month. Incidentally much of the Shrine traffic will move by this city.

The greatest concourse of human beings ever brought to this city is scheduled and the local hotels have made every preparation to receive them. Most of the houses are booked to capacity in the downtown district and in the outlying districts, the smaller hotels and the apartment-houses are being scheduled to take care of the overflow. Even the Pasadena and the beach hotels have been called upon to take care of the visitors and large delegations will travel from these places to Los Angeles daily in special electric trains.

The Saturday special-train arrivals, with time, if known, and road, follow: El Paso delegates, 3 p.m., Southern Pacific; Salt Lake City and Idaho, 5:30 p.m., Salt Lake; Greater New York, 6:30 p.m., Santa Fe; Boston, 9:10 p.m. Salt Lake.

The following specials will arrive Sunday, all in the afternoon or evening: Indiana-Cincinnati, Jersey City, Michigan, Omaha-South Dakota, Montana and Denver delegates, the last at 9 p.m., over Salt Lake; while the Santa Fe will handle the Kansas City and the New Jersey delegations in two special trains.

The following specials are due Monday: Minneapolis-Southeastern Kansas-Pittsburgh, two trains, 6:30 a.m., Salt Lake; Chicago, 7 a.m., Salt Lake; Colorado State, Salt Lake; New England, 7 a.m., Santa Fe; Hartford, 7 a.m., Santa Fe, and New Orleans, 11 a.m., Southern Pacific.

In one or two cases the specials will come to this city from San Diego; in practically every case the trains will be held here for trips to San Francisco following the big convention.

SOME DELEGATIONS.

New York Lodge No. 1, the parent of the present order, will send a large delegation in its special train.

Watertown, S. D., and Omaha, Neb., have combined forces and are bringing along a band. Denver lodge sends a special train, Cook's famous band of sixty musicians and the popular Denver Elks' drum corps, all the drummers being members of the order.

Salt Lake alone is sending a three-section train with an escort of 400 high school cadets and the cadet band. Other Utah lodges are uniting in a special train.

From the first Grand Exalted Ruler of the Elks, one of the founders of the order, to the present officers, there will be a mighty representation. And among the visitors there will be statesmen, Governors and men of high rank from every walk in life. The national officers, who are expect-

James R. Nicholson,

Springfield, Mass., chairman of the Board of Trustees of the Grand Lodge of Elks, and most prominently mentioned as the next Grand Exalted Ruler of the order. Mr. Nicholson is expected in Los Angeles early this week.

Elks' Westward March.

ed here by Thursday, and who will be among the last to leave, include Grand Exalted Ruler Raymond Benjamin of Napa, Grand Esteemed Leading Knight Lloyd R. Maxwell of Marshaltown, Iowa; Grand Esteemed Loyal Knight E. M. Dickerman of Tucson, Grand Esteemed Lecturing Knight W. F. Schad of Milwaukee, Grand Secretary Fred C. Robinson of Dubuque, Iowa; Grand Treasurer Charles A. White of Chicago, Grand Tiler B. F. Koperlik of Pueblo, Colo.; Grand Inner Guard C. E. Donahue of New London, Ct.

NEXT EXALTED RULER?

James R. Nicholson of Springfield, Mass., chairman of the Board of Grand Trustees, is being mentioned frequently as the next Grand Exalted Ruler. On this same board are Harry L. Applegate of Owensboro, Ky., and Calvin L. Kingsley of Waterloo, Iowa. August Herrmann, who is chairman of the New Elks' Home Committee, will come from Cincinnati, and John P. Sullivan, on the same committee, will arrive from New Orleans.

The man who is in charge of all the parades, as far as the Elks are concerned, is Grand Esquire George D. Locke of Rogers, Ark., who is assisted by a group of experts. James L. Irwin of this city has been appointed chief of staff, and has named these division marshals: Bert Logan, Ingall W. Bull, George Cline, R. H. Hilf, Carl Walker and D. J. O'Leary.

Henry L. Kennon is Chief Justice of the Grand Forum and the Grand Chaplain is John Dysart of Dubuque. Edward Rightor is chairman of the Committee on Judiciary and Thomas M. Hunter of Denver is chairman of the Auditing Committee.

One man who will have his hands full during the first two or three days of the meeting is Robert J. Lawler of Niagara Falls, chairman of the Committee on Credentials. He will be located with all the registration officials in ample quarters in the Pacific Electric Building, no hotel lobby being spacious enough to permit of handling the crowds.

Taking an active part in the arrangements for the reunion is one of the few remaining charter members of Los Angeles Lodge No. 99, and the first Exalted Ruler of that body, Theodore Summerland, now a resident of Calistoga, and a frequent visitor to the city, who is here and is giving the Elks' Executive Committee the benefit of his advice.

No detail has been overlooked to make the sojourn of these visitors surpass in attractions and pleasures that of four years ago, as well as those sojourns made in other cities of the country. Los Angeles Elks have been working day and night to complete their preparations.

THE COMMITTEES.

All this work has been left with various committees which are governed through the Executive Committee, chairman of which is L. L. Brodeen, Past Exalted Ruler; Vice-Chairman M. F. Shannon, present Exalted Ruler of Lodge No. 99; Director-General, Motley H. Flint, and Secretary, Norman H. Martin. Other members of this committee are Guy B. Barham, Joseph Boylson, William M. Beamish, Harry J. Brown, Frank Bryson, Louis Cole, E. H. Crippen, Thomas J. Darmody, B. H. Dyas, H. W. Frank, A. F. Frankenstein, George Goldsmith, Dr. Ralph Hagan, M. A. Hamburger, E. B. Lovie, Harry Harrington, Marco Hellman, John F. Howard, John Luckenbach, Edward R. Maier, Robert Marsh, G. A. Melsing, John G. Mott, Tobias Newman, C. G. Pyle, Edward A. Regan, Burt L. Roberts, W. G. Salter, M. F. Shannon, Robert Wankowski and Leo V. Youngworth.

Associate members are all chosen from out of town and on the list are J. W. Lawson of Glendale; Walter J. Desmond, Long Beach; Harry M. Sears, Pasadena; Frank Smith, Pomona; C. A. Rolfe, Redlands; Herman C. Schmidt, Riverside; E. A. Hamm, Whittier; B. W. Campton, San Bernardino; M. M. Moulton, San Diego; Ray L. Chesebro, San Pedro; W. F. Menton, Santa Ana, and E. F. Heiderman, Santa Monica.

Subcommittees are numerous. First on the list are the reception committees, headed by that for taking care of the Grand Lodge officers. John G. Mott is chairman of this and will be assisted by I. B. Dockweiler, M. K. Young, William J. Hanlon and L. P. Tappeiner. Thomas J. Darmody is chairman of the committee to look after delegates and will be assisted by W. E. Fleming, Milton K. Young, Will Stephens, M. J. McGarry, E. B. Drake, M. C. Alder, W. H. Berry, H. J. Burns, W. H. Clune, I. B. Dockweiler, H. W. Frank, W. H. Stimson, P. J. McCormick and E. B. Tufts. The committee for receiving the ladies is headed by a bachelor Elk, Edward A. Regan, and the majority of those on the committee are bachelors. The list includes W. G. Salter, Clarence Smith, Wallace Rimpay, J. H. Birnbaum, E. Van Horn, Bert S. Campbell, H. S. Jones, F. M. Hauser, E. E. Vestal, I. Wentworth, Olin Wellborn, Jr., H. L. Rosenberg, F. H. Latterner, A. W. Cleaver, Fred Usher, James Gysin, F. A. Stevens and R. C. Richert.

As soon as special trains arrive within the charmed circle of Southern California the travelers will be showered with the bounties of various communities. Fruits and flowers will be sent aboard from Riverside, Redlands, San Bernardino, Colton, Pomona and Santa Barbara.

Those who arrive in the morning, after being taken to their respective hotels, escorted by bands, the White Squadron and committees, will then have the privilege of enjoying the afternoon in rides around Los Angeles. Many machines have been chartered and these will start at Central Park throughout the day. The first official service of any kind will be that at Christ Episcopal Church, Twelfth and Flower streets, at 8 o'clock Sunday evening, when Grand Chaplain of the Elks John Dysart of Dubuque will speak.

FORMAL SESSIONS.

Monday morning at 10 o'clock the Grand Lodge will convene, Exalted Ruler M. F. Shannon of the local lodge presiding, at Trinity Auditorium, where all the business sessions are to be held. After the invocation by Grand Chaplain Dysart, Edward A. Regan, Past Exalter Ruler of No. 99, will welcome the guests on behalf of the Executive Committee, Gov. Johnson or his representative for the State, Mayor Sebastian for the city and John G. Mott for the Elks of Southern California.

In response, Grand Exalted Ruler Benjamin will speak briefly and take over the gavel for the remainder of the session. The musical programme on this occasion will also be memorable; the pipe organ, several bands and noted vocalists are to be heard. Among these will be the local Elks' own protege, Earl Houk, the blind baritone, who will render for the first time "When the California Poppies Bloom," written for the occasion by Mrs. Tobias Newman, wife of the publisher of the Pacific Elk.

During this opening session those not attending will be guests of the Pasadena and Glendale lodges in auto rides, band concerts and luncheons. At 2 o'clock in the afternoon they will all assemble at the Stadium to witness the "Pageant of the Southwest," depicting many incidents of the discovery and development of California down to the present day. Methods of making motion pictures will also be shown. This performance will be repeated on Tuesday.

The second day has been designated as Santa Monica Day for all not attending the Grand Lodge. All of the bay district will unite in entertaining at clambakes, fish barbecues, visits to Inceville and auto trips to the National Soldiers' Home at Sawtelle. A magnificent fireworks display will be presented at Venice in the evening, and for those remaining or returning to Los Angeles the electrical pageant will be given.

Wednesday morning will witness the massed band and floral parade. Hundreds of entries have been received by the 1915 Committee for the decorated vehicle section and every community in Los Angeles county, in addition to several outside the county, will be represented. Prizes running into the thousands will be given the winners. The afternoon will find the visitors at Selig's Zoo, where the drill teams at 3 o'clock will carry out the annual competitive maneuvers for prizes. They will later banquet at the Elks' Club.

Olive street will be the scene of a mammoth open-air tango party. It will be carefully washed and scrubbed from Seventh to Eleventh streets, covered with cornmeal and six brass bands will furnish music for the dances. Novel dancing features will be introduced as special numbers during the course of the evening.

The magnificent uniformed Elks' parade, considered by many the big feature of the week, is scheduled for Thursday morning. From 20,000 to 25,000 Elks are expected to appear in uniform and march through the downtown section of the city. In the afternoon the final and most important session of the Grand Lodge is to be held. At that time officers for the ensuing year will be chosen.

While this work is going on the visiting ladies will be tendered a reception by the ladies of the Los Angeles Elks at the Alexandria from 2:30 to 5 o'clock. Those not engaged by either event will be guests of honor at the Bostock arena and jungle, where a long programme of fine animal acts is scheduled. It will be repeated in the evening for those unable to come in the afternoon and those who have already seen the electrical pageant, which will again pass through the streets.

Friday there will be a varied programme for the visitors. Special trains and steamers have been chartered to take a majority of the Elks to San Diego, where they will visit the fair. Exposition officials and Lodge No. 168 have arranged an elaborate programme of events, including a drill and marching exhibition on the wonderful plaza at the exposition. Those who do not care to travel southward will find plenty of amusement at Long Beach. Through arrangements made by Lodge No. 888 of that place, several battleships will be anchored in the roadway and be open for visitors. Then, too, there will be boat races, swimming contests and band concerts. The day will conclude with the annual grand ball, which will be staged in Shrine Auditorium and which will be only for those holding coupons.

Redondo and Balboa will claim the honors of entertainment on Saturday for those who are not hurrying on to San Francisco or to San Diego, or are not going directly back East. Aquatic sports of all kind, barbecues, concerts and all amusement concessions will be turned over to those who make the trip.

Sunday, the 18th, has been designated as census day by the local Elks. Count of casualties will be taken in order to discover how serious has been the visit of the host.

There are dozens of subcommittees who will be in charge of minor affairs scheduled for the breathing spaces allotted to various days. If anything at all has been overlooked, or for that matter anyone not drafted for some duty or other during the period, the officials here would like to be informed in the next two days, before the arrival of the first large delegation.

Then and now together.

Theodore Summerland (left,) who was the first Exalted Ruler of Los Angeles Lodge, No. 99, B.P.O.E., on its organization in 1888, and M. F. Shannon the present Exalted Ruler.

FIERY EXPLOSION IN CITY JAIL.

HOT IRON DROPPED IN CAN OF GASOLINE—FOUR MEN INJURED.

The dropping of a hot iron into a can of gasoline in the City Jail yesterday morning caused a terrific explosion and sent four prisoners to the Receiving Hospital to be treated for serious injuries about the face and body. They are James Robinson, Charles White, Fred Baker and George McFee.

Robinson, who is serving a term of thirty days, is a tailor and he told Jailer Shand yesterday morning if he could have the freedom of the prison corridors he would press and clean the clothes of the jail attaches and others. The proposition was accepted and Robinson put an iron on the stove. When it was almost flaming hot he secured a gallon of gasoline which is often used in a dry cleaning process and put the iron in it.

He always had better success in his own shop with warm gasoline and having heated it with an iron instead of taking a chance with placing it on a stove he was unprepared for what happened. With White, Baker and McFee standing near watching the operation, the fiery explosion came. The gasoline sputtered and then spread over a large area of the jail. Only the prisoners locked in cells escaped the burning fluid.

Robinson was the most seriously injured. He was burned about the face, hands and body and there is some question as to whether he will recover. With his three companions he was removed to the hospital for emergency treatment. Later in the day Robinson was taken to the County Hospital.

The explosion shook the very foundation of Central Police Station and was felt for several blocks.

Miles S. Gregory,

Slated to be the next City Treasurer of Los Angeles.

DEATH OF "FORTY-NINER."

Funeral Services At Rivera This Afternoon for Mrs. J. H. Burke, Pioneer Woman of California.

Funeral services will be held over the body of Mrs. J. H. Burke, a California pioneer, who died Friday, at the age of 81 years, at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon, at the Burke home in Rivera. She will be buried by the side of her husband in the Whittier cemetery. He died six years ago.

Mrs. Burke, who belonged to the fast dwindling class of "Forty-niners," having arrived in that year in Sacramento, is survived by four children: Frank and Osburn Burke, Mrs. Kizzie White and Mrs. Eulla Shade.

Mrs. Burke was the daughter of Capt. Asa Hunt, a prominent citizen of Los Angeles in the early days. She was married in Los Angeles more than sixty years ago and was the mother of eight children.

The trip to California was made by Mrs. Burke in an ox team across the plains. Her duty was to drive a herd of milch cows. After arriving at gold mines, near Sacramento, the family sold milk to the miners at $1 a pint.

To Handle City Money.

partment. An effort to oust him has fallen flat, it is understood, for the new executive has made up his mind to continue him in service.

"He has been efficient, hasn't he?" queried the Mayor-elect. "What more can I ask?"

It is reported that there will be a change in the Fire Commission and that, while Commissioner Frankenstein will remain, the resignation of Commissioner Yates will be accepted. There is a report that C. C. Colyear or Max Meyberg may be appointed in the place of Mr. Yates. It is customary for members of the Police and Fire commissions to tender their resignations to the incoming Mayor.

The Mayor-elect announced yesterday that Rev. Glen MacWilliams will be his private secretary, succeeding George P. Reuter in that capacity. Rev. Mr. MacWilliams was one of the most active supporters of the new executive in the recent campaign, is an orator and worker of wide repute and has been recommended for the position by many of the most prominent men in Southern California.

A steady campaign has been waged by friends of Erle M. Weight, a newspaper man, for the position, and the Mayor-elect has received high commendation of him, but it is understood that Mr. Weight made no personal application for the position, nor did he participate in the campaign for his appointment

Other positions that will be filled as soon as vacancies occur include a place on the Board of Public Works, which is popularly believed to have been assured ex-Mayor Owen McAleer, who was the Sebastian campaign manager in the recent Mayoralty contest.

Mayor-elect Sebastian, it is understood, has selected a man for the position of president of the Harbor Commission to succeed F. T. Woodman, but it is understood that Councilmanic-friends of the Mayor-elect, as well as friends of President Woodman, may make a fight for his retention.

City Prosecutor Williams, it was announced yesterday, is preparing to resign in a few days. H. L. Giesler, a young attorney, is slated for that post. It is understood that Maurice Salzman, an attorney, will go into the Prosecutor's office when Mr. Giesler does. H. A. Chamberlin, Assemblyman from the Seventy-second District, has been mentioned as a possible appointee to one of the deputyships.

TRAIN RUNS OVER ORANGE GROWER.

After writing the address of his wife on a card and directing that she be notified if he became the victim of an accident, G. Claude Lazenby, formerly a wealthy merchant of Forest Home, Ala., jumped in front of a Salt Lake passenger train near East First street at 10:30 o'clock yesterday morning and was ground to pieces. Fred Monkhouse told the police he saw Lazenby deliberately leap between the rails and he is positive the man intended to take his own life.

Lazenby came here recently from Alabama and purchased a valuable orange grove near Riverside. Yesterday morning he told some friends he was going up to spend Sunday on his ranch and would be back Monday. A few minutes later his body was removed to a morgue.

Oscar B. Smiht of room 312, O. T. Johnson Building, said he knew Lazenby well, having had business relations with him, and he could hardly believe that the man had deliberately committed suicide. The man leaves a widow and several children in Greenville, Ala. He was 38 years old. The body will be shipped to his former home for burial.

As practically business building was damaged, less than a thousand dollars are among many owners.

Some residences were com demolished and others so that the repairs will cost one thousands. Mr. Harris says the to residences is $75,000; the dama stocks $50,000 and the single plate glass, $10,000.

The official inspection com in Calexico made no estimates of age other than the informal $100,000 to business structures. members were shown all the properties and one member stated at a trustees session that sought not to hide defects but anxious to show them. In many firewalls, piers and partitions ently only partly damaged, were dered entirely rebuilt.

The grammar school was be a menace to life and the sion recommended that it be ished. The adobe buildings California Development Compa building at the southwest corner First street and Rockwood the creamery building, a trans house and a building at No. 127 avenue were also held unsafe and molition recommended. The Thing Building, the Truax, the co National Bank buildings and Virginia Hotel were among the damaged.

AN AMERICAN MOTHER.

It appears that the mother of the German who has been making the famed Krupp guns was from Philadelphia. We wouldn't be surprised to find a Yankee strain threading a great deal of Europe's present efficiency.

A SPREADING IDEA.

Glendale is to have a fine vacation playground. It is wonderful how this idea has taken hold in America in the last few years, and it is a pleasant fact that Los Angeles leads the world in the number and quality of these delightful institutions.

OUR JUST DESERTS.

Nobody is excited over the fact that Los Angeles schools were awarded the grand prize for their exhibits at the big exposition in San Francisco. The attitude of our people seems to be that it was no more than they deserved and as little as they could expect.

AUTOMOBILE FODDER.

They say that alfalfa gives a wonderful mental stimulus to those who take tinctures made from the hay, and also that the seed, when mixed with olive oil, is fattening. This is not an answer to the problem. Since the horse is no more, the big question is how to administer alfalfa to automobiles in the place of gasoline.

KNOCKOUT FOR JOHN BARLEYCORN.

Since Gen. Nelson A. Miles has refused to sit on the platform of the National Anti-Saloon League with John L. Sullivan the ex-prize fighter has been given the preference in the invitation. It is not that the prohibitionists feel that the strong right arm is mightier than the sword so much as they desire to give the demon rum a knock-out punch.

THE UNEXPRESSED.

A scientist has discovered that children are very likely to be different from their parents, instead of like them, especially in their choice of a life work. This is only natural. Children, as the issue of their parents, usually want to do just what their parents did not. They inherit the desire for such work from all that their parents hoped for yet failed to express for themselves.

BOSTON TO THE REAR.

The schools of Los Angeles city have been awarded the grand prize, the highest honor, in the department of education at the Panama-Pacific Exposition.

Of course books and teachers have played their part in bringing the remarkable distinction to Los Angeles, but our climate—we are strong for the climate in Southern California—has had something to do with it. Here the children are healthy the year round, playing out of doors and storing up energy that enables them to think keenly and quickly and knock the secret out of text-book problems.

NEW YORK'S CRIME PUZZLE.

The life of Charles Becker, former New York Police Lieutenant, now under sentence of death for his alleged complicity in the murder of Herman Rosenthal, a gambler, may be saved by a new confession from one of the three self-convicted accomplices in that ugly plot. One of these self-confessed murderers now contends that he simply swore the lieutenant's life away. Naturally, men who would murder another for a few dollars, exactly as they would do any other day's work, would not hesitate to perjure themselves on either side of any case. An innocent man should not be convicted by them, but neither should a guilty man be given his liberty on mere words. Thus justice in New York is confronted by a muddle.

NEW TOURIST MAP.

The Mayor of Boston, who is now in Los Angeles, and glad of it (just as Los Angeles is glad he is here,) says that nobody will go to Europe for the next five or ten years unless they have business there. It is his opinion that nobody but the undertaker and the grave-diggers care about visiting a cemetery. He is not entirely right. The morbid always follow up scenes of disaster. Europe, however, will not be sought by tourists in large numbers for many years. While California will thus get more travel from the East, our own people will want to do some traveling for themselves, and they will go to Alaska, Australia, and Central and South America. The latter countries will profit greatly by the fact that Europe ceases to be the magnet.

HARD-WON PROSPERITY.

The authenticated statements showing that the total resources of the Los Angeles banks are now $7,184,839 greater than at the first of the year give some indication of the remarkable commercial strength of Southern California. With almost every form of national and State restriction on business, with mills and factories closed and hundreds of thousands of men out of work, there has been scant opportunity for banks to increase their resources. We venture to say that there are very few cities in the United States whose banks will show a proportionate increase. And Los Angeles, viewing that hard-won evidence of prosperity, can realize something of what will happen—something similar to what happened every year during the past decade—when incompetent legislation is revoked and the national policy again becomes America for Americans.

OUR NATAL DAY.

One hundred and thirty-nine years ago today ninety-five men, with whose names the track of American history is luminous, gathered in Independence Hall in Philadelphia and subscribed their names to the immortal document which will be read today from thousands of rostrums from Bangor to Los Angeles and from Duluth to Galveston.

With its mixture of philosophy and passion, of revolution and order, of love of liberty and respect for law, our Declaration of Independence is at once the "Marseillaise Hymn" and the "God Save the King" of our history. Its familiar tones still stir the blood like the blare of the trumpets and inspire Americans to preserve and revere the republic that their sires created.

Who can doubt today that those who framed our government "builded better than they knew"? Who can doubt that the men who proclaimed our Declaration of Independence were—perhaps unconsciously—actuated by a broad philosophy and inspired by a mighty prophecy?

Permeating this protocol and ultimatum of a righteous revolution there breathes a spirit which says—

"No pent-up Utica contracts our powers,
But a whole boundless continent is ours."

This boundless continent, with its wealth of forest and prairie, of mighty rivers and inland seas, of granite mountains and golden sands, was not fashioned by the finger of the Creator for an ordinary destiny. Its laws and its government were not to be determined by a people living in a cluster of islands in the North Atlantic Ocean. It was not the caprice of a king, nor the whims of his ministers, nor the needs of an English Parliament that should be permitted to govern and hold in ignominious and unrepresented subjection and thwart the growth and cripple the power of colonies which were destined to become some day a nation mightier than the British Empire.

We can read a sturdy protest against oppression and a prophecy of greatness in every paragraph of our fathers' declaration. We know today, as we read the history of our fathers' struggles, that it was not alone for relief from a misrule which might have been temporary that they protested and battled and sacrificed; but they fought for independence in its fullest extent; for the right to grow and govern as they grew; the right to carry the banner of the new republic in all directions until its stars should flaunt the northern lights, and its stripes hail the southern cross, and "its fringes dip in the western sea."

Here was a land virgin to the embrace of civilization, filled with a rich dower of wealth of field, forest and mine, waiting for the wooing touch of the sons and daughters of the coming century to make her a beautiful and fruitful queen among the nations—a land dedicated by the High Priest at the dawn of creation to Christian civilization and republican freedom, a land protected by two oceans from the poisonous breath of European and Asiatic despotisms and the poverty and sacrifice and sorrow of old-world tyrannies and wars.

While Europe was a chessboard where nations played their war games with human lives for pawns, here there grew a community where all men were equal before the law, where labor was respected and honored, where every man could eat his bread undisturbed by the mandates of a feudal chief, where the stars never glittered upon a kingly crown.

The republic of today, with her forty-eight States and her one hundred millions of people and her domain stretching from arctic to tropic seas, was unrolled like a panorama before the visions of those "stern men with empires in their brains" who sat in convention on the banks of the Delaware one hundred and thirty-nine years ago.

The victory that our fathers achieved was no sectional success. It was an American victory in the fullest extent and significance of the word. The maple and the magnolia, the palm and the pine, alike yielded their emerald chaplets to crown the war-worn veterans of the revolution, and he would be narrow in mind who would search today to find how many regiments Massachusetts gave to the Continental army, and how many came from South Carolina.

Today, over all the broad land, from the center to the confines of the republic, in a thousand cities and villages, we commemorate our fathers' struggles and rejoice that our fathers' dream has more than found fulfillment.

O mother land of our love, the story of your birth and growth is told today to the people of the mightiest and freest and most prosperous nation in all the world. May all bright forms of excellence attend you, and may you remain, now and forever, secure in the brave hearts and invincible arms of your sons!

THE SELF-PARTISAN PLUNDERBUND.

With a non-partisan law in operation, a voter who did not know anything about the character or qualification of the non-partisan candidates, and who was unguided in his choice by the indorsement or recommendation of a Republican, or a Democrat, or a Socialist, or a Prohibition convention, would be in a dilemma not unlike that of the Englishman who was at heart a follower of Charles Edward Stuart, and who was required by a party of the troopers of the reigning King to drink to "the true faith and the rightful King."

He placed the glass to his lips and replied:

"Here's to the Faith, here's to the Faith's defender, Here's to the King, and down with the pretender."

And as the troops cheered him he muttered to himself:

"Which the pretender is and which the King?
God bless my soul, that's quite another thing."

The non-partisan law would not abolish partisanship in politics. It would substitute partisanship of individuals for partisanship of measures. It is not possible to reform any political party by destroying it. Gov. Johnson and his non-partisan adorers are doubtless doing their duty according to their lights, but their lights are phosphorescent, they are the creation of rotting vegetables, they are luminous, without heat. Liddon says: "Every prosperous civilization has a tendency to throw off from its own feverish activity a phosphoric glare and then to imagine that this is the shining of the sun in heaven."

One of the pretexts put forward for adopting partisanship of persons instead of partisanship of principles is that it is only by non-partisanship that the railroad corporations can be kept out of politics. The sins of these entities are many and their virtues few. They charge as much for carrying a ton of citrus fruit 3000 miles, from Los Angeles to New York, as Eastern roads charge for carrying them less than 1000 miles, from New York to Columbus or Indianapolis. And they established transportation rates that helped to build up Los Angeles, by making it profitable for Arizona and Nevada merchants to make their purchases here, rather than in St. Louis or Chicago.

It may be admitted that the railroad corporations have often endeavored to procure the nomination by political conventions of legislators who would not blackmail them, and of assessors and other public officials who would not say to them what the Savior said to Zaccheus—"Come down."

It may not be denied that the railroad octopuses—all three of them—charge passengers as much for carrying them 1000 miles as passengers would have to pay in England or France for being carried 500 miles. It may be that each railroad corporation is a Florida alligator, with jaws yawning for tourists, that it brings colonists to California at half rates and charges them full rates to carry them away, and that it is the proper caper in politics to stand at the polls and prayerfully join in cursing the railroad companies in living and dead languages, "Anathema maranatha to them! Sacre le chemin de fer! Caramba la campania del ferrocarril! To hell wid the corporayshun!"

And yet the question will occur—if it be true that the railroad companies dominate the State through the machinery of political parties, will they cease to dominate it if all parties are destroyed? Is it probable that non-partisan officials would be less likely to yield to the blandishments of Col. Mazuma than their Republican or Democratic or Progressive predecessors?

Men are alike—especially some men. The Times is not anxious that the Democratic party should be continued in life, even as a frightful example of wrongdoing in politics, but it protests against the grand old Republican party being made a shuttlecock to be banged and beaten and tossed into the mire of extinction by the battledores of a self-seeking plunderbund.

TRUSTING TO SUBMARINES.

At present the submarine is the most efficient weapon in naval warfare that science and mechanics have been able to devise. If, just now, America were at war with any foreign nation, or combination of foreign nations, no doubt an overwhelming fleet of submarines would render our shores immune from bombardment by dreadnaughts or invasion through troopships.

But, according to expert figures, it will be at least four years before the United States can fit out a fleet of submarines large enough to protect the hundreds of miles of seaboard on our Atlantic and Pacific coasts. Experience has shown that in naval construction the triumph of today may become obsolete tomorrow. As the new ruler of the waves the submarine has leaped into sudden prominence. The superdreadnaught a few years ago was the proof of naval supremacy, and Uncle Sam was urged by naval constructors to build more superdreadnaughts.

Now, because it is the latest development, everyone pins his faith to the submarine. But science rushes on under the spur of necessity with gigantic strides. Next year some new and more fearful device may consign the victorious submarine to the scrap heap.

What America needs to do is not to take up the latest device, that has just proved its efficiency, but to go that device one better. We have the brains here—all the inventions that have been brought to perfection in the present European war originated in the United States. To originate a little farther, and to develop and perfect the invention ourselves, keeping its principle a secret from foreign countries, is our best security for preserving the peace of this hemisphere.

"Put not your faith in submarines, nor in any work of man," said the Psalmist—or words to that effect. By which he meant, keep on using the brains that God has given you and don't be content with the latest thing in naval warfare or in anything else. Always have an unsuspected trump card to play.

NERVES AND INDIGESTION.

Charles Lummis, our California historian, versed in the lore of Aztec antiquities, has started a hornets' nest in the International Congress of Authors by his attack on modern literature. Our Charles is always radical and eccentric, on which qualifications many reputations for originality have been too easily acquired. So no doubt he hit the mark he aimed at when his letter, read before the congress, was denounced by its president as "audacious."

Nerves and indigestion are two serious complaints for a patient to be afflicted with—and these twin evils, he declares, are sapping the vitality of American literature. Our writers "drone out stuff with as much speed as if his Satanic Majesty were the chauffeur." These are Dr. Charles's own words. We suggest that "droning" and "speed" are hardly compatible terms.

It is true that the present age is not likely to produce a Pepys, an Addison, a Dr. Johnson or even a successor to William Dean Howells. Still if modern people are craving such leisurely literature the demand for it could be supplied. We could build sedan-chairs instead of high-power automobiles if the people wanted them, and build them as elegantly as any turned out in the days of Queen Anne.

We could reproduce Elizabethan villages instead of running up sky-scraping cities—but what's the use if folks don't want to live in them? We could go back from typewriters to quill pens, and make better quill pens than those used by Benjamin Franklin. But who would buy them?

And then Mr. Lummis caps the climax by denouncing California as being "just a little more crazy than the rest." We can only reply in the words of Polonius, "Though this be madness, yet there is method in it." For California's madness, whether in literature or anything else (except in her State Legislature) is keeping her in the forefront of world affairs.

A Model to Follow.

[Hartford Times:] President Wilson's manner and occupation is for peace, in keeping with his words. He goes golfing, and makes it known that he proposes to take a rest at the summer White House in New Hampshire. Outwardly he gives no indication that he is disturbed by foreign wars or by Bryan's campaign of publicity.

THE LAW'S DELAYS.

[CONTRIBUTED TO THE TIMES]

BY ALBERT BUSHNELL HART,
Professor of Government, Harvard University.

IF A RAILROAD train is an hour late the passengers fume and fret and let the newspapers hear of it. If a railroad does not deliver freight till a week after it is due, a little mountain of correspondence will accumulate. If a man has a bill against the city government and it is unpaid he interviews his alderman and bids him "get busy." On the other hand, if the administrator of an estate neglects to turn over the funds which he holds as trustee the heirs may have to spend four or five years in persistent and expensive court proceedings before they can compel the man to take his hands off their money. Why do the American people put up with the circumlocutions and the losses due to this shiftless system? Why does a civilized people allow itself to be robbed and murdered by criminals who, if convicted, will almost certainly stave off their sentences for months or years?

The courts are as much the servants of the public as the Councilmen and Mayors and letter-carriers. In other countries they accept that responsibility. In Great Britain a single jury may dispose of ten criminal suits in one day, if the evidence is clear. In the United States one criminal, if he has money to procure counsel, may keep a jury on the stretch for ten days.

A few examples will illustrate the actual delays. In 1900 the cashier of a bank in Massachusetts was tried for wrecking the bank by stealing $146,000; he was duly convicted and sentenced to nine years in the penitentiary. Seven years later he was carrying on a business, never having served a day in jail, because he succeeded in postponing the decision by technicalities year after year.

A Southwestern lawyer is very proud because he defended a client who was five times in succession tried, convicted and sentenced to death for the same crime; and four successful appeals were brought to a higher court, which every time annulled the proceedings of the lower court.

A brakeman injured by a railroad in 1882 was obliged to go through seven trials occupying twenty years before the company would pay a verdict.

A telegraph suit entered in 1876 was still not settled after thirty-six years.

For these delays there are several reasons. Many courts are clogged with damage suits against trolley lines and railroads, which oblige them to keep new cases waiting sometimes for several years. Many courts sit too few days in the year to clear their calendars. Moreover, the judges, who have practically all been practicing lawyers, sympathize with the desire of counsel to have ample time for preparation of their cases.

Lawyers also expect delays which will make it convenient for them to hold onto several cases which may be assigned for about the same time. Many good cases are thrown out or sent back to a lower court because of technicalities. If a jury finds that: "We, your jury, beg leave to bring in a verdict of manslaughter," the verdict may be set aside on the ground that the verdict ought to have been: "We, your jury, return a verdict of manslaughter." The retirement of a New York police officer, duly signed by the examining physicians as a "board of surgeons," is squashed by the court and the man is allowed full salary from the time of retirement because it ought to have been signed "Board of Police Surgeons." The litigants who have the longest purses can employ skilled counsel who can pick flaws in the proceedings; and they are best able to put up the necessary bonds for appeals and court costs. Thus courts, in an overscrupulous endeavor to see that no innocent man is convicted, and to give everybody a fair chance, deprive thousands of litigants of substantial justice.

Many committees of bar associations have studied this matter and have tried to find a remedy. In California the judges of the Supreme Court cannot draw their salaries unless they certify there are no undecided cases pending in their court. The recall of judges in the States where it is legal might sometimes dispose of a judge who was uncommonly dilatory. The real trouble, however, is that the courts are apt to look upon legal proceedings as a kind of game. Their attention is not fixed so much on the property or rights of the parties to the suit as on the rules of pleading, evidence and the verbiage of indictments. They consider themselves simply umpires, whose function is to apply the highly-complicated rules of the game to the learned counsel engaged as champions. There never will be any relief from the law's delay until the courts fix their minds upon the interests of the litigants and let the counsel take care of themselves.

The Best Ever.

For contemplation he and valor formed,
For softness she and attractive grace;
He for God only, she for God and him.
—[Milton.

Beauty and delicacy, softness and sweetness, were given to women to make them attractive to men.

Strength and courage, vigor and force, were given to men to make them attractive to woman, and to give them power over other things of life.

Womankind naturally feels inclined toward mankind, and mankind is attracted to womankind. In short, they were made for each other, and together they will be, and together they will go through life, and that in spite of human law, iron bars, or stone walls, or anything save death.

As well forbid the sunbeam to kiss the mountaintop, or the stately oak to shelter the woodland flower.

It was so written, and so shall it be, that men and women will forever incline to each other, and that each true woman will cleave to one man, and each true man cleave to one woman, and naught but death shall part them on earth.—[Pittsburgh Gazette-Times.

Brotherly Bunk.

[Milwaukee Sentinel:] "Brotherly love," cooes Mr. Bryan, "will end wars."

This is the lovely gentleman who has stirred up more strife in his party than any man who ever belonged to it, who is known as one of the most implacable partisans in the party and as the exponent of "brotherly love" and political urbanity, who once called Grover Cleveland a "bunko steerer."

"Brotherly love end all wars?" Brotherly bunk!

"And now, madam, what about pencilink the brows?" "I think," said Mrs. Nurich, "I'd like one of these highbrow effects that I read so much about in the papers."—[Louisville Herald.

AQUEDUCT FOR WORLD TO SEE.

Topographical Model to go to Both Expositions.

Accurately Reproduces System and Watershed.

Natural Wonders Revealed by Remarkable Replica.

The Los Angeles aqueduct, the country through which it passes and the mountainous region from which the water comes have been reproduced. Under the personal direction of Chief Engineer Mulholland an accurate topographical model has been built and will be exhibited at both expositions that visitors from away may get a comprehensive idea of the big [illegible].

The model is twenty-six feet long and thirty inches wide. It includes the strip of country all the way from the northern tip of the divide to the sea. It portrays the exact nature of the country, extraordinary care having been taken to make the reproduction exactly correct. The horizontal scale is one mile to the inch and the vertical scale 1600 feet to [illegible].

The coloring, also, is a close copy of nature, the artist who painted it having first made a trip through the Owens Valley.

The extreme northwest tip of the model ends at the divide, where the San Francisco as well as the Los Angeles water supply have their inception. On one side of the divide is the beginning of the Owens River [illegible]. Just on the other side rises the stream which flows into and becomes a part of the Hetch Hetchy supply.

The model shows, far above the aqueduct intake, a great mountain range, some of whose peaks are perpetually snow-capped. Mt. Whitney, the highest point, is 14,500 feet high and there are several other peaks almost as high. These mountains are much newer in formation than the [illegible] Alabama hills on the other side of the valley. They are of granite and contain enormous fissures. One gorge, plainly revealed on the model is more than 800 feet deep.

SNOW-FILLED CANYONS.

In the canyons snow is frequently packed to a depth of 200 to 250 feet. Even more clearly than in nature the model shows the deep rift or fault, known as the St. Andrews fault and a continuation of the San Francisco fault. How the mountains were riven by a mighty upheaval in prehistoric times can be plainly seen. Evidences of still earlier periods are shown in the broad glacial moraines in the upper stretches of Owens Valley. The red volcanic rock of the [illegible] Mountains and other hills have the same coloring in the model. Chief Engineer Mulholland, an authority on geology as well as engineering, has made an exhaustive study of the entire region and is able to reconstruct the history of the formation from the glacial periods through periods of volcanic disturbance. Even laymen, studying the model, can readily see the great natural advantages of the region as a source of water.

The aqueduct is shown on the model in a broad red line. The fifty-three miles of tunnels are indicated by black lines.

The model will be incased in glass and supplemented with explanatory diagrams. Another portion of the exhibit will be about fifty large transparent views of the aqueduct. These are from photographs recently taken and hand-colored to represent nature as faithfully as possible.

The pictures have been taken from the northern edge of the watershed, working down to include all the mountain ranges and showing the reservoirs, power plants and other important features of construction. One of the pictures is of an ice-bound lake with fields of snow on either side. It was taken the 5th of last month, at which time the snow was ten feet deep. Other pictures show, farther down, the water released from its snowy fastnesses leaping madly down the steep mountain side. The whole exhibit will constitute an instructive, accurate and interesting presentation of the aqueduct project on its physical side.

Inspection of the aqueduct model will correct several popular misapprehensions concerning the aqueduct. It has been stated many times that the water comes from Owens Lake. The model clearly shows that the water sources are far above the lake and that the aqueduct skirts that body of [illegible] water without at any point coming in contact with it.

One may see, as well as by taking a trip through the region, how rugged-[illegible] and uninhabitable is the great watershed. Viewing the topography, the absurdity of the allegations of contamination by large numbers of people at the headwaters or any other point above the intake is obvious.

Better than volumes of printed matter the model reveals how stupendous the project was from an engineering point of view. It indicates how huge siphons were laid across the desert and up steep mountainsides; how the tunnels were driven through solid rock to emerge in places where there are magnificent power drops.

The people of this city who may not attend the fairs may see the exhibit. Mr. Mulholland will endeavor to have the model and the accompanying data placed on exhibition in this city a few days before it is sent to San Francisco. After the fairs are over it is proposed to have the exhibit permanently installed in this city, possibly in Exposition Park.

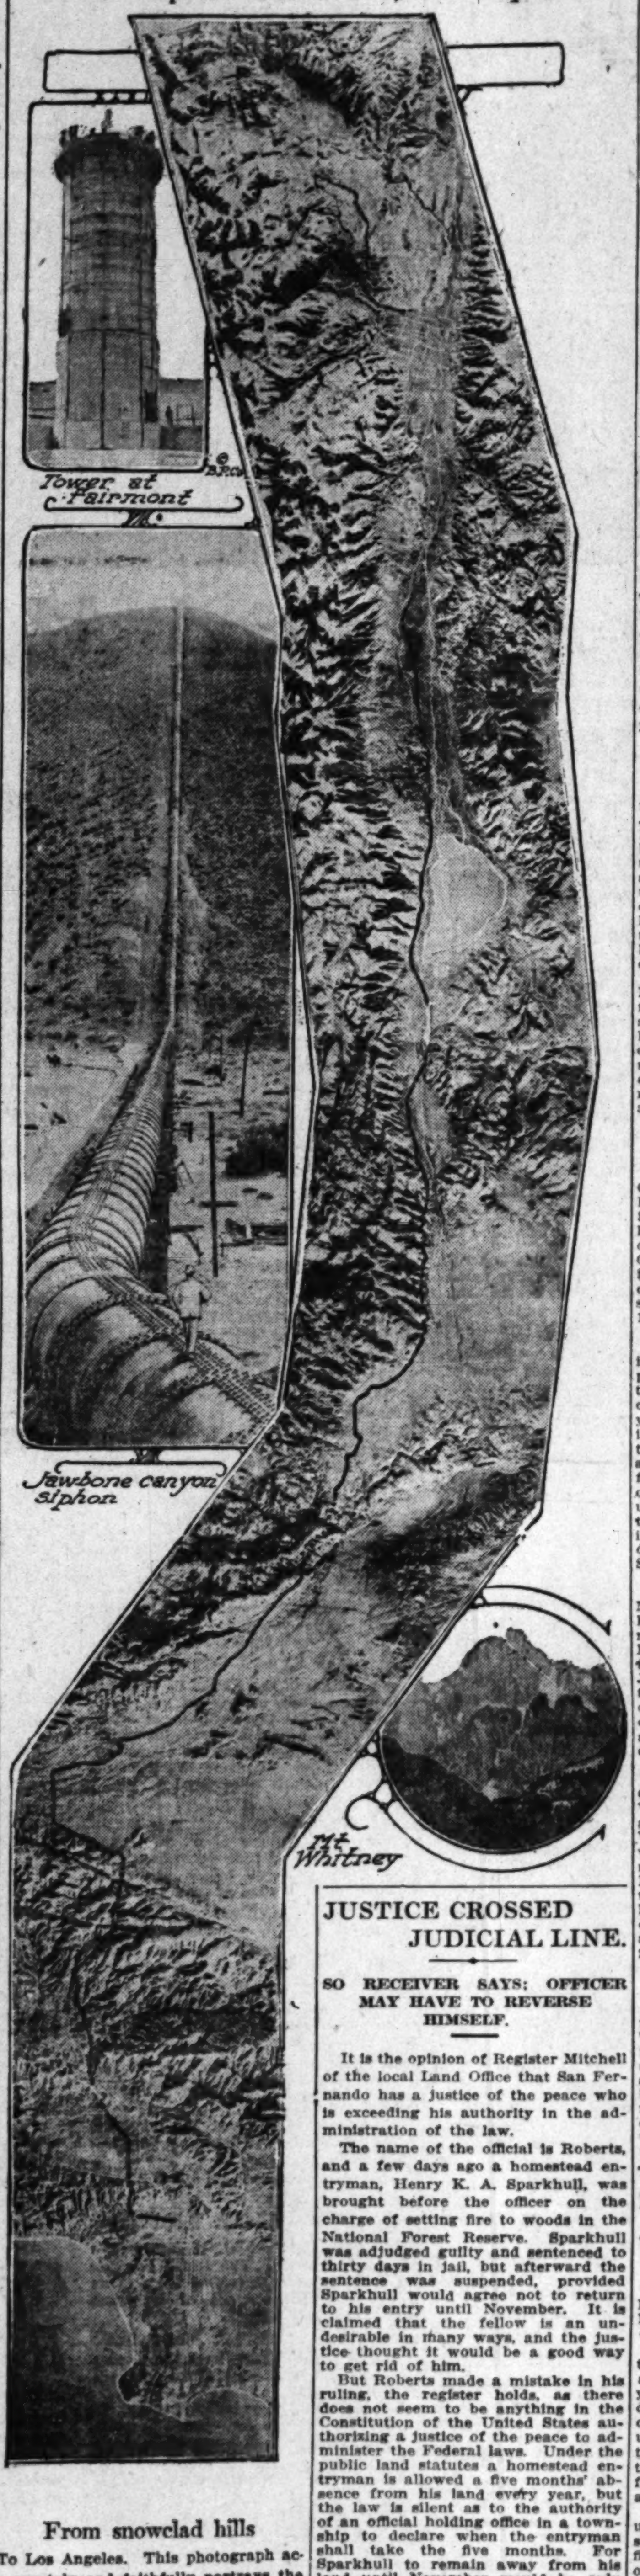
[illegible] FOR MELONS.

[illegible] Handling of Canteloupes from Imperial Valley Assured, says Commission.

[illegible] made by the transportation companies for the handling and [illegible] of Imperial Valley's canteloupe [illegible] more than 5000 cars are adequate, according to a statement issued [illegible] by the State Railroad Commission as a result of special investigation. The matter came before the commission on informal complaint of [illegible] Fawcett.

[illegible] Fawcett complained that last [illegible] refrigerator cars were [illegible] proper switching service at [illegible] and Heber lacking, and that [illegible] were loaded and ready for [illegible] facilities were wanting to [illegible] them before leaving Imperial [illegible]. The investigation showed that [illegible] had the Southern Pacific and [illegible] Fruit Express made adequate [illegible] for the handling of this [illegible], but that there is a reserve [illegible] cars, as well as icing facilities [illegible] the demand.

First Complete Picture of the Aqueduct.



From snowclad hills

To Los Angeles. This photograph accurately and faithfully portrays the topography of all the country through which the aqueduct extends and also shows the watershed and source of supply far above the intake. In the canyons at the north, snow is frequently packed to a depth of 200 to 250 feet, a part of the guarantee that nature gives to this city that its water supply shall never fail. The photograph was made with extreme difficulty, because of its form, from a topographic model of the region built under the personal direction of Chief Engineer Mulholland. The model is an exact replica of the territory embraced. Engineers and draughtsmen have been working ten weeks to complete it. It has been colored true to nature, the artists having previously made a trip through the Owens Valley.

JUSTICE CROSSED JUDICIAL LINE.

SO RECEIVER SAYS; OFFICER MAY HAVE TO REVERSE HIMSELF.

It is the opinion of Register Mitchell of the local Land Office that San Fernando has a justice of the peace who is exceeding his authority in the administration of the law.

The name of the official is Roberts, and a few days ago a homestead entryman, Henry K. A. Sparkhull, was brought before the officer on the charge of setting fire to woods in the National Forest Reserve. Sparkhull was adjudged guilty and sentenced to thirty days in jail, but afterward the sentence was suspended, provided Sparkhull would agree not to return to his entry until November. It is claimed that the fellow is an undesirable in many ways, and the justice thought it would be a good way to get rid of him.

But Roberts made a mistake in his ruling, the register holds, as there does not seem to be anything in the Constitution of the United States authorizing a justice of the peace to administer the Federal laws. Under the public land statutes a homestead entryman is allowed a five months' absence from his land every year, but the law is silent as to the authority of an official holding office in a township to declare when the entryman shall take the five months. For Sparkhull to remain away from his land until November would be only to initiate a contest on the part of somebody, who might allege that he had deserted the land and would come very near proving it.

Register Mitchell yesterday called up Roberts by telephone and informed him that he had exceeded his authority in making such a condition in the Sparkhull case, and advising him that, so far as the books went, he was not authorized to do as he did. Whether Justice Roberts will pull back his judgment and compel Sparkhull to go to jail, thus reversing himself—that is another story.

BEGRUDGES BOY FOOD RATIONS.

STEPFATHER IS ACCUSED BY LAD'S MOTHER.

Her Husband is Alleged to Have Told His Stepson that He Ate Too Much and Also to Have Ordered Spouse to Leave the House with Her Offspring.

"I have to work to get this food; you eat too much," Edward P. Cruse, a gardener, is alleged to have said to his stepson, Francis, 5 years old. He took the plate away from the child. On another occasion, Mrs. Cruse complains in a separate maintenance suit filed yesterday, her husband beat her son, knocked him down and kicked him in the head and face.

His daily order to her, she declares, was to take the brat and get out of the house. She was obliged to flee to the house of a neighbor on account of his alleged brutality and in order to get in she had to summon a patrolman. The Cruses were married October 18, 1911, and have two children, Francis and Erma, the latter 1 year old.

COIN BACK TO MONEY LENDER.

Rosslyn Stuart, a London (Eng.) money lender, was given judgment by Judge Hewitt yesterday against A. P. M. Narlian for $525.58, for money loaned the latter June 6, 1912, and interest. In this suit tried several days ago, Mr. Narlian raised the point that under the English law a money lender who does not negotiate loans in his office cannot recover on the ground that the loan is void. He claimed the business was done by phone and in other forms outside of the office.

Stuart stated that he had loaned Mr. Narlian £108. Mr. Narlian testified that he agreed to obligate himself to the extent of £100 on a £500 loan to Meyer Cohn. He received a check for £100 which he immediately returned to Mr. Stuart and consequently he never had the use of the money. This was denied by Mr. Stuart.

INS AND OUTS. ABOUT THE COURTHOUSE.

SUES ON CONTRACT. Fred Leroy Granville signed up with the Navajo Film Company January 28, last, for $65 a week as a director. A month later the company refused to carry out the contract, and yesterday Mr. Granville brought suit to recover $9035, the amount he would have received, plus damages, if he had stayed on the job until October 31, 1917. He alleges breach of contract.

WANTS HIS PAY. After organizing meetings, securing the names of property owners in a High School district and performing other services covering a period of more than two years, R. M. Davis declared yesterday in a suit to recover $5000 damages that Huntley L. Gordon, R. A. Brassey and W. W. Gordon and their wives refused to pay him. The defendants owned land in the Los Angeles Stadium and employed him, Mr. Davis says, to get the consent of property owners in the Compton-avenue High School district for the location of a High School upon their land.

WATER HEARING. Luther Hill of No. 1187 West Thirty-ninth street says he paid his water bill June 15 and nine days later the supply was cut off. He applied for a writ of mandate yesterday and Acting Presiding Judge Jackson set the hearing on the order to show cause in Judge Hewitt's court on the 12th inst. The members of the Public Service Commission will appear in court in response to the order.

REPORT FILED. The Juvenile Court Committee will take up on Wednesday the report of the investigation which followed the charges of W. A. Koehn, a former guard at Juvenile Hall, that the inmates were not receiving proper treatment. Mrs. Cora Deal Lewis, chairman of the committee, declares that the charges are baseless. She says that Mr. Koehn was discharged because of complaints against him and that he was not fitted for the place.

OATH IS TAKEN BY SEBASTIAN.

MAYOR-ELECT SWORN INTO OFFICE BY CITY CLERK.

Six ex-Mayors and Mayor Rose Witness Ceremony, with Other Public Officials and Friends of New Executive Looking On—Movies Take Picture of ex-Chief.

Charles E. Sebastian, the first Chief of Police in a city of prominence in the United States to be elected Mayor, took the oath of his office yesterday, surrounded by one Mayor, six ex-Mayors and a host of friends.

The oath was administered by City Clerk Wilde in his office, and was made a gala occasion at City Hall.

At the side of the Mayor-elect was his wife and son, Charles Sebastian, Jr., while the clerk's office was crowded with public officials and friends.

Ex-Mayors Alexander, Snyder, Workman, McAleer, Harper and Hazard were present, as was also Mayor Rose, who relinquishes his office on Tuesday.

Mayor Rose hurried to his office from the ceremony to complete his annual report to the Council, which will be filed Tuesday morning. It required fifteen minutes, by stop watch, to turn out the message.

Mayor-elect Sebastian, who was the center of the levee at City Hall, went to a motion-picture studio in the afternoon, where he posed before the camera in a cermony showing his induction into the office of Mayor. The picture will be sent to motion-picture houses all over the United States.

To Modify Charter.

The Board of Public Works appears to be satisfied with the sections of the present city charter which define the duties of that department. In a letter to the freeholders, the board said yesterday:

In conformity with the request of Your Honorable Board to the Board of Public Works, to submit suggestions as they may effect a new charter, with special reference to the conduct of the public works of the city, we respectfully submit that the present city charter, Article XIV, sections 143 to 151, inclusive, set forth quite clearly the powers and duties of the department of public works and in our opinion most of these provisions would be desirable in a city charter. There are some sections which refer to special objects now attained, and which would not be necessary in a new charter, such as section 146½, which applies to the construction of the Los Angeles aqueduct and Los Angeles Harbor.

To Meet This Week.

The joint committee composed of members of the Board of Supervisors and of the City Council to confer on the consolidation of city and county charities will meet during the coming week, according to City Clerk Wilde, who has received notice from the Supervisors. The question will resolve itself into the basis of an agreement by which the charities of the city and county may be handled.

No Council Session.

Owing to the absence of a quorum, the Council did not meet yesterday. The new Council will meet Tuesday morning at the conclusion of the final session of the old. Martin Betkouski will be president of the incoming body, and will probably be the unanimous choice of his colleagues. City offices closed at noon yesterday and will remain closed until Tuesday morning.

STOPS FALLING HAIR

This Home Made Mixture Stops Dandruff and Falling Hair and Aids Its Growth.

To a half pint of water add:
Bay Rum ....1 oz.
Barbo Compound .... a small box.
Glycerine ....1-4 oz.

These are all simple ingredients that you can buy from any druggist at very little cost, and mix them yourself. Apply to the scalp once a day for two weeks, then once every other week until all the mixture is used. A half pint should be enough to rid the head of dandruff and kill the dandruff germs. It stops the hair from falling out and relieves itching and scalp diseases.

Although it is not a dye, it acts upon the hair roots and will darken streaked, faded, gray hair in ten or fifteen days. It promotes the growth of the hair and makes harsh hair soft and glossy.

To Ward Off Summer Complexion Ills

To keep the face smooth, white and beautiful all summer, there's nothing quite so good as ordinary mercolized wax. Discolored or freckled skin so common at this season, is gently absorbed by the wax and replaced by the newer, fresher skin beneath. The face exhibits no trace of the wax, which is applied at bedtime and washed off mornings. Greasy creams, powders and rouges, on the other hand, are apt to appear more conspicuous than usual these days of excessive perspiration. Just get an ounce of mercolized wax at any drugstore and use like cold cream. This will help any skin at once and in a week or so the complexion will look remarkably young and healthy.

Sun, wind and flying dust often cause squinting and other contortions which make wrinkles. You can quickly get rid of every line, however caused, by using a harmless wash lotion made by dissolving 1 oz. powdered saxolite in ½ pt. witch hazel.

NOTABLE VISITORS.

World's Supreme Matron of the Order of Amaranth and Several Grand Royal Matrons Here.

The past week has been made a notable one for the four local courts of the Royal Order of Amaranth by the presence here of Mrs. Fidelia Beck, Supreme Royal Matron of the world-wide order, and several Grand Royal Matrons, all of whom have been in attendance at the San Francisco convention of the Masonic body.

Mrs. Beck, who is a Southern California woman, was tendered an enthusiastic homecoming reception by the members of Los Angeles Court No. 4. Present to add their felicitations were Miss Sara C. Reese, Grand Royal Matron of California; Mrs. Amelia E. MacNair, Grand Royal Matron of New York State; Mrs. Mabel N. Ashton, Deputy Supreme Royal Matron of Oklahoma, Kansas and Northern Texas, and Supreme Standard Bearer, and Mrs. Barton, Grand Conductress of Washington.

California souvenirs were presented to the eastern guests and a programme of speaking was enjoyed.

ENTERTAINMENT FOR FILM MEN.

ONE THOUSAND THEATER OWNERS AND PICTURE PRODUCERS COMING HERE.

Managers of motion-picture studios, film exchange brokers, local moving-picture exhibitors and representatives of the Chamber of Commerce and 1915 General Committee held a meeting yesterday to make arrangements for entertaining about 1000 motion-picture theater owners and film producers who will arrive in Los Angeles on the 18th inst. from San Francisco, where they will have attended the annual national convention of the Motion-picture Exhibitors' League of America.

J. C. Jessen, Pacific Coast manager of the Motion Picture News of New York, was elected chairman of the General Committee on Arrangements. Several sub-committees were named and an organization formed for looking after the comfort and pleasure of the visitors.

The programme of entertainment as adopted in outline yesterday will include luncheon at Universal City, inspection of Lasky and Majestic-Reliance studios; Dutch lunch, trained animal vaudeville and hall at Selig Zoo Park; special morning matinee and jungle lunch at the Bostock Arena, visits to the beach and various studios, and special courtesies by the local Exhibitors' League and Fim Men's Board of Trade.

VACATION BIBLE SCHOOLS.

The Los Angeles Daily Vacational Bible School Association will begin classes next Tuesday at Calvary Church, Second and St. Louis streets; the mission at Third and Clarence streets; Bauchet Street Mission, Bauchet and Avila streets; and at the South Park Baptist Church, Fifty-first street and McKinley avenue. The classes will be in session every morning, except Saturday and Sunday, from 9:30 to 11:30 o'clock, for six weeks. The schools will give instruction in religious, industrial, musical and recreational matters. The classes are free to children. The work is supported by free-will offerings. The schools in this city and in San Francisco are under the direction of W. B. Percival, Jr.

There is no medicine made that is relied upon with more implicit confidence than Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhea Remedy. It always cures.—[Advertisement.

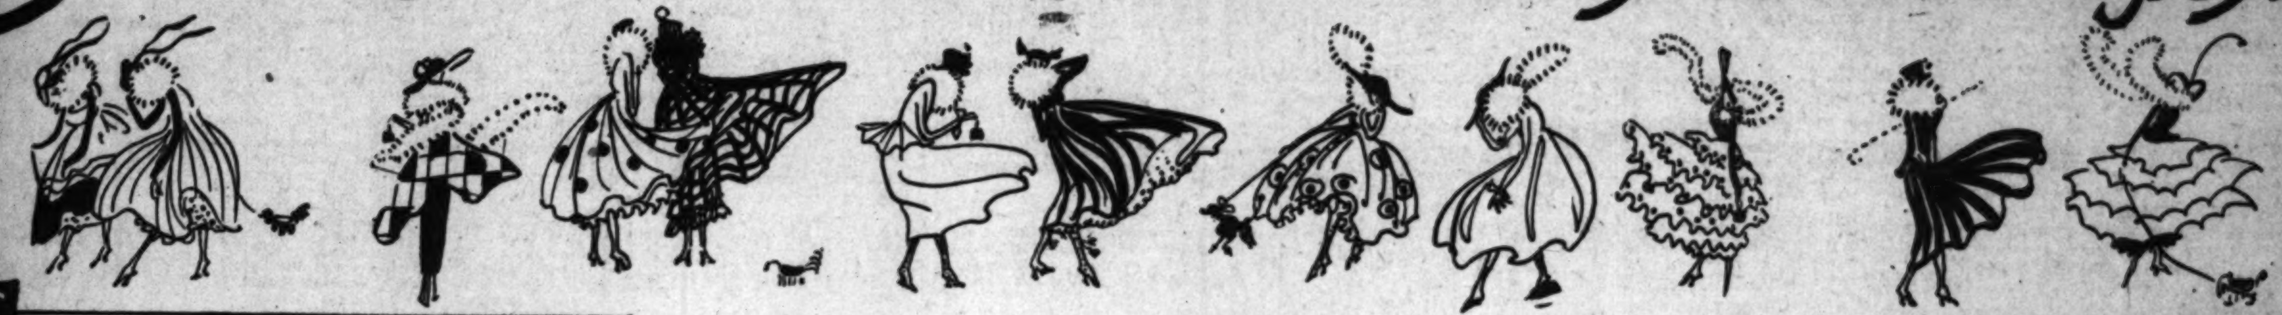
Dancing Girls of San Francisco: by Sarah Langley.



THE FAIRIES AT THE FAIR

Sarah Langley, the famous painter of modish girls, has returned to Los Angeles from San Francisco, where she visited the Fair and saw the sights of the gay metropolis.

She made some striking pictures of the dancing girls of San Francisco, of all types, including the most reckless, which are reproduced on this page.

WOMEN'S WORK AND WOMEN'S CLUBS

BY DOROTHY B. JOHNSTON.

WITH July has come a cessation of nearly all club work, and the next three months activities will supposedly lie dormant. Yet while the sphere of clubdom is apparently resting, there are always a few who are bending every effort to secure still better programmes for the coming year. And every club woman knows that even with a suspension of public club work she must keep abreast with what is new and constructive, that her club may stand on a higher plane of efficiency; for with renewed vigor shall come the ability to more intelligently grasp opportunity, if club service approach a more complete and satisfactory standard.

The Woman's City Club will continue its Monday meetings—forums, I might say—for these earnest women have already secured some splendid speakers to discuss important civic questions. The Business Woman's Civic Club also has meetings through the summer. But these clubs fill a different niche from the ordinary literary club. They offer more a place for discussion.

The Ebell Club had a most strenuous, though delightful, final week. The Fete Champetre on Monday was a great success, and Wednesday witnessed a still larger event, when the clubhouse was hospitably thrown open for a brilliant reception to the distinguished visitors who were here incidental to the Congress for the Encouragement of American Music, the Ninth Biennial Convention of the National Federation of Musical Clubs and the American Opera Association.

The Friday Morning Club is to have informal reception each Friday afternoon during July, their first venture on Friday last proving a splendid success.

Mrs. Edward Rankin Brainerd, Mrs. John J. Abramson and Mrs. George Wadleigh were hostesses, and had the pleasure of greeting several guests from afar. There was a short programme given as the ladies who dropped in for a cup of tea were grouped around the small tables. Mrs. William Duffield gave a number of her own delightful songs, augmented by selections rendered by Mrs. Eleanor Hazard Peacock, a concert artist from the East.

Business Woman's Civic Club.

At the last meeting of the Business Woman's Civic Club the following officers were elected: President, Miss Lloy Galpin; commissioner of education, Miss Marie de G. E. Lopez; commissioner of public affairs, Mrs. Mary F. Dorian; commissioner of records, Miss Helen Fitch; commissioner of finance, Mrs. Elizabeth M. Stowell; commissioner of membership, Miss Mabel E. Spink, and commissioner of recreation and hospitality, Miss Margaret F. Brennan.

Because of a holiday tomorrow there will be no meeting.

The programme for July 12 will be announced later.

Ebell's Fete Champetre.

Nature has provided a beautiful amphitheater untouched by man out at Verdugo Park—a clearing in the thickly wooded sycamores and live oaks with a perfect rise making an elevated stage, and a fit setting for the production of a play interpretative of the American Indian prior to California's occupation of the white man, such as "The Arrow Maker" (by Mary Austin) and given under the direction of Miss Willimena Wilkes by local talent of the Ebell Club and Civic Repertoire company before an interested audience of over 700 members and guests of the Ebell Club at the final assemblage of the year—their Fete Champetre, held on Monday last.

The scene for action needed but an additional tepee or two for atmosphere and these picturesque little camps, together with the "red skins" blanketed in brilliant hues and their garments adorned in beads and elk teeth, all made for a realistic scene as the primitives came from their wonted haunts to live a most fascinating story for the de luxe entertainment Mrs. George P. Thresher of the Programme Committee for Ebell provided.

To single out the excellent work of the cast is impossible, for the members did their parts well. Mrs. Henry Ada van Pelt, that veteran curator emeritus in the drama section, was repeatedly applauded, but the other members also shared honors. The characters depicted in the dramatis personae follow:

Tribesmen of Sagharawite, Choco, Mrs. H. T. Wright; Winnedumah, Mrs. H. O. Thompson; Pamaquash, Mrs. J. A. Rogers; Yaci, Miss Nell Toothaker; Tavwots, Miss Katherine Reynolds; Fleetfoot, Miss Pauline Gillis.

Seegooche, wife of the chief, Miss Evelyn Moar; Tiawa, an old woman, Mrs. Ada Henry van Pelt; Wacoba, a matron, Miss Dora Dale Rogers; the Chrisera, "friend of the Gods," Miss Miriam Woodward; Bright Water, daughter of the chief, Miss Helen Bullard.

Companions of Bright Water, White Flower, Miss Margaret Rose; Tuiyo, Mrs. G. R. Moulton; Seyavi, Miss Elizabeth Beveridge.

Simwa, the arrow maker, Miss Gertrude Millard; Padahon, a fighting man, Mrs. F. B. West; Rain Wind, chief of the tribe, Miss Marjorie Evans; Halwai, a matron, Miss Lucile Evans.

Preceding the presentation of the play, an elaborate box lunch was eaten at long tables presided over by various prominent club women, the cool shade from a canopy of interlaced leaves from the big trees making an inviting outdoor dining rendezvous. Mrs. Herbert P. Barton, the third vice-president of the club and chairman of hospitality, who has so graciously presided all through the year, was master of ceremonies, which is quite enough to insure its attained success.

The enjoyable day was concluded with informal dancing and serving of refreshments.

That President Mrs. W. S. Bartlett was able to attend was all that was needed to make the event a red-letter day in Ebell annals. Mrs. Bartlett is convalescing from a broken rib and for a time pleurisy aggravated the case, but this beloved woman is now making rapid strides toward perfect health.

One of the most delightful programmes of the year was that given by Marguerite Buckler Stevenson on the afternoon of June 21, before a large and distinguished audience. This charming young prima donna, who for three years studied with Jean de Reszke in Paris, proved herself an apt pupil in the rendition of her initial concert before a Los Angeles audience, her finish, enunciation and mannerisms so captivating those present that round after round of applause brought her repeatedly back. Most of her songs were absolutely new, two numbers from Campbell-Tipton, under whom she studied, which accounted for her excellent interpretation. She also sang an aria from "Fairyland," and was personally complimented by the composer's wife, Mrs. Horatio Parker, who was in the audience. She chose from Debussy, La Forge, Bachelet, Hammond, Bizet, Leoncavallo and Tschaikowsky for her offerings, though Verdi's "Caro Nome" from "Rigoletto" and the Romeo and Juliet waltz song by Gounod were much favored. These two were done en costume, Mrs. Stevenson wearing a Rigoletto costume of pure white and severely simple for the first part, and a gorgeous white satin brocade in gold, and paneled in gold brocade and pearls, with a dear Juliet seed pearl cap, for the last. These were designed by Edward Souplet of Paris.

The difficult programme displayed true artistry.

She was accompanied by Will Garroway at the piano.

Final Meeting of Woman's Club.

The Owensmouth Woman's Club met at the home of Mrs. Ed Morris, the Workman ranch, Friday. This was the last meeting for the year and instead of the usual business meeting it was just a play day.

The club brought picnic dinner and at 12 o'clock a table was spread under the large pepper trees. It was loaded with good things to eat. After dinner the ladies gathered in groups over the lawn and enjoyed a musical programme. Games were also entered into.

The club entertained as guests Mrs. C. C. Bowerman and Mrs. C. H. Faller of Lankershim; Miss Nellie M. Brown of Providence, R. I.; Mrs. W. P. Whitsett, Mrs. Howard S. Trotter, Mrs. B. M. Blodget, Mrs. George E. Roebuck and Mrs. G. A. LeMay of Van Nuys and Miss Bernice Hull of Owensmouth.

The club members included Mrs. M. Hull, Mrs. G. F. Kelley, Mrs. A. C. Trexler, Mrs. Ed Morris, Mrs. G. W. Berch, Mrs. L. C. Kimball, Mrs. Ed Harbold, Mrs. Jackson Tweedy, Mrs. C. F. Hale, Mrs. Fred Balster, Mrs. John Haas, Mrs. Ralph, Mrs. W. B. Hyden and Mrs. Fred Jarboe.

Woman's City Club.

On account of tomorrow falling on a holiday, the Woman's City Club will dispense with its usual session, but for Monday, July 12, Lesse D. Burks, director of efficiency, will talk on "How Los Angeles Proposes to Spend $35,000,000 in 1915-1916." J. S. Conwell will also address the audience on "Business Methods in the City's Business."

Considerable time will be spent by members questioning the speakers. Copies of the proposed budget were passed at the last meeting that members might study the many specified statements therein.

District Officers Honor Guests.

The Saturday Afternoon Club of Downey held the closing meeting of the year during the past week, at which Mrs. H. A. Cable, district president, and Mrs. Lloyd Harmon, corresponding secretary, were specially-invited guests.

The club has always been a study club, but the Study Committee reported that the work had been along little different lines this year, special attention having been given to legislation, parliamentary usage and the fascinating study of South America.

The reports of the treasurer, library and music committees were good and showed the club had not neglected the practical side of life while working along musical and literary lines. Twenty new members were taken into the club during the past year.

The new officers are: President, Mrs. J. Frank Stout; first vice-president, Mrs. G. W. Williamson; second vice-president, Mrs. H. D. Kinney; secretary, Mrs. O. C. Hatch; correspondent, Mrs. Claude Buck; federation, Elizabeth McI. Hull, and treasurer, Mrs. H. A. Scott.

Tropico.

Of especial interest was the final meeting of the Norton Art Club held at the home of Mrs. Samuel Ayres on North Central avenue, Monday afternoon. The rooms were prettily decorated in Shasta daisies. Mrs. W. G. Chapman, president of the club, presented the number of the programme, which included violin duet by Mrs. Edgar Stuart Ayres and Mrs. Hartley Shaw. Mrs. S. A. McNutt, secretary of the club, read a brief though interesting history of the art club, giving the origin and its aims. Tht fact developed that the club members had become better acquainted with each other and have enjoyed the many glimpses into art afforded them by study, lectures, pictures and other various means of contributing to their careful researches. Miss Cora Hickman read a paper on Grecian art. Another pleasing feature was the vocal solo by Miss Jeanne McNutt, Mrs. Ayres contributing the violin obligato. An interesting as well as instructive paper was read by Mrs. Chapman on Andre Delsarto, relating the home life, aims and ambitions of this wonderful artist.

Dainty refreshments were served later in the afternoon. Mrs. Ayres was assisted by Mrs. Frank I. Marsh, in the entertainment of her guests.

Sierra Madre Woman's Club.

The Sierra Madre Woman's Club held its last meeting of the year on Monday, at which time the newly-elected officers were installed as follows: President, Mrs. J. H. Wright; first vice-president, Miss Annis Coffey; second vice-president, Mrs. H. T. Fennel; recording secretary, Mrs. F. Biederman; corresponding secretary, Mrs. L. E. Steinberger; auditor, Mrs. W. E. Farman; treasurer, Mrs. Paul Baugh; members of executive board, Mrs. N. T. Brown, Mrs. M. D. Welsher, Mrs. M. W. Copps, Mrs. T. H. Flathers, Mrs. A. T. Gay, Mrs. Minnie Kimball, Mrs. F. B. Seeley and Mrs. S. C. Sharon. Mrs. Harriet Wright has been appointed Federation secretary.

An excellent programme was presented by Miss Gertrude Cook, vocalist; Miss Helen Williams, reader, and Miss Janet Stevenson, pianist.

San Gabriel Woman's Club.

Luncheon and final business meeting closed a most successful year for the San Gabriel Woman's Club, this week with installation of the official board: Mrs. F. A. H. Fysh, president; Mrs. G. H. Vallee, vice-president; Miss May Boldy, second vice-president, and Mrs. Grace Olson, treasurer.

It was decided, upon suggestion of the president, that the club continue some line of study during the summer. California bird life will therefore occupy vacation time, the first meeting to be held next Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Wakeman at 2 o'clock.

First Annual Luncheon.

A brilliant climax to a year of real achievements was enjoyed by fifteen interpreters of literature, known as the Channel Club, and three signally honored invited guests, when they met at Rose Tree Tea House in Pasadena for their first annual luncheon Saturday of last week. It was a gala affair, with wit and repartee fairly scintillating, together with an elegant menu to satisfy the inner man. The toasts were exceedingly clever, with Mrs. Lilian Burkhart Goldsmith presiding as only this gracious, inimitable artist can. Mrs. Goldsmith introduced each speaker in original verse of such descriptive clarity that she was immedately recognzed. The toastmistress was herself introduced by the club's charming president, Mrs. Alice O. Hunnewell, who paid a deserved tribute to the lady who has meant so much to the Channel Club and its accomplishments this first trying year.

Mrs. Marion Lamont Davidson responded to the toast, "The Channel;" Miss Gertrude Comstock spoke on "The Source;" Miss Beulah Wright, dean of oratory at Occidental College, dealt with "The Outlet;" Miss Ida M. Leonard's subject was "The Deep Sea;" Mrs. Frederick West's, "The Running Brooks," and Mrs. Chauncey M. Higbee's, "Still Waters."

Miss Dora Holmes's subject was "The Towpath," and Mrs. Hunnewell concluded the feast of choice subjects with "The Harbor."

Mrs. Goldsmith gave those present a genuine surprise in presenting Mrs. Eunice Tietjens of Chicago, associate editor of Poetry Magazine and Literary Review, both devoted to modern verse. The distinguished guest captivated her hearers by reading verses from Rupert Brooke's sonnets. This genius who gave his life for glorifying war, was a personal friend of Mrs. Tietjens. She read several of her own clever poems in conclusion.

Each speaker grasped the opportunity of clever and inspiring retrospect in her subject, among the most brilliant being Miss Leonard, who told how 'once on a time' a little band of eighteen longed for a cruise, a real voyage upon a real sea; how they started out to sea in an untried bark with hearts fired by purpose strong; how the winds of varying opinions began to blow, from the East and West, but the little bark held together through the strain (of deciding upon a name); how, at the very outset of the voyage, the bark was enveloped in a most dreaded fog—parliamentary fog—which bewildered and blinded, but the stern command of one who knew was obeyed and soon that peril was passed. Then an iceberg hove in sight, but the worthy captain knew his course and steered clear. How later, the waves of dissension washed over the decks, if the sea ran a bit heavy, and swells of pride beat themselves into froth; how one day there came a mighty hurricane—a hurricane of ambition. The air was filled with dramatics (referring to Rose of the Wind, produced at the Little Theater); flashes of inspiration lit the sky; the ominous old ocean tumbled and tossed. The little bark creaked and snapped and quivered; then came the deluge (of tickets) followed by the sunshine of prosperity and glory. "The little bark is coming in from her maiden voyage," said Miss Leonard, "a year's voyage on the deep sea. She has weathered the winds and waves, she has not foundered, she has not even a scratch. Her metals are shining, her decks are clean, her record unaparalled in the history of voyages. She is ready for new and greater dangers."

Those who were at table, which held choice floral decorations and old-fashioned frilled bouquets at each cover, together with quaint bits of verse, were Mrs. Hunnewell, Mrs. Goldsmith, Miss Frieda Peckye, Miss Gertrude Comstock, Mrs. Fred Selwyn Lang, Mrs. Blanche Hardy Morgan, Miss Holmes, Mrs. Alfred Whitney Allen, Mrs. James Bert Stearns, Mrs. Lavinia Graham, Mrs. Eunice Tietjens, Mrs. Chauncey L. Higbee, Mrs. M. Lamont Davidson, Mrs. Helene Sullivan Treen, Mrs. Frederick West, Mrs. Dorothy Johnston, Miss Beulah Wright, and Miss Leonard.

Call for District Board Meeting.

Mrs. R. C. Shipman, corresponding secretary of the Los Angeles District of Federated Clubs, has issued a call for a board meeting to be held Thursday, July 8, at 10:30 o'clock, at Echo Park. Picnic lunch.

Audubon Society.

The Audubon Society of Los Angeles has just closed a most successful year. Many new members have been added and, as the society is now in the Federated Clubs, presidents and members from all over the country are beginning to evince great interest in the work of the society. Mrs. Robert Fargo, the president, has been reelected.

During the past year many well-known scientists have given lectures of great instructive value before interested audiences, and the field days have been of even greater service, giving an opportunity to display knowledge gleaned at the indoor meetings.

At the monthly field days ninety-eight birds were discovered and studied in their haunts at the beach, mountain and valley.

The society has a member a real bird woman who makes her home among the treetops at the brow of Fellowship Hill. Here, with flowing water and hidden springs, honey-laden flowers, ripe berries and fruit, she bids welcome to all the feathered hosts who flock her way.

The Audubons have made it a yearly event to visit her and here they went for their annual June disbanding day. It could not be called a meeting of local Audubons, as representatives from sixteen different States and Canada were present. Mr. Carew, the international secretary of the Authors' Association, shares the honors of the bill with the bird hostess, Mrs. De Normandie, and it was under the live oaks of his estate where luncheon was served.

The treasurer, Mrs. F. T. Bicknell, who could not be present on account of illness, sent greetings. J. V. Frederic told of his appreciation of the mocker as a jolly good fellow and entertainer, and read a poem by Mrs. Frederic. Mrs. George I. Lytle's favorite was the Bruer blackbird. Miss Mable Derby gave an "Ode to Birds." Mrs. William Boorman sang "Birdies Ball," all joining in the chorus. Mrs. Johnson contributed an "Ode to the Soaring Eagle." The mocker was a prime favorite of Mrs. Anthony and Mrs. W. F. Ireland.

The oriole was praised in song by Mrs. Clarence Hall, and Mrs. George Crane thought the bluebird the most royal of all.

Friday Evening,
July 9th
at 7:45 o'Clock

This lady will tell how she is making a splendid income on her little farm at Ramona Acres.

Her rabbits, the finest New Zealands, have captured a score of ribbons at the Los Angeles shows. Her poultry has run a close second, and yet she started with practically nothing a very short time ago.

Come and hear how you can own a beautiful suburban home in the prettiest part of the San Gabriel Valley, 29 minutes from Sixth and Main Sts., and MAKE A GOOD LIVING from rabbits, chickens and your garden.

Others are doing it and NOW put their salary into the bank each month instead of into canned goods, withered vegetables and condensed milk.

$50 STARTS you—suburban farms at WILMAR ACRES as low as $925—adjoining the famous Ramona Acres.

Come and hear Mrs. Richey—see the pictures—learn how you can have "A better living with better pay." Friday evening at 7:45 o'clock.

NEW WAYS TO HANDLE ORES.

New Processes Playing Large Part in Present Great Mining Activity.

New and simplified treatment of ores plays no small part in the great revival in mining that is putting new life into the business sinews of the great Southwest.

Among the new processes, already fully tried or under actual working test, are the dry concentrating process at the Frederickson mill in the Platina district in the southern triangle of Nevada, and the flotation process now being used at the Golconda in Arizona. The latter is a process for treating gold and silver with pine oil.

There is also under test in a number of the newer properties a process whereby gold may be reduced directly to slime, obviating the use of stamps or plates.

The Potosi mine has installed an interesting roaster, which raises the productivity of zinc ore about 15 per cent., making marketable a product which would otherwise be of too low grade to be worked with profit.

Mining in the Southwest.

water, a good school and hospital and has many pleasant features, which a town of ten times its size might boast.

The Gold Roads, nearest neighbor to the Tom Reed, is well known to Angelenos. It is now owned by the United States Smelting, Refining and Mining Company. This mine is also a big producer, some of its fine specimen ore having been seen in Los Angeles.

NEED FOR SMELTERS.

While such properties as the United Verde of Bisbee and the Phelps-Dodge interests at Prescott have their own smelters, there are many producing mines which are obliged at present to send their ore for smelting to Iola, Kan., to Oklahoma and even as far East as Iowa. The big smelters at Morenci have more than they can do and with new producers coming in constantly and the probability of even greater activity during the year, if the present prices of copper, lead and zinc continue in effect, there is a well defind need for smelters near at hand and, according to those who have studied the situation, there is no reason why Los Angeles should not furnish such facilities.

In fact, as has recently been pointed out by experts in this line, there is every reason why Los Angeles should become not only a smelting center for copper, lead and zinc, by reason of the availability of all flux ores in the vicinity, but it is not only possible but quite probable that it may become an iron and steel center. With deposits of iron in the Eagly Mountains of San Bernardino county, containing fully 60,000,000 tons of iron ore, according to United States geological survey, and fully 20,000,000 tons more in the Cave Canyon deposit—all of which were purchased by E. H. Harriman a short time before his death, with the avowed intention of establishing steel works at Los Angeles; and with still further deposits amounting to from 6000 to 10,000 tons of high-grade soft, hematite ore near Kelso, supplemented by other iron deposits on the Santa Fe, in San Bernardino county, and on the Salt Lake in the Kingston Mountains, and elsewhere representing an aggregate of at least 125,000,000 tons in sight, there seems no reason to doubt that such an industry may be established here in the future, by capital which is never slow to recognize opportunity. This is especially true in view of the promised supply of cheap coal from Alaska, together with the available supply from Washington and Utah. Climatic conditions are said to be especially favorable for such work, guaranteeing a lower cost of production than elsewhere. Lime, suitable for blast furnaces, is available upon every railroad line entering Los Angeles, and could be transported at very low cost.

NEVADA MINES.

The craze for copper, lead and zinc has in no wise dethroned gold, and those who believe that the stable metal is the only thing for which to mine are as busy as ever prospecting for the always precious product, and the increase in demand for all metals has set old mines into operation and is leading to the opening of new ones.

Nevada, nearest neighbor to Los Angeles in the way of gold-producing fields, is of never-decreasing interest, and its prosperity always means much to us.

Goldfield, after an unwelcome interruption caused by litigation among some of its principal producers, bids fair to resume its boom. The suits between the Merger and the Booth Mining Company having been settled by a recapitalization and passing over of a block of the Merger stock to the Reorganized Booth Mining Company, and the Jumbo Extension increasing its capitalization and conferring a block of stock upon the Merger in recognition of apex rights, has cleared the atmosphere and Goldfield seems to have before it an era of progress. Since, however, apex suits seem to be in vogue, there is a present threat of similar litigation between the Florence and the Atlanta. However, so far as the public is concerned, the fact that there are values over which to fight awakens interest which, in the long run, rather benefits the camp.

Notwithstanding the seemingly unfavorable conditions of leases given on Consolidated ground, rumor has it that at least one of the leasers on this property has cleaned up over $100,000 net within five months.

The Atlanta, after much preliminary work, will, it is predicted, become one of the big producers of the camp. It is now putting out on an average about fifty tons daily.

A recent combination of properties in Tonopah is likely to result in benefit to that camp. The Tonopah Extension has taken over all holdings of the Tonopah Victor and the Tonopah Merger, the latter consisting of 576 acres of patented ground. This combination places the new corporation in possession of area, ore bodies and milling facilities insuring broad development.

The Old Belmont district has been taken over by the Nelson brothers, formerly of Goldfield, and has been equipped by them for development on a large scale. This camp, which was of great importance in the old silver days, was worked for nothing under $100 ore, owing to the difficulties of transportation and the crude methods of treating ore, but with improved machinery promises to be one of the big producers.

The Round Mountain Mining Company of Round Mountain, Nev., is about completing a pipe line from Jett Canyon, about eight miles away, and will begin placer mining at an early date. James R. Davis was recently elected president of this company.

PROMISING DISTRICT.

A promising district now under development by Los Angeles capital is that of Twenty-nine Palms, about sixty-five miles northeast of Banning, in San Bernardino county. The Anaconda has uncovered some wide ledges running up to $42 in gold, according to recent showing.

Another locality which is attracting attention and which is of interest to Los Angeles, by reason of development under Los Angeles capital, is that of Gold Strike, in Southern Utah, not far from Modena. Granville H. Hayes of the famous Hayes-Monnette bonanza lease of Goldfield has recently examined this district and reports favorably upon it. Mr. Hayes owns a big copper proposition in the vicinity of Globe which he intends working soon.

Los Angeles and Pasadena people have taken over the Union Hill property at Grass Valley, and the Tightener and the Pennsylvania have made sensational records during the past year.

The Cerro Gordo at Keeler has proven itself an excellent producer in silver-lead, under the management of L. D. Gordon.

In the southern end of Death Valley at Zabriski, on the Tonopah and Tidewater, Messrs. McCausland and Nolan of Los Angeles are doing considerable development.

Not only is Los Angeles the logical center for both the capital to be used in the development of the resources of Southern Nevada and Arizona as well as in Southern California, and for the supplies to be furnished to those places, but there has been, during the past year or more, a united effort upon the part of prominent men interested in the welfare of mining, to safeguard this great industry.

The Chamber of Mines, since its organization some time since with S. E. Vermilyea as president and G. M. Swindell as secretary, has made great progress in the matter of placing authentic information at the disposal of would-be investors and has also interested itself in securing legislation which will insure the mining business against the depredations of sharks such as have tended to give it an unsavory reputation. The good work begun under Mr. Vermilyea's leadership is being continued with Warren C. Kennedy as president. The chamber is actively supported by such men as Norman Bridge, Seeley W. Mudd, J. Ross Clark, L. P. St. Clair, C. Colcock Jones, Thomas Thorkildsen, D. F. McGarry and others equally prominent—men who have at heart the best interests of the mining and oil business. Fine collections of ores are shown at the chamber, in the Germain Building.

An extremely beautiful as well as interesting collection of the Bisbee ores is to be seen there. The colors are wonderfully brilliant and the arrangement in cases is most artistic. There is also a collection from the Boss Mine of the Platina district.

In a city which owes to the mining industry, both directly and indirectly, many of its greatest fortunes, anything beneficial to that industry should receive spontaneous support.

While conservative men deplore anything approaching a "boom," there is no gainsaying the fact that mining, in all its branches, at the present moment is enjoying a revival which cannot but elicit the attention of the world; and Southern California is bound to receive its full share in this attention and will benefit inestimably by the revival, both in proceeds of the mines and in the trade in commodities which it must, in the natural order of things, supply.

ALLIES ARE TO HONOR OUR DAY.

AMERICANS OF ENGLISH BLOOD WILL GIVE PROGRAMME MONDAY NIGHT.

In honor of America Day an interesting programme of music, speeches and recitals will be given in Trinity Auditorium tomorrow evening under the auspices of the British-American League. A similar affair in Blanchard Hall two months ago drew such an immense crowd that it was deemed necessary to secure larger quarters for this event.

One of the distinct features of the programme will be a flag ceremonial when the Stars and Stripes will be saluted by an allied orchestra, French drummers and Belgian trumpeters, under Capt. Domecus. This will be followed by the singing of "God Save the King" and "My Country 'Tis of Thee." It is expected no event in the city will be marked by such patriotic enthusiasm.

A song, "Angus Macdonald," by Roechel, to be sung by Eva Mylott, also will be one of the interesting numbers. Miss Mylott is a charming young Australian contralto, who shares honors with Melba in the affection of her countrymen. She is considered one of the foremost soloists in the country and a musical prodigy, having at the age of 7 had Australasia at her feet. Her success has been remarkable and everywhere she has appeared she has been greeted with much praise and enthusiasm.

Bruce Gordon Kingsley will play the grand organ. His number will be an improvisation of English, Scottish and Irish melodies compiled by himself and introducing some of the world-famous songs of these countries.

Dr. Kingsley, who was formerly concert organist at the Alexandra Palace, London, where he had at his command an organ unsurpassed in Europe, has just returned to Los Angeles after a highly successful tour of three years. At the San Francisco exposition he gave thirty-five recitals.

Following is the programme for tomorrow night:

Piano selection, Prof. Anton Dahl; chairman's address, Mr. Edmund Mitchell; song, patriotic, "Marseillaise," Henry Cottave; harp solo, Myrtle Ouellet; song, "Angus Macdonald" (Roechel,) Eva Mylott, the famous Australian contralto; address, Rev. Baker P. Lee; grand organ, improvisation of English, Scottish and Irish airs, Dr. Bruce Gordon Kingsley; selected songs, Marie Sweet-Baker; Japanese fantasy, Miss Hana Skita; "The Italian Immigrant," recital talk, F. Grant Evans; Saxophone solo, Mrs. Frederick A. Jungquist; whistling solo, "Bird Raptures" (Schneider,) Gertrude Willey; address, Mr. Reynold E. Blight; selection, pipes, Watson's Royal Scottish Pipe Band of California; Servian national kolo; piano selection, Prof. Anton Dahl; flag ceremonial, saluting the Stars and Stripes, by allied orchestra, French drummers and Belgian trumpeters, under Capt. Domecus; director, Dr. Edward P. Bailey; national hymns of all the allies; "God Save the King;" "My Country 'Tis of Thee."

EXAMINATION SET.

Patrick Lamay, who killed his wife, the mother of seven children, was taken before Justice Summerfield yesterday, where his preliminary examination was set for Friday. A complaint charging him with murder was made out by Deputy District Attorney Joos.

HOMESTEADS IN THE SOUTHLAND.

Much Unappropriated Land Still to be Had.

Many Opportunities Await Ambitious Man.

Desert Entries are Available; County Acreages.

The old saying that the homestead laws of the United States amount to a bet by Uncle Sam of $16 that the homesteader would starve to death on his entry of 160 acres is recalled by the figures given out by the local Land Office yesterday, giving the acreage of unappropriated, surveyed and unsurveyed land in the jurisdiction of Register Roche and Receiver Mitchell.

The record of the office indicates that 75 per cent. of the business transacted relative to homestead and desert land entries is in the shape of "assignments," and that but for the volume of this class of business there would soon be an end of the local activities in the public land question that would result very soon in the closing of the office.

There is nothing more alluring than the idea of getting public land at a minimum price, and no matter how hard the conditions, and the labor necessary to make even a comfortable home, there is always a cloud of applicants, but few appreciating what they must go through before patent is issued. This they discover later on and become discouraged, and the next best thing is to "assign" all right, title and interest in the entry to someone else who has yet to learn the hardships connected with the contract of making a home in the desert and mountainous sections of Southern California. The holdings of the original entryman are thus secured, sometimes at a price that makes the first man whole financially, but more often he loses much of his investment and the second man takes up the burden, possibly to push it through, more probably to sell it to some other ambitious but inexperienced head of a family who is trying to get a farm "on a shoestring."

OF ALL KINDS.

At the close of the fiscal year there were 7,822,299 acres of public land in the nine counties comprising the local district, of which 6,226,940 acres are surveyed and subject to entry and 1,595,359 acres unsurveyed. The character of this land varies from level and arid desert to mountainous and hilly, with rolling land in five of the nine counties. In the most of the land there is no known source of water supply, and unless some is developed it is worthless for farming use. Much of the acreage also exists in small areas, and in every instance all the best land has long since been appropriated under the homestead and desert land laws, it being the policy of the land department to encourage the settlement and improvement of the public land as much as possible.

San Bernardino county has the largest amount of unappropriated public land in the district, with 3,612,558 acres. Of this amount 416,766 acres are unsurveyed and 3,195,792 acres surveyed. The character of the land in this county is hilly and rolling.

Riverside county has the next largest area, with a total of 1,840,1[illegible] acres, of which 417,855 acres are unsurveyed and 1,422,315 acres surveyed. This is also hilly and rolling in character.

Although thousands of fine farms have been created in Imperial county there are still 933,551 acres of unappropriated land within the county. Of this area, 212,560 acres are unsurveyed and 720,991 acres surveyed. Here the great problem of water has been solved, and the result is that the section, but a few years ago an arid desert, now blossoms and blooms as the rose. It would seem from the amount of public land yet to be had in Imperial county that there are yet plenty of opportunities to get fine homes for the man who has the nerve to go there and utilize the opportunities that will be presented to him. American grit and sticktoitiveness will accomplish anything.

OTHER COUNTIES.

Los Angeles county has 701,7[illegible] acres of unappropriated public land of an arid, level and mountainous character. Of the total area, 13[illegible] acres are unsurveyed and 56[illegible] acres surveyed. The great majority of this land exists in small pieces here and there scattered through the forest reserve and out-of-the-way places. But there is a lot of good land to be had in Los Angeles county for the man who has a number of hard days' work in his right arm.

San Diego county has a total of 508,144 acres of unappropriated public land, consisting of 333,798 acres unsurveyed and 174,345 acres surveyed.

Ventura has 98,871 acres, of which 53,018 acres are unsurveyed and 45,8[illegible] acres surveyed.

Kern county follows with a total acreage of 57,624, of which 14,347 acres are unsurveyed and 43,277 are surveyed.

Santa Barbara county has a total of 47,654 acres of land of a mountainous, hilly character, unappropriated, of which 6176 acres are unsurveyed and 41,478 acres surveyed.

Orange county has the smallest acreage unappropriated, the figures being 22,720 acres, of which 190[illegible] acres are unsurveyed and 20,101 surveyed.

SIGN REFERENDUM.

Voters Rush to Halt Nonpartisan Bills to be Voted Upon in October—Thousands to Sign.

Voters are rushing to sign the referendum petitions which will be used to halt the nonpartisan bills jammed through the recent Legislature by Gov. Johnson with the express purpose of destroying political parties and perpetuating the Governor's personal political machine.

The petitions are being circulated in Southern California through all party organizations, the Republicans, Democrats, Socialists and Prohibitionists having joined to gather 44,[illegible] names necessary.

Assemblyman Bartlett is in charge of the work and each member of the Republican County Central Committee has a copy of the petition. Mr. Bartlett announces that a petition is available at No. 510 Chamber of Commerce Building for any who care to sign.

R. P. Benton, another Republican Assemblyman, is also active in circulating petitions, and it is hoped to have thousands of signers before the end of the coming week.

The northern end of the party work is being handled vigorously at San Francisco, all State organizations assisting in gathering names.

WHAT WOMEN HAVE DONE FOR THE GREAT EXPOSITION.

Noble and Efficient Work of the Women's Board Toward the Success of the San Francisco Fair—Women Sculptors and Artists who Shine in the Colonnades and Palaces—Educational Efforts and Other Endeavors.

BY JEANNE REDMAN.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

EXPOSITION GROUNDS, SAN FRANCISCO, July 2.—Having watched the participation of the women of San Francisco and the State of California in the Panama-Pacific International Exposition, I have come to the conclusion that their knowledge of their equal political privileges with the men who have done the work of the exposition has encouraged and stimulated them to greater endeavor and accomplishment.

As painters, sculptors, designers, decorators and models, they have won recognition from all visitors to the exposition, but perhaps they have shown most brilliantly as hostesses.

Many of the activities of women were generated in the work of the Women's Board of the P.P.I.E. At every other World's Fair the auxiliary women worker has been remunerated, in the cases where a monthly salary was not paid the women were provided with the money for traveling and other incidentals. The Women's Board of this exposition receives no reimbursement whatever. The women pay their expenses. They even paid rent for their offices in the Administration Building of the downtown exposition offices throughout the period of building and preparation. They never can have it said of them that they have imposed upon the body of the exposition.

THE WOMEN'S BOARD.

Shortly after its organization and incorporation under the laws of California, the Women's Board tendered its services to the directorate of the exposition, saying that it would do any work which would be assigned to it. The men's directorate then asked the women to furnish, maintain and administer, throughout the exposition, the California Building, which is the host building for the year.

The women had no means save a very small fund accumulated through the sale of stock in the Women's Board at $10 a share, but they determined to do the work and accepted the responsibility. The success of their enterprise is visible in the huge rooms of the California Building, which attest the taste and generosity of the women who did the work and furnished the means. This building is the scene of gorgeous social affairs and cordial hospitality to the public, who are welcomed to the dansants which are held in the ballroom every day.

The manner in which the women obtained the money to furnish and maintain the California Building was as follows: A county auxiliary to the Women's Board was organized in every one of the fifty-eight counties of California. Women were invited to join the auxiliaries at $2 each, and was given the privilege also of purchasing a pin, the badge of auxiliary membership, at $1. The purchase of the pin, however, was optional, but most of those who became auxiliary members bought it. Many thousands of women were thus brought into the work with the result that each felt that she had a share in the exposition. In return the women were given club privileges in a suite of beautiful rest and tea rooms in the California Building set aside for the use of the California auxiliaries. That the remuneration was sufficient has been amply shown by the fact that many women have sought the auxiliary privileges since the opening of the fair, having discovered that it is a very desirable thing to have some place to go and rest in perfect ease after the hours of arduous traveling through the grounds.

The organization of the State into auxiliaries had an excellent result; it was the means of obtaining a sum sufficient for the needs of furnishing the building and maintaining it, and it aided the scheme of hospitality, since the members are permitted to bring guests and extend to them the advantages of the host building.

The board also organized a permanent, non-political, non-sectarian Travelers' Aid Society, which looks after the great crowds of visitors which pour into the city every day. As this is a permanent society, it will be of great help in assimilating the emigration which will follow the exposition and the opening of the Panama Canal.

TO MOTHERHOOD.

An organization within the board is known as the Pioneer Mothers' Monument Association, which collected a fund of $25,000 to erect a handsome monument to motherhood, and especially dedicated to the "Pioneer Mothers of the West." This bronze sculpture is to stand as a permanent memorial in the Civic Center of San Francisco after the exposition. At present it is in the colonnade of the Palace of Fine Arts, an inspiring piece of bronze done by Charles Gafly of Philadelphia, which represents the typical pioneer mother in the garb in which she is supposed to have crossed the plains, with her sunbonnet tilted back on her head, the light of love and determination in her face, and two children, a boy and a girl, standing at each side.

Aside from what has been done entirely by the board, or under its auspices or influence, much creative work had been done by individual women in the form of architectural or monumental sculpture.

"EL DORADO."

Mrs. Gertrude Vanderbilt Whitney of New York has two notable fountains which take their place beside the best the exposition can show. Her mural fountain, "El Dorado," at the left of the entrance inside the Tower of Jewels, has great strength and felicity of design, while the note of regret, despair even, is brought out with great force. Men and women, in the nude, push and scramble toward the land of promise, some of them fall by the wayside, and as the two foremost reach the doors of El Dorado they find them locked, with two immovable-looking slaves guarding them. The chase has been in vain; there is no land of El Dorado that man can reach.

The note of futility expressed so powerfully in this piece is balanced by the "Fountain of Youth" by Edith Woodman Burroughs which is a companion piece to "El Dorado." Here is a girl on the verge of womanhood, or rather on the childish side of girlhood, for she does not yet even look into the future. She is full of trust and ambition has not yet made its imprint upon her. She lacks the eager look of straining womanhood; she is simply youth itself. On each side of her pedestal sit old people, looking at the symbol of their lost youth, with feverish yearning.

Evelyn Beatrice Longman's "Ceres" in the Court of the Four Seasons shows the mature goddess having alighted on a pedestal, about which exquisite maidens dance, the latter figures in low relief.

Mrs. Whitney's other piece is in the patio of the California Building and is the only marble sculpture to be found out of doors at the entire exposition.

In the Palace of Fine Arts there are hundreds of women exhibiting in the sections of painting, prints, etchings and lithographs. Women are an integral part in this exposition and they are given an excellent opportunity to display their abilities; an opportunity perhaps greater than has ever before been accorded them at a world's fair, and they strive to make it felt that they are commercial factors of importance and worthy in every way of the privileges they have received from the State of California.

SMALL SCULPTURES.

Perhaps in no place is woman so felicitously evident as in the quality and quantity of her small bronzes and marbles around the Fine Arts Colonnade and Lagoon. Janet Scudder's Young Pan, Fighting Boys, Shell Fountain, Little Ladies of the Seas and Frog Fountain are one of the charms of this heavenly by-way. Evelyn Beatrice Longman's marble, "L'Amour" has a delicacy of feeling and a beauty of conception that is set most charmingly in the colonnade with a background of green larches and climbing roses. Her statue of Ceres in the Court of Abundance is also worthy of mention. Olga Popoff Muller's Primitive Man is a striking example of the small bronzes with the waters of the lagoon behind it. The Lion and Lioness at the end of the colonnade, guarding one of the entrances to the Fine Arts Palace, is the work of Anna Vaughn Hyatt who has a number of splendid offerings in the Palace itself. The Sword is an Anna Coleman Ladd statue which is attracting commendation. One of the prettiest bits of sculpture at the exposition and one that adorns the Sargent room, is a sun-dial, The Lilies, by Lucy Richards. Piping Satyrs, by Alice Morgan Wright, occupies a place among the willows. Emily Clayton Bishop has a number of splendid bronzes, and marbles, among the most noticeable being Greed and The Bacchic Dancer. Malvina Hoffman's studies of Russian dancing, including a bronze of Pavlowa and Novikoff, are most interesting, as are Margaret Hoard's "The Old Woman and Eve." Anna Vaughan Hyatt and Grace Mott Johnson have specialized on animal sculpture and are earning much commendation. Gertrude Boyle Kanno's masterpiece, the head of Joaquin Miller and a bust of William Keith, occupy pedestals in the entrance to the Art Palace. Bessie Potter Vonnoh's Motherhood and A Young Mother, both marbles, express a feeling, and understanding. Annetta Johnson Saint Gaudens excels in medallions and busts, her medallion called "Baby" drawing much admiration.

A SWEDISH NOTABLE.

Perhaps the woman artist who stands out pre-eminently as having achieved something well worth a place among the immortals, is Anna Boberg of Sweden. Her work is done in big, bold, strong strokes, with daring colors and rugged conception. She has taken for her subjects the glacier lakes, fjords, arctic nights and fishing villages snuggled in the shadow of ice-cliffs. Three other Swedish women who have won renown and who are exhibitors in this section are Agnes Wieslander, Anna Vrongel and Mathilda Osterlond-Wigert. Three women sculptors, Lena Borjeson, Ruth Milles and Alice Nordin, occupy prominent places in the Swedish room of sculpture and etchings.

Mademoiselle Betty de Jong of Paris, a societaire and also a member of the jury of the Automne Salon of 1913, is showing three fine examples, work strong in coloring and feeling. One is entitled "The Dancing Girl," another is a portrait and the third is entitled Beatrix and is a study of an old Spanish type, done near Monterey, in the San Juan country. Cecilia Beaux expresses her genius, which is causing considerable stir in art circles, in a number of portraits and character studies, "The Dreamer" receiving considerable praise by connoisseurs. As a voice from the past, when for women to achieve in the great world of art was almost a miracle, there is one lone picture of the ever-beloved Rosa Bonheur, it is a peaceful, pastoral project, Goats at Rest.

It is impossible to go into detail about all the women in this department, but two hundred women have contributed their talent.

PHILIPPINE EXHIBIT.

In the Philippines Educational Exhibit two women stand out pre-eminently as having done marvelous things for the children of our insular possessions. They are Mrs. Mira MacClay Kelley and Miss Fanny Magee. The former was the first white woman who went among the Igorrotes. Her husband was a mining man and her interest in the so primitive people and her insight into their native intelligence, bade her lead them into enlightenment. What was an avocation in the beginning, terminated in a vocation and it is to this brilliant woman's energy that the Igorrotes owe their present state of awakening and progress.

SUFFRAGE ASSOCIATION.

The National Suffrage Association is well represented and the Congressional Woman's Suffrage Association, through the munificence of Mrs. William Kent, the wife of the California Socialist Congressman, has a rostrum where the foremost women of the world congregate and hold conferences and deliver addresses. Some of the women who have visited the booth since the opening of the exposition are Mrs. May Wright Sewall, Madame Montessori, Mrs. Pethick Lawrence, Miss Gail Laughlin, Madame Zelie Nuttall and Miss Anne Morgan.

The Elizabeth McCormick Fund for open air schools in Chicago is ably represented by Miss Mary E. Murphy, who is conducting a comprehensive aggregation of models and charts, which tell the story of this great philanthropic work.

Smith's College has an attractive corner under the direction of Miss Louise Willison, where women are made to feel at home and, through photographs and interesting data, are shown what the alumnae of this great woman's university have done for education, art and philanthropy.

Miss Louise Brigham of Boston has a model home of eight rooms, where every bit of the furniture is made and designed of box lumber. Her mission in life is to bear the message of beauty and artistic environment into the humblest homes, to place a charming abiding place within the means of the poorest.

Miss V. C. Hicks of Oakland has a booth where the backward child is given an opportunity to evolve into a normal and active intelligence. Applied arts and sciences from about San Francisco Bay are taken care of by Miss Rodin, who has collected in her delightful corner specimens and examples of what is possible in student life in the way of home adornment.

THE POLICEWOMAN.

And this is not all. In Toyland on the Zone a lovely woman is emancipated into a policewoman. Mrs. Blanche Payson, 6 feet, 4 inches tall, has charge of the playground and dance hall.

As for the business of the Exposition, much of it is done by women. There are women secretaries, women writers, women stenographers, women cashiers, women book-keepers, women clerks. On the Zone there are women musicians. Thespians, dark beauties from the south seas, dsuky belles from Africa and the Orient, women clowns, women animal trainers, women riders, women spielers, in fact the whole Exposition is one long example of what modernity is doing towards enlarging woman's possibilities.

ACCUSED MAN EXONERATED.

MEMBER OF SEPULVEDA FAMILY FREED OF CHARGE.

Held for Alleged Contribution to Delinquency of Minor Married Woman, He Fights Case to Successful Finish—May Sue His Accusers for Conspiracy.

The exoneration of John V. Apablasa, a member of the wealthy Sepulveda family of this city, of the charge of contributing to the dependency of Mrs. Elizabeth O'Bradovich, a minor, was complete in Judge Guy's court, San Diego, yesterday. The court dismissed the case after stating in unequivocal language that there was no ground for such a charge.

Mr. Apablasa, who was represented by Ingle Carpenter of this city and San Diego attorneys, declares he will start proceedings against all the parties concerned in his arrest and the framed-up charge. He says it was a plot to discredit him, and his suit will be based on conspiracy.

The arrest of Mr. Apablasa two weeks ago created a sensation not only in San Diego, where he resides, but in this city, where he is favorably known. Protesting his innocence, he prepared for trial, confident of success. When the court exonerated him his friends practically carried him out of the courtroom in their joy.

DE CHAUVENET RECITAL.

Large Audience Greets Appearance of Local Musical Artists Who Give Recital at Trinity.

A large and enthusiastic audience was in attendance at the musicale given by Mr. and Mrs. Jean de Chauvenet Friday morning at Trinity Auditorium. They were assisted by Myrtle Ouellet, harpist, and Oscar Werner, violinist.

Mr. de Chauvenet's compositions for organ were enjoyed. A particularly pleasing number was the "Ave Maria" with harp, organ and violin, sung by Mrs. De Chauvenet.

Following was the programme:

Toccata, D minor (Bach,) French Toccata (De Chauvenet,) Jean de Chauvenet; "Ave Maria" (Bach-Gounod,) with violin, harp and organ, Mrs. Jean de Chauvenet; "Romanze" (Joseph Joachim,) "Mazurka" (Jarzycki,) Oscar Werner (Mrs. Werner at the piano;) Grand Offertory (Batiste,) Jean de Chauvenet; Fantasy (harp) (Miller,) Miss Myrtle Ouellet; "The California Poppy" (poem by Mrs. De Chauvenet) (De Chauvenet,) "Swallows" (Dell' Acqua,) Mrs. Jean de Chauvenet; "Meditation" from "Thais" (Massenet,) "Moon Moths" (Kussner,) Jean de Chauvenet; "God's Voice in Music" (five minutes' talk,) Rev. Charles C. Selecman; Hungarian Gypsy Airs (Ernst,) Oscar Werner; "Love's Eternal Triumph" (De Chauvenet,) Jean de Chauvenet.

CADMAN MUSICALE.

Noted Composer Presents a Very Enjoyable Programme at Krotona Institute—Singer Assists.

A very enjoyable musicale was given by the composer, Charles Wakefield Cadman, assisted by Mrs. Emma Porter Makinson, No. 1227 North Rampart boulevard, soprano, Friday night at the Krotona Institute of Theosophy in Hollywood. Mrs. Makinson presents Mr. Cadman's music very delightfully, her voice being particularly sympathetic with the aim and object of his musical genius.

The following programme was listened to by a very appreciative audience:

Japanese Cycle "Sayonara," "The Pompadour's Fan," "To a Vanishing Race" and "Indian Night Song," piano; four American Indian songs; Second Movement Sonata in A Major, piano; "At Dawn," "Reincarnate," "From Wigwam and Tepee."

How to Fight Tuberculosis

Dr. J. W. Carhart, of San Antonio, Texas, says: "Since lime salts constitute three-fourths of all the mineral substances of the human body, they must be supplied in the foods or supplemented in mineral preparations, or natural starvation ensues, with tuberculosis unchecked. The spread of tuberculosis and other preventable diseases is due largely to decalcified (lime lacking) conditions of multitudes throughout the civilized world."

Since lime is one of the ingredients of Eckman's Alterative, much of its success doubtless is due to its combination in such a way as to render it easily assimilable.

Eckman's Alterative has effected remarkable results in tuberculosis, which, in many instances, apparently has yielded to it, and since it contains no opiates, narcotics or habit-forming drugs, it is safe to try.

Overell Force To Share Profit.

Los Angeles Firm Adopts Plan by Which Employees and Public Will Benefit.

A plan through which employees will share in the profits of the business has been announced by A. O. Overell, manager of the J. M. Overell Company, Seventh and Main streets. This interesting innovation in the methods of conducting a retail business was outlined by Mr. Overell Friday night at a meeting of the employees. The announcement was received with enthusiasm.

Although the present plan will materially benefit the employees, Mr. Overell stated that he hoped to be able in the near future to announce a more liberal plan in the interests of both employees and patrons.

"My study of the industrial situation," said Mr. Overell, "has led me to regard my business as the property of the public and my employees as much as myself and I am determined to conduct it on a profit-sharing basis not only with my employees, but with my patrons as well. Success in the present day of rapid progress depends upon one thing only, and that is the ability to serve.

"My plan is to increase the efficiency of this house, to keep pace with modern progress and meet the demands of the public and give our friends and patrons the benefit of our increased ability to serve them and invite them to share in our profits by offering better values at greatly reduced prices.

"The ultimate goal of this firm is to open a greater field of usefulness in which will be found opportunity for all to prosper and grow."

Following Mr. Overell, Ira A. Overell, secretary and treasurer of the concern, offered suggestions for increasing efficienty. Many employees responded with speeches expressing appreciation.

Furniture Company Announces It Will Share Profits With Employees—Also Its Patrons.

At a meeting of the employees and officers of the J. M. Overell Furniture Company, Main and Seventh streets, A. O. Overell, the manager, announced that in the future every employee of the company will share in its dividends. Mr. Overell also stated that this is just an experimental move, that the company has in consideration further plans whereby the employees and patrons will further share in the profits.

Ira R. Overell, the secretary and treasurer, told of the belief the company has in such a plan and outlined a manner whereby the profits can be increased by greater efficiency in the administration of all departments, urging the employees to adopt these matters so as to better their own condition.

Overell Employees To Share Profits.

Company Outlines Plans at Enthusiastic Meeting Held at Store.

Enthusiasm reached high point at a meeting of the employees of the J. M. Overell Furniture company last evening in their store at Seventh and Main streets, when Mr. A. O. Overell, in an eloquent address to the officers and employees, unfolded a broad and comprehensive plan for the future, by which every employee will share in the dividends of the company.

Mr. Overell said the plan is only in the experimental stage, and he hopes in the near future to be able to announce a much more liberal offer in the interest of employees and patrons as well. Mr. Overell said:

"My deep study of the industrial situation has led me to regard my business as the property of the public and my employees as much as of myself. I am determined to conduct it on a profit-sharing basis, not only with my employees, but with my patrons as well.

"Success in the present day of progress depends on one thing only—the ability to serve.

"My plan is to increase the efficiency of this house, to keep pace with modern progress and meet the demands of the public and give our friends and patrons the benefit of our increased ability to serve them."

Following the elder Mr. Overell, Ira R. Overell, secretary and treasurer of the company, offered a few suggestions for increasing efficiency.

Many employees responded with speeches expressive of appreciation.

L.A.I. Trial.

DEFENDANTS TO ASK DISMISSAL.

Accused not Implicated by Testimony, is Claim.

Government Ends Presentation of Direct Evidence.

Reading of Minute Books Occupies Session.

Yesterday the government concluded the presentation of direct testimony in the trial of Charles A. Elder and ten associates in the former management of the Los Angeles Investment Company, charged with conspiracy to defraud by the use of the mails. Yesterday marked the end of the sixth week of the trial.

It is expected that a number of attorneys for individual defendants will move to dismiss the indictment as to their clients when court reconvenes tomorrow morning. Attorney Valentine for Charles Cassatt Davis and Attorney Hanna for Gates stated that they would make such motions and other attorneys are known to have the matter under consideration. The grounds in each case will be, it is understood, that nothing in the evidence of the government has connected the particular defendants with the acts charged.

Attorney Oscar Lawler occupied nearly the entire session yesterday with reading excerpts from the books containing the meetings of the stockholders and directors. These excerpts embraced such as were not read by United States District Attorney Schoonover, which the defense desired to have presented to the jury.

DID OTHER BUSINESS.

These excerpts were intended to show that the meetings were occupied with other business than the sale of stock, advancing the price of stock, borrowing money and advancing salaries, the impression intended to be produced by the excerpts read by Mr. Schoonover.

The minutes showed that the company began to buy isolated lots and contract for the erection of houses in 1901, houses and lots being bought and sold at a few hundred dollars' profit on each transaction. Later the company began to buy and build houses and sell on the installment plan.

The contract of the investment company with the Trinity Building Company for the erection of Trinity Auditorium was read, showing that the company was receiving 5 per cent. in addition to the actual expense of the work as its profit, taking a note for the amount at 7 per cent. interest payable in ten years with the privilege of renewal at the end of the term for an additional ten years, the company taking a trust deed as security.

OFFICE BUILDING AUTHORIZED.

In May, 1911, the erection of the building at Broadway and Eighth street was authorized at a cost not to exceed $1,000,000. Attorney Lawlor also read from Homes, the company's publication for June, 1913, the account of a banquet given Elder by the officers and employees of the corporation in celebration of the fortieth anniversary of his entrance into business life, in which it was stated that Elder began his business career as an office boy.

Superior Judge William S. Wells of Oakland entered the courtroom during the session and, at Judge Bledsoe's invitation, occupied a seat on the bench with Judge Bledsoe during the remainder of the session.

It is expected the greater part of tomorrow's session will be taken up with arguments on the motions to dismiss and at the conclusion of the arguments the defense will at once begin introducing of testimony. The session tomorrow will be held regardless of the Fourth of July celebration.

MINERAL WATERS MORE POPULAR.

PRODUCTS OF UNITED STATES IN GREATER DEMAND SINCE THE WAR.

Impossibility of importing large quantities of mineral waters from Europe has been giving this industry in the United States, and particularly in California, a great impetus, according to R. B. Dole of the United States Geological Survey, who has recently completed an investigation of California springs. The total American production is placed at 60,610,209 gallons and the value of this is given as approximately $6,000,000, making the value a gallon a little more than 9 cents.

California mineral waters, because of their medicinal properties, should be among the highest-priced, but are bottled and sold for considerably less than those imported from other countries and even less than many of the widely-advertised eastern waters. This State takes first rank for its sale of medicinal waters, which have a total value of $1,298,437 in the United States. New York, which operates more springs, comes second in the value of its waters.

The trade in mineral waters with Germany has decreased 50 per cent., while that with France and England has fallen off from 10 to 25 per cent. and is growing smaller right along, as Americans come to a realization that springs in their own country have all the medicinal qualities and frequently more than European waters. In addition, the table waters, which are the heaviest sellers, are more palatable and fresh.

Every possible characteristic therapeutic reaction of foreign waters can be obtained from California waters, there being locations where springs sending forth from four to ten varieties of water are found within the radius of a few hundred feet. It is estimated that there are 100,000 persons in Los Angeles alone who drink spring waters and that the annual consumption of bottled waters reached well up to a valuation of $500,000.

SUIT OVER BEARINGS.

Karl E. Ahlberg and C. J. Bender, doing business as the Ahlberg Bearing Company, brought an action in the United States District Court yesterday against Louis E. Johnson and Sam Strohm, operating as the Pacific Ball Bearing Company, alleging an infringement of a patent granted to Ahlberg, involving an improvement in grinding devices. The prayer of the petition is that the defendants be enjoined from manufacturing and selling the patent, and that an accounting be had.

"SO LONG LETTY" HERE TODAY.

New Musical Piece Opens at the Morosco.

Marjorie Rambeau Scheduled for Big Hit.

Fashion Show to Attract at the Orpheum.

"So Long Letty," adapted from Elmer Harris's popular comedy, "Your Neighbor's Wife," with music by Earl Carroll, and played by an all-star cast, will receive its premiere at the Morosco Theater tonight. An elaborate production is promised.

In October the production will be offered in New York at two-dollar prices, but, despite its all-star cast, Manager Morosco is presenting it in this city at popular prices.

Heading the cast will be Charlotte Greenwood and Sidney Grant, while featured in big roles will be Selma Paley, Walter Catlett, William Rock and May Boley. There will also be a chorus of lovely girls.

Earl Carroll is a noted song-writer, and the music which he has written for the present piece is of the most pleasing character, and there are many delightfully catchy numbers.

Burbank.

"The Trail of the Lonesome Pine," with Marjorie Rambeau in the leading role, is to be the attraction at the Burbank Theater, commencing this afternoon.

Charlotte Walker originally created the role which Miss Rambeau will play, that of June, a simple girl of the Blue Ridge Mountains. The characterization offers excellent opportunities for the play of Miss Rambeau's elfin spirits as well as scope for her dramatic strength.

The piece offers opportunity for magnificent scenic effects, and Manager Morosco promises a beautiful production in this respect as well as from the acting standpoint.

Edmund Lowe has the leading male role of the young engineer, and other favorites of the Burbank Company are well cast.

Mason.

Elsie Ferguson, who is making a tremendous hit in San Francisco in "Outcast," the play in which she has been appearing all season in New York, opens in the piece at the Mason, on July 12, instead of July 19, as heretofore announced.

Miss Ferguson brings with her a capable company of actors.

Orpheum.

The New York Midsummer Fashion Show, whmich promises to be one of the most unique and pleasing acts ever staged at the Orpheum, will headline the new bill at the popular vaudeville house this week, opening tomorrow afternoon. Twenty beautiful girls, some of them New York show girls, and all selected for loveliness of face and figure, will display the $50,000 worth of smart frocks which will be shown. Heading the act is Mrs. Sherburne G. Hopkins, Jr. until lately a social leader of Washington. A dazzling array of feminine attire, including even lingerie and jewels, is promised.

Other new numbers are Fisher and Green in "The Partners;" Newhoff and Phelps, "In Care of General Delivery;" Percy Bronson and Winnie Baldwin, in songs and dances; Fritz Bruch and his sister, in violin and 'cello numbers; and the Jordan Trio, aerialists. Marie Nordstrom will return in some new stunts, and Mr. Hymack will remain.

Nazimova comes to the Orpheum for two weeks, commencing July 19. Mail orders for seats at regular Orpheum prices, accompanied by money or express order (no personal checks) will be filled in order of receipt from now on. The box office seat sale will open on Monday, July 12, at 9 a.m.

Hippodrome.

Melbourne MacDowell continues as a headliner at the Hippodrome this week. His offering will be a tabloid version of Sardou's "La Tosca." Mlle. Leo LaSalle will have the leading feminine role.

Another headline attraction will be Mlle. Bersack's animal act, presenting a troupe of trained mules and ponies.

Other acts will be that of Maestro, eccentric pantomime novelty; Fields and Brown, comedy song and dance artists; Dale Wilson, singer, and Nick and Lida Russell in a piano, song and change turn.

Empress.

A big Roland West production, entitled "The Dairy Maids," featuring Eddie Foley and Lea Latore, is the headliner of the new Empress bill

WHY LOS ANGELES STOCK CAN SURVIVE THE MOVIES.

Morosco's Plans for Both the Burbank and Morosco Theaters Contain Business-getting and Business-holding Elements not Available to Other American Cities. Movies Should not Interfere, but Do.

BY HENRY CHRISTEEN WARNACK.

GIVE any man a pleasant theory and he will try to live by it. Let him think of it for himself and he is prepared to die for it. If a belief happens to hold the stuff that makes a picturesque pose, it is immediately adopted as an immutable law. Those slight defects in the argument which make it worth nothing at all have no place in the premises.

A great deal that men hold to, and which they call faith, impresses us all only because we feel that it would be pleasant if it were true.

Sometimes people also find out that something would be profitable if it were true, and then they proceed to tell the rest of us the parts we would be the most likely to believe, either because we could be frightened or bribed. Great systems have been known to be established and to flourish some hundreds of years upon a predicate of half information, by plausible corruptions of the original idea. If you question first sources for yourself the adherents of these systems pity you as unorthodox or persecute you for a heretic.

For heaven's sake do not imagine that this is a controversy about things that it is never profitable to discuss.

On the contrary, I am merely apologizing for one of the finest and firmest beliefs to which the orthodox devotee of the stage fervently adheres.

Ask any manager of a legitimate theater what the effect of the motion-picture business will be upon the spoken drama, and he will tell you that it will be nothing at all.

Then he will prove to you, in such a fashion that you will believe it until you get out of his presence, that two separate arts never adhere nor interfere; that music is one thing and sculpture another; that literature has its place and that oratory has its place, and that the place of oratory is not the place of literature and never can be.

Then he smiles triumphantly, and you smile back in the same spirit, but both of you go away with a great fear upon you. Meanwhile the shadow of the screen beclouds you both.

For six years this belief that motion pictures were one thing and spoken drama another has been one of my chief consolations. I have held it to my heart as I have cherished the dreams of the immortal.

My reason for this was not so much any actual difference between the two arts, as that I wanted them to be different and wanted to see this difference preserved.

Now, I am prepared to compromise. I still insist that both arts are widely divergent, but I have discovered a block-headed public that is unaccustomed to the mental effort of making proper distinctions. My philosophy, and that of my managerial friends, is perfectly sound, but the public is blindly unsafe.

Meanwhile hundreds of perfectly good legitimate houses are either dark or have been leased to the movies.

Here are the managers, the old school actors and myself, all with a perfectly sound theory and an immutable law backing us up to the last ditch on the one hand, and on the other hand are 14,000,000 moving-picture houses crowded with the thoughtless rabble.

When I consider the unequalness of such a conquest I am compelled to admit that most theatrical managers, together with their actors and myself, are not possessed of the military strategy and machinery of the German Kaiser. I see that we are not putting up a Teutonic struggle, and that in the end the motion-picture allies are bound to swallow much that we hold dear, including our business.

The two arts are different. I should say there is about $1.90 difference between them on each ticket. The public loves my art better than it loves the movie art, but it does not love it better to the extent of $1.90. The public hasn't a soul above a dollar.

Yes, indeed, the two arts are different—so much so that in a little while the art I love will be sitting up nights to make a shadow.

At present one highly respectable and absolutely the most dependable branch of the old school drama bears a shocking resemblance to the postal card business we Americans used to have of the starving reconcentrados in Cuba when we were trying to enthuse over our Hispano-American war.

This sad reference is made to stock company efforts. I am prophesying, if not asserting, that the stock company is doomed—doomed utterly—everywhere but in Los Angeles, and possibly New York.

Los Angeles alone survives because we are here the producers of new plays.

The Burbank company once had runs of from six to twelve weeks, but those are days that are no more. The same plays put on today are lucky to last two weeks. In the old days standing room was at a premium at the Burbank while some good comedy held the boards for eight weeks.

In that day there were not three moving picture shows and a burlesque house in the same block, doing twice the business at a fourth the price. In that day a woman put her babies to sleep out on Alvarado street or Pico Heights, left the oldest child in charge, put on her best dress and came down to the Burbank for a good old-fashioned cry, or a hearty laugh. Today she throws a shawl over her head and hies around the corner to the nearest picture house, and she takes the children with her. Maybe she gets to the Burbank once in a month, but the chances are she does not come at all. Her name is legion. She is a perfect reflection of the spirit of the times.

Nevertheless the Burbank Stock Company will survive and for the thousands and tens of thousands of people who still have an appetite for good melodrama and good comedy this old stand-by will continue to do business as of yore.

Other cities are less fortunate because they are not original producers. The Alcazar has closed in San Francisco after twenty-one years of remarkable business. The Liberty at Oakland is dark and George L. Baker of Portland has closed its doors. The same misfortune has befallen a hundred American cities.

Oliver Morosco is unmoved by all this. Mr. Morosco owns fifteen big road shows, which means that he has at least fifty of the cleverest actors and actresses upon the American stage. Every show that he produces is first tried out in Los Angeles and there will always be an audience for new plays. It is Mr. Morosco's plan to compel every one of his stars to play for at least one month in Los Angeles before sending them to Chicago or New York. That is why Miss Rambeau is here now. She is scheduled to star in a play called "Sadie Love," written for her by Avery Hopwood of New York, and in another play named "Miracle Mary," of which her husband, Willard Mack, is the author. It is to give each of these plays their premiere in Los Angeles that Miss Rambeau has come to us at this time. Thus Burbank patrons anticipate the good fortune of all other cities.

Within a few weeks Peggy O'Neill, who is still playing to big business in "Peg o' My Heart," will arrive at the Burbank for a month of work which will include the first production of a new Irish play in which she is to star and which is called "The Rose o' Shannon." Thus by alternating his stars and his new plays, Mr. Morosco can keep the Burbank going against motion picture art and everything else.

Perhaps the best thing in Mr. Morosco's present plans for Los Angeles is the rejuvenation of the Morosco Theater on South Broadway. This beautiful house is to have a life it never had before. Mr. Morosco is going to keep it open with lively comedies with music. This is different from musical comedy, because the plot will come first and the music will be of a nature to help the story instead of being intended as an apology for the fact that there is no story.

The prices are going to be right. No seat in the house will sell for more than 75 cents and the gallery will be 10 cents—this to shows of which Chicago and New York will pay $2.

The cast will be up to the minute, with not one star but half a dozen, a fact that will give Mr. Morosco an excellent opportunity to put his people where they belong.

Miss Selma Paley, for instance, is not always a good or a strong actress, but she is charming in musical comedy and she will fit ideally into the plans for the Morosco. I have never regarded her as a leading woman for stock, but when in good voice—and she is now at her best in this respect—she is delicious in shows like "Mme. Sherry" and "The Quaker Girl."

Then there is Walter Catlett, whom the people love, but who, to me, is a nuisance in stock on account of his tendency to burlesque everything. Catlett has it in him to make a national reputation in comedies with music because the comedy can be made as broad as his own eccentricity of orbit requires. The present plans for the Morosco will give this funny youngster just the opportunity he needs to show his mettle. He is capable of fine things in that line. Indeed, I am not saying that he could not make an actor, but seems to me that he will not. I don't believe he wants to. Anyhow, he often spoils the art of something worth while by keeping an audience waiting for his laughs. A man like that has no business in the sort of a play where plot and finish are everything. In a comedy with music he will always be welcome and refreshing.

It is hardly necessary to say anything for Charlotte Greenwood or Mr. Grant, nor for that matter of Billy Rock and May Boley, all of whom will be seen consistently at the Morosco. Miss Greenwood is so genuine in her high humor that it amounts to a philosophy. For personality I don't know of a woman in America who has more to deliver.

Music.

PRIZE OPERA TO BE REPEATED.

"FAIRYLAND" WILL BE GIVEN AGAIN THIS WEEK.

Some Local Recitals are also Scheduled but Otherwise Monotony will be Unbroken by Musical Events—Review of Students' Winners' Contest.

Musically, Los Angeles will now rest on her honors. Except for the two productions of "Fairyland" next Thursday and Friday and a few recitals of purely local importance there is nothing in sight at present to break the monotony. Some good music will be heard as a part of the Saengerfest the latter part of the month, when leading German singing societies from all sections of the country will convene here.

The productions of "Fairyland" will be given under the direction of Alfred Hertz, and with the noted principals in the cast, as well as with the orchestra and chorus which helped to make the premiere a memorable one, it is announced. Seats have just been placed on sale for the additional performances, which are expected to equal in every respect those already given.

WINNERS' RECITALS.

One of the most interesing of the series of concerts given during the biennial of the National Federation of Musical Clubs in Los Angeles was the recital Monday afternoon of the final winners in the State and district contests, conducted under the charge of the students' department of the federation, Mrs. Nellie Strong Stephenson of New York City, chairman. Three winners, one each in voice, violin and piano, were chosen from each of the four districts of the country, and these twelve young musicians were presented in concert as representative of the best talent of our young wholly American-trained musicians.

Miss Vera Kitchen (Oregon and western district, piano winner) opened the long programme and showed talent in her clean, clear-cut execution of a valse by Emile Sauer.

Miss Mildred Shaughnessy (Oklahoma and southern district, voice winner) possesses a very sweet mezzo-contralto voice. She sang the well-known aria from Gluck's "Eurydice" with musical feeling, and in good style and pleased greatly in her "Irish Love Song."

Wallace Grieves (Illinois and middle district, violin winner) has already attained great proficiency. He played the difficult A major polonaise by Wieniawski, with good tone and facile technique.

One of the finest numbers of the programme was the Chopin F minor ballade and MacDowell concert etude, rendered by Miss Aurore LaCroix, piano winner for Massachusetts and the eastern district. Miss LaCroix has a big tone, masterly technique and gives a thoroughly musical, intelligent interpretation.

Mrs. Julia Harris Jack (voice winner for California and the western district) has a full, strong voice and sings with perfect freedom. In the "Cry of Rachel," by Mary Turner Salter, she showed much dramatic quality, and "Who is Sylvia," by Schubert, was well rendered.

A young genius was brought to light in Winston Wilkinson, violin winner for Virginia and southern district. He is a boy of 17, but in the romance and finale of Wieniawski's second concerto, he displayed remarkable virtuosity, agreeable tone quality and a beautiful style.

The enthusiastic demonstration received by Miss Carol Robinson, piano winner for Illinois and middle district, amounted to a triumph for this brilliant young artist. Miss Robinson played the Bach-Liszt G minor organ fantasie and fugue like a master, and in spite of the rapid tempo at which she took the fugue, every tone stood out clearly. She followed this by two Bortkiewicz etudes of great difficulty.

Another of the chief successes of the programme was won by Miss Kathryn Meisle, voice winner for Pennsylvania and eastern district. Simple and charming in manner, Miss Meisle proved herself a young artist. She has a beautiful contralto voice of considerable range and great cultivation. Miss Meisle sang "Droop Not, Young Lover," Handel; "My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice," Saint-Saens, and "Erlkoenig," Schubert, and received an ovation.

Miss Mae Anderson (violin winner for Utah and western district) has a lovely singing, sympathetic tone and plays with much musical feeling. Her "Slumber Song" by Weitzel-Musin pleased the audience.

Another brilliant young pianiste, winner for Alhambra and southern district, was Miss Prudence Neff. Miss Neff played three short MacDowell numbers and then performed the great Liszt "Racoczy March" with a force, virility and dazzling execution that electrified the audience.

A treat of the afternoon was the group of songs given by Alexander Grey, voice winner for Illinois and middle district. Mr. Gray has a voice of beautiful, sympathetic quality, and through his artistic interpretation he moved the audience at will. The "Spirt Flower," by Campbell-Tipton, was so feelingly sung that there was an insistent demand for its repetition, but no encores were allowed. At the close of the group Mr. Gray was recalled again and again.

Only such talent as is possessed by Miss Helen Doyle, violin winner for New York State and eastern district, could have held spellbound such an audience at the very end of the lengthy programme. Though but 19, Miss Doyle is already an artist. Her interpretation of the first movement of Bruch's D Minor Concerto, with its grave, deep message, was amazing in so young a violiniste. She has great breadth of tone and style, and plays with all the repose, finish and virtuosity of a mature artist. Her very attractive stage presence and manner added to the delight of her performance. In the Caprice Viennois, by Kreisler, she proved that brilliant virtuoso work was also at her command.

A most interesting feature of this unusual concert was the comparison between the work of the different sections of the country. Naturally, those portions most advanced musically sent the finest representations as a whole, but in some cases there were notable surprises.

To Give Recital.

A recital will be given by Charles Olerich, pianist, and Morris Stolofb, violinist, assisted by William E. Strobridge, accompanist, next Thursday evening at Ebell Club House. The following programme is announced:

Fashingsschwank aus Wien (Vienna Carnival Scenes) ....Schumann
Allegro, Romanze, Scherzino, Intermezzo, Finale.
Polonaise Brilliante ....Wieniawski
Ballade No. 2, B Minor ....Liszt
(a) Precieuse ....Couperin-Kreisler
(b) Ave Maria ....Schubert-Wilhelmj
(c) Rigaudon ....Francoeur-Kreisler
Sonata Eroica, Op. 50, in four movements ....MacDowell
(a) Concerto No. 2 ....Wieniawski
(b) Romanze ....Wieniawski
(c) Zingaria ....Wieniawski

Morning Musicale.

The morning musicale at the Alexandria Hotel last Wednesday proved a very enjoyable affair. Paul Eiser, assistant conductor to Alfred Hertz, played a number of delightful piano selections. He was assisted in rendition of the programme by Mrs. Henrietta H. Cole and Axel Simonsen.

The following were the numbers given:

Sonata, A Minor, violoncello and piano....E. Grieg
(a) Allegro agitato.
(b) Andante molto tranquillo.
(c) Allegro—Allegro molto.
Mr. Eisler, Mr. Simonsen.
Aria from "Tosca" ....Puccini
Henrietta H. Cole.
(a) Moment Musicale ....Schubert
(b) Love Dream ....Liszt
Mr. Eisler.
Hungarian Rhapsodie ....Popper
Mr. Simonsen.
(a) Flirting ....Eisler
(b) Enchantress ....Eisler
(c) Lullaby ....Brahms
Henrietta H. Cole.
Love Death from "Tristan and Isolde" .Wagner-Liszt
Mr. Eisler.

Pupil's Recital.

A recital was given by the pupils of Mrs. James Ogilvie recently at Cumnock Auditorium. The following took part: Rosciallee Kerlay, Vera Minert, Lucille Connors, Helen Stirk, Gladys Miller, Dorothy Brain, Beatrice Zahn, Evelyn Griffin, Katherine Robbins, Dorothy Milbach, Hildegarde Stivers, Mrs. Charles G. Stivers, Cornelius Rossner, Helen Boothe, Dorothy Campbell, Marylouise Larkin, Eugenia Connors, Florence Webb, Emma Demond, Eleanor Zahn, Faye Scott, Burwell Hamrick, Eleanor Workman, Ruth Seabolt, Dorothy Kerley, Catherine Milbach, Minnie Wreden, Bernice Rossender, Lillian Stirk, Esther Spohr, Dorothy Robinson, Hal Williams, Norman Low, Robert Amis, Burwell Hamrick, Warren Crowell, Mrs. Sidney Webb, Robert Boothe, Irving Hubbard, Evelyn Griffin and Cassatt Griffin. Pupils of Mrs. Sidney Webb, Miss Thresher and Hildegarde Stivers also assisted. Mrs. Ogilvie gave a talk on the "Relation of Mental Habits to Piano Playing."

Starring in "Fairyland."

Marcella Craft, California girl, who has won international fame as dramatic singer, who is appearing here in prize opera by Horatio Parker and Brian Hooker.

Hollywood Programme.

Guests of the Hollywood Hotel this evening will be furnished a pleasing musical programme by two widely-known artists, Molly Byerly Wilson, dramatic contralto, and Ethelyn M. Harrison, concert pianiste. Piano numbers will include selections from Chopin, Burmeister, Carreno, Philipp and MacDowell. Miss Wilson will sing an Italian aria, "German Lieder," and English songs, and will voice the great world cry in her closing number, a prayer, "Let Us Have Peace!"

MUSIC NOTES.

Mildred Dilling, harpist of New York, who appeared at the festival in this city, left for the North yesterday to fill a number of engagements in San Francisco and other Coast cities.

Frederick Preston Search's "Festival" overture, dedicated to Max Bendix, director of the exposition orchestra, recently had its first hearing, and met with immediate success. Mr. Search played at the festival in this city.

Claude Gotthelf, who gave the first rendition of Charles Wakefield Cadman's sonata at the music festival, has decided to remain in Los Angeles. His ability as revealed at the recent concert was of so genuine an order as to attract a great deal of attention.

Eleanor Peacock of Detroit, a favorite soprano in that section, is visiting the city. She has made a specialty of songs by Schubert, Schumann and Brahms in their lighter vein, singing the words in English. She also gives children's songs cleverely.

Unusual success was achieved by Ethel Graham Lynde at her interpretative lecture on the opera "Fairyland" Monday morning at Trinity Auditorium. She was assisted by a number of the artists of the prize opera. Paul Eisler interpreted the musical passages. This was the second time Mrs. Lynde gave the lecture, the first occasion having been at the Ebell Club House.

Mlle. Yvonne de Treville gave Gertrude Ross's "Dawn on the Desert" at her recital last Thursday afternoon at Trinity Auditorium. Cecil Fanning is also going to use some of the local composer's songs during the coming season.

Thomas Morris of Westerville, Neb., who is 120 years and 6 months old, is the only man in Nebraska at least who has lived in three centuries, and he declares he has enjoyed life in each one. He is a bachelor and a confirmed woman hater.

ART AND ARTISTS.

BY ANTONY ANDERSON.

Del Sarto to His Wife.

Ah, but a man's reach should exceed his grasp,
Or what's a heaven for? All is silver-gray,
Placid and perfect with my art: the worse!
Yonder's a work now, of that famous youth
The Urbinate who died five years ago.
('Tis copied, George Vasari sent it me.)
Well, I can fancy how he did it all,
Pouring his soul, with kings and popes to see,
Reaching, that heaven might so replenish him,
Above and through his art—for it gives way:
That arm is wrongly put—and there again—
A fault to pardon in the drawing lines,
Its body, so to speak: its soul is right,
He means right—that, a child may understand.
Still, what an arm, and I could alter it!
But all the play, the insight and the stretch—
Out of me, out of me! And wherefore out?
Had you enjoined them on me, given me soul,
We might have risen to Raphael, I and you!

—[Robert Browning.

Our California Painters.

Music, heavenly maid, hath charms that are perennially seductive and delightful, and concord of sweet sounds does not soon weary the ear that is in tune—but still the many musicians who have flocked to Los Angeles for the festival may feel the impulse to entrance the eye with color harmonies.

That not unlikely contingency has been provided for in full and overflowing measure by the Art Committee of the Friday Morning Club, who are offering an exhibition of pictures that have beauty and interest. These, to the number of thirty, with fifteen color monotypes by Clark Hobart, are all by painters native to Southern California and work, with pretty accurate fairness, the standard of achievement we have reached. They also tell much of the great possibilities of our future.

Many of the pictures come, of course, from the California Art Club, perhaps the strongest aggregation of painters and sculptors west of St. Louis. But not a few are from artists outside the club, whose work cannot be said to be in any way inferior. The figure studies are rather more numerous than usual, which is a cause for congratulation. So long as we have Jean Mannheim and C. P. Townsley and Helena Dunlap among us, we may confidently look for strong studies of the human figure posed in vivid light and enveloping air.

"The Little Dancer Waiting Her Turn" is the captivating title of Helena Dunlap's contribution. But the canvas is a large one, the intent little maid being painted life size, and the work is one of the most vividly virile that has yet come from this brilliant artist's brush. Even the critics of San Francisco ungrudgingly admit Miss Dunlap is a painter of rare gifts—and this, of course, settles the question for all time, for they elect to damn almost all the rest of the painters of Southern California with the faintest of faint praise—when they praise at all.

Here, indeed, is light almost as keen as the light of nature itself, transforming to exquisite beauty the bare waxed floor of the dancing-room, the blue-gray walls, the white door, the short-clipped red hair and intent face of the small dancer, who, in a sheer white ballet dress and slippers, sits in eager expectancy, her lithe legs twined round the legs of the chair in which she rests. The work is a technical tour de force—almost a last word in the modern way of seeing and method of recording.

The blue and white light that Miss Dunlap loves is not precisely the same light found in the pictures by C. P. Townsley—or rather it is the same light lowered to gold and gray. Two paintings by Townsley are found in the present exhibition, a small one entitled "The Aquarellist" and a larger one called "The Blue Kimono"—spelled kimona on the catalogue, after the customary American slipshod and know-nothing fashion. This artist likes to paint effects of light filtering through long windows placed high, and both pictures appear to be from different corners of the same room.

The brown-haired little girl in "The Aquarellist" is bent in happy absorption over a drawing-table on which have been arranged a Chinese ginger jar and a vase of pink roses. A delightsome coolness of tone runs through the picture, whose scheme of color is full of low harmonies in spite of the light from the window—perhaps because of it. "The Blue Kimono" shows us a young woman reading on a lounge placed under the long window, which shows the sprawling lines and bright red and green of California geraniums in a sort of decorative pattern. The pose is easy and natural, the figure well constructed and modeled. The blue gown and its red trimmings are repeated in the frieze made by the window, in the colors of blossoms and sky. Both these studies are treated with simplicity and sympathy.

Another painter of the figure is Kathryn Leighton, who shows us two small boys in "The Game of Marbles." Miss Leighton's name is new to me, but as soon as I glanced at the young artist's canvas I judged her to be a pupil of Jean Mannheim, and verified my verdict an hour later when I stepped into the exhibition of the Stickney School of Fine Arts in Pasadena. Here she has taken several prizes in painting, I found.

Miss Leighton handles the brush in a painter's way—no pupil of Mannheim is permitted to do otherwise—and there are breadth, freedom, light and air, as well as rich and attractive color in her picture at the Friday Morning Club. But there is no drawing, the bad construction of the two figures lying prone on the ground being flagrantly apparent. I make no clamor for the coldly academic, but I do insist that all the warmth in the world won't atone for the wrong placement of bones and muscles—and these two small boys are sadly in need of attention. I like Miss Leighton's landscapes much better in the matter of drawing—she shows two—but these will be spoken of next week, when some other landscapes from various hands will be given consideration.

The one piece of sculpture in the exhibition is Julia Bracken Wendt's charming poetic bit of imaginative interpretation in plaster, "Little God Pan."

At Exposition Park.

Many very good pictures have just been hung in the gallery at Exposition Park, to remain on the walls up to the end of summer, when the numerous shows scheduled for fall and winter will take their place.

Beginning with the north wall, as you enter, and continuing to the right till you have traversed the three walls now filled, the first painting to attract your notice is John Hubbard Rich's "Portrait of a Child," a small maid placed on a blue bench out of doors in a tangle of pale pink roses. It is very lovely in color and expression, a charming epitome of the sweet, incrutable mystery of childhood. A magnificent piece of color is Edgar Keller's "Pueblo of Laguna," full of atmosphere and excellently well drawn. Keller knows the desert—as, indeed, he knows every other subject he essays to paint, for he has the gift of close and intelligent observation, the observation that penetrates far below the surface of things. Two of his notable pictures of winter in New York City are now on exhibition in the great San Francisco fair.

The flat modeling of Henry V. Poor's "Two Children," a study of some youthful fishermen, is very interesting, but I like much better the picture he has on the opposite wall, "The Lunch," a sympathetic study of two women attending to the wants of a hungry little boy. The still life accessories of the tea table are delightfully simple and true in their rendering. Gerald Cassidy's big water color, "The Navajo Medicine Man," is painted with amazing dexterity, and is at the same time strong in its characterization and superb in its color.

There is fine breadth of treatment in Gardner Symon's landscape, "Across the River," whose foreground is a sweep of topaz-gray water that rushes past rocks and anchored boats. In the middle distance is a row of trees topping the steep embankment of the river. The picture is magnificent technically, one of the best from the brush of this virile painter, who seems to have captured most of the prizes given in New York for the past few years. Excellent drawing, refinement of color and sympathy are all found in Alice Beach Winter's "Annie," the full-length study of a little girl.

"In a Friend's Garden" is the latest picture to come from the brush of William V. Cahill, who has been working of late on figures posed in plein air. The canvas is small, but very attractive, expressing some subtle truths of sunlight and shadow. The seated girl, in white, trails a yellow silken shawl. From Maurice Braun of San Diego comes "The Morning Sun," a big and poetic canvas showing us three eucalyptus trees seen against the noble curves and tonal nuances of spring hills that seem to diffuse and melt in the pink and purple and lavender light so beloved of Braun.

A delightful example of the landscape art of Hanson Puthuff, that strong and true painter of hills and mountains, is found in "The Borderland," classically simple in its arrangement, and showing twany pinks and yellows in the clouds piled high above the sunlit valley in the middle distance. Charm of character and color meets you in Louis Hovey Sharp's happily-arranged portrait, "Lady Lo," whose subject is an unusually lovely girl gowned in blue and white and seated in a flowered chair. C. P. Townsley's study of a girl in blue seated in a deep window is simple and effective, and gives a fine play of light.

Stickney School of Fine Arts.

From Monday up to Saturday of the past week we have been given an opportunity to study the work of one of the newest of our art schools, the Stickney School of Fine Arts, in Pasadena, and those of us who took that opportunity went away with a feeling of great satisfaction that the future artists of our sister city have fallen into such safe—such finely capable—hands. To be sure, we had never harbored any doubts, for the hands are those of Jean Mannheim and C. P. Townsley, both strong artists of a long and varied experience. Mannheim was at one time fellow-instructor with Frank Brangwyn in London, Townsley is even now director of the William M. Chase School of outdoor painting at Carmel, which begins its second year this week.

When we considered the age of the school, which is only eight months, we marveled at the progress made, especially in the direction of the use of paint. Such painter-like methods are seldom seen in art schools anywhere, such an appreciation of the capabilities of the brush. We found no tightness and no exaggeration, and we found, almost invariably, that fine fulness of color, that bold expression of planes and masses that differentiates so completely the painting from the mere drawing. There was some lack, of course, in construction, but that lack will surely be remedied as time goes on—and it must be remembered that the school is as young as the pupils.

The room devoted to still life studies, the first room we entered, glowed with the rich beauty of many colors harmoniously combined. The subjects were all simple enough, a few jars and vases placed against bits of drapery, some roses or violets in a brass or earthen bowl, but all had been seen and studied and painted for the light that fell upon them and turned them into lovely pictorial subjects. In the composition class, in the class given up to twenty-minute sketches from life, in the landscape class and the portrait and figure classes the same artistic point of view was always insisted on.

The first prize in the still life concours went to Jeannette Ellean Simpson for her study of a bottle and a jug; an honorable mention to Rosario Medina for a study of violets in a huge brass bowl. Composition class, first prize, Frances Lauderbach. Quick sketch in oil, first prize, Ellen Kellogg. Black and white from costume model, first prize, Mildred Lewis. Drawing from the nude, first prize, Margaret Corwin; honorable mention, Kathryn Leighton and Anne Harnett. Costume class, honorable mention, Jane Duffie.

Robert Eskredge, Prize Winner.

Robert Eskredge, two years ago a pupil in the College of Fine Arts, Garvanza, has been winning honors in Chicago, where he has been located since he left Los Angeles. He has been made a member of the Chicago Society of Etchers, and has also exhibited his water colors in the annual spring exhibition of water colors. These pictures were singled out for special mention by the Chicago press.

It is announced that two weeks ago he became the winner of the $100 prize offered by the Midway Gardens management for the best costume design that was used in connection with the pageant, "The Life of Pan," which received its initial presentation on June 20. The judges were Lawton Parker, Ralph Clarkson, Alfred Juergens and Nell Coover, Miss Coover acting for Mrs. Pauline Palmer, who was out of town. The winning design was the "Butterfly" costume, which was worn by Miss Norma Brandt. The second choice, also by Eskredge, was the "Gadfly," worn by Dorothy Buck of River Forest.

Young Eskredge will be in Los Angeles in August.

Donna Schuster's Success.

Donna Schuster, the gifted young Los Angeles painter, writes me from San Francisco:

"Thought you might be interested to know that something nice has happened to me. Have received a silver medal for three water colors here at the San Francisco exposition. Also have just sold my first medal picture, shown at the Chicago Art Institute, and reproduced by you in The Times. Am getting a few water colors of the exposition, and then on to sunshine and warmth! This is a cold country."

The Conquering King.

There is a mountain on my heart,
A monstrous load that baffles weighing;
A grisly mound with crimson ghosts
Beyond allaying.

I spoke one word, one word, and a million men
Leaped like swords from the golden scabbard of peace.
O wonderful fire of youth which sounded in thunder
Of tramping feet and pounding hoofs and lumbering guns,
And my name huzzaed till heaven seemed rent asunder!
O pride in myself who gave such power release!
"Glory be yours," I cried, "when we meet again!"
Glory was earned, and lands; and then, and then:
"Cease!" I trumpted. "Cease!
To your homes, my conquering ones!"
But out of the east and west and south and north,
A wail, desolate, dull, came eddying forth:
"Conquering king where are our sons?
There is a cyclone in my soul,
A blasting storm that knows no staying.
Conquering king, where are our sons?
Beyond my praying.

—Gives that clear transparency and velvety smoothness to the complexion.

Your Ideal is realized
—in RED FEATHER FACE POWDER!

The delicate and lasting tint that it gives to the complexion, vies with Nature's own coloring—sometimes even surpasses Nature! for Nature's whims often leave the face looking just a little sallow and grayish, but assures that perfect, healthy, natural radiance and bloom—that clear transparency of complexion which every one admires—and desires!

RED FEATHER

Red Feather Complexion Powder is truly transparent—itself invisible—does not even suggest powder—and blends beautifully where rouge is used.

Soft and clinging—it lays on smoothly and evenly, and retains its freshness and attractiveness until removed.

It is daintily perfumed—possesses an exquisite fragrance pleasing to the most refined.

Three shades: White, Flesh and Brunette—whether light, medium or dark, there's an exact tint to perfectly match your natural coloring.

Ask for Christopher's Perfect Quality Ice Cream
—Made in a Model Factory Under Ideal Sanitary Conditions

THE manufacture of ice cream is today a matter of the most scientific accuracy, if purity and quality are desired.

From the delivery of pure cream from sanitary dairies to our door, to the time the ice cream leaves on our motor trucks for quick delivery to the consumer, we have thrown about the manufacture of our products a network of safeguards that makes impure ice cream a physical impossibility.

THE illustration shows a pasteurizing vat where the raw cream is held at a high temperature for 30 minutes to kill all harmful bacteria. We use the "Holding Process" of pasteurization. It is thorough and effective, yet does not harden the solids and render the cream indigestible as is done by other processes. We have followed the "Holding Process" since its discovery and it is now being made compulsory in California and other States, thus proving it to be the proper method.

CHRISTOPHER'S

Ice cream has a smooth velvety texture and is absolutely uniform. For your health's sake, insist on "Christopher's."

Reel attractions,
Who will be seen at moving-picture theaters here this week.

On Deck.

"UP FROM THE DEPTHS" HERE.

Courtenay Foote to Star at the Woodley.

"Chimmie Fadden" Scheduled for Tally's.

Margarita Fischer Shows in Charming Play.

Courtenay Foote, who played the priest in "Hypocrites," comes to the Woodley tomorrow in a dramatic photoplay, "Up from the Depths," a visualization of the drama of the same name. The play deals with a girl's heroic life battle and a man's regeneration.

Mr. Foote is supported by Gladys Brockwell and Thomas Jefferson.

The seventh chapter of "The Goddess" will be the added attraction, with Anita Stewart and Earl Williams in the leading roles.

Tally's Broadway.

"Chimmie Fadden," with Victor Moore in the name part, will be the offering at Tally's Broadway this week. The photoplay is filmed from the Townsend story of the same name and is said to be one of the best comedies ever put on the screen.

Mr. Moore has played the role of the rough diamond Bowery boy many scores of times upon the speaking stage.

Camille Astor plays the part of the Duchess.

Miller's.

Beautiful Margarita Fischer, in "The Lonesome Heart," will be this week's attraction at Miller's, starting tomorrow. The photoplay is said to be a charming tale of youth, humor and pathos.

The added feature on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday is the latest chapter of "The Goddess" series; and during the last half of the week the extra attraction will be the third of the exciting "Romances of Elaine," played by Pearl White and Lionel Barrymore.

Alhambra.

Mary Pickford, in "Little Pal," is the offering at the Alhambra this week, beginning tomorrow.

It is said that the charming little actress was never seen to better advantage than in this newest play of hers, in which she appears as an Indian girl. She has many thrilling adventures in the mining country, but there is also opportunity for the Mary Pickford smile and sunshiny comedy.

Clune's Broadway

Mae Marsh and Robert Harron, in "The Sands o' Dee," adapted from Charles Kingsley's poem of the same name, will be the feature at Clune's Broadway during the first half of this week, commencing tomorrow.

Another feature of note will be Maurice Costello and Norma Talmadge, in "The Criminal."

Superba.

Mrs. Leslie Carter, in a film version of her most sensational stage success, "The Heart of Maryland," will be the offering at the Superba this week, beginning tomorrow.

It is said that all the noted actress' dramatic strength is brought out in this powerful drama, which is excellently adapted for photoplay purposes. The production is scenically a beautiful one, and Mrs. Carter's support is adequate.

Palace of Pictures.

Ruth Roland and Henry King, whose sincere work in the gripping "Who Pays?" dramas have made them local favorites, come to the Palace of Pictures tomorrow in "Fruit of Folly," the latest of the series. "Fruit of Folly" tells the story of a married woman who is indiscreet and who conceals here conduct from her husband. The way in which the inevitable result is worked out is said to be masterful, while the dual stars do some of the best work of their careers in the marital roles.

"Charlie's Childhood Days," a comedy which is supposed to show the childhood of one of the famous comedians of the "movies," is said to be a juvenile masterpiece. This will head the second part of the Palace of Pictures programme. The parts are taken principally by youthful actors and actresses, who are said to be exceptionally clever. A Pathe News Picture, with the latest events at home and abroad, and several added comedy features, complete the long bill.

Garrick.

C. Aubrey Smith and beautiful Marie Edith Wells are the stars of "The Builder of Bridges," the powerful photoplay which reopened the Garrick Theater last night. The house has been completely redecorated and a beautiful toned pipe organ has been installed.

"The Builder of Bridges" tells the story of a woman who makes a man fall in love with her and propose to her in order that she can save her brother from disgrace. The play is a picturization of the stage success in which Kyrle Bellew made such a hit and is from the pen of Alfred Sutro.

Optic.

Charlie Chaplin, in what is said to be one of his funniest pictures, "His New Profession," and "Vain Justice," a powerful photodrama, offer good contrasting features for the nine-reel programme which comes to the Optic Theater tomorrow.

G. M. Anderson, the Essanay star, is featured in "Her Realization," a strong story with many tense situations. "Fighting Blood" is an excellent Biograph picture, which was directed by D. W. Griffith, and which is said to show his master hand. An uproarious comedy, "The Evolution of Cutie," is a laugh from start to finish, while "The Honeymoon Pact," with beautiful Lillian Walker in the leading role, brings out many chuckles. War scenes and news events in the Pathe News Pictures complete the bill.

Majestic.

"The Marble Heart," with the matinee idol, King Baggott, in a dual role, is the featured film of the well-balanced programme which opens today at the Majestic Theater. "The Marble Heart" is the title given a beautiful artist's model who has the reputation of making all men love her, but who loves none in return. It is adapted from the famous French play, "Fille de Marbre."

Part of the picture is devoted to a dream of Raphael, an artist, wherein he thinks that he is transported back through the centuries to the days of the ancient Greeks. In this dream he meets many famous characters of history and has an exciting love affair, the latter being strangely paralleled in his actual life later. He falls in love with the beautiful, but cold, model and suffers greatly when she repulses him, only to find happiness at last with a girl whom he originally loved. Baggott is said to be at his best in the difficult dual part. A Pathe News Picture and several comedy reels complete the programme.

According to the Adage.

[Pittsburgh Post:] "You promised me a company," complained the manager of the Plunkville Op'ry House, "and here you show up with only your wife and yourself."

"Two is a company," declared Yorick Hamm. "But how about you? You guaranteed me an audience."

"Well, there's three people out front. Three is a crowd."

Dramatic Reviews.

opening tomorrow afternoon. A dozen pretty girls take part.

Other attractions on the bill will be "The Way Out," played by Ed and Jack Smith; Harry K. Jenkins and Grace Covert in "Just Married;" "Maestro," the Belgian entertainer, in a juggling turn, and the usual photoplays.

Pantages.

Stuart, the male soprano, headlines the new bill opening tomorrow at the Pantages. The attractiveness of Stuart's act is said to depend on the extraordinary quality of his vocalism, and not upon his assumption of feminine attire.

Jules Held and Danny Collins have a kid comedy, in which a clever company of boys and girls appear; Carlotta, the human dragon, is a contortionist; the Six Fultons have an acrobatic turn; Harry Antrim and Betty Vale have a pleasing new act, and Grundy and Lazzo, colored singers and dancers, promise a good number.

Republic.

"The Loan Shark," said to be a gripping playlet, presented by Al Hallett and company, heads the vaudeville bill opening at the Republic tomorrow.

"Chester's Mechanical Reproductions," which was to have opened tomorrow, has been postponed for a week.

Others on the bill will be Rietta Wilson and company in "A Parisian Shooting Novelty;" a sketch entitled "At the Stage Door," by Loftus and Hatch; a harmony trio, billed as "Those Three Boys;" Ruth Ford, soubrette; Kay and Howard in a comedy musical number, and Fred Harrison in character comedy.

Princess.

The Millanes - Caballe - Gutierres Opera Company will continue this week in a series of operas sung in Spanish.

The company is drawing good houses, and giving excellent performances.

Trinity Auditorium.

James F. J. Archibald, noted war correspondent, will appear at Trinity Auditorium and give his war talks illustrated with motion pictures, on Tuesday and Thursday evenings, July 6 and 8.

Mr. Archibald's articles in Scribner's Magazine have attracted wide attention, and his many thrilling adventures in the many wars which he viewed as war correspondent are graphically described by him in his lectures.

"Mission Play."

The "Mission Play" enters its sixty-third week with the most extensive playing programme of its existence backed by the largest crowds that have gathered in the picturesque playhouse in the old pueblo of San Gabriel. The evening performances are drawing fully as well as the regular afternoon performances.

No changes are apt to be made either in the play itself or in the cast. Both at last satisfy Mr. McGroarty. The sustained success of the pageant drama must be largely attributed to the artistic and careful work of George Osbourne, Charles Edler, Fred Wilson, Arthur Allardt, Frank Bell, Horace McCoy and Lucretia del Valle. While La Valera, the Castillo senoritas, Bernadette Dox, Juanita Vigare and Juan Zoraquinos have made the fiesta scene a rare gem of musical comedy with their Spanish songs and dances.

Bostock Jungle.

Animal acts of the highest merit are the attraction which will draw visitors to the Bostock Arena and Jungle during the week commencing today.

M. Tietz, with his elephant comedians, Tweedledee and Tweedledum, will entertain the visitors in the arena during the regular performance. At the conclusion of the afternoon programme the children will be taken for a free ride around the enclosure on the backs of the elephants.

The zoo is open from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m., and performances take place at 3 and 8 p.m. daily.

IN THE LIMELIGHT.

Capt. Augustus F. Fechteler, on duty at the Naval War College at Newport, has been ordered to examination for promotion to the grade of rear-admiral to fill the vacancy to occur July 11 by the statutory retirement of Rear-Admiral W. C. Cowles, recently relieved from command of the Asiatic fleet.

Mr. Lansing, the new Secretary of State, has always been on friendly terms with the newspaper correspondents at Washington. He was never nettled when information was sought, but answered proper questions, and shunted off in smiling protest those which touched indiscreetly on delicate international matters. He was far from garrulous and communicative, but when he spoke, he spoke to the point, and what was especially welcome, he spoke the truth. So it happens that Mr. Lansing is most cordially received by press and public.

Playgrounds are the biggest factor in American cities in diminishing juvenile delinquency, according to Dr. Henry S. Curtis, director of the Washington (D. C.) playgrounds and former secretary of the National Playgrounds Association. "A very large part of what is known as juvenile delinquency in the cities is merely the doing of natural things under unnatural conditions," he said. "It is the street play which the law forbids. It is the surplus energy which leads the boy into mischief. It is the love of adventure which prompts him to run a race with the cop, or some one of a half-dozen other cravings of boy nature which are unsatisfied if the city provides him no place to live out of school except the streets.

At the semi-centennial celebration of the Grand Commandery of the Knights Templars of Minnesota, special honors were paid to three men who became knights more than fifty years ago, before the Grand Commandery of Minnesota was formed. They are: George A. Brackett of Minneapolis, Giles W. Merrill of St. Paul, who is also the oldest Thirty-third Degree Mason in the State, and W. K. F. Vila of Winona.

THE HELPING HAND.

"How far that little candle throws his beams!
So shines a good deed in a naughty world."

From a parish made up almost entirely of families whose chief breadwinners are now fighting on the battlefields of Europe, the Rev. J. J. Kaulakis, rector of St. Casimir's Roman Catholic Church, Philadelphia, brought in the largest parish return toward the $200,000 fund for the proposed Sisters of Mercy Hospital in that city

Father Kaulakis's parishioners have suffered much, since the war in Europe called back to the colors of their native countries Austrians, Hungarians, Servians, Germans and Russians. With nearly all the male adults gone, the children of the parish have been driven to find work wherever they could to help their mothers and grandparents, many of whom were too feeble to support even themselves.

Hunger and threatened evictions from their homes have started many of them in the face at times, and still they have struggled on. Nevertheless Father Kaulakis walked into the hospital campaign headquarters and laid out little heaps of hardworn nickels, pennies and a few worn bills on the desk of the campaign manager, which aggregated an even $150.

To provide a neighborhood center for the youth of Pittsburgh's Twenty-third Ward, to conserve their physical and moral health to the end that they may develop into good citizens, the Sarah Heinz house was recently formally opened and dedicated. The house is a memorial erected by H. J. Heinz to his wife, who during much of her life was actively engaged in charitable work. The settlement work of which the house is a part, began fourteen years ago under the direction of Mr. Heinz, and has grown to a membership of 400 equally divided between boys and girls. The institution is supported and conducted by members of the Heinz family. This settlement house, said Mr. Heinz, at the dedication, is not a religious or educational institution, but it is intended to supplement the home, the church and the school.

In the presence of hundreds of sightseers at Wade Park Pond, Cleveland, six-year-old Doris Darmew narrowly escaped drowning. On returning from a pleasure ride in a rowboat she slipped as she tried to jump from the bow of the boat and disappeared under the surface of the water. Twice she came up but sank so quickly the men in the boat were unable to grasp her. Realizing the situation, Ralph Darrah, 30, dashed through the crowd and fully dressed dove toward the spot where the child disappeared. When he came up he had the child in his arms.

A gift of $22,500 to the Union Bethel of Cincinnati from Mrs. Morris White and her four daughters was announced recently at a meeting of the board of directors of the institution. The Bethel was left a sum of $2500 in the will of the late Morris White, banker and capitalist. His widow now increases this to $25,000 to be applied to the endowment fund as a memorial to Mr. White, who was secretary of the institution when it was first organized.

The daughters of Mrs. White joining in the gift are Mrs. John Gates, Mrs. George Eustis, Mrs. Clarence White and Mrs. Cramp. Mr. White was greatly interested in the work of the Bethel and the income from this money is to be applied to the furtherance of its work in social betterment, including the work of the lodging-house, the settlement-house and the Anna Louise Inn.

ACTIVE WOMEN.

Miss Winnifred de Mercier of Camden, N. J., was awarded the Royal Red Cross for distinguished services on the European battlefields, according to a copy of the official gazette.

Mrs. Marie Velasques of Pagosa Springs, Colo., although 105 years old, has filed on 100 acres of government land for a homestead. "Her boys," the eldest aged 90 and the youngest 70, she says, will help her work the place.

Mrs. Anna Marie Johnson Giles, 72 years old, of New Britain, Ct., was recently divorced from William H. Giles of Dayton, N. J., to whom she was married nine years ago. The husband was about fourteen months younger than the wife. In explanation of how she came to marry Giles she said to the judge that she was getting along in years and getting lonesome. She thought he was a nice, well-settled man, but she found him to be a cheap old sport, "and I told him so," said Mrs. Giles.

SUSIE AND ALMA AT SAN DIEGO.

They See the Adorable Army of Adonises, the Spanish Dancers and the Fair.

BY ALMA WHITAKER.

SUSIE really likes educational and improving things. I try to. So we came to the conclusion that it was our intellectual duty to see these California expositions, which, with the war, had been monopolizing the conversation for months. Susie was for rushing off to San Francisco, purchasing fat catalogues and doing things systematically. I had leanings towards San Diego, preferring to begin the intellectual feast moderately, temperately. Besides, they have an army aviation camp down there with a couple of hundred handsome lieutenants to assist one in improving one's knowledge of the most important modern science. And a naval squadron, with an adorable army of uniformed Adonises. Susie subsequently agreed with me that the proper study of mankind is man. And we felt we knew as much as was good for us about the golfing kind, in Los Angeles.

We were certainly staggered with little San Diego's nerve in blossoming with an exhibition. Talk about grit and enterprise! Little San Diego, indeed. It is the chestiest thoroughbred you ever met. And it simply oozes good sense and a proper regard for the fitness of things. There is a discriminating soupcon of improving, educational things, cleverly served with a fine dash of frivolity, and a fine broad conception of the duties of pleasure, brilliantly dished up with a piquant educational sauce. In short, education is tempered to the shorn mind. Susie was entirely satisfied—and so was I. She pandered to my taste for frivolous investigation and I permitted myself to dally in an art gallery, to evince a pretty interest in woman's work, in California products, in foreign industries, et al., to please Susie.

It is a brilliant idea to take a Susie along. One can investigate so many improving things by proxy. Susie, for instance, saw all the antediluvian relics for me. I can talk, quite intelligently, about the prehistoric cave woman clutching her babe in one arm and snarling at prehistoric man as she menacingly shakes her fist with the other. She must have been the first suffragette. Sweet-minded antis who shared Susie's gaze, said: "How horrible." But Susie said there was something very beautiful about it and called it the great, primitive mother love, the feminine protective instinct. And while Susie was doing that I was being propelled about in one of those perfectly fascinating basket-work Packards with a two horse-power motor, discovering all the lotus ponds and grottos and fairy nooks, the blossom-banked cosy corners with seats for two, the Japanese tea garden and the water lily fountains, the tropical garden, and the handsome pale blue policemen.

To my mind those chair motors and the pale blue policemen are the chefs d'oevres of the San Diego exhibition. They are worth going for if one doesn't see another thing. Those Apollo-like pale blue policemen, with their Belgian fusilier hats, their belaced chests, and their gracious, royally considerate manners, symphonies in turquoise blue cloth and gold lace, are quite fascinating. They set the standard, give the whole tone to the place. I found one that measured six feet something, with a straight nose and motherly eyes, that I drove round three times, so as not to miss an item of his charm. I am quite sure he is a prince incognito.

But it was a little unkind of him to take me to the naval section. The man that made the electric lamp out of bits of an old gun was a friend of his, so I duly admired that. But there was a huge and sleek looking torpedo, upon which some faithful Germans had laid some geranium wreaths in token of their respectful admiration—and I'm British. And I knew he knew I was British.

So I withdrew from his enchantment with dignity and fetched Susie. She felt that the Panama Canal, 50 cents each up a stair case, would be an edifying panorama for me. It certainly is wonderful, and we struck a nice American square-jawed young engineer who had just returned from the Canal Zone after twelve years down there. He had come to see if they had got the details straight. They had. He and we were quite enraptured with it. One sees the whole canal as from a star, the ships moving through, the locks working, from sunrise to sundown with a terrifying electrical storm thrown in. And the gentleman that explains the marvels in stentorian tones, giving us thrilling details of millions of dollars expended by this great and glorious United States, and surmises that San Diego, being the first port of call, is destined to rule the Pacific, found us applaudingly enthusiastic. We hardly realized that we had been improving our knowledge at all.

The Panama Canal is on the Isthmus. That is a euphonious name for pike. It really is the most popular spot in the exposition, although it isn't good form to admit it. After I had done the art galleries with Susie and duly admired the miniatures and other correct things, she agreed that it was equally our duty to investigate the '49 camp—an instructive replica of those wild and adventurous days.

They certainly did see life in those days. Evidently they came across the continent to escape conventional civilization quite as much as to establish Los Angeles. One side is devoted to every kind of gamble there is, roulette and the wheel of fortune filling first place in modern hearts. One buys "exchange" at a respectable little window, then purchases "bucks" with the exchange paper—and after that you frantically back bucks on rouge et noir and the whole numerical count as though your life depended upon it. Half an hour for an art gallery and three hours for '49 camp is about the proportion. We struck the day when the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce was down visiting the exposition. When you lost any of them you just went to the Isthmus and '49 camp. Twenty buxom maidens, altogether and utterly realistic of those far-off days in manner, dress and general bearing, sing and dance and eat with visitors yearning for first-hand information. Susie overheard some of the men bribing the most voluptuous and brazen looking young thing in a short leather skirt and roses in her hair, to inveigle the most austere and dignified of the Los Angeles men to dance with her. For the benefit of his family, I record that she failed. Quite definitely. But she insisted upon having the bribe paid as a salve to her wounded feelings. How dare he?

But we managed to cull the impression that it is rather jolly to be a member of the Chamber of Commerce. That their duties can be very pleasant on occasion and that at San Diego they successfully shed the years. The Spanish dancers danced for them, to them, at them, both at the exposition and at the Hotel Coronado afterwards and although a few dutiful speeches were duly aired at the banquet, they were not oppressively conventional and improving.

Those Spanish dancers, toreadory-looking males and Carmen-like damsels, are delicious. They dance in any old spot in the exhibition gardens, single out modest and retiring young men to address their most ardent love passages to, stop in the middle of passionate vows to have a little unconventional argument with the guitarists, throw themselves in graceful attitudes on the velvet lawns, and take the crowd into their most intimate confidences—in Spanish. We saw numerous earnest young men making a mental vow to learn Spanish at the earliest opportunity. Then they will discover the naughty maidens were remarking "San Diego is the greatest place on earth." I am sure they were saying that because everyone who spoke in a language we could understand did.

One day we did the machinery. Neither Susie nor I can feel a palpitating interest in typewriters, printing machines, cash registers, electric irons, sewing machines, adding machines, vacuum cleaners and patent bath tubs, but they have housed them in the most attractive bit of architecture, and we felt sure it must be full of art treasures. But you never know your luck. It was there that we met two of the most debonair young aviators, who promptly recognised kindred spirits, and, after showing us what the exhibition can do in the way of lunch—which is really quite something—we all went for a thrill to the "War of the World"—on the Isthmus.

And we wouldn't have missed it for anything. It is the most wonderful spectacle I have ever seen. A gorgeous panorama of New York Harbor twenty years hence. The navies of the world paying a friendly call. The United States Navy doing them honor. The wireless telegraphy ticking out compliments. The salutes of the guns. All this in radiant sunlight. Then night gradually falls, the lights appear all over New York. The officers of the nations are entertained on shore. Then the good-by salutes and the great warships creep out of the harbor. Some of them, traitorous friends, return in the darkness with all lights out. The sentry gives the alarm, and heigho for a battle, in which airships engage in frantic combat and the enemy ship is burned high in the heavens by the valiant United States Navy. How our aviation lieutenants revelled in it! We were all keyed up to concert pitch and realized something of the lure of war, besides its terrors.

Just to show how well they have things in hand, we had a fire alarm and wild excitement in the grounds one day. Bells clanged, fire engines and escapes dashed through the grounds, ambulances appeared from everywhere and a young army of highly-drilled persons manned the various contrivances. But it proved to be a false alarm, and we had an exciting free show. After that we simply had to go on the merry-go-round to steady our nerves.

The California products give one a voluptuous sense of wealth and prosperity. Susie and I never felt so prosperous. We even sat through the free moving pictures, which requires enthusiasm. They said some nice things about Los Angeles in which we took a personal pride. And they showed us a very beautiful picture of the Hotel Huntington, which they told us was the Los Angeles Country Club, and we didn't care.

And Billie Burke came down on Sunday and sat around at the Hotel Coronado for all the world like a demure little debutante. You would never have guessed that she knew every eye was upon her, including the aviation lieutenants and the naval nabobs. All the girls were registering ideas for new dresses and cute little bits of hairdressing. Even Donald Brian, the Merry Widow hero, was cut out for a time, and when both those stage celebrities danced in the ballroom, with ordinary mortals for partners, our cup of happiness was complete.

MEN AND EVENTS.

There was an exciting time the other day in the hospital at Rochester, N. Y., where James Cullen, who was receiving radium treatment for cancer of the lower jaw, swallowed all the radium in the place, worth about $7000. He did not intend to do this, any more than he would have tried to swallow a surgeon's knife or a pulmotor, or any other appurtenance or convenience of a hospital, but he couldn't help himself. The tube of radium had been laid within Cullen's lower jaw, and when the doctor sought to remove it, the tube slipped down the patient's throat. A couple of days' patient waiting restored the tube with its contents intact to the hospital authorities, and there was no evidence that the experience had any good or bad effect on Cullen.

The largest pair of shoes ever made in Kansas City now adorn the feet of Samuel D. Crowley, the largest man on the police force. The shoes are fifteen and fourteen and one-half inches in length. Across the ball they are thirteen and three-fourths inches, and the instep measures fourteen inches. Each shoe weighs one and three-quarter pounds. Crawley weighs 320 pounds and stands 6 feet 6 inches in his stocking feet.

Herbert Grey, who lives near Portage, Wis., wanted a wife, so he advertised. The paper had not been out two hours when Grey was called on the phone by Miss Elinor Evans, who announced that she was a candidate. Grey rode over to her house that evening at 7 o'clock, and by 9 it was all settled. They were married the next day.

Lawrence and Leo Murphy, twin boys of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Murphy of Springvale, Me., although but 3 years old, have become experts in boxing and wrestling and have learned all the new dances.

Carl Aylesworth of Liberty, Lycoming county, Pennsylvania, has a parrot eight years of age, and which was owned by the late Dr. Crandall of Blossburg. This bird has a wonderful vocabulary of perfectly pronounced words, and extended collection of sentences. In answer to a knock at the door he will say, "Come in." Then, "How do you do?" Dr. Stroble of Liberty was at the house some time ago, and as soon as Poll saw his medicine case, he said, "Hello, Doc. How do you do?"

POLITICIANS, STATESMEN.

Gov Walsh of Massachusetts has announced that he will vote for woman suffrage. He said that if a majority of the women of Massachusetts desired the ballot it should not be denied them, adding he was convinced that most women who have given consideration to the subject were decidedly in favor of it. It has been known that the Governor was agreeable to having the question referred to the voters, but it has not been known that he was with the suffragists.

Gov. Brumbaugh of Pennsylvania believes the Executive mansion is too gaudy for him, and the famous gold and red State drawing-room of the mansion is to be toned down and some of the bright-hued furniture of other days replaced by the State to meet the personal taste of the Governor. The mansion has been changed in practically every administration to meet the desires of the Governor.

United States Senator John Sharp Williams has been proclaimed "Mississippi's most distinguished statesman" by a committee appointed by Gov. Brewer at the request of the President of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition. The committee, composed of Judge Powell, Judge Robert B. Mayes, Edward Mayes, Judge Robert Thompson, J. B. Harris and Gov. A. H. Longino, made the tion. A vote also was taken on the committee considered the distinguished deceased statesman, L. Q. C. Lamar was the choice.

A Vacation Forethought

NO doubt you have a couch, a settee, or an arm chair that should be upholstered, refinished, or otherwise repaired. Perhaps a set of dining room chairs need reseating. You would like to have the work done but dislike to spare the pieces.

Now, then, this is the time to have this attended to, while the family is on a vacation. The "California" will call and get these pieces, make the changes, and return them—all while you are away. You will be put to not the slightest inconvenience.

The "California" maintains only expert craftsmen—men of long experience and surprising versatility. You can entrust your most cherished heirlooms to them for either repairing or complete remodeling, and be certain that the work will be done in a masterful manner.

Although the "California's" craftsmen are of an unusually high class, yet the charge for their work is, indeed, considerate when you see the exceptional grade of service rendered.

Every shade, color and design—standard and new—in upholstery fabrics are here for your selection. Many of these are reproductions of fine old designs not obtainable elsewhere in the city.

It would be a pleasure to talk this over with you.

THE WEEK.

PARTIES, RECEPTIONS, DINNERS, WEDDINGS AND THE LIKE.

TRANSCENDING in importance and excitement any real grown-up event of social history, the realm of Kiddyville is athrill over the prospects of a jolly and altogether glorious Fourth of July celebration. For is not every country club for miles around making very special plans for the entertainment of these little belles of a few years hence and rulers-to-be in the world of business?

Shining, bright-eyed children by the hundreds are going out to the Los Angeles, Annandale, Midwick and other country clubs for the day, and their delighted parents will "just go along," for once each year (barring circus time) society's grandest dames and personages of importance frankly assume the parental role publicly, coming to the celebration as fond doting maters and proud paters with their offspring proudly in hand—just the merriest, sweetest, rompiest party of the whole year, and a fit cause for parental gratification.

The various clubs have these important little folk well in mind for the morrow, with plans for luncheon and an early dinner, and music all the afternoon and evening. Dancing with these darlings is nothing short of marvelous in many cases, some manifesting startling professional finish and remarkable skill at the terpsichorean art.

There are to be wonderful daylight pyrotechnics and games aplenty, and many winsome girlies are to really "do the honors" at parties.

Little wonder that they are keyed up to a pitch of wildest enthusiasm over the dawning of the Fourth, which really doesn't begin this year until the fifth, though Midwick had a glorious celebration yesterday. So maybe, after all, they are to have three days of it this year, inasmuch as the Fourth actually falls on a Sunday.

The youths are not having it quite their own way, however, for ever so many prominent society folk are having guests for the day.

The beautiful Sierra Madre home of Maj. and Mrs. L. L. Krebs, with rambling gardens and Italian pergolas, nestling peacefully at the foot of the imposing mountainous ridge which gives to the picturesque little city its name, is to be the rendezvous for many motorists today, for these hosts are duplicating their former successes as royal entertainers and are again having a Fourth of July party—always an event for those fortunate enough to be bidden. Last Fourth, when over 150 guests spent a charming evening with the Krebs, still forms a happy link in the chain of memories, and a rumor has been set in vibration (maybe by that wise little bird) that something very special is to stamp this day.

The James Tabor Fitzgeralds are also having guests this evening at their palatial West Adams street home. Supper is to be served out on the terrace, and ever so many charming persons are invited.

The William Irving Hollingsworths, Mr. and Mrs. James Tabor Fitzgerald, Mrs. Strachan Barret, the Alexander B. Barrets, Mr and Mrs. John Bannister, Mr. and Mrs. Erasmus Wilson, Miss Florence Somers, and Robert Somers have accepted the hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. James P. Burns for tomorrow night, for a dinner at the Los Angeles Country Club. Mrs. Burns ever displays originality in her decorations, and the patriotic suggestions leave a very large and distinct field for choosing.

Pretty Afternoon Tea.

The exquisite gold and rose salon of the Alexandria presented a gala scene Thursday afternoon when charming Mrs. Frederick W. Abbott, assisted by her mother, Mrs. Samuel M. Barnes (whose Los Angeles residence is No. 4122 Rosewood) and sister, Mrs. H. B. Bishop, gave a high tea of perfect appoints. Mrs. Abbott, who is president of the Matinee Musical Club of the Pennsylvania metropolis, has since her arrival in this city, been the recipient of a continuation of social courtesies, and this pretty function savored really of a return appreciation, though it was graced by a distinguished personnel of celebrated visitors who were in the city to attend the Ninth Biennial of Federated Musical Clubs, in addition to local folk.

Shasta daisies and greenery, together with innumerable candelabra holding burning tapers, graced the small tables, where were seated the guests for elaborate refreshments.

Mrs. Abbott received in a handsome imported frock of green, with gold-embroidered net, and touches of black maline in which nestled dainty bebe rose buds of red. Her sister, Mrs. Bishop, wore a pretty frock of ecru embroidered net, with full three-tiered skirt, while Mrs. Barnes was costumed in black net and silver.

Mrs. George Elmer Feagans and Mrs. Effie E. Goff presided over the samovars, and Mrs. William Duffield assisted.

Those who were bidden, between the hours of 5:30 and 7:30 o'clock, and going later to "Fairyland" were: Mrs. William H. Jamison, Dr. and Mrs. William Duffield, Mrs. R. Judson Waters, Mrs. John J. Abramson, Mrs. Frank Garrett, Mrs. J. H. Ballagh, Miss Frieda Peycke, Mrs. Carrie Jacobs-Bond, Mrs. Estelle Heartt Dreyfus, Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Lovely Girl Becomes Happy Bride.

The last day of June ushered in a much anticipated social event for the legions of friends of Miss Helen Garfield King, the lovely daughter of Judge and Mrs. Marvin Richardson King, who became the wife of William Jay Dawley of Cleveland, O.

The beautiful Ocean Park residence of the bride's parents, situated at No. 3002 Fourth street, was abloom with hundreds of American Beauty roses. A canopy of asparagus plumosus, intermingled with roses and dainty blue tulle, covered the beams of the living-room, while the mantel and book cases held large blue baskets of pink snap-dragons. An embroidered screen which was banked with roses formed an effective background for an altar for the wedding party. Messrs. Andre C. Scanlan and Joseph Keefe held the white tulle ribbons which formed an aisle down which first came Mrs. John Ernest Mansur, sister of the bride, wearing a pale blue taffeta gown with over drape of blue tulle, and carrying pale pink Radiant roses in an arm bouquet, tied with long streamers of pink satin. Little Dorothy Faucet, as flower girl, preceded the bride, frocked daintily in organdy and Valenciennes lace with hair and sash bows of pink tulle. She carried a basket of Cecile Brunner roses and forget-me-nots. The bride, an ethereal type of blonde beauty, was quaintly sweet in a short gown of white chiffon taffeta, as she entered on the arm of her father. Her skirt was made with festoons of graduated ruffles and a drapery of Point d' Alencon lace falling quite from the shoulder and caught gracefully with pearl ornaments and orange blossoms. About her small waist was a bodice laced in front and wired around the edge in the fashion of her grandmother's wedding dress, the whole effect enhanced by her French bouquet in frilled lace, and composed of all the pastel shades—the pale lavendar of the orchid, baby pink roses, forget-me-nots, and lillies of the valleys, the little bunches of forget-me-nots tied with tulle falling to the hem of her gown. Her veil was of tulle, caught in cap effect with pearls and natural orange blossoms. Her only ornament was a platinum bar pin set in diamonds and sapphires, the gift of the groom.

Rev. Alfred R. Taylor of the Church of the Good Shepherd was officiant, utilizing the English ring service. Mr. Dawley was attended by Stuart King, brother of the bride.

A gorgeous mound of radiant roses adorned the dining-room table, where refreshments were served, the room being converted into a floral bower with American Beauty roses and asparagus plumosus. Miss Dorothy Williams and Miss Sarah Louise Mayer served iced punch on the veranda, where an orchestra played during the evening.

Judge and Mrs. King were assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Paul Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Faucet, Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Gage, Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Murphy, Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Huff, Mr. and Mrs. Frank K. Rule, Mr. and Mrs. Morton French, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Mayer, Miss Ellen D. Williams and Miss Jane Magee.

The out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hervey Corthell of Chicago, Miss Helen Louise King of Kansas City, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Williams and Miss Dorothy Williams of La Jolla.

Mr. and Mrs. Dawley left immediately for the East. After an extended wedding journey they will be at home at Ivynton, the groom's country place in Ravenna, a suburb of Cleveland. Mr. Dawley is a prominent attorney.

Mrs. Lindley to Entertain.

A pretty social courtesy will be extended to Miss Felice Lyne of London by Mrs. Walter Lindley at her home, No. 2007 South Figueroa, on Wednesday, with a much-anticipated luncheon.

Miss Lyne is the house guest of the Thomas J. Flemings, together with her mother, Mrs. S. T. Lyne.

Since the arrival of the ladies in the Fleming home there has been no cessation in the informal entertaining, though they have motored a major portion of their stay, and are being thoroughly introduced into the beauties of our Southland by their hosts. The Flemings are spending this week-end in Santa Barbara, having motored over yesterday.

By the way, the Ernest Eloys Duques (Miss Louise Fleming that was) are honeymooning north, going at will wherever their fancy dictates. After San Francisco and Lake Tahoe and other inviting places of interest they will go to the Puget Sound country.

By Way of Farewell.

By way of farewell courtesies to their friends prior to leaving on an extended trip through the north, Dr. and Mrs. Lee Perry Kaull of the Bryson are entertaining with a series of informal dinner and supper parties.

The first of these was held Thursday evening following a dancing party given at the Bryson by Mrs. Frank S. Wise, assisted by Mrs. Edward T. Sherer and Mrs. U. T. Clotfelter. The rooms were made brilliant with a profusion of red roses and gladioli, employed to advantage against a background of ferns and other greenery.

Dr. and Mrs. Kaull are leaving early in August for a trip to Lake Tahoe, the Yosemite Valley, San Francisco and its environs. They are planning to spend some time visiting the exposition and will return in the fall.

Two Distinctly Happy Events.

Two charming society happenings were extended a limited personnel of their friends by Mrs. E. E. Henderson and Mrs. Joseph Goldsmith, who entertained jointly at a smart bridge luncheon on Wednesday, with a second pretty affair in the form of a bridge tea the following afternoon. Both functions were given at the Henderson home, No. 2707 Portland place, and complimented an interesting house guest and cousin, Mrs. W. N. Conrad of Pennsylvania.

In decorating, the nearness to our Fourth of July was observed, cunning firecracker confections and favors and flags being suggestively combined with red Lawsons for the tables in the dining-room, and the living-room differed with a wealth of pink sweet peas and maidenhair fern in artistic arrangement.

For the luncheon, with auction following, covers were laid for Mmes. M. Weilheimer, Frank E. Newbauer, Persis Johnson, Richard A. Dunnigan, Irving Smith, Gully, Frank Jay, Ira S. Chapman, G. William Saurret, J. Baum, R. L. Markwell, Robert Camp, Ralph Deming and James Colgan. High scores were made by Mrs. Gully and Mrs. Smith.

Bidden to the Thursday tea were Mmes. Clem Creveling, C. W. Breese, H. H. Rose, Persis Johnson, R. L. Markwell, Frank Dick, J. Kriedler, Turner Elmer Weatherholt, Jake Goldsmith, Zyrennaris, Ralph Deming, A. P. Kendis, M. Weilheimer, G. William Saurret, James Colgan and W. M. Conrad. Mrs. Deming, Mrs. Rose, Mrs. Markwell and Mrs. Persis Johnson carried off honors. High tea was served at dainty tables done in red Lawsons and patriotic favors.

Bridge Luncheon for Visitor.

At her pretty home, No. 1961 Huntington drive, on Thursday, Mrs. Jane C. Hall was a luncheon-bridge hostess, with Mrs. E. E. de Weese of Dayton, O., signally honored.

Small tables seating four held lace covers, with central mounds of choice summer flowers, and bidden were Mmes. S. McDonald, Birges, H. H. Coulter, Doyle, Ritchie, Bingham, Ross, Curtis, Thomas, Tibbits, Charles Kuns, Frank Upman, Herbert Standing, Adams, Young, King, Brown, Charles Skinker, H. H. Clark, Frank Jay, Bogy, Paris, Pennell, William Variel, Salli Marshall, Fred Thomas, McClelland, E. King, Heathman, Williams, Gilbert V. Van Camp, Chatworthy, H. J. Crowe, J. H. Mathews, and Misses Clara Scott, Atkinson, Nettie, Mathews, Agnes Crowe, M. R. Crowe, Adelaide Hall and Katherine de Weese of Dayton.

Wed in Outdoor Pergola.

The marriage of Miss Clara Palmer to Dr. Lowell C. Frost of Beverly Hills was celebrated at the home of the bride, No. 6407 Dix street, at 3 o'clock Thursday afternoon. The service was performed out of doors in the pergola, which was decorated in green and white. The ceremony was attended only by the immediate families of the bride and groom. Dr. and Mrs. Frost will be at home at Beverly Hills after September 1.

Merry Motoring Party.

Among the many motor parties to depart during the past week was that composed of Col. and Mrs. Peter McClelland, Miss Willie McClelland and Mrs. Francis Earl Brown of the Bryson apartments and Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Linton of Long Beach.

By way of Riverside the party proceeded leisurely to Elsinore for a brief stay. Thence they drove to San Diego, Coronado Beach and Tia Juana. After visiting the Panama-California Exposition, the return journey was made via Del Mar, where a pleasant day and night were spent.

Freshman Fraternity Banquet.

The Omega Kappa Phi Fraternity held its annual freshman banquet Tuesday evening. The tables, artistically arranged, were adorned with white carnations and fern. The banquet was given in honor of the pledged members, and is a custom that has long been observed by the fraternity.

In Red, White and Blue.

Miss Anna Butcher of No. 1031 West Twentieth street entertained a coterie of friends for tea and Five Hundred on Thursday afternoon, being ably assisted by Mrs. Robert Butcher, her mother, and Mrs. V. A. Blewett. A color scheme of red, white and blue prevailed, with white Shasta daisies, red geraniums and blue hydrangeas, augmented by tiny flags, firecrackers and other appropriate favors suggestive of the Fourth. The tallies for the interesting card game were hand decorated by the clever young hostess in firecrackers tied with blue ribbons, and were fastened in the tri-colored bebe streamers. In serving the motif was observed with confections of red, white and blue and the tiny cakes surmounted by miniature silk flags. Bidden were Misses Anita Rampe, Esteen Batchelor, Grace Pearson, Virginia Catherwood, Dorothy Merrill, Myrtena Batchelor, Adileen Thorne, Roberta Rookey of Maryland and Agnes Weber.

For Celebrated Honorees.

Miss Anna Knecht dispensed charming hospitality at a well-appointed luncheon on Monday at the Alexandria, in honor of Mrs. Julius Eugene Kinney of Denver, retiring president of the National Federation of Musical Clubs, and three Denver delegates, Miss Madeline Vance Brooks, Miss Harriet Sims and Miss Gotteslleben. Others at table were Mrs. Jennie Hagan Goodwin, Mrs. William F. Botsford, Miss Beresford Joy, Miss Jennie Winston, Miss Mary L. O'Donoughue and Mrs. L. F. Eppich.

Patriotic Luncheon.

Flags, shields and red, white and blue floral decorations were employed for the pretty luncheon over which Mrs. C. S. Falkenstrom presided on Wednesday with members of her card club as guests. Cornflowers, red and white sweet peas were massed in the table center, with place cards of a patriotic nature to accentuate the idea. Cards furnished a pleasant afternoon's diversion. Mrs. George David of No. 946 Dewey avenue has invited the same group to be her guests within a short time.

For Mrs. Buchanan.

The luncheon given Wednesday by Mrs. A. G. McInnes of No. 1237 West Fifty-fourth street in honor of her cousin and house guest, Mrs. Donald Buchanan of Boston, was a delightful function. Roses, ferns and potted plants beautified the rooms.

In company with Miss Emily McInnes, Mrs. Buchanan is to go to San Diego the 17th inst. to visit the exposition.

In Honor of "Pledges."

Epsilon Chapter of the Mu Delta Sorority was responsible recently for a most delightful dancing party, given at the home of Miss Delta Kapp, No. 2303 Romeo place.

Guests of honor included Misses Elizabeth Felts, Grace Wilson, Myra Barnwell, Eleanore Snodgrass, Esther Rowan and Mrs. LeRoy Crawford. Others present were Misses Mildred Snowden, Clair Felts, Ruth Felts, Gladys Bacigolupi, Jane White and Delta Kapp, and Messrs. Junior Dickey, F. V. Allen, LeRoy Crawford, Bates, Ernest Allen, Laughlin, Linton Smith, Harold Waggoner, Grover Castor, Ralph Crawford and Ivan Mason.

Miss Florence Crocker Marries.

With all the solemnity and impressiveness of the Episcopal ritual, Miss Florence Crocker, the pretty daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Crocker of Westmoreland place on Wednesday night became the bride of Trueman Metcalf, the service being read at 8 o'clock by the Rev. Davidson of St. Johns. Mrs. John Mitchell Jones played a programme on the harp previous to the ceremony, changing into the Lohengrin wedding chorus as the wedding party came down the stairs and took their places before an improvised altar of greenery and pink roses in the drawing-room. Mrs. Cecil J. Gardner, richly gowned in pale pink chiffon and tulle and carrying Cecile Brunner rosebuds and maidenhair fronds, attended the fair Miss Crocker, while the latter's brother, Roy Crocker, who was graduated from Cornell University this year and has just returned home, was best man.

The statuesque beauty of the bride was enhanced by her rich gown of nuptial satin made with court train and trimmed in seed pearls and real lace. The graceful tulle veil was caught in the coiffure with lilies of the valley, and her shower bouquet was also of these sweet flowers and orchids.

The happy young couple, than whom none enjoy a larger circle of well wishers, are honeymooning in San Francisco, and upon their return are to summer with the bride's parents. The bride comes from a distinguished line of ancestors, her mother being descended from the Knickerbocker family of Rutherfords, while her father comes from London, where his father was a member of the Bank of England and of especially high connection.

The wedding was witnessed by nearly a hundred bidden guests, many of whom were former New York and Wisconsin family friends.

Here and There.

Mrs. A. English and her daughter, Miss Achsah Tyler, left Saturday for San Diego, where they were joined by the former's son, Jay English, for a few days' visit at the Fair.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Ranson Stower of Alvarado Terrace left Friday for the East to spend the summer months. They are to be entertained in New York, Denver and other points, and are returning in September via the San Francisco exposition.

Capt. Harmon D. Ryus has gone to Michigan and Chicago to spend a fortnight, having started yesterday.

Madame Amelia Grosser and Miss Elsa Grosser have gone to San Francisco to visit the exposition.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Winter and son Howard are here from Kansas City, having made the trip of 2000 miles in eleven days in their automobile. They are guests of Mr. and Mrs. George F. Winter of West Adams street.

Mrs. Marguerite G. Starling has, following a four years' residence in Los Angeles, gone to her former home in Detroit. Mrs. Starling has no intention of remaining away indefinitely, for she has built an attractive apartment house on South Bonnie Brae, and is looking forward with pleasure to an early return.

Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin F. Kierulff, and family of No. 857, South St. Andrew's place, have closed their house for the summer, having taken a house at 24 Sherman court, Venice.

For Mrs. Beach.

What promises to be one of the most delightful of the innumerable society events planned in honor of the many visiting musical artists is to have Mrs. H. H. A. Beach of Boston, when Miss Virginia Goodsell entertains at a reception on Tuesday evening. The hostess, assisted by her mother, will welcome her guests in the drawing room of the Burlington, amid banks of fluffy green fern and yellow flowers. The music room, where a choice but very short programme will be rendered, will be a mass of white and yellow, while the roof-garden and solarium (used for serving refreshments) will be very gay with Japanese lanterns and red dahlias. Songs from Henry Balfour, known professionally as Henri La Boute, and the reading by Miss Lucy Stoddard of "The Spanish Gypsy," together with a group of Mrs. Beach's songs to be given by Miss Goodsell will constitute a pleasant hour, Mrs. Henion Robinson and Miss Mary O' Donoughue accompanying.

The list of assistants number Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Blanchard, Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Selby, Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Behymer, Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Colby, Mr. and Mrs. Horatio Cogswell, Mr. and Mrs. G. Hallett Johnson, Miss Margaret Goetz, Miss Beresford Joy, Miss Eva Frances Pike, Miss Mary O'-Donoughue, Miss Jennie Winston, Mr. Roy LaMont Smith, Archibald Sessions, Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Hart, Mr. and Mrs. William Bassett, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Farwell Edson, Judge and Mrs. W. H. Jamison, Mrs. Clinton E. Carter, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Babcock, Miss Lucile G. Roberts, Mrs. Charles W. Camm of Berkeley, and Leslie Marsh.

A bevy of pretty girls are to preside at the punch bowls, among them being Misses Hazel Walker, Ethel and Gladys Moon of Denver, Ora Crary, Virginia Dunham, Helen Grimes, Highland Reeder, Hallett Johnson and Harriett Kunnican.

Won To California.

An acquisition under somewhat unusual circumstances to social circles of Los Angeles is Mrs. B. M. Tremper of Chicago. With Mr. Tremper she spent last winter in this city during her convalescence from the effects of a severe accident, making her home at the Bryson apartments. She had her car shipped across the continent and what was intended to be a brief stay lengthened into months and finally crystallized into a determination to make her permanent home in the pleasant surroundings of Southern California.

The news of her decision was greeted with dismay in the Windy City and was finally acceded to on the part of her eastern friends only on condition that she should return there for several months to be the guest of honor at a series of farewell functions. It is this obligation which Mrs. Tremper is now discharging. Following a tour of Maine, to be made this summer, she will rejoin Mr. Tremper in this city.

Farewell Banquet.

Mrs. Henry C. Moore of the Burlington apartments acted as hostess at a banquet with covers laid for 100 persons at the Hotel Clark, on Wednesday evening, complimentary to the departure of her husband for Europe.

Lewis Cruikshank acted as toastmaster, and toasts were responded to by Rev. Mr. Lee, the Mayor, A. P. Tugwell and others.

The center piece represented a miniature ocean, wih forts of the warring nations surrounding, flying their respective flags. With the orchestra playing Star Spangled Banner, and with the guests on their feet, Mrs. Moore touched a secret spring, which sent the American flag flying over the largest fort higher than any other banner.

Mrs. Moore was assisted in receiving by her daughter Miss Georgia Moore, Miss Pauline Smith, Miss Lillian Jeffries and a number of her more intimate friends.

An Appeal for Aid.

Madame Grouitch, wife of the under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs at Nish, who was in Los Angeles in May seeking relief for her people, has secured for the California tent fund for Servian relief the following prominent Southern Californians to assist in her work: Los Angeles, Mrs. Hancock Banning, Mrs. John Percival Jones, Mrs. Joseph Sartori, Mrs. Randolph H. Miner, Mrs. Lucien N. Brunswig, Mrs. Maurice Hellman, Mrs. Berthold Baruch and Mrs. William Horace Day; Pasadena, Mrs. Joseph H. Johnson, Mrs. Sherman Hoyt, Mrs. E. M. Fowler, Dr. John Willis Baer, Rev. Robert Freeman, Dr. James A. B. Scherer, Rev. Leslie E. Learned and Miss Kate Fowler; Redlands, E. M. Lyon; Claremont, Dr. George Sumner; Riverside, Frank A. Miller; Pomona, Charles M. Stone.

An effort is being made to take the people from the congested centers to healthful districts, where they can till the soil and prevent famine.

Miss Kate Fowler, No. 363 Grove street, Pasadena, has charge of the headquarters, and checks are to be made payable to the Servian Agricultural Relief Committee.

To go to Long Beach.

Many Angelenos are planning to attend the tennis dansant on the Hotel Virginia tennis courts, to be held tomorrow afternoon following the matches. Later on there is to be a brilliant evening dance in the ballroom. Lending their presence as patronesses are to be Mrs. Russell McDonald Taylor, Mrs. Sydney I. Wailes, Mrs. J. J. A. Van Kaathoven, Mrs. Kent Kane Parrot, Mrs. Harry Coburn Turner, Mrs. Reginald Lloyd-Jones, Mrs. Thomas Bundy, Mrs. Carroll H. Allen, Mrs. Harry W. Robinson of Beverly, Mrs. M. E. Flowers and Mrs. Evan P. Morphy of Santa Monica.

For a Debutante.

Mrs. William Brill yesterday contributed to the social calendar an unusually-attractive luncheon, when she complimented a debutante of this season, Miss Agnes Wickfield Britt. The elaborate menu was served at the California Club, and later the ladies enjoyed the matinee performance of "Fairyland."

Bidden were Miss Britt, Mrs. Davis Barmore, Mrs. Lashbrooke, Mrs. Clair S. Tappaan, Mrs. Forrest Stanton, Miss Conchita Sepulveda, Miss Marjorie Freeman, Miss Florence Hunsaker and Miss Ella Darling.

Mrs. Hunsaker Hostess.

A coterie of ladies were entertained yesterday afternoon by Mrs. W. J. Hunsaker at the "Fairyland" performance. Those privileged to attend were Mrs. Wheaton Gray, Mrs. James R. Dupuy, Mrs. Owen Humphreys Churchill, Mrs. William Johnston, Mrs. Philip Lowe, Mrs. E. H. Hammell, Mrs. Erasmus Wilson, Mrs. Norman Hall, Mrs. Walter Eaton, Mrs. A. Schneider, Mrs. D. S. Miller of New Mexico, Mrs. Stockton and Miss Ida White.

For the Younger Set.

A fairy scene of bewitching loveliness was effected in the Italian garden of Mrs. John Percival Jones of West Adams street on Tuesday evening when her grand-daughter and grandson, Miss Dorothy and Gregory Jones, who are just home from Radcliffe and Harvard to spend their vacations, were motif for a merry dancing party.

Twinkling lights were strung out of doors, which was used mostly for the affair, though the entire house was decorated prettily. Pink flowers were used, together with greenery and palms, and a buffet "cabaret" supper was served during the evening.

The personnel of bidden guests numbered about 200 of Los Angeles' most attractive debutantes and subbelles, who will not make their official bow to society for some time, and also a very few of the married set, with plenty of dancing partners, as follows: The Misses Almada, Amy Busch, Constance Byrne, Juliette Boileau, Elizabeth Brant, Katherine Mary Banning, Burton, Frances Beveridge, Eleanor Banning, Lucy M. Clark, Emmeleen Childs, Inez Clark, Constance Curtis, Evangeline and Helen Duque, Daphne Drake, Alice Elliott, Kate Freese, Dorothy Gillis, Kate Fowler, Henrietta Hunt of Santa Monica, Margaret Fleming, Louise Hunt, Ruth Hoyt, Marguerite Hughes, Selina Pope Ingraham, Helen Jones, Florence Johnston, Margaret Johnston, Matilda T. Lewis, Robert de Bruce, Harold Webster and the Colemans.

Luncheon at the California Club.

One of the prettiest luncheons that has been given during the season was that of Mrs. E. C. Hamilton of Long Beach, who on Tuesday entertained at the California Club, assisted by Mrs. William H. Bonsall. The exquisite board, resplendent in its perfect appointments, was centered with a mound of pink sweet peas and feathery Gypsophila, this being bordered in an arrangement of the flowers contained in gold baskets at each cover, which was marked with hand-done cards in rose design. At table were Mrs. Ernest A. Bryant, Mrs. J. Ross Clark, Mrs. Henry Carlton Lee, Mrs. Jefferson Paul Chandler, Mrs. N. Murray, Mrs. William H. Joyce, Mrs. E. Avery McCarthy, Mrs. Frederick H. Bixby, Mrs. John H. F. Peck, Mrs. Hugh McFarland, Mrs. William H. Bonsall, Mrs. William W. Mines, Mrs. Victor Stewart, Mrs. Dan L. McFarland, Mrs. Charles McFarland, Dr. Maria Patrick and the hostess.

For a Visitor.

Miss Thilda Jane Gregor of Rockland and Boston, who has been the house guest of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Blakwell, No. 1210 Magnolia avenue, was guest of honor at a luncheon Thursday, given here by Mrs. Frank Nasro, No. 749 North Kenmore avenue. Plates for ten were laid. Decorations were French marigolds and Matilija poppies. Miss Gregor leaves in a few days for an extended sojourn in San Francisco and Eureka, the latter city being her birthplace.

The Hoyt Dance.

Honoring their house guests, Miss Blanche Cutrer of Memphis and Miss Ingalls of Chicago, the Albert Sherman Hoyts gave a splendid dance at their beautiful home on Tuesday evening.

A platform was erected on the spacious lawn, outside the drawing-room, and was hung with innumerable showy Japanese lanterns, which added with their color and light to a fairy-like scene. Near the playing fountain, in the upper garden near the house, an inviting rendezvous was formed under the trees with rugs and comfy chairs and seats, and from the graceful slope down hill one could observe the large swimming pool glistening in the moonlight, with the canoes (always occupied) skimmering quietly along. Here later, a Hawaiian quartette sang during supper, which was served on the tennis court at the foot of the hill, little tables being scattered about.

The garden, with its towering eucalyptus and other big trees, made an ideal spot for the outdoor function.

Under the huge spreading mulberry tree, and in the summer arbor, punch was served constantly.

Among those bidden were Misses Bettie Carey, Jill Drummond, Barbara Scoville, Ada Black, Louise Up de Graff, Jardine, Anna Peterson, Kitty Torrance, Labelle Boice, Bixby, Ryan, Kayser, Lockwood, Statts, Emily McBride, Katherine Emery, Ruth and Blossom Hoyt, and Messrs. George White, F. Sydney Hoben, Louis Torrance, Marshall, Bob Smith, Crawford May, N. Macbeth, Huntington Barker, Frank Badjely, Neff, Charles Stimpson, Herbert Lockwood, Andrew White, Blankenhorn, Earle Jardine, Sharp, Lyttleton, McBride, Brian Welch and others. Among the very few married set were Mr. and Mrs. John Earle Jardine, Mr. and Mrs. Haver of Burlingame, Mrs. Theodore Welch and Mrs. Lennox.

Cupid's Corner.

The marriage of Miss Blanche Vivian Warner and Daniel Richard Monahan was an event of Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock at St. Agnes Church. For the ceremony, the altar was massed with pink gladioli and sweet peas. The wedding party was made up of John A. McGeehan, best man; Miss Ida Virginia League, as bridesmaid, who wore a frock of filet lace, pannlered in American Beauty taffeta and hat to match, and carried American Beauty roses, little Margaret Monahan, niece of the groom, as flower girl looked adorable in blue organdy and carried a basket of Cecile Brunner roses. The bride looked dignified in her gown of white charmeuse, made entraine, and with lace overdress, as she entered the chapel to the strains of Mendelssohn's "Wedding March." Her long veil was fastened with a coiffure band of pearls and she carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley the same dainty flowers sprayed on the gown. During the service, "Ave Maria" was sung by Mrs. May MacDonald Hope, the violin obligato by Monsieur LePlat.

Mr. and Mrs. Monahan, after an extended wedding trip, will be at home at No. 541 North Gramercy place.

Pretty Wedding.

With their nuptials said at a pretty home wedding, at No. 1324 Westlake avenue, Miss Irene Madden on Wednesday evening became the bride of Earl Meredith, Rev. W. J. Knighten officiating. The bride's grandfather gave her into the keeping of Mr. Meredith. Miss Gladys Madden was maid of honor for her sister and Miss Ercell Hudson, bridesmaid, both being attired in pale yellow messaline and carrying lavender sweet peas. Little Eugene Hudson was ring bearer, and Ruth Krueger, flower girl. The bridal gown was fashioned from charmeuse crepe de meteor, and was made with court train, and trimmed in pearls. She carried bride's roses and lilies of the valley. Preceding the ceremony Miss Elizabeth Wando sang, "Because" and "O, Promise Me."

Mr. and Mrs. Meredith are to spend their honeymoon at the two expositions and will be at home after August 1, in their new home at Glendale.

WITH the hospitable doors ajar many homes are opened this week to delegates from the musical and literary world who are attending their respective conventions in Los Angeles and finding time to greet their California friends meanwhile. Many charmingly informal entertainments have been shown the guests and many delightful reunions have occurred, giving added zest and pleasure to the visitors.

Mrs. Richard Norton of San Francisco, who has been visiting friends in the Southland recently, was the week-end guest of Miss Ada Parrish. On Tuesday Mrs. Norton was pleasantly entertained at luncheon by Mrs. John S. Hess at her home on South Fifth street, later attending the "Mission Play" at San Gabriel.

One of the most delightful and elaborate entertainments was the luncheon given by Mrs. Charles Herigel in honor of Miss Muse Dee Rand, who is the house guest at the Herigel home. The house was exquisitely embellished for the occasion with a profusion of Shasta daisies, prettily combined with quantities of smilax. Fifteen guests were bidden to meet Miss Rand, and the delectable menu was thoroughly enjoyed by the guests who spent the afternoon in a happily informal manner. Assisting Mrs. Herigel in her gracious hospitality was Mrs. J. G. Jeffries, Mrs. David Walton of Riverside and Miss Laviah Roe.

The card party given by the Rebekahs on Monday evening was one of the most informal and delightful occasions of the week's social activities. About fifty friends and members of the organization gathered to enjoy the event, which was given over to the enthusiasms of whist after which delectable refreshments were dispensed by the hostesses of the pleasant affair.

Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Rogers, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Berry, Mr. and Mr. Chris Campbell, Miss Rose Oliver and Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Day were members of an enthusiastic motor party who left on Saturday morning to motor to Santa Barbara, where they went to enjoy the ceremonial session of the Shriners. The party, who enjoyed a delightful trip, are loud in their praises of the hospitality of lovely Santa Barbara, where they were domiciled at the Potter during their sojourn.

Mr. and Mrs. John Smither of South Fifth street are entertaining Miss Blanche Stevens of Jackson, Miss., who plans to remain in Southern California indefinitely.

The anticipated entertainment to be given by the members of the 1915 Club to their husbands in the near future is one of the pleasant topics of the week. The last meeting of the organization, which is one of the pleasantest social clubs of the city, met on Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Robert Bennett on South Second street, and during a delightful afternoon spent with artistic needlework and informal pleasantries, elaborate arrangements for the entertainment to be given in the near future were made.

Miss Adele Smith of San Francisco, who has been attending the convention of musicians in Los Angeles, was the guest of friends at the Hotel Breckenridge during the week, and was the motive for informal entertaining on the part of many of her friends. Miss Smith will leave for San Diego on Tuesday, planning to remain for several weeks in the southern city enjoying the exposition.

Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Cooney have returned to Alhambra after an extensive visit in the Eastern States. The wanderers returned by way of the exposition and are enthusiastic in their praise of the wonderful display that is being made there.

WITH the advent of the first hot days of summer there has been a general exodus of society folk on pleasure bent for delightful outings among the cool shade and in the seclusion of verdant mountain nooks, where, revelling in the extravagant beauty of nature, happiness and content are at their height. One of the merriest of the mountain parties recently given was that given by Miss Mae and Miss Juanita Paston to a merry coterie of friends Tuesday evening, the pleasant affair being a gracious compliment to Miss Edna Urick. About thirty guests congregated at the mouth of the canyon and here an impromptu programme of songs and amusements was thoroughly enjoyed by the young folk. At the conclusion of the games a delicious camp supper was served, including a weinie bake, which was supplemented by additional goodies. The picnic was one of the pleasantest of many recently given by members of the younger social set.

Accompanied by their teacher, Mr. W. J. Evans, the boy members of the Baraca Class of the First Methodist Church left Monday for a week's outing in the canyon. The week will be spent in the vicinity of Follow's Camp, where the time will be spent in fishing and other mountain sports. Among those reveling in the delightful party are Messrs. Leo Berner, Ralph Hertenstein, Carl Rinderknecht, Emory Bowling, Chester Savage, Cecil Singleton, Fred Heth and Claude Russell.

One of the prettiest parties of the week was given by Miss Gertrude Williams Thursday evening, when she entertained a number of friends at the home of her mother. The living-room was prettily decorated in cut flowers and greenery in anticipation of the pleasant occasion, and the evening was happily spent with music and games, as the principal and delightful diversions offered. At the conclusion of the merriment a delicious light collation was served the guests, among whom were Miss Lelah Hummel, Miss Jessie Poston, Miss Mary Cain and Messrs. Willard Stewart, Paul Clark, Oliver Powell and Dwight Peirce.

Mrs. George Stewart entertained Miss Wilma Youngman and Miss Frances Eagle of Los Angeles for the week end recently.

Among the many devotees of delightful automobile trips are the W. R. Powells, who left Tuesday for San Diego in their machine. Accompanying them on the trip are their sons, Leslie and Oliver, and a delightful outing is anticipated. A leisurely trip is to be made, which will include a visit with friends in Escondido.

Another automobile party to San Diego includes Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Hayden, their two little children, Sheldon and Miss Corinne, and their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Hayden, of San Bernardino. A visit of a week or ten days sightseeing at the exposition is anticipated by the happy party.

Miss Nellie Denio and Miss Florence Felton of New York have been recent guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Poston, who entertained them for several days. The young easterners were delighted with California and the expositions.

A day of unusual pleasure and delight occurred Saturday when the ladies of the Methodist Church met at the social hall and tendered a charming birthday party and miscellaneous shower to Mrs. E. F. Gates. The afternoon, which was happily informal, was thoroughly enjoyed by the congenial coterie present, and was concluded by the serving of dainty light refreshments.

The mountain canyons echoed with the reverberations of the merry time enjoyed by about forty young people who enjoyed a weinie bake at the river on Friday night, whither they went as the guests of their teachers, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Evans. The merry party left in machines and a large stage for the river, where songs and games were enjoyed until supper time, which was loudly acclaimed by the delighted young guests of the merry outing.

San Gabriel.

ENTERTAINING the distinguished members of the musical and newspaper world during the week has been one of the pleasures of the socially-inclined, and many homes were the abiding places of some of the delegates to the conventions held in Los Angeles during the week. The "Mission Play" has been the Mecca for many of the visitors, and much other informal entertainment has been offered them. Among the affairs of the week none was more charming than the luncheon given on Friday afternoon by Mrs. C. E. Bean as a courtesy to Miss Alice Ewing of Moundsville, who is the guest of her sister, Mrs. John Calvin Stockberger of San Marco street. The luncheon, which was al fresco, was served amid perfect and unique appointments on the lawn, the perfection of a "rare day in June" adding to the pleasure of the occasion. Planned as a "New Woman" affair, all of the appointments were of paper and labor-saving materials with the exception of the silver. A unique menu, distinctly new and feminine, was thoroughly enjoyed by the guests, who later responded to a number of toasts. At the conclusion of the delectable collation the guests spent the afternoon in informal and happy discussion on the porch. Those bidden to meet Miss Ewing were Mrs. R. F. Del Valle, Mrs. C. E. Meradith, Mrs. A. W. Smith, Miss Baer, Mrs. Stockberger, Miss Lucretia Del Valle and Mrs. Carl Yens.

Among those who are taking early advantage of vacation days is Mrs. G. M. Purcell, who left Thursday, accompanied by her two sons, to spend the summer at different points in the East. Much of Mrs. Purcell's time will be spent in Buffalo and Philadelphia, and it will not be until fall that she will return to San Gabriel.

The home of Mrs. D. Dorsey on San Gabriel boulevard was the scene of a pretty luncheon on Friday, when the members of the Ladies' Aid Society were hostesses. Luncheon, which was exquisitely dainty in all of its appointments, was served at 4 o'clock, and the afternoon was one of the most delightful of the many similar affairs sponsored by this organization.

The first of a series of studies in birds in California, which will conclude with a pleasant social hour, will take place at the home of Mrs. Earl Wakeman next Tuesday. The pleasing innovation, which will be continued at different homes of the members of the Woman's Club throughout the summer, is anticipated happily by the members and their friends, and it is expected that there will be a large attendance at the hospitable Wakeman home on the occasion of the first assembly.

Monrovia.

MR. AND MRS. A. E. CRONENWETT and family of Gold Hill had as their guests on Monday Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Billman of Philadelphit, Pa. Mr. and Mrs. Billman stopped off en route to San Francisco and are very enthusiastic in their praises of Southern California, and especially of Monrovia.

The members of the senior class of the High School were informally entertained on Thursday afternoon by their class teacher, Miss Grace Osborne, at her home on East White Oak avenue. The hours were spent in social intercourse and songs and interchange of friendship pledges. A delicious luncheon was served at 4:30 o'clock.

The members of the Green Lantern Club were delightfully entertained by Dr. and Mrs. J. L. Pomeroy on Wednesday evening at their home on East Palm avenue. An evening of social intercourse and informal jollity was enjoyed. The cardrooms were prettily decorated with sweet peas, and auction Five Hundred was the diversion. Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Crandall won first prize. Mr. and Mrs. T. Pliny Moran, Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Renaker, Mrs. Deane-Tanner and Mrs. Jere Metzger were asked to meet the club.

One of the smartest parties of the week was given in compliment to Miss Pearl Brownfield on Wednesday by Mrs. Harry E. Baker and Miss Florence Hazen at the home of the former in Bungalow Court, North Myrtle avenue. The guest of honor, a summer bride-elect, was the recipient of a "pink shower" of linen articles, beautifully hemmed and embroidered, by her friends. The larger part of the afternoon was occupied by a thimble bee and a social on the lawn. A dainty supper was served at 5 o'clock at a round table, overhung with wedding bells, and the centerpiece was of pink rosebuds. Place cards were in the pink rose motif, which was the prevailing decoration of the rooms. The guests who enjoyed the delightful affair were Miss Brownfield, Mmes. Norman E. Ross, Walter Lee Morgan, Leslie M. Renaker, Misses Janet Baker, Nellie and Lucile Morse, Nancy Beamer, Betty Dixon, Marion Alt, Rebecca Thomas, Mildred Thomas, Anita Rives, Dorothy Brown and Hazel Brownfield.

Mrs. Kenneth Carter, Miss Hilda Carter and Messrs. Cyril and Kenneth Carter, Jr., left in their car Wednesday morning for the Carter ranch at Wasco. They planned to take two days for the northern run, camping one night in the open.

Guests were entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Slosson on Thursday, covers being laid for nine. Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Dunham, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wagner and Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Schurnet of Los Angeles, who had motored out from the city to be present at the graduation of Miss Arline Slosson.

Mrs. A. W. Hazen entertained in compliment to her mother, Mrs. W. B. Scarborough of Los Angeles, with the first of a projected series of "afternoons." A pink and white motif was used in the decorations, which was also obtained in the score cards and refreshments. Auction bridge was the diversion of the afternoon, and Mrs. Kenneth Price won the high score. About twenty-two guests enjoyed the hospitality of Mrs. Hazen.

The family of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Ainley entertained with a campfire supper Friday evening at Canyon Forks. The supper, prepared at the open hearth, was a substantial one, with broiled rabbits and steaks figuring on the menu. Guests of the Ainleys were Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Mackintosh of Des Moines, Iowa; Ivan Rehm, Rev. and Mrs. A. V. Gray of Nanking, China; Mrs. G. R. Meilich and Miss Helen Meilich of Perry, Iowa.

Sierra Madre.

MONDAY evening a party of jolly young folks enjoyed a picnic supper at the Quarter-way House on the Mt. Wilson trail, walking up in the cool of the afternoon and returning by moonlight. A repast was prepared on the porch of one of the cabins and later informal dancing was indulged in, the music being furnished by a Victrola, which one of the party packed over the trail. Miss Edith Blumer entertained the group by her famous monologue, "The Rube," which made a hit at the Priscilla "high jinks," and Mr. George K. Bourke sang several Irish songs. Among those present were Dr. and Mrs. George Blumer, Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Conard, Mr. and Mrs. Francis P. Baugh, Mr. and Mrs. James N. Hawks, Misses Blumer, Vannier, Stevenson, Bouler, Hawks, McBain and Messrs Davenes, Burke, Vannier, Newton and Everett Gardiner and R. Wood of Pasadena.

Miss Dorothy Camp, who is a student at the Mt. Holyoke College, returns to her home the first of the week, where Mrs. E. W. Camp, her mother, has as guests for the summer Mrs. L. P. Hamilton and daughter Lucile of Fargo, N. D. Chaperoned by Mrs. W. J. Saunders a party of eight is spending the week at the Saunders cottage, Manhattan Beach.

Mrs. C. H. Baker accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Ingraham, left on Tuesday for the north where she will spend the summer and be joined later by Mr. Baker and the children.

The Eleven and One Club held their annual house party at Venice on last Saturday and Sunday. Bathing, dancing and a jolly time was enjoyed by the club members and their invited guests.

Thursday afternoon and evening Mrs. T. H. Flather entertained with a picnic party in honor of her sister, Miss Yerda Appleby, who recently graduated from the State Normal School in Los Angeles. Attired in picnic garb the guests assembled at the Flather residence and hiked to Carter's Camp, where they indulged in swimming at the pool and later playing tennis on the Conard tennis court. The evening was spent in a porch supper at Mrs. Flather's residence and informal dancing. Those invited were Misses Dorothy McBain, Helen Williams, Hamilton, D. Moses of Los Angeles, Adams, Maughlin and Mrs. Maughlin, Messrs. L. Nourse, Ingraham, Victor Hill, Marshall Wright, W. Brunson, Ray Hedderly and John Moses of Los Angeles.

Mrs. Ralph Hopkins entertained a few friends on Thursday afternoon to a farewell greeting with Mrs. S. L. Blackley, who leaves Sierra Madre to make her home in Pasadena. The hours were whiled away in doing fancy work and refreshments of ices, cake and tea were served while many voiced regrets at Mrs. Blackley's departure as she has made many friends here.

Mrs. W. W. Collins was the guest of Mrs. Wheatcroft of Los Angeles on Tuesday, when she entertained a number of ladies from Milwaukee with auction bridge and luncheon.

Miss Beatrice Ward, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Irving N. Ward, is receiving many congratulations in winning the Stickney memorial scholarship for her clever work in oil of the nude. Miss Ward, who is still in her teens, has been a student of the art school for the past year.

To Make Eyebrows and Lashes Long, Thick, Silky.

(Stage Secrets)

Nothing can give more character and form to the face than fine, well-shaped eyebrows and long, dark, curling lashes. By gently rubbing plain pyroxin into the eyebrows every day and applying a little to the lash roots with the finger tip, wonderful improvement is soon noted as to length, thickness and silkiness of these features. An ounce of pyroxin, which any druggist can supply, lasts a long time, and its persistent use cannot injure the eyes.

—1800 Yards Egyptian Nainsook—36 in.—at 15c

(Sketched from the frocks concerned in this event)

Frocks! Over 300 of them! Aren't they pretty porch styles? Yes, but not one of them but is not almost as splendid for street or seashore as for home wear, and Guess! What do you think we are going to sell them for! $5? $6.50? $7.50?

—No, sir-ree! I knew you wouldn't hit it—

Every One of This Great Lot of New Porch Dresses Will Be $2.50

—No wonder their buyer is enthusiastic—

—But just wait until you see the Dresses—You will be enthusiastic, too—

Part of a striking purchase that comes to Bullock's at a very low price will be out for the first time, Tuesday, at $2.50!

—Porch Dresses that are exceedingly Fresh and Pretty and very well made——Of Coinspot—self-plaid—Ratine stripe—self-figured and striking black and white striped Voiles—in a range of the pretty summer tones and white—

—Including the chic English Eton—the pretty overwaist — and close French Blouse effects—

—With collars of Organdy — plain or embroidered — or Pique — and some with vests to match collars and cuffs—

—Waists are defined with wide satin girdles and belts of self material—Skirts have the modish flare — some with clusters of ruffles — others with bands—even some tier effects—

—(A very few suits of Palm Beach cloth included.)

—Thank their maker, his ability and conscientiousness for their style and quality; Thank him, for being just a wee bit over enthusiastic for this very, very low price that will rule at Bullock's, Tuesday, $2.50. 3rd floor.

100 All-Linen Table Sets to be Sold at $4.75

—100 of these Sets—70x71 in. All-Linen Satin Damask Pattern Cloth with 6 Napkins to match—Snow white—$4.75 set.

—One of the strong values from "The Linen Store" at Bullock's—One of the reasons why you should buy your new linens at Bullock's on Tuesday—

—In the face of conditions in the Linen Market that are making it difficult to obtain many staple regular lines to sell at regular prices, Bullock's continues to surprise with values.

75 Round Scalloped Cloths at $3.95

—70 inches in diameter—heavy linen satin damask—grass bleached—very pretty circular floral patterns.—2nd floor—Tuesday.

A New Skirting—35c

—Our "Awning Stripe" skirting—a sturdy weave—perfectly delightful for Summer Skirts and Coats and Suits—

—We wish we could show it to you here—in place of this advertisement—but women will find it Tuesday. They would find it even without this notice, but perhaps not so many——Fresh from the loom—36 inches wide—with stripes of Blue, Orange, Rose, Green and Black—

—A value at 35c yard—at Bullock's—2nd floor.

Lissue Handkerchiefs 25c

—Sheerest and daintiest it has been possible for Bullock's to offer at 25c. Lissue handkerchiefs come in all the delicate colors of the Summer gowns now in vogue.

—And the colors are fast—you are assured of that by the maker's offer to give six new handkerchiefs for every one that loses color in the laundering. 25c. 1st floor.

2250 yds. Ribbons 25c

—Extremely rich, some of them, and in 5¼ to 6¼-inch widths. 25c is but a small fraction of the price their equals brought a short time ago.

—Dainty floral ribbons, some with large rose patterns and wide satin edges. Others with white corded centers. Some rich dark Dresdens with colored satin backs. Plaids and stripes in gilt effects.

—What a chance for the women who have Christmas gifts of "fancy work" in mind! 2250 yards in this shipment, but that price should effect a quick disposal of the entire lot. 25c a yard. First Floor.

Undermuslin Daintiness $1.25

—Daintiness in Undermuslins IS possible at $1.25—and the garments are durable as well as dainty.

—Inferior materials were carefully excluded from this collection—

Gowns at $1.25—High neck models with full or half length sleeves; square, V or high neck gowns of muslin, crepe and cambric. Slipover gowns of muslin and crepe—the latter in white striped and dotted effects, neatly trimmed with lace or embroidery. $1.25. Splendid assortment of extra size gowns in muslin at $1.25.

Combinations at $1.25—Princess and waistline models of nainsook and crepe, tastefully trimmed; sizes 36 to 44—$1.25.

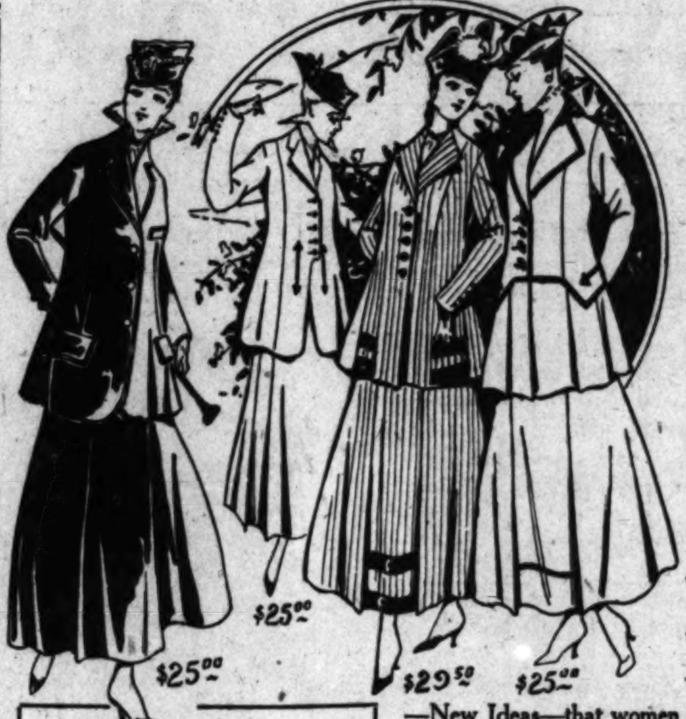
Seventh Floor



—Women know what that means.

—Double interest, new styles at a new price. Advance fashions at less than they will sell for in a regular way, perhaps two months from now.

And the Price Is $25.00

—We wish we could tell you about them just as they are—point out their "differences"—their whims and foibles and little personalities that have everything to do with making them what they are—"The new practical tailored and semi-tailored suits for Fall."

—We have had a picture made, but it really fails to illustrate—Suits that are a tribute to "American designing and tailoring."

—New Ideas—that women will want to see just as soon as they know of them.

—New Values—that women will want to buy because they are so exceedingly attractive.

Every One of Them to Sell at $25.00

And because they are samples and Bullock's met their manufacturer at just the right time—every one of them is much less than it would be in a regular way.

—Advance Fall Models of gabardine, wool repp, wool poplin, diagonal tailor's serge, camel's hair and mixture suiting—the colors include navy, green, gray and black—

—There are coats that are half length—semi-fitted and straight line styles. There are the new ripple coats—new flaring coats—new coats with hip seams—coats with set-in pleats over the hips—some with belts.

—There are styles that button up close around the neck with the new standing collar—others with the mannishly cut notch and long roll collars—Some with velvet collars and overcollars.

—The skirts are modishly cut in the smart flare—many new innovations are added in the way of wide flaps, box pleated side pleats, inset pockets and novel yokes—All at $25.00.

—And some other fall suits at $29.50, that are equally attractive—of Broadcloth, Tailor's Serges, Wool Repp and Mannish Stripes—Tuesday—at Bullock's—3rd floor.

New Millinery!

—"Certainement—
— — — and why not?" demands Fashion.
—"'New Millinery for July!'
—"Exactly — as for January — February — Easter — or September——"Listen! Would you set a season for Inspiration?

—"A month?—or two months? or one day?—or one week?
—"Or could you if you would?—
—"Genius doesn't work by the minute—or the hour—
—"Genius may start up in the middle of the night — out of a sound sleep—

With an Idea

"And the Genius is the Artist —"And the Artist is the Genius—
—"And La Milliner is both—
—"If La Milliner is La Milliner—and not merely a maker of hats.

—" 'The Idea' is 'The Hat.'

"—If the Idea comes in July would you have it put in cold storage till October?
"—No—no—no, indeed—
—"Not with all this beautiful summertime around us—even if it is strong enough and big enough to carry well over into Fall—
—"That's what you think—and I think—and Bullock's thinks——"And that's why Bullock's is showing the most bewitching—lovely—beautiful—different new Hats (that will surely be the vogue in months to come) in an almost bewildering way on the 3rd floor now—
—"And they aren't interfering a bit with

That Sale of Summer Hats

—"That is providing such exceptional style and value interest now.
—"Sport Hats — Now $1.95 — $3.75—$5.00 and $7.50.
—"Trimmed Hats—now $3.45 —$5.45 — $7.95 — $9.75 — $12.45—
—"Hat Shapes—Even at 50c—95c — $1.95 — $2.95 — $3.95.
—"And all of them were—Oh, ever so much more—simply irresistible—Tuesday—3rd floor."

Miss Corrinne Hancock, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. K. Hancock, a graduate of last week from the Venice Union High School, was the recipient of a charming compliment Friday evening, a box party for several hundred of the younger set at the Venice pavilion, beautiful in each detail. Mr. and Mrs. Hancock and Col. and Mrs. J. A. Loudon chaperoned the party.

Mrs. H. L. Bassett entertained the A B C Club at the last session of the summer, before leaving to spend several months in New York. Among those who enjoyed the luncheon and cards were Mrs. W. W. Catlin, Mrs. G. M. Knittle, Mrs. M. Beemer, Mrs. Langley, Mrs. George Beegler and Mrs. E. S. Hills.

A Phi Sigma Chi Sorority, organized among the young women of St. Mark's M. E. Church, was entertained by Miss E. Horn of No. 841 Venice avenue Friday afternoon. Miss Della Coates was also a recent hostess to the club, the president of which is Mrs. R. E. Stark; secretary, Miss Horn; treasurer, Miss Coates.

Ocean Park.

MISS HELEN GARFIELD KING, daughter of Judge and Mrs. Marvin R. King of No. 3002 Fourth street, and William Jay Dawley, a young attorney of Cleveland, O., son of the well-known lawyer, Jay Perry Dawley, were married at 8:30 o'clock Wednesday evening at the King home, in the presence of 150 guests. Rev. Alfred Taylor, rector of the Church of the Good Shepherd, officiated. The home was elaborately decorated in masses of roses, lilies, snapdragons and ferns, a pink and blue scheme being effectively used. The bride, a lovely picture in white chiffon taffeta, draped with Point Dalescon, and trimmed in pearls and orange blossoms, with tulle veil and old fashioned bouquet of orchids, lilies, roses and forget-me-nots in a quaint lace holder, was attended by her sister, Mrs. John Ernest Masnur in ciel blue taffeta, and net, carrying pink radiance roses. Dorothy Fauset was the flower girl, in pink and white. Andrea Scanlan and Joseph Keefe holding the ribbons forming the aisle. The bride's brother, Stuart King, was best man. Mr. and Mrs. Dawley will be at home in Cleveland. The groom is a Harvard and Delta Kappa Epsilon man, and the bride a Stanford graduate, her father having formerly been a United States Commissioner.

The Breakers Club has announced an interesting programme for July, including in addition to the usual Tuesday afternoon card parties and Saturday evening cards and dancing, a luncheon July 13, a shirt waist dance July 21 and a Fourth of July cafeteria supper, Monday evening. Mrs. Frank Stewart will be hostess for the month. This week the Club enjoyed a picnic, seventy-five motoring out to Topanga canyon, where they were entertained at the summer home of Major H. P. Schofield, the homes of H. R. Gage and A. R. Fraser being also thrown open. Picnic lunches were served beneath the trees.

Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Jones entertained with a smart dinner-dance at the Merritt Jones hotel. Fourth of July suggestions appointing the elaborate function in the grill room. Mrs. Olive Byrne, Mrs. Warnack Symondsen, and Miss Olive Lape assisted in receiving forty guests.

Mrs. M. S. Hamlin has returned after an absence of ten months in the Phillipine Islands, where she went with her daughter, Mrs. C. M. Eye, who is now making her home there with Mr. Eye.

The wedding of Miss Ramona Sweet of Chicago and Ernest C. Carter of Los Angeles, was solemnized at the summer residence of the bride and her sister, a bereavement in the family causing all plans — — very simple. Rev. C. S. Maddox, pastor of the Baptist Church, officiated, only immediate relatives being present.

At 10 o'clock Tuesday morning at the parsonage of St. Clement's Church, Miss Mary S. Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Miller of Walgrove, and Joseph Spellacy of Taft, son of Mrs. Emma Spellacy of the Parker apartments, were married by Rev. Michael Henessey. The wedding was very simple, only the family attending. A wedding breakfast at the Daly home, No. 143 Ashland avenue, followed. Mr. and Mrs. Spellacy will make their home in Taft, where the groom is in business.

Redondo Beach.

HONORING a house guest, Miss Dunkin of San Francisco, Mrs. E. G. Butt gave a middy party and luncheon Saturday. The guests all appeared in catching white middies with stripes and white skirts. The hostess wore a red and white middy with a white skirt. A delicious two-course luncheon was served the guests, the color motif of yellow and white being carried out in the adornments of the table. Yellow daisies were used in the decorating and the place cards fitted in artistically in the coloring. Mrs. Butt entertained her guests after luncheon with a dancing party at the pavilion. The guests included Miss Dunkin, Mrs. Erickson, Mrs. Richard Wolfsberg, Mrs. Louise Chilvin, Mrs. Devlin, Mrs. Durlin, Mrs. McGehee and Mrs. Funk.

A social afternoon of an informal nature was participated in by several guests who formed a party at the home of Mrs. Flay of North Francisca avenue. Among many delicious things served by the hostess was English trifle. Fancy needlework was also a feature of the afternoon. Those who took part in the affair were Miss Edith Seargeant, her cousin, Miss Vera Keyes of Riverside, a guest at the Seargeant home; Mrs. Backrath; her daughter, Miss Backrath, Mrs. Erickson, Miss Emily Bone and Miss Viola Fowler.

A Japanese party is being planned by the Tricoteuse Club. The affair will be given at the home of Miss Bone.

Mr. and Mrs. John Seargeant arrived home Sunday after a motor trip to and from San Francisco. They visited the exposition.

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Harris, Jr., of Glendale were the week end guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Hibbard.

Miss Gunesion and brother, Gunther, of Los Angeles, were Sunday guests of Miss Frances and Miss Belma Kniskern.

Mrs. Annie B. Nair and two children of Eagle Rock were the guests Sunday at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ira G. Guilford.

Mrs. Laura Lewis and daughter, Josephine, are among the recent arrivals here, having come from Humboldt, Ariz., to visit Mr. and Mrs. Ed Threnberth of South Elena avenue.

Miss Clarenell Caldwell, daughter of Judge Caldwell of Trinidad, Colo., arrived here last week and has joined the party of Trinidad friends here for some time.

Hermosa Beach.

SURPRISED by a half dozen friends of Los Angeles, Mrs. R. Linden of No. 237 Pier avenue quickly assumed the part of hostess for the day recently and entertained the unexpected guests. Part of the day was spent on the beach. The party included Mrs. Powell Ulm and two children, Mrs. Boritzky, Mrs. P. Ehrenteit and John Heiss.

Mrs. Pearl E. Andrews recently entertained as house guests Mr. and Mrs. Spitzer of Los Angeles and Mrs. Mann of Santa Monica.

Mrs. Harry Carroll recently entertained a number of friends at a tea.

Mrs. R. E. Matteson entertained a number of her friends recently at her home in honor of Miss Nan Barrett, vice-principal of the Redondo Union High School. The affair was a farewell event, Miss Barrett having left on a short trip north. Among the guests were Miss Barrett, Mrs. J. E. Walker, Miss May Mohn and Mrs. Irvin Lockwood.

Long Beach.

AT AN afternoon Kensington given Tuesday Miss Ruth Worall of Pasadena was honor guest, the hostess being Miss Loraine Huntington, No. 763 Loma drive. The young women are students at a school of expression in the Crown City, and the party was given for the introduction of a group of beach friends to the guest of honor. The decorative scheme was pink and lavender, old-fashioned garden flowers being used effectively. Needlework, music and readings comprised the impromptu programme of entertainment. At the close of the afternoon a spread was tendered the guests of Miss Huntington. Guests were Miss Ruth Worall, Miss Ruth Adams, Miss Laura Conklin, Miss Virginia Gilbert, Miss Frances Howe, Miss Olive Powers, Miss Kathryn Gilbert.

Sorority girls who were in annual convention at Hotel Virginia this week were complimented by Miss Gladys Hanna, No. 1325 East Ocean avenue, Tuesday, a card party and luncheon being enjoyed. Varying shades of blue flowers adorned the rooms. In the afternoon auction bridge was the divertisement. Friends from San Francisco, Los Angeles, San Luis Obispo and Pasadena shared the pleasures of the afternoon with Miss Hanna.

Mrs. W. B. Walters and her daughter, Mrs. Floyd Roberts, No. 621 New York street, entertained Wednesday afternoon, members of the Atlantic-avenue N.S.C. being guests. Favors were firecrackers, and the Stars and Stripes figured prominently in the decorations. A review of the book, "War Brides," was given by Mrs. C. A. Peterson, assisted by Miss Elizabeth Pingree. Those enjoying the hospitality of Mrs. Roberts and Mrs. Walters were Mrs. E. E. Lazenby, Mrs. A. A. McLean, Mrs. Ernest Just, Mrs. S. Pingree, Mrs. C. A. Peterson, Mrs. D. C. Putney, Miss Lydia Corum, Miss Elizabeth Pingree, Mrs. Oren Irish and Mrs. Oakes.

Mrs. C. J. Hargis, No. 853 Atlantic avenue, entertained in happy manner a group of friends Wednesday in honor of Mrs. Grant K. Lewis of Cincinnati, O., whose husband was pastor of the First Christian Church. All the guests were members of the church at the time Dr. Lewis was pastor of the church, they being Mrs. Julian Smith, Mrs. R. W. M. Cate and Mrs. Anderson.

The marriage at Pasadena Wednesday of Miss Elizabeth Cullen of this city to Harold Parker Huntington of South Pasadena was an event which attracted much attention and many guests of this city. The marriage ceremony was performed at 4:30 p.m. in the Church of the Angels, with the rector, Rev. Harry Thompson, officiating. The bride's sister, Miss Isabel Cullen, was maid of honor, and the flower girl was little Antoinette Bush, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George C. Bush.

A rainbow party was the diversion given a dozen little tots by Mr. and Mrs. William Garner for their 5-year-old daughter, Marian June, Wednesday afternoon, the occasion being the fifth birthday anniversary of little Miss Garner. The Garner home at No. 2223 Perkins avenue was prettily decorated for the affair. New pennies were attached to the ends of ribbons suspended from an overturned pot of gold. Those sharing with Miss Marian June the pleasure of the afternoon were allowed to keep the pennies caught by them.

Miss Helen L. Spaulding and George J. Blake, both teachers in the local High School, were married at 3 o'clock, Wednesday, at the Blake home in Hollywood. The groom is head of the sloyd department of the school and the bride is a teacher in English. The couple went to the mountains for a trip, after which they will reside in this city.

The wedding of Miss Olga Ketelson of this city and Earl Chiles of Davis, Cal., was celebrated at St. Anthony's Catholic Church Tuesday morning at 6:30 o'clock, Rev. Father Reardon officiating. The couple were unattended, and wore their traveling suits. The bride has resided at the Poinsettia apartments since coming to this city from Nevada three years ago.

Huntington Beach.

LISLE A. HOSKIN of Lordsburg and Miss Madge E. Hathaway of Huntington Beach were united in marriage by Rev. William L. Miller, pastor of the Methodist Church, Saturday evening at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Bert Noble, on Seventeenth street. Mr. Hoskin is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank O. Hoskin of Lordsburg, and the bride is the daughter of Mrs. Alice Chapman of Pomona, who were present. The young couple left immediately after the ceremony for Lordsburg, where they will make their home.

Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Gardner returned Tuesday from a three weeks' visit with their daughters, Mrs. J. R. Thorpe and Mrs. R. M. Seymour of Los Angeles, and son, L. E. Gardner of Clarkdale, and their grand-daughter, Elsie Seymour, returned with them and will spend her summer vacation here.

Mrs. Roch Courages and her son, John Courages, and daughter, Miss Jessie Courages, and Mrs. Peter Lacabanne left Monday for a motor trip to San Francisco and the exposition.

Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Turner and their son Forest were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Peterson of Bairdstown Sunday. In the afternoon the party motored through Pasadena and over the Highland drive to Glendale.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Gleasner of Albuquerque, N. M., were the guests of Trustee and Mrs. M. D. Rosenberger the past week. Mr. Gleasner is a brother of Mrs. Rosenberger.

Trustee and Mrs. M. E. Helme and their daughter, Miss Amy Helme, and sons, Paul and Chester B. Helme, left early Tuesday morning on a motor tour to San Diego and the exposition.

ONE of the delightful affairs connected with the closing days of school was the wiener roast and dance given the S.S.S. Club of the Hollywood High by Miss Lora Vale Small, on Saturday evening. Forty young people gathered on their spacious croquet grounds, beneath the live oaks and roasted the tempting wieners and marshmallows over an improvised brick oven. Many other delicious viands were spread on the long table lighted by the brilliant moon and Japanese lanterns in the school colors of crimson and white. After supper they danced at Bungalow Inn, where they were chaperoned by Mesdames D. M. Small, F. J. Ephlin and M. N. Clark. The young people invited to the jolly affair were the Misses Bessie Clark, Berhyl Held, Edith Newman, Ruth Brown, Sylpha Walbridge, Marie Patterson, Ione Milson, Evelyn Hutchinson, Florence Miller, Marjorie Cummings, Pauline Elliot, Phylis Ephlin, Francis Spaulding, Dorothy Davis, Rachael Davis, Francis Merriman, Genevieve Stock, Ruth Adams and Sara Vale Small, and Bo Suranagin, Verne Elliot, Alison Stone, George Suman, Walker Royer, Lemuel Bailey, Henry East, Fay Blair, Warden Tufts, William Warden, Henry Desnoyer, Herbert Wood, Bob Lacey, Palmer Slayton, Russell Luck, Donald Dockrey, Lelan Goldman, Tod Edwards, and Ralph Vilas.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Herman Aagaard are entertaining a house party consisting of Mr. G. M. Lafferty and bride, and Miss Lucy Adkinson of Louisville, Ky., and Mrs. Flora Lafferty of San Diego. The greater part of every day is spent in the bi, Auto visiting points of interest.

The J. A. Matthews are entertaining Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Van Hoozer and two little daughters of Paul's Valley, Okla.

Mr. Don Porter was in El Centro and San Diego during the week, visiting with his son, Mr. S. S. Porter, who owns the Hotel Barbara Worth that suffered some damages in the recent quake.

Mrs. T. J. Peterson is entertaining her sister Mrs. Mable Tall of South Haven, Ct.

Santa Ana.

SANTA ANA Valley Ebell Society, numbering almost 400 members, listened to one of the most delightful programmes of the year on Saturday afternoon, when Mrs. Kitty Richard Foote gave a charming reading of the opera, "Madame Butterfly," with accompanying dances by Miss Marta Guynn, Mrs. J. S. Durham playing the accompanying music for the reading and dancing. Mrs. A. J. Lawton, two years president of Ebell, introduced her successor, Mrs. C. F. Crose, and was later presented with a beautiful framed painting, "Sunset Over the Golden Gate," the work of Miss Minnie C. Childs. The various supplemental activities of the society, including the maintenance of a day nursery and the plans for the erection of a beautiful clubhouse, for which the land has already been purchased, were reported as in most satisfactory condition. Following the programme a social hour spent over the teacups in the spacious banquet-room of Elks' Clubhouse concluded delightfully a pleasant and profitable year for the Ebell.

Prettily honoring Miss Helen Hull, who soon leaves with her mother and sister for a summer on the extensive Hull estate near Bakersfield, Miss Grace Smiley was hostess on Wednesday evening with a charming lawn party at the West Washington avenue home of the Smileys. The affair was a complete surprise to Miss Hull, who was taken on a motor ride late in the afternoon by Miss Waive Kingrey, the ride ending at the gayly-illuminated grounds of the Smiley residence, where picturesque Japanese lanterns shed rosy light over emerald lawn and splendid trees. A bevy of laughing girls greeted Miss Hull and Miss Kingrey, and then a round of out-of-door and indoor amusements began, Mrs. A. J. Smiley and David Smiley, mother and brother of the hostess, having planned a most entertaining evening, which was concluded with the serving of delicious refreshments. Those joining in the happy farewell party were Misses Helen and Dorothy Hull, Ruth Violett, Flora McFadden, Marian Doyle, Waive Kingrey, Bernice Buel, Gladys Shields, Katherine Remsberg, Beatrice Anderson, Jennie Prevost, Eva Duke and the hostess, Grace Smiley.

A sunset picnic supper of the most sumptuous sort was the initial treat for the guests of Misses Gertrude and Frances Potts on Thursday evening. The table was set on the rear lawn of the Potts home, where shrubbery, flowers, an alluring grape arbor and a carpet of emerald grass made an ideal setting for the merry feast. Gorgeous Indian rugs, scattered about lent added brilliancy to the scene. Piping hot biscuits fresh from the oven were the contribution of Mrs. Potts, the lovable little mother of the hostesses, who has endeared herself to the girls of the N.M.U. Club, who were the guests at the picnic supper, by her many sweet attentions to them. Later the young women adjourned to the pretty parlors, made fragrant with lovely pink roses and carnations. The guest list included Mmes. Walter Eaton, E. A. Stocklager, Jack Palmer, Misses Jennie Dale, Adeline Hill, Alice Wasser, Joy Baker, Zoe Vanderlip, Hazel Stocklager, Marguerite Wallace, Mary Whipple, Zelma Sturgeon, Samson.

Miss Edythe Cornelia Wells, daughter of Mrs. W. G. Wells, No. 512 Spurgeon street, was united in marriage to Jasper N. Osborn at the maternal home on Sunday evening at 6:30 o'clock, Rev. J. N. Stevenson pronouncing the impressive words that made them one. Shasta daisies, roses and geraniums were used decoratively in rich profusion, and the nuptial vows were spoken under a canopy of ferns. The beautiful bride wore white embroidered voile, lace trimmed, and the arm bouquet was of white carnations and ferns. The wedding company comprised close friends of the young couple, who are both prominent in the Christian Endeavor work of the First Presbyterian Church. On Monday morning Mr. and Mrs. Osborn left for Delta, Utah, where Mr. Osborn has purchased a large tract of land. They will soon be followed by Mr. and Mrs. Irwin Greathouse, who will be neighbors on a near-by property. Mrs. Greathouse, a bride of a few months, is a sister of Mrs. Osborn, so the arrangement 's particularly happy for all of the young people.

SEVENTY-FIVE friends of the popular young couple witnessed the marriage of Miss Mabel Alice Peterkin and George Baier, solemnized on a recent Wednesday evening at the Presbyterian Church with Dr. James H. Speer reading the marriage lines. Shasta daisies and roses with greenery decked the church in a dainty white and green color motif. Miss Agnes Ensign played Mendelssohn's "Wedding March" for the entry of the bridal procession, in which the bride, attired in an elegant gown of white crepe de chine, with overdress of shadow lace, with coral trimmings, was a resplendent figure. Her bridesmaids were her sister, Miss Alice Peterkin, and Miss Ruth Parker, gowned respectively in lavender chiffon taffeta and pink charmeuse. The best man was Crockett Riley. After a reception at the new home of the bridal couple on North Grand street, where costly wedding gifts were in evidence, and where dainty refreshments were served, Mr. and Mrs. Baier left for a honeymoon at San Diego. The bride's going-away costume was a chic black and white.

With Miss Betty Lucas of Villa Park and Mrs. Effie Nelson of Porterville as guests of the club, the Modern Priscillas of Villa Park were entertained on Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Louis Le Long. A profusion of pink roses were used decoratively, and the afternoon flew by swiftly as the ladies chatted gayly over the fancy work which is the motive for the existence of the club. Greatly enjoyed refreshments were served to the following guest list: Maude Paul of Los Angeles, Mrs. Nelson of Porterville, Mrs. Roy Smith of Capistrano, Mmes. C. O. Field, Walter Adams, C. J. Porter, James Holditch, Joe Handy, John Gillogy, Carl Durnbaugh, C. A. Palmer, Albert Hughes.

Delightfully surprised was Mrs. W. C. Waechter recently when her charming home on Shaffer and Washington avenue was invaded by forty-five of her old Nebraska friends, who dropped in to assist her in celebrating her birthday. The unexpected guests took with them all the viands necessary for a sumptuous spread, which was served at the close of an evening most delightfully spent in gay chat and numerous jolly diversions. Handsome remembrances for Mrs. Waechter testified eloquently as to the high place she holds in the affections of her friends.

A successful social season for the members of the E.T.C. Club was pleasantly closed last week with a picnic at Long Beach. The event was the first annual celebration held by the club, and was so keenly enjoyed that similar affairs in the future are being eagerly anticipated. Those who joined in the outing at the seaside city were Mrs. Alfred Higgins, Mrs. L. W. Hemphill, Mrs. O. J. Johnson, Mrs. J. I. Bird, Mrs. W. M. Marsh, Mrs. E. B. Buzzek, Mrs. J. F. Richards, Mrs. C. F. Meadows.

Claremont.

MRS. O. H. DUVALL entertained about thirty ladies Tuesday afternoon in honor of her niece, Miss Gertrude Potwin of Faribault, Minn., who has been her guest for the past few days. Miss Potwin is a successful teacher and an accomplished violinist, having studied four years in Germany and one in Italy, in addition to having studied with the best masters in America. During the afternoon Miss Potwin rendered the following programme, which was greatly enjoyed by the guests: Aria (Tenoglia,) "Meditation" (Massenet,) "Berceuse" (Godard,) "Ballade" and "Polonaise" (Vieuxtemps,) "Kubelik" (Fibich,) "Madrigal" (Simonetti,) "Minuet" (Beethoven.) Mrs. M. G. Frampton played the accompaniments for these delightful numbers.

O. H. Duvall and family left Thursday by auto for San Francisco, where Mrs. Duvall and daughter, Florence, will visit friends and relatives. They will also be guests of Mrs. Duvall's parents, Dr. and Mrs. Baldwin, in Palo Alto, while Mr. Duvall will visit his old home near Richmond, Ind. They expect to return to Claremont early in August.

Mrs. L. O. Robinson left Thursday for several days' visit with friends in Los Angeles and San Diego.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Pell and three daughters, Misses Laura, Elizabeth and Helen, returned last Saturday from San Francisco, where they had been spending a week. Thursday they left for San Diego to spend the rest of the summer at La Jolla.

Rev. and Mrs. E. K. Holden were Los Angeles visitors Monday, where Rev. Holden performed the marriage ceremony of Miss Marie Crabb at Pomona and Mr. Guy Gossard of Los Angeles, formerly a student at Pomona College. Mr. and Mrs. Holden returned Wednesday, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Teare.

Mrs. Fred Johnston returned Monday from a short business trip to Riverside.

J. B. Baxter is in Ogden, Utah, for a few weeks as the guest of relatives.

The Merry Wives' Club met for a pleasant social afternoon at Ganesha Park Tuesday. Early in the evening a delicious picnic supper was served, at which the husbands of the members were present. After the bountiful repast the party attended the production of the play, "Back to the Land," given that evening in the Greek Theater by the Stanton Players. Those enjoying this outing included Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. C. R. May, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Hudson, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Baynham, Dr. and Mrs. H. B. Harwood, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Jones, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. McConnell, Mrs. H. S. Bennett of Lindsay, Mrs. R. B. Chisholm, Mrs. H. D. Ros, F. H. Geer of Upland, Dr. R. D. Williams and W. S. Smith.

San Fernando.

SOCIETY is agog with excitement over the unexpected announcement of the marriage of Miss Louisa Foster to Howard J. Hanna which occurred at Riverside Wednesday. When, little over a week ago, a flashing solitaire appeared on Miss Foster's finger, a formal announcement was eagerly awaited by their many friends wishing to honor them, but the announcement was not of the nature anticipated. Little is known of the ceremony other than it was solemnized at Mt. Rubidoux just as the sun was rising. The couple afterwards departed for parts unknown. Both the bride and groom were popular teachers at the High School and will undoubtedly make their home here.

Mrs. C. D. Hubbard of Carpinteria, who with her son Lester has been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. P. Carton during the absence of Mr. Hubbard to Vancouver, B. C., was the guest of honor at dinner Tuesday evening, when Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Hubbard entertained. The table was gay with American flags and the patriotic colors were the motif used throughout the courses. Tiny silken flags marked covers for Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Fraisher, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Carre, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Howard, Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Parker, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Egbert, Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Frankhouse, Mrs. C. D. Hubbard, Wright Hubbard and Lester Hubbard.

A charming children's party was given by Miss Inis Harding for her little house guest Vena Wadleigh, who accompanied her home from Santa

TODAY'S BEAUTY HINTS

To whiten and beautify the complexion permanently we have found no better preparation than a lotion made by dissolving four ounces of spurmax in one-half pint hot water, then adding two teaspoonfuls glycerin. This removes any pimples, shiny, muddy or sallow appearance, and will make anyone's skin clear, smooth and velvety. It does not show or rub off like powder; in fact, it seems a part of the skin; and for removing tan and freckles is unequaled.

It is necessary to shampoo more frequently in the warmer weather because of excessive dust and the fact that the head perspires more, and is usually more exposed to the weather. The easiest to use and quickest drying shampoo that we can recommend to our readers can be prepared very cheaply by dissolving a teaspoonful of canthrox, obtained from your druggist, in a cup of hot water. This rubbed into the scalp creates a thick lather, soothing and cooling in its action, and very beneficial to scalp and hair. After rinsing the scalp is fresh and clean and the hair dries quickly and evenly and takes on a bright luster and soft fluffiness that makes it seem very heavy.

The "Fourth"

¶ —our birthday—yours and mine—

¶ —A day that has always brot a certain exquisite joy. In childhood, it was the flare of the fireworks and the roar of the explosives—then as the years rolled by, rubbing the glamour and the awfulness out of these things, there crept in a finer understanding of what the "real Fourth" means—a comprehension of the courage, the sacrifice, the patriotism back of it all.

¶ —Today—when the foreign lands are torn with strife—this 139th "Fourth" brings a still greater joy.

¶ —This "Fourth" is more than were the "Fourths" of yester-years—it's a day of thanksgiving—a day when feelings are too deep to be expressed by loud "Hurrahs" or by the blare of trumpets—a day on which we are indeed proud of our United States—of its independence, of its righteousness and of the peace in which it abides.

¶ —And, in our pause to celebrate and give thanksgiving on this "Fourth," let us pay fitting tribute to Woodrow Wilson, our President, for the glory and the honor he has added to our name—for his courageousness—for his conservatism—for his steadfastness.

¶ —Long live the "Fourth"!

The Doctor's Advice

by Dr. Lewis Baker

The questions answered below are general in character, the symptoms or diseases are given and the answers will apply in any case of similar nature.

Those wishing further advice, free, may address Dr. Lewis Baker, College Bldg., College-Elwood Sts., Dayton, O., enclosing self-addressed stamped envelope for reply. Full name and address must be given, but only initials or fictitious name will be used in my answers. The prescriptions can be filled at any well-stocked drug store. Any druggist can order of wholesaler.

"Frank" writes: "Please prescribe for me. A friend of mine told me to write you and you would help me, as you had helped him. I have fever and constant headaches, dizziness, my eyes are yellow and dull. I urinate often, but very little at a time, and it is of an offensive odor. I can't sleep good any more and have pains in small of my back."

Answer: Your trouble is with your kidneys. You need something to liven them up and a tonic to make them strong. You will find just what you require in balmwort tablets. I always recommend them for diseased kidneys and they seldom fail to give excellent results. They come in tubes, ready for use.

"Friend" asks: "What can I take to clean my blood and make it pure? I am constipated and my complexion is bad."

Answer: Your system requires a good blood purifier and laxative. I have always recommended three-grain sulpherb tablets (not sulphur.) They are laxative; aid digestion, and purify and tone the blood. Get your digestion and blood right and you'll have the basis of good health right there.

"Barber" asks: "Please tell me if there is anything I may use to rid the scalp of dandruff, stop falling hair. Itching scalp and promote a natural gloss and color to the hair."

Answer: The best hair tonic I know of and one I have recommended in my practice several years to stop dandruff, itching scalp and promote hair growth will be found in the use of plain yellow minyol. Thousands have used it with great success.

"Too Large" writes: "I am much too large. I weigh nearly 185 pounds and would like to reduce about 40 pounds."

Answer: Five-grain arbolone tablets are the most reliable, harmless flesh reducers I have ever used in my practice. They have given satisfaction to scores of my patients.

"Office" writes: "If I don't soon get something to make me strong, build me up and give me a new lease on life and ambition I'll not be able to continue my work. I'm overtired, feel weary, and my work and play are irksome. I'm nervous and have a kind of drawing pain at the base of my brain. I am restless and unrefreshed after a night's sleep."

Answer: Your condition appears to be due to overwork, worry, excesses, dissipation or some other such cause. You need a powerful, stimulating tonic and builder. Your system is run down and wants new vigor and nerve-force. Three-grain cadomene tablets are just what you require to give the proper vim, spring and life to your entire system and make your mind clear and active.

"Slender" writes: "I'm so slender my clothes 'just hang on.' I should weigh, for my height, 25 pounds more."

Answer: To become stout and have a well-rounded figure I recommended the use of three-grain hypo-nuciane tablets. They are the most wonderful flesh producers I could suggest. You may increase your weight until you have gained the right proportions and then discontinue their use.

Dr. and Mrs. E. P. Hawley of Claremont delightfully entertained a party of friends Monday evening with a bridge dinner at Hotel Casa Blanca. The dining tables were conveniently grouped for the party and the table decorations were pink roses. Covers were arranged for Mr. and Mrs. E. Hart, Mr. and Mrs. L. Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. Boyle, Mr. and Mrs. F. Harwood, Mr. and Mrs. Compton, Mr. and Mrs. Walker, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Richards, Mr. and Mrs. G. Griswold, Mr. and Mrs. B. A. Woodford and Dr. and Mrs. Hawley. The bridge tournament followed the dinner.

As a farewell compliment to Miss Harriet Granger, who left Thursday for San Francisco, where she plans to take a three-year nursing course in the Children's Hospital, Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Kent Granger entertained with a charmingly informal reception and garden party Monday evening at their San Antonio Heights home. The spacious grounds of the Granger home were lighted by numerous electric bulbs in many-colored Japanese lanterns, while in the living and dining-rooms of the home Shasta daisies and ferns were artistically combined in decoration. Here dancing was enjoyed by the younger guests, an orchestra furnishing music. In the fernhouse in the garden a number of tables had been set for bridge, and these, too, proved popular. Presiding at the serving tables were Mrs. John D. Howe, Mrs. Jesse Howard Payne, Mrs. Clarence Enoch Seares, Mrs. Edmund Hatcher Granger and Miss Teneriffe Temple. One hundred guests responded to invitation and enjoyed the delightful evening.

Dr. Charles Hugo Ford of this city and Miss Oro Evelyn Stroh of Philadelphia were quietly wed in Los Angeles Thursday morning and left the same afternoon on the steamer Yale for San Francisco, where they will honeymoon for a month. The marriage was witnessed only by the bride's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Emil Frederick Stroh of South San Antonio avenue, who accompanied them to Los Angeles. The marriage comes as the climax to a whirlwind courtship, which had its beginning shortly after Miss Stroh's arrival from the East for a visit with her brother and family early in the year. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Henry C. Stroh of Philadelphia and is an attractive young woman of the brunette type. Dr. Ford is a prominent real estate man and veterinary surgeon. Dr. and Mrs. Ford will be at home after August 15 at the California apartments, Ontario.

Rialto.

NO PRETTIER wedding of recent date has been solemnized than the service which united Miss Alma Bernice Pickett and Roy Everett Weaver at the Christian Church Wednesday at high noon. The always attractive interior of the church auditorium was converted into a bower of compelling beauty. Snowy Shasta daisies, pink roses and greenery were used to carry out the symphony of color. The bride's sister, Mrs. L. B. Overfelt, presided at the piano, and to the strains of the bridal chorus from "Lohengrin" the bridal party slowly advanced to the chancel rail. Preceded by the bridesmaid, Miss Ray Weaver, sister of the groom, and the little flower bearers, Louis and Alma Bernice Overfelt, the bride's nephew and niece, the bride approached, and was met by the groom and his attendant, Mr. Chesley Osborne, and Rev. J. E. Pickford, father of the bride, who repeated the impressive ring service beneath a canopy of green branches and pink roses. The ceremony canopy was separated from the main audience section by an archway of graceful palms, interspersed with pink roses. The beautiful blond bride, who is a graduate of the University of Colorado, M. A. University of California, and has been a successful teacher in high schools in both States, was a handsome picture in her bridal gown of white crepe de chine, with overdress of rare lace. The bridal veil was gracefully caught with dainty Cecile Brunner rosebuds, and the bouquet was lilies of the valley. Miss Weaver, gowned in pink rosebud flowered marquisette, with ruffles finished in pink, carried pink carnations. Little Louis Overfelt bore a wand with flambeau bouquet of pink and white sweet peas, and his little sister carried a French basket of the dainty blossoms. A wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's parents to the out-of-town guests and bridal party. The rooms of the home were decorated with large bouquets of hydrangeas, and centering the board was a bouquet of pink and white sweet peas. Guests included the groom's mother and sister, Mrs. J. E. and Miss Ray Weaver of Turlock, Cal.; Dr. and Mrs. L. B. Overfelt, son Louis and daughter, Alma Bernice, of Boulder, Colo.; Dr. and Mrs. L. E. Bartz of Windsor, Colo.; Lester Mermann of Turlock; Mrs. E. D. Bond and Misses Bertha Bond and Beatta Pendery of Los Angeles.

Graham.

DEPUTY SHERIFF ANDERSON arrested William Bender Monday night, who was taken before Judge F. L. Buster, where a complaint of "having a birthday and of living" was filed and a jury trial called. L. A. Price represented the plaintiff and Lawyer Anderson the defense. The jury was composed of George Westerman, Earl Austin, Mrs. William Anderson, William Hill and Clifford Cottrell. D. T. Williams and Mrs. J. A. Jansa were witnesses for the defense; Mrs. L. A. Price and Mrs. William Hill for the plaintiff. Judge Buster called the court to order, the prisoner was produced and witnesses were obtained. When the evidence was taken the jury retired to deliberate. A verdict of guilty was brought in and sentence given consisting of thirty-five stripes to be administered by the court, which attempt, accompanied by great resistance, created such grief and loud wailing from the victim's 5-year-old daughter, Lois, that the sentence was waived and freedom granted on probation. Graham courthouse is located at No. 8855 Miner street, residence of William Bender, whose trial terminated in an evening of pleasure—of feasting, dancing and singing—the surprise arrest into a surprise celebration. POSITIVELY

When you do anything 1000 times and produce the same result each time, you naturally believe that you can do it again.

That's the way we feel about our Analgesic method.

Thousands of people have had teeth extracted, crowned, filled and even live nerves removed without pain by our method.

If you have two or more teeth in either jaw we can give you a full set of solid teeth without plates. This method is appliable where ordinary bridge work cannot be used.

We have our own laboratory and are able to make plates that restore expression and prevent shrinking gums.

We specialize on Pyorrhea treatment.

PYORRHEA

and conditions that lead to it, are:

Gums that bleed easily.
Teeth getting sore.
Flow of pus from gums.
Teeth getting loose.
Bad breath.
Pyorrhea, if taken in time, can be cured.

THE LATEST CRANK.

MICROBES AND MEN. By Robert Morris, M. D. Doubleday, Page & Co., Garden City, N. Y.

DR. ROBERT MORRIS has a theory, or more truthfully stated, the theory has him. With the usual persistence of the man nursing a fad, all facts are promptly [illegible] as fish for his net, as food to fatten his theory. He argues to show, in effect, that microbes rather than brains, disease rather than logical speculation, is absolutely responsible for the depressing paragraphs in works of men of genius, and that these microbes are largely responsibble for the [illegible] of those men.

Writes this amazing medico: "I never think of Nietzsche or of Schopenhauer as philosophers, but rather as men who are expressing the influence of toxins of colon bacilli or of anerobic."

The doctor must be far more familiar with the pill box, with the silver-plated probe and scissors, than he is with those literary works which he interprets according to a sophisticated diagnosis of their authors. He must think of something other than the Superman when reading Nietzsche. Evidently his mind is afar from the book, perhaps off somewhere in the empyreal realms of fancy looking for traces of bacterial influence. With his nose tracing the type, he does not see Prometheus on the height or Zarathustra storming the heavens. He calls the thunderbolts of Nietzsche a "cry-baby philosophy."

Nietzsche may be honestly damned and [illegible], but only from superlative smugness and bigotry, emanates the illiterate designation of a "cry-baby philosophy."

And when this Hippocratic apostle says that Schopenhauer contended that there was nothing worth while in the world, he lays himself open to the suspicion of testifying largely from hearsay evidence.

Schopenhauer did nothing of the kind. He was undoubtedly pessimistic, but rather sensibly contended that the wisest motive of life was attempting to avoid pain rather than to seek pleasure. Perhaps that was why he avoided women and brought down upon himself the wrath of all gyneolators. Dr. Morris, in his voluminous 600-paged [illegible], discourses on many subjects, and being dogmatic at all times, invites arbitrary contradiction. His hobby, however, is the relation of disease to genius. He cites numerous instances of where the so-called men of genius have been physically ill; at [illegible] deduces that toxic poisons have been a dominant factor in the expression of their [illegible], and pounces upon what he calls "[illegible] readings."

Wagner had "eye trouble and stomach and bowel disturbances," so our learned doctor proclaims that "Wagner's entire music, from first to last, seems to express the colon bacillus type of influence," and relates how very much he is depressed by hearing the poisoned symphonies.

Quite naturally, following such a method, [illegible] wonderful perception!—the indubitable effects of congenital and cultivated [illegible] in Edgar Poe. However, if honest [illegible] serves any purpose at all, it certainly [illegible] reveal that the persistent reports of Poe's alcoholic degeneracy swarmed from [illegible] peevish authors as justly felt the sting of his criticism and revenged themselves with libel.

Byron, DeQuincy, even Shakespeare (he is supposed, by the doctor at least, to have had tuberculosis), Rabelais (his bugs were [illegible]) and of course the vitriolic Strindberg have their works interpreted according to their alleged bacteria.

This is truly interesting: "The works of Robert Louis Stevenson show an optimism due to the peculiar action of the toxin of the tubercle bacillus." . . . "The world commonly holds that great authors succeed despite the poisons in their blood. We hear of their heroic struggles, but we must stop and consider how many succeed, and to what extent, because of those very poisons. Would an empire builder like Cecil Rhodes have accomplished his great work if he had not been tuberculous." . . . "It is only bacteria talking when we come to a depressing paragraph (in Nietzsche and Schopenhauer) and we may put the book aside with a smile." The pharisaical piety of that last phrase!

And so we are to believe, or question the [illegible] of Dr. Morris, that it was not [illegible] which inspired and regulated the philosophy of him who wrote "The World as Will and Idea," but a chronic case of constipation. That it was not brains, but [illegible] driving the pen of Carlyle; that Zola was sick, not a bitter realist fighting for what he conceived to be the truth; and that Strindberg was a maniac, rather than an intentional craftsman who reached heights and explored depths that are not even acknowledged by the author of "Microbes and Men."

BOOKS OF THE DRAMA.

A GALSWORTHY PLAY.

A BIT O' LOVE. By John Galsworthy. Charles Scribner's Sons, New York.

MR. GALSWORTHY has gradiently narrowed the stage from a battlefield for social classes, as in "Strife" and "The Eldest Son," to a public square where society flagellates its futile rebels.

"The Mob" punishes a fanatic for howling his doctrines inopportunely; "The Fugitive" hounds to her death a woman who seeks liberty; "A Bit o' Love," easily the best of Mr. Galsworthy's recent plays, tortures the man who, forgiving his wife, releases her to sinful happiness.

The ordeal of Michael Strangway, curate of a village in the west of England, has its presentation with the dramatist's characteristic objectivity. One readily fancies that his greater sympathies are with Strangway, but obviously the author has sympathy for all—for Beatrice, as well as the outraged villagers, scornful of both husband and wife.

Beatrice seems honorably frank in telling her husband he is no longer [illegible] and in pleading for a legal release, but we realize that it is only to save the reputation and practice of the physician to whom she has gone. But with the admirable impartiality of great art, Mr. Galsworthy allows her to justify herself with the [illegible] means insignificant pleas of a woman in no sense evil or reckless, who loves the wrong man and finds insufferable the love of her husband.

Strangway is far from being an average [illegible]. The villagers, over their pots of beer in the tavern, give voice to the average man's disgust in contemptuous phrases: "A white-livered buty; Who lets another man 'ave 'is wife, an' never the sperit to go vor un!"

It is the rare, anguishing ordeal of a man who loves his wife so utterly that he is willing to see her happy in a union contrary to the laws of his church, of society; and when he must not only be discarded by her, but suffer both the poignancy of a lost love and the taunts and hisses of the indignant villagers.

As usual, Mr. Galsworthy leaves the reader dangling from a huge question mark. He shows the problems of life and hazards no answers. His chief moralistic effect, though perhaps not a conscious one, is to broaden the charity of those who ponder the problems presented—problems which cannot possibly have an arbitrary, just, rationale until the Judgment Day.

G. B. S. IN THE PILLORY.

PARADISE FOUND OR THE SUPERMAN FOUND OUT. By Allen Upward. Houghton Mifflin Company, Boston.

GEORGE BERNARD SHAW "generously consented in advance to be introduced on the stage under his own name," and Mr. Upward has made him a Sleeping Beauty hero, or villain, as you prefer.

He is brought out of hypnotic sleep by the kiss of a female Fabian descendant of the novelist H. G. Wells some 200 years after socialism, as preached by Mr. Shaw, has been established in England. He thankfully sinks back into that sleep after inspecting the rigidly enforced reforms advocated by himself.

Children no longer have names; but are numbered. There is no longer money, but hours of labor are considered as wealth and checks issued to represent the number of hours credited. Some labor is so much lighter than others that it requires several hundred minutes of it to be reckoned as an "hour." Royalty and capitalism have been abolished, but politicians remain and the descendants of the Fabians are treated as royalty. Physicians have become the absolute dictators, and Shaw himself is hurried away to the detention ward as a lunatic for denouncing his own theories.

At a meeting, presided over by a dummy, mechanical chairman (the dummy is used so one "comrade" will not be exalted over another at the session,) Shaw vociferates: "All truly great men are cranks. That is how they achieve their objects, by shutting their eyes to fact and their ears to reason. . . . . I thought an act of Parliament could repeal the history of the human race. I thought that if children could be stolen from their mothers, and herded into prisons under warders who never had a child, they would grow up perfect beings. . . . I believed that virtue could be supplied by a generating station, like gas and electricity, by the cubic foot. I expected to change greed into honesty by changing coins into paper tickets. I hoped that what Christianity had failed to do in two thousand years could be done in a few hours by a bundle of resolutions passed by a committee of quarrelsome cranks like myself."

"Paradise Found" is not such a work as one expects from the author of those remarkable books, "The Divine Mystery" and "The New Word," but is worthy of him. It is an extravagant satire—with teeth like a buzz-saw. And prefatorily Mr. Upward briefly explains: "To some readers this may seem an extravagant satire, but the writer's experience hitherto has been that his prophecies are only too surely fulfilled."

BOOKS OF FICTION.

IMITATION AUTOBIOGRAPHY.

THE RECORD OF NICHOLAS FREYDON. (Anonymous.) George H. Doran Company, New York.

"THE Record of Nicholas Freydon" is presumably the autobiography of a late, unidentified English man of letters. It is unquestionably the work of a man of letters; that is patent on every page. But we are not inclined to believe that the man who wrote it is dead; and whatever reason the author has for concealing his identity is probably related to a curiosity to see how the public will treat an alleged posthumous work—probably is deliberately attempting to accomplish what the hero of Bennett's "Buried Alive" did by accident.

The anonymous author has a charming style, but as his life is recorded only one period is of unusual interest. He relates that he was taken to Australia as a boy, and after his father's death lived at an orphanage. His boyhood speculations and friendships, especially that with Mr. Rawlence, the artist, are, as we may bromidically say, true to life.

But it is not until Mr. Freydon arrives in England (although his employment under Mr. Peters, farmer, and amusing butcher of the King's English, is set forth entertainingly) and enters the first period of his manhood that the story develops a magnitude, becomes a strong, vital chronicle. With the passing of the first period comes prosperity to him and dullness to the story.

But his life as a hack-driver (in parts closely resembling a presumably confessional volume written some years ago by one whose reputation, however, is restricted to blood-and-thunder tales) in the slums; his compassion for the persecuted Fanny, the victim of a gin-drinking mother; the marriage; Fanny's deterioration into slovenliness and alcoholism; the bits of success that come to him—those phases of his life are like fragments from a big novel.

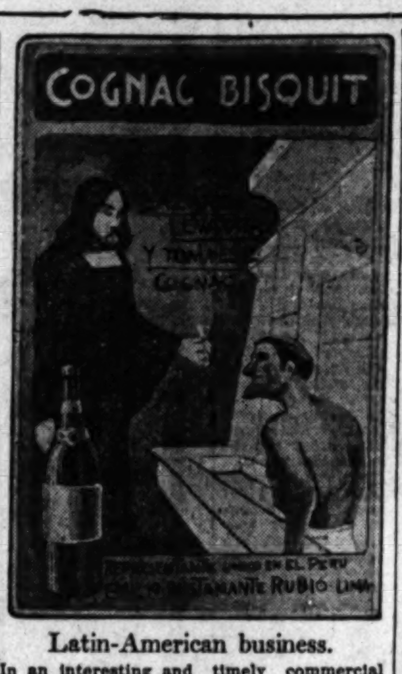
However, the whole of the book is written with the grace and care belying his admission that he doesn't know anything about syntax. And "The Record of Nicholas Freydon," considered as a novel, is an excellent piece of work, but contains many chapters far less interesting than others.

SISTER TO DAVID HARUM.

HEPSEY BURKE. By Frank N. Westcott. The H. K. Fly Company, New York.

"HEPSEY BURKE" has been accorded some publicity as the sister of "David Harum," largely because it was written by the brother of the Mr. Westcott who wrote the latter novel, though the setting, characters, dialect and philosophy are similar.

But Hepsey, instead of being a horse trader and rejoicing when the parson swears, as David did, takes a young parson under her wing and assists him in fighting the miserly Bascom, senior warden of Durford's church. The elderly Miss Bascom puts on her most exclusive Bostonese manner when the young and handsome rector takes to wife a woman other than herself; and it is Miss Bascom—she feels herself a woman scorned and is in a hell of a fury—who pulls the wires that keeps the rector's salary so delinquent he is compelled to scandalize the more pious villagers and work on the streets that his grocery bill may be paid.



Latin-American business.

In an interesting and timely commercial book, "Selling Latin America" (Small, Maynard & Co.,) Dr. W. E. Aughinbaugh tells of the opportunities for American trade, and discusses the business methods of our neighbors. He says the advertising methods are a bit startling to our ideas, and that a cognac company uses cuts, posters and large signs depicting the Savior in the act of pouring out a glass of brandy and saying to Lazarus lying in a coffin at his feet, "Lazarus, arise and take a glass of cognac!"

But Hepsey, who's somewhere past forty, a widow with an impish son, supplies most of the interest. Talk? Hepsey has a supply of loquacity that fills the major portion of 300 pages, and, though an occasional epigram gleams through the verbiage, for the most part she is as laboriously affected as chatterboxes usually are. "There are three kinds of people in the world," she says, "men, women and parsons." . . . "I'm sorry for the average country parson and a lot sorrier for his wife." . . . "We're more troubled with potato bugs than we are with doubts." . . . "Every woman under ninety-eight has expectations. While there's life there's hope some man will make a fool of himself." . . . "I always believe that two young married people should start out by themselves, you know; and then if they get into a family row it won't scandalize the parish." . . . "Church fairs are an invention of the devil to make people think they're religious when they are only mighty restless and selfish." Such are the happier expressions of Hepsey.

"Hepsey Burke" is one of the consciously good books; everybody is happy in the end, the sinners and misers contritely see the errors of their way, and Hepsey starts on her second honeymoon amid the vociferous cheers of the delighted villagers. The book doesn't drag; it has a deal of snappy style, but it is so admirable a prize for the best boy in the Sunday-school that some of the prizeless ones may not appreciate its conspicuous moral virtues.

"A ROARING FARCE."

FIVE FRIDAYS. By Frank R. Adams. Small, Maynard & Co., Boston.

MR. ADAMS has tucked a farce, one of that kind the press agents call "roaring," between the covers of "Five Fridays." It is not written in dramatic form, but one easily visualizes it as a series of vaudeville skits, snappy with humor that is not of the high-brow caste, but funny nevertheless.

Montmorency Blaney, who considers it an honor to be called the worst dramatic critic on Broadway, considering the number of competitors, allows the young woman whom he hopes will love him to persuade him to go on a fast—much against his better judgment. He, Lucile and her mother, are at a summer cottage on an island. Lucile, when the story opens, has just come under the influence of a magazine article on fasting written by one Lipton S. Clair. In order to assure that the fast is actually kept, all provisions are disposed of. Monty weighs something over two hundred pounds and has always been friendly with his stomach.

The stage having been set according to the specifications recited, the fireworks begin. Mr. Bopp, who is also interested in Lucile, arrives in a motor boat, which, however, fails to respond when Mr. Bopp grows hungry and seeks to escape. Complications arise, fairly swarm. A storm comes up, wrecks a boat on the island and Mr. Lipton S. Clair is among those who are rescued on the unprovisioned island, but from the fuss he makes it is evident he lacks faith in his fast cure. Among the others rescued is a young actress, who announces that she is engaged to Mr. Blainy—Montmorency is thankful that there are more Blainys than one on earth, but Miss Lucile is incredulous. In fact, when Vida rewards Montmorency for the beautiful write-up he gave her, Lucile is accidentally a witness.

Lucile's mother, having been given too much whisky when recovering from a faint, becomes most undignified and disappears; Vida, for spite, makes love to Lipton S. Clair; Tootles, Lucile's pet lap dog, is lost, and when Montmorency painfully scrapes enough clams out of the sand for a weak broth, he is tempestuously accused of having sacrificed Tootles—so the incidents and complications run.

It is an amusing story, with the five men playing Crusoe's man Friday to Lipton S. Clair. The dialogue is snappy, much like that of the vaudeville skit, and the humor is well sustained.

WILDLY EXCITING.

THE WAR TERROR. By Arthur B. Reeve. Hearst's International Library Co., New York.

A SERIES of stories arranged to look like a novel make up "The War Terror."

Mr. Reeve's imagination is as effective as ever. With Mr. Craig Kennedy, scientific detective, doing stunts there is absolutely no limit to what to expect. Among his minor accomplishments, for instance, is to heliograph—ah, any number of miles necessary—with an invisible light.

Kennedy and the Boswellian Dr. Watsonian, recorder of his achievements, jump from one baffling mystery to another. Most of these mysteries are unraveled through the manipulation of scientific devices that are not yet known to the professors of Johns Hopkins, but the devices seem to be extremely effective.

Mr. Reeve evidently wrote his first story of "The War Terror" during that brief period when it was thought good taste for an author to reflect in fiction the neutrality of the United States. So far as we know this is the first European war story which, having a German in it, doesn't make him the villain.

A gang of anarchists conceive the idea of ending war by killing off the war-makers, and the young lady who loves the German baron marked for death, invokes Kennedy's assistance. A few hours later all the anarchists are captured or dead. Kennedy's a quick workman.

He is called to rescue a fashionable colony from a society thief who not only takes the best jewels, but the most compromising love letters of his victim. The villain for a time laughs his villainous ha! ha! (actually) overheard, but the hydroplane is brought down by the ingenious detective.

In one very mysterious case Kennedy is compelled to make an artificial kidney to discover what sort of poison is being administered to his client; quite an accomplishment, indeed, but only in the day's work for him. Some of the chapter headings which give an illuminating idea of what to expect in the book are: "The Murder Syndicate," "The Pillar of Death,'" "The Arrow Poison," "The Poison Bracelet," "The Devil Worshipers," "The Psychic Curse" and many others; all of which, taken together, may be said to comprise a pleasant evening's reading for those addicted to intoxicating, stimulant fiction.

THE INVALID ANGEL.

DOODLES. By Emma C. Dowd. Houghton Mifflin Company, Boston.

DOODLES himself is one of those dear, in a tenement and brighten the sweet, little invalid boys who live world with their happy, sickly faces.

Doodles's mother is a charming, patient woman, working all day in a slave-driver's laundry. In the evening she is never irritable, and always takes pains to correct the grammar of Doodles's young, noble brother, who sells papers manfully to help support the family—and on occasion rescues his favorite policeman from a mob or captures kidnapers.

Stories such as "Doodles," "Amarilly of Clothes-Line Alley," the cabbage-patch widow, "Polly," "Pollyanna," the insipid, and all others of orphan Annies and slum-born Algernons should be immensely popular with predatory landlords and tenement owners.

They may as well discard the reports of Associated Charities and sociologists and learn from the flourishing chronicles of the novelists how happy, contented, well off are the slum-dwellers.

Take the case of Doodles for instance. No family could be happier than this poverty-stricken group. No family could have more cheerful, kindly neighbors. Skimping and saving, they learn the true value of money; and it takes so much less to make them happy and appreciative than if they were accustomed to better things. Millionaires, as any fiction reader knows, are a peevish lot with snobbish, cold, crapulous daughters and boozy sons. But your tenement invalids—recommend them to us for spritely cheerfulness and all the merry virtues.

And the luck they have! Doodles's brother buys a crippled mocking-bird for "two bits" that is worth $200. Doodles and his brother inform on criminals—how these criminals chanced to get into such a respectable, godly neighborhood as that tenement is not explained—and get a tremendous reward. Of course, Doodles is operated on and made well. And also, of course, everything comes out right and everybody is happy.

Indeed, it is a dear, sweet, sticky concoction; a darling literary marmalade; a highly, artificially, colored lollipop, manufactured for the market according to the well-known and widely-used recipe which calls for a poverty-stricken youngster, invalid preferred. Fill him or her with congenital cheerfulness, bestow upon said youngster sweet relatives and neighbors. Stick in some lonesome rich person whom the spritely youngster, invalid preferred, cheers up. Allow rich persons to adopt, or fall in love with, or at least provide for spritely invalid, all his or her relatives and—for an intensely happy ending—a few of the charming, poverty-stricken neighbors.

JAPAN AND BELGIUM.

THE NATIONAL NIGHTMARE.

THE JAPANESE PROBLEM IN THE UNITED STATES. By H. A. Millis. The Macmillan Company, New York.

THE foreword states that the Commission on Relations with Japan, appointed by the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America at the request of missionaries in Japan, believing that its most immediate need was that of correct information, engaged Prof. H. A. Millis of the University of Kansas to come to the Pacific Coast and investigate conditions. This book contains the result of his investigations.

Prof. Millis found that the Alien Land Bill was unneeded, unjust and injudicious. He found that the Japanese government has honorably abided by its agreement to restrict the coolie immigration, that the Japanese have been law-abiding and self-supporting, and that coolie labor is not the grievance against them.

When he explains that they have inherited the prejudice that met the really menacing flood of Chinese immigration the cause for much of the stupid antagonism against the Japanese is aptly named. However, he scarcely lays enough emphasis on the fear, a superstitious fear, which a large number of Americans entertain regarding the future military conquest of the Pacific Coast. This fear gives the alarmists a text to preach discriminative exclusion.

Prof. Millis has ably presented the problem. He has not whitewashed the Japanese in the least. He points out that some of them are dishonest in their contracts, some lack the desirable hygienic initiative. But as a race they are thrifty, keep the law, and desirable.

The number of Japanese is not, he says, menacing. While they are prolific, still they are rapidly Americanized, and a higher percentage of Japanese than other immigrants speak English. While formerly they worked for less wage than Americans, they now receive practically the same wage in factories and mills, and pay higher rent for agricultural lands.

In conclusion, Prof. Millis states that America should have more stringent immigration laws, but that the laws should not discriminate against any civilized nation. Especially foolish it is to have our national treaty with Japan violated by California's land law.

The book is comprehensive, enlightening, accurate. In effect, it is written to show that if the Japanese were of any other than an oriental nation their numbers would not give cause for a "problem;" and that it is chiefly because they look like Chinamen and licked Russia in a jiffy that we are having self-induced nightmares over the presence of a comparatively few, eager and industrious aliens.

THE BELGIUM THAT WAS.

THE SPELL OF FLANDERS. By Edward Neville Vose. The Page Company, Boston.

"THE SPELL OF FLANDERS" is "an outline of the history, legends and art of Belgium's famous northern provinces, being the story of a twentieth-century pilgrimage in a sixteenth-century land just before the outbreak of the great war," and containing a half-hundred full-page illustrations, many of which are colored and the remainder reproduced from photographs.

Mr. Vose has given an encyclopedic description of Belgium as it was before the German invasion. Thus it is a timely book, bulging with some 500 pages of information on those cities, cathedrals, towns, museums and fields which, during the past year, have been prominent in the news.

His admiration for the Belgians, however, does not warrant the few splashes of whitewash on that royal reprobate, Leopold II, whom the author calls "one of the most efficient chief executives it was possible for a nation to have," and who actually was a licentious barbarian perpetrating in the Congo such atrocities as are alleged of the Prussians in Belgium.

Quoting Lord Beaconsfield—"Flanders has been trodden by the feet and watered by the blood of countless generations of British soldiers," and recognizing that Belgium has almost from the dawn of Christianity been the battleground of Europe, Mr. Vose relates much of the country's remarkable, bloody, heroic history. The Kaiser is not the first hard master who has crushed the liberties and property of the sturdy Belgians.

Some of the illuminating chapter headings are: "How Bruges Became the 'Venice of the North;'" "When Ypres Was a Greater City Than London;" "Three Centuries of Tournaisian Art;" "Old Antwerp—Its History and Legends;" "Three Centuries of Antwerp Printers;" "The Fall of Charles the Bold;" "Ghent Under Charles the Fifth—and Since;" "Antwerp from the Time of Reubens Till Today."

One of the most interesting chapters, disclosing both history and anecdotes little known, is "Three Centuries of Antwerp Printers."

"The Spell of Flanders" at any other time would simply be an enlightening study of a little country not well known to Americans, but as a "war book" it is exceptionally valuable in accurately showing the art, architecture, society and characteristics of the nation so recently crushed. Mr. Vose was still in Belgium, just completing his investigation, when the Archduke of Austria was assassinated.

PUBLISHERS AND AUTHORS.

"Pollyanna" is reported as the best seller in New Zealand. Mrs. Porter, no doubt, is "glad."

Mary Austin says of "Angela's Business" (Harrison:) "The only intelligent attempt at the subject which I have ever seen from the hand of man."

It is needless to point out, a book on the vagaries of woman—and, you will notice, in Miss Austin's eyes, merely an "attempt."

Booth Tarkington has just bought a new yacht and says his old yacht is waiting a purchaser. Nor are they rowboats with fancy names.

Leona Dalrymple, author of the $10,000 prize novel "Diana of the Green Van," calls her new book "The Lovable Meddler." It will be published next month.

Eleanor Hallowell Abbott, author of "Molly Make-Believe," has published recently "The Indiscreet Letter." It is a found on the statement that everybody, at some time or other, writes at least one such letter.

G. P. Putnam's Sons will publish this fall a complete edition of Oscar Wilde's works in thirteen volumes. The volumes will be sold separately.

Scribner's Sons will send to anyone upon request the first chapter of "Pierre Vinton, the Adventures of a Superfluous Husband."

Rex Beach is cruising around the coast of Cuba catching fish and getting "color" for a new novel.

Kipling's "Jungle Book" has gone into its thirty-fifth edition.

W. S. C. Russell, author of "Iceland: Horseback Tours in Saga Land," just published, in a recent interview pointed out that the "Gulfoss," now in New York, is the first real Islandic ship to come to our shores since the voyage of Lief the Lucky in the year 1001.

Joseph C. Lincoln has a new novel, "Thankful's Inheritance," which deals with a haunted house and a lover who scorns ghosts.

King Albert himself read and approved the manuscript of John MacDonnell's "Life of H. M. Albert, King of the Belgians."

Great was the surprise of a certain New York woman doctor recently when a frail, gentle, appealing young woman with a strong foreign accent told her that she had been operated on for appendicitis "in a dreadful place, a preezon." Her surprise was not lessened when she found later that the frail little woman had killed a reactionary Russian general; that she had escaped from Siberia and finally become well known in America as Marie Sukloff, author of "The Life Story of a Russian Exile."

It's hard to tell about these quiet, little, appealing young women.

LABOR IN POLITICS. By Robert Hunter. (Pamphlet showing the influence of the Socialists and labor organizations in politics.)

"A SCIENTIFIC NOVEL."

In the introduction to "Romance in Starland: A Scientific Novel," the author, Mrs. Charles Wilder Glass, says: "I write this book to prove there is no death . . . all that transpires in the unseen world is founded on facts. . . . To see angels as I do you must diet, keep in perfect health, work and pray so evil, ignorant spirits cannot harm you . . . I have established an interplanetary communication. . . . I communicate with saints daily—This book is a golden key that unlocks the pearly gates to heaven if you live up to its teaching."

It is exactly the sort of a "scientific novel" that one expects after reading the author's opinion of it.

"NATURE AND SCIENCE."

Paul Elder & Co. of San Francisco have brought out "Nature and Science on the Pacific Coast" as a guide-book for scientific travelers in the West. It has been edited under the auspices of the Pacific Coast Committee of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, and is designed to give concise, authentic information on such subjects as weather conditions on the Pacific Coast, geology, mines and mining, petroleum resources, the vertebrate fauna, fishes, marine biology, insects, ethnology, agricultural development, chemical resources and industries, legal and political development, as well as mountaineering, outdoor life, fine arts and literary landmarks.

A Bit O' Love

is the title of the new three-act play

By JOHN GALSWORTHY.

It is set in a "village of the West" in England. The theme centers about the young curate, a strange, beautiful character full of passion in restraint, who endures the unendurable in a spirit most truly Christian. It is Galsworthy at his best, told simply, with the setting of spring in the country and suffused with white moonlight.

Colton.

ALTHOUGH it did not have its setting in Colton, one of the most interesting June weddings locally was that of Forest M. Branch, son of Mrs. Ella Branch of this city, and Miss Hazel Harper of Los Angeles, the marriage of the couple occurring on the eve of the groom's departure for Honolulu, Tuesday, where he is to take up the practice of dentistry in the office of Dr. Alfred Wall. With the exception of a sister, Miss Florence Branch, no one knew of the happy secret, the young man on his farewell visit home a week ago giving no inkling of the impending event to relatives or friends, so that the wedding was a decided surprise. Mr. Branch graduated in June from the college of dentistry of the University of Southern California.

Shasta daisies, pink roses and a touch of the patriotic apropos of Independence Day marked the decorations and appointments of the informal afternoon party presided over Tuesday by Mrs. Thomas White, who is the house guest of her sister, Mrs. Charles Creal. The guests, all old friends of the hostess, included Mmes. C. F. Whitmer, E. G. Palmer, I. M. Knopsnyder, Martha Hoit Hebberd, C. B. Fuller, A. E. Copeland, R. D. Bailey, J. C. Boyer, M. E. Knox, Grace Garner, J. P. Isbell, James Swinnerton and Charles Creal, and Miss Maud Reeves of San Bernardino. For those who desired there were card tables arranged, while others chatted over fancy work. Punch was served during the afternoon by little Miss Norma White, while in conclusion the company surrounded a pretty table decked in daisies and red, white and blue ribbon for refreshments, in which the patriotic note was introduced.

An event of moment in musical circles of the city was the recital presented by Colton and Riverside pupils in voice and piano of Mrs. W. A. Matlack of Riverside at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Breitling Wednesday evening. A company of over 100 guests was present to share the delight of the elaborate programme. Those who contributed were Mrs. J. N. Robinson, Miss Lorena Ward and Gilmore Ward, soloists, of Colton; Mr. Friend, soloist, and Miss Beckwith and Miss Charlotte Nichols, pianists, of Riverside. During intermission Mrs. Matlack's daughter Aileen gave two humorous readings.

Tropico.

MRS. EDWARD H. WESTON and son, Chandler Weston, of West Park avenue, have returned from a delightful visit to Elizabeth Lake, where they were the guests of Mrs. Weston's brother and sister, Mr. and Mrs. L. O. Chandler. Mrs. Chandler accompanied Mrs. Weston and son upon the return of the latter to their home in Tropico, and will be the guest of her sister, Mrs. C. H. Chandler of West Park avenue, for several weeks.

Mrs. Wesley Simons and daughter, Miss Mildred Simons of Philadelphia, Pa., arrived Monday for a few weeks' visit as the guests of Mrs. Simons's sister, Mrs. Samuel A. Pollock of West Park avenue. These visitors will take in the many places of interest throughout Southern California, which will include a stop at San Diego and the exposition. Leaving for San Francisco after concluding their visit here, Mrs. Simons and daughter will be the guests of Mrs. Emery Gates, another sister of Mrs. Simons. Mrs. Pollock is planning a number of social events to honor her guests, and will be assisted by her mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Kassoall of Rochester, N. Y., who is also a guest at the home of her daughter.

Following a pleasant visit of three months as the guest of his aunt, Miss Mattie Bardwell of Glendale avenue, Mr. Ray Birmingham returned to his home in Boone, Iowa, the latter part of the week.

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Carmack and son, Robert Carmack, have returned from a delightful trip to San Francisco, where they also visited the Panama-Pacific Exposition. During the absence of Mr. and Mrs. Carmack and son, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Pollock and daughters of Hereford, Tex., who had returned from San Francisco, remained at the Carmack home with the younger children of Mr. and Mrs. Carmack.

Mrs. Myra C. K. Shuey entertained with a dinner party at her home on Columbus avenue Wednesday, at which her guests were Mr. and Mrs. Yates Kincaid, Miss Alice Kincaid, Miss Catherine Callahan and Miss Mary Kincaid of Los Angeles and Miss Elizabeth Fifield of Rochester.

Whittier.

WHITTIER society has been all attention this week on account of a group of weddings of prominent young people. The closing days of June saw three couples united and July came in with another wedding of interest.

Both on account of their professional relations as well as social, the wedding of Miss Hazel Howard and Prof. Herbert E. White at the home of the bride's mother Tuesday evening was an event of unusual interest. Miss Howard is the only daughter of Mrs. Cora Howard, and is a young lady of rare personality and charms. She is a graduate of Penn College, Oskaloosa, Iowa, and of Bryn Mawr. For some years she has been a member of the Whittier College faculty and it was here that she met Prof. White, then athletic director of the college. For the past two years Prof. White has held a similar position in the Souh Pasadena High School, and for the coming year will do like work for the Whittier High School. He is one of the best known and most successful athletic directors among secondary schools of the Southland. The wedding ceremony of this well-known couple was performed by the incoming and outgoing presidents of Whittier College, Rev. Absalom Rosenberger, and Rev. Thomas Newlin. It was a beautiful, informal, home wedding, the bridal couple plighting their troths before a large company of their college friends and associates. Out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. George F. Howard, Robert Howard, T. G. Carey, Miss Louise Carey, Eagle Rock; Mrs. W. H. Gleason, Oskaloosa, Iowa; Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Duffy, Redondo; Mrs. Sadie White, Hollywood; Dr. E. J. Johnson and mother, Mrs. Johnson; Robert Hadden, Lynn Spencer, Prof. and Mrs. H. E. Upjohn, South Pasadena; Miss Lucile Wilson, Miss Alice Wilson, Mrs. William Plummer, and Miss June Plummer, Los Angeles.

Another pretty wedding of the week occurred at the Friends Church, Wednesday evening, uniting Miss Anna Arnold, charming daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Arnold, to Mr. Benjamin F. Brownell, former well-known football man at Whittier College. Rev. Henry Edwin McGrew, pastor of the church, said the words that made the young people husband and wife. The Friends Church never appeared more beautiful than on this occasion, Mrs. Pliny Greene and Miss Lollie Reynolds having charge of the handsome decorations. Hydrangeas and asparagus plumosus were used most effectively in bringing about the charming effect. Miss Ruby Rees acted as bridesmaid and Mr. Bailey Howard as groomsman. Little Eldine Hamm was ring bearer. Preceding the marriage ceremony, Miss Lelah Coffin sang, "All for You," accompanied by Miss Grace Dixon. The bride is a graduate of Whittier College, and was elected May Queen by her associates last year. Mr. Brownell came to Whittier from Portsmouth, N. J., entering Whittier College and making a record for himself and most materially bringing the college athletic teams into prominence. Mr. and Mrs. Brownell left at once for a honeymoon trip to San Francisco and on their return will take up their residence at La Habra.

The St. Mathias Episcopal Church was the scene of another beautiful wedding Thursday afternoon, the pastor Rev. Franklin P. Bugbee, performing the ceremony that united Miss Mary Barkham of this city and Mr. Roy McLane of Rivera. The wedding march was played by Mrs. George Atkinson. The bride was given away by her sister, Miss Ruth Barkham. The church was most beautifully decorated by Mrs. A. T. Emory, assisted by a bevy of friends of the bride, the Misses Gladys Matteson, Evelyn Torrance, and Mildred Powell. Matilija poppies were used in the decorations, those of pure white adorning the altar. After the wedding the guests were taken in autos to the Barkham country home, where a delightful collation was served. The bride and groom departed later for a honeymoon trip to the northern part of this State and to Alaska. After a six-weeks' trip they will be at home at Rivera. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Barkham of this city, and is a recent graduate from the local High School. The groom is a well-known resident of Rivera.

Watts.

MR. AND MRS. LEWIS TRONDLE entertained with a dinner dance Friday evening as a compliment to their house guests, the Misses Bob and Isley McGregor of Seattle, at their attractive suburban home on Fern street. White roses and greenery centered the table where covers were laid for twelve. Whist and dancing occupied the evening with punch and cake served by the hostess, assisted by the Misses Josie and Emily Trondle. The guests present were Mrs. Elizabeth McGregor, Mrs. Gladys McGregor, G. R. Woolery, Paul Long and Earl Reed of Los Angeles, and the honorees.

Stamped by its simplicity was the dinner given Sunday by Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Gove at their residence on Melvin avenue. A typical old-fashioned bouquet centered the able, where covers were laid for Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Fisher, Misses Frances, Agnes and Mary Fisher of Pasadena and the host and hostess. The afternoon and evening were spent socially, interspersed with music. Light refreshments were served during the evening with Mr. and Mrs. James Gove, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ross, John and Harry Richie included among the guests.

Miss Mabel Robinette of Redondo Beach, attired in khaki suit and blue motoring bonnet, sped away with Arthur Fields in his fast roadster Wednesday morning and at 9:30 arrived at the Courthouse at Santa Ana, where a brief call was made to seek information only. Justice of the Peace Cox informed young Romeo that they "furnished everything but the bride," which fired the imagination of Mr. Fields to the extent that he immediately consulted with his fiancee, which resulted in a wedding then and there. The pleasure trip, which so unexpecterly terminated in a honeymoon trip, was continued far into the country and away to the beaches and ended at the bride's home, No. 217 North Catalina avenue, Redondo Beach, for the parental blessing and — forgiveness(?) There is every semblance of eternal happiness and perfect bliss—two turtle doves in one nest at No. 337 East Tajauta avenue, this city, where the groom's business interests are concerned.

Huntington Park.

THE society event of the season in this city was the more than pretty wedding Tuesday evening at the Methodist Episcopal Church, of Miss Ruby Iantha Pinkham of this city and Frederick Eugene Brown of Pomona. The Episcopal service was used by a personal friend of the groom, the Rev. Mr. Bugby of Whittier. The church had been profusely decorated in pink and green and the ceremony took place in a representation of an old English rose garden. The bride was attended by her maid of honor, Miss Lillian van Vranken, of Los Angeles, and bridesmaids Misses Laura Sorenson, Mertie Bruner and Margaret Sells. Attending the groom were best man, Leigh Thompson, and groomsmen Sawyer, Mills and Bolin. Following the cementing of the bonds of holy matrimony the bride and groom retired to the reception parlors in the rear of the church and were congratulated by the several hundred friends present.

Monday evening a very quiet home wedding was celebrated at No. 242 South Rugby avenue—the home of the bride—when Walter Wilson and Miss Quinta Eugene Hart were married by the Rev. P. P. Carroll of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Immediately after the ceremony, which was attended by the families of the bride and groom, the happy couple took the train for San Diego, where they will remain until the 12th, when they will be at home to their friends at No. 353 South Middleton street.

Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Morehouse, with their daughter, Josephine, and Mrs. Harry Hale returned Saturday from a week's vacation to Cold Brook Canyon, where they went with the Editorial Association. Sunburns and appetites were acquired in generous measure by the visitors.

Downey.

MISS ORLANDA MOORES announced the betrothal of her niece, Miss Josephine Harris, to A. E. Weidman of Clarkdale, Ariz., at a pretty pergola party at her home during the past week. The decorations were in yellow, as were the ices which were served with the collation. Yellow predominated in the gowns worn by the young ladies who heard the gladsome news. They were all old schoolmates of the bride-to-be, and the announcement was quite a surprise to her friends, as Miss Harris and her sister, Miss Elizabeth Harris, have been teaching school in Jerome, Ariz., during the past year. Miss Moores and her nieces came in for the summer to prepare for the wedding, which will take place August 11 at the M. E. Church, South, Downey, where they have lived all their lives, and have hosts of friends who will regret to see them depart again.

Mr. Weidman is connected with the Clark mining interests, and will arrive August 1. The young people will reside in Clarkdale.

Seal Beach.

GEORGE W. HAVENS of Newark, O., who has been a guest at the home of his son during the past winter, left this week for his eastern home. Arthur Havens accompanied his father as far as San Francisco, where the two passed a week visiting the exposition.

A pleasant house party occupied "The Muriel" on Twelfth street over Sunday of last week. Out-of-door pastimes, as well as dancing, occupied the time and attention of the young folks, who included Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Roberts, Mr. and Mrs. Trezlyuing, Miss Marian Roberts, Miss Merna Morris, Miss Ruth Wilcox, Richard Whitehouse, George Wynkoop and Frank Wynkoop.

Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Hosking of Stanton, Cal.; Mr. and Mrs. Frederick M. C. Choate, George Pillsbury and I. A. Lothian, all of Los Angeles, were Sunday visitors at the home of friends here. Others who motored down from town were Mr. and Mrs. Irving Herron and family, Mr. and Mrs. Victor Stewart, Dr. and Mrs. W. L. Dukeman, Miss Leona Dukeman, Mrs. Burmeister, Miss Burmeister and Mr. Reden, all of Los Angeles.

Covina.

MR. AND MRS. M. E. CLIFFORD and daughter, Miss Hazel, are spending a week or ten days at Long Beach.

Allison Given has been entertaining Mr. Young, a college chum from Claremont, several days this week.

Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Booth have recently moved to Fontana to make their future home.

Miss Dorothy Trench of Los Angeles spent a couple of days this week with her aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Evans.

Miss Bernice Griffiths spent several days in Los Angeles this week as the guest of Miss Madeline Brown.

A crowd of about sixteen young people, chaperoned by Mrs. C. D. Griffiths spent Wednesday evening picnicking at Ganesha Park. In the party were Misses [illegible] Anderson, Dorothy Bryan, Rosetta Kerckhoff, Marion Warren, Elleane Griffiths, Anita Speer, Kathryn Lipke and Leta Nash and James Anderson, Ralph Smith, Boyd and Clyde King, Richard Wilson, Allison Given and guest, Mr. Young.

Lordsburg-LaVerne.

THE marriage of Miss Anna M. Abbott to William J. Gillette took place at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Abbott, in LaVerne, Wednesday afternoon at 5 o'clock. Both the bride and groom are well-known and popular young people. Mrs. Gillette is a graduate of Throop Polytechnic Institute and has for the past five years been teacher of domestic science in the Hollywood High School. Owing to the recent death of her brother the wedding was quiet, only relatives and immediate friends being present.

Miss Madge Hathaway of Pomona and Lisle Hoskins of Lordsburg were married at Huntington Beach on Saturday. They will spend their honeymoon at Catalina, after which they will take up their residence in Lordsburg.

Mrs. Loren Ratekin entertained the Embroidery Club Wednesday afternoon in honor of the birthday of Miss Annie Bannister.

Soldiers' Home.

VACATION periods of officers of this place and their families, as well as honeymoons of newlyweds belonging here, would be regarded as quite incomplete were not the Panama exposition included in the itinerary. At least so thought Dr. J. J. Moore, assistant surgeon at Soldiers' Home Hospital, and the lovely young bride who accompanied him on his return from a month's vacation, mostly spent at his former home in Ohio. The bride was formerly Miss Persis Hasselback, daughter of Hon. P. J. and Mrs. Hasselback of Fremont, O. Her father is the present County Auditor of Sandusky county. The bride is regarded as a welcome social acquisition, both in this place and in Westgate, where, at the bungalow occupied by Assistant Surgeon Roach—also of this place—the newlyweds are making their home.

While Capt. F. T. Hague, adjutant of the home, enjoyed his vacation at the San Diego exposition, the remainder of his household, consisting of his mother, Mrs. Bertha Hague, and his sister, Miss Bertha, proceeded to San Francisco, where they enjoyed the greater exposition in company with two other sisters of the adjutant, the Misses Gertrude and Grace Hague, who had arrived there in advance from Oregon, and who joined Mrs. Hague and Miss Bertha on their return here.

Anaheim.

REV. AND MRS. ABRAHAM B. MARKLE celebrated their golden wedding anniversary at their cosy home on Citron street on Monday last. The event was one of the most notable in local society circles for many moons. Great preparations had been made to celebrate the day by a staff of intimate friends called to their aid, including Rev. and Mrs. C. W. F. Daniels, Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Mayhew, Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Hayden, Mrs. J. W. Utter, Mrs. H. Bowen, Mrs. N. G. Perry and Mr. and Mrs. John Fulfs of Los Angeles. Golden hearts, streamers of gold crepe paper and golden poppies were used in profusion in the beautiful house decorations. At high noon, under the large palms in the garden, the marriage vows of the couple were renewed, Rev. William Stubbins of Sierra Madre, boyhodo playmate, comrade in arms, and livelong friend of Rev. Markle reading the lines. The groom was dressed, as at the first ceremony fifty years ago, in his uniform of blue, and the bride was becomingly dressed in a dark blue silk gown, trimmed in white lace and golden ribbons. At 1 o'clock dinner was announced, and the splendid repast was followed by delightful toasts. Many valuable and useful gifts were received by this popular couple from their many friends and relatives. Among those present at the delightful affair were Rev. and Mrs. William Stubbins of Sierra Madre, Rev. F. M. Dowling of Fullerton, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Chapman of Fullerton, Mr. and Mrs. George Sloane of Seldon, Kan.; Mrs. Madge Sullivan, Mr. and Mrs. John Fulfs, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Gist, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Blakeslee, Mrs. J. M. Odell, and Miss Velma Gist of Los Angeles, and Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Mayhew, Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Hayden, Rev. and Mrs. C. W. F. Daniels, Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Williams, Mrs. M. O. Kellogg, Dr. and Mrs. J. W. Utter, Mr. and Mrs. George Wetherley, Mrs. Adolph Backs, Mrs. H. Bowen, and Mrs. N. G. Perry of Anaheim.

Miss Fern Corcoran entertained the Philathea and Baraca classes of the First Methodist Episcopal Church at her home on South Palm street Friday evening. Miss Frieda Moss, who soon leaves for her home in Oregon, was the honored guest. The first part of the evening was given over to music and novel contests indoors. Later, the moonlit flower garden was the scene of much merriment when outdoor games were enjoyed and later the guests were ushered into the vine-covered arbor, illuminated with Japanese lanterns, where a two-course luncheon was served.

San Dimas.

ABOUT 125 members of the Entre Nous Club and their guests spent a most enjoyable afternoon at the pretty ranch home of Mr. and Mrs. Russell W. Teague, Tuesday afternoon. Miss Winifred Roberts of Santa Ana gave a full hour of rare enjoyment by her admirable reading of "Enoch Arden," given with the necessary piano accompaniment, the latter by Miss Rae Knight, also of Santa Ana.

Mrs. Charles Laing was hostess to about twelve young ladies at a wiener roast in Puddingstone Canyon Wednesday night, in honor of Miss Hazel Sangster, whose marriage to Charles Butler takes place this month. A delightful evening was passed in toasting marshmallows and exchanging confidences under the most romantic conditions—beautiful scenery, and a perfect moon. The party presented Miss Sangster with a beautiful cut-glass bowl, the presentation being made in a cute way by Master Charles Laing.

Miss Lucy Blackwell, daughter of the well-known R. E. Blackwell of this place, and Rev. F. McIntyre, a well-known young orange grove owner of Pomona, will be married July 15 at the home of the bride's parents in San Dimas. The young couple will probably make their home in Chino after the wedding.

Willowbrook.

ELABORATENESS of decorations marked the nuptial service which united at the hymeneal altar on Thursday afternoon at 3:30 Miss Lulu Barkley of Little Lands and Earl F. Mauk of South Compton avenue, the event being held in the parlors of the Colonial Club House before an assemblage of several hundred guests. A pink scheme prevailed with a wealth of carnations and roses creating the spacious rooms into a floral bower of unusual beauty. A unique feature in the decorations was the combination of plumosus fern and yucca which were interwoven in the three archways. The bride was handsomely gowned in ivory white satin, pearl beads and silver lace, and her veil of tulle was caught with orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of pink sweet peas and maidenhair fern. A turkey dinner was served at 6 o'clock at the bride's home, where forty covers were marked by bows of pink ribbon leading to the bride's cake, around the edge of which were perky bows; some of these were joined to a wishbone, a thimble, ring and a dime hidden beneath the icing. Two kewpies, dressed as bride and groom, occupied the cenetr of the cake. Circlink the kewpies on a second table were many lighted candles which signified the birthday of the bride's father, B. Barkley, the event being celebrated in connection with his daughter's wedding. Led by the orchestra and bridal party, the guests returned to the clubhouse, where the reception was held, which included dancing. Mr. and Mrs. Mauk left that evening for their newly furnished home on Burton avenue, Willowbrook. The groom is an electrician in the employ of an electric lighting company of Los Angeles.

Corona.

ONE of the prettiest home weddings which have been solemnnized during the past few weeks was that which took place Tuesday evening, when Miss Harriet Millbank became the bride of Walter Earl Saylor, the ceremony being performed at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. E. G. Bateman, at No. 420 Fuller street, by Rev. E. A. Roys, pastor of the First Congregational Church. Seventy-five friends of the couple were present in honor of the occasion, and included a number of out-of-town friends. Out of doors, where the wedding took place, was a profusion of greenery, palms and yucca gathered from near-by canyons. Under an archway of beautiful ferns they took their place to the strains of Lohengrin's bridal chorus, Miss Hilda Millbank, sister of the bride, presiding at the piano. The bridal party included, beside the contracting parties, Miss Florence Taylor, maid of honor; Fred Millbank, brother of the bride, best man; Florence Anson and Myra Bateman, nieces of the bride, bridesmaids; Hilda Millbank, a niece, flower girl, and Alford Anson, a nephew, ring bearer. The bride wore a beautiful white voile dress and carried a shower bouquet of white carnations and Marchal Niel roses. Following the congratulations of their friends and the serving of brick ice cream and cake to the guests; Mr. and Mrs. Saylor left by auto amid the confusion occasioned by the bride throwing the bridal bouquet. The honeymoon will be spent at Lucerne Valley, where the couple has property interests.

Oxnard.

MOST charming of June's weddings in Oxnard, was the last, Wednesday night, when Miss Hazel Virden, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ben S. Virden, became the bride of Ross Blouin, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Blouin, of La Touche, La. The garden of the Virden home, further beautified with many cut flowers, bamboo ferns and palms, in a color scheme of pink and green, was used for the ceremony, which was performed by the Rev. Fr. Martin. Miss Ruth Virden, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, and the bridesmaids were Miss Emma Driffill and Miss Charlotte Taylor. Leon J. Blouin, brother of the groom, was best man. The bride and her attendants were simply gowned, in keeping with the out-door ceremony, in dainty dresses of pale hues. Only the intimate friends and relatives of the bride and groom were present at the ceremony, among these being Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Blouin and daughters, Marie and Bessie, and sons, Clarence and Leon J., who came from New Orleans for the occasion.

Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Rice entertained Saturday afternoon with a sumptuous barbecue, given in honor of Mrs. Rice's sister, Mrs. Stephen Jurika, and Mr. Jurika, who are residents of the Philippine Islands. Fifteen members of the Rice and Jurika families were present, and a delightful afternoon was enjoyed.

Moneta.

THE West Point Club of twenty-five boys, a military organization of the Methodist Church in Moneta, is planning a delightful trip for next week, when they will spend several days camping on Mt. Wilson and in Santa Anita Canyon, under the leadership and diligent eye of Alfred Cookman. The boys are of the ages between 10 and 14 years, they will camp in the open and will be under military discipline during their entire stay.

Rev. F. D. Seward's nephew, Charles E. Ready, of Ventura, was a visitor in Moneta Thursday, on his way to the Chicago International Christian Endeavor convention. He left for Chicago Friday morning over the Santa Fe, and will return by the Rio Grande.

Franklin Luckensmyer, a recent graduate of the Orange Union High School, visited relatives in Moneta during the past week, before returning to his home in Wheatlands, near San Francisco.

The Philathea class of the Methodist Church held a lawn party Friday evening. The expanse of lawn between church and parsonage looked very festive in its decorations of Japanese lanterns and cosy nooks. Jolly games of the kind young people like to play were indulged in for a time, when a musical programme was greatly enjoyed by all. Vocal solos were sung by Mrs. Leland B. Hawkins, and Robert Williams. Miss Agnes Clark rendered in her own charming manner a piano solo. Clarence Myers greatly pleased his hearers with a selection on his horn. He was accompanied by his sister, Miss Ada Myers. Bill Cookman, Jr., and Earle Clark quite captivated their hearers with reading selections.

Bridgedale.

MRS. CRESSLYN L. TILLEY entertained at a prettily-appointed luncheon on Tuesday last. Those who enjoyed her hospitality were Mrs. Harry Rice, Mrs. Roy Foulkes, Mrs. Will Winter, Mrs. Alec Chalmers, Mrs. C. M. Buck and Mrs. S. S. Messmore. Pink hydrangeas were used effectively in the color scheme.

Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Buck enjoyed a pleasant outing at Laguna last Sunday, when they motored with Mr. Buck's sister, Miss Bess Buck, and Harry Dane, in Mr. Dane's new Hudson.

Rumors are afloat in Bridgedale of the betrothal of Miss Bess Buck of Los Angeles and sister of C. M. Buck, to Harry Dane of Elsinore. Friends of the popular young couple are planning several affairs in their honor.

Mrs. C. L. Tilley spent a few days in Wilmington, the last of the week, as the guest of her sister, Mrs. E. W. Sandison.

Gardena.

MISS AGNES CLARK, a popular young lady of Gardena, was completely taken by surprise last Monday evening when a few of her friends suddenly appeared, apparently from nowhere, onto the scene of action. The occasion was Miss Clark's birthday anniversary. Refreshments of ice cream, cake and chocolates were furnished by those participating in the fun, and which included Miss Martha Specht of Los Angeles, Miss Irene Hawkins of Moneta and Miss Marie McMillian of Gardena. After the "feast," Miss Clark favored her friends with a few selections on the piano.

Mr. and Mrs. C. V. Crellin left Tuesday night for San Francisco, to be gone a week. They will join Mr. Crellin's brother, E. W. Crellin, in the Yosemite.

On Monday the M. C. Social Club was entertained at the home of Mrs. J. G. Blindbury of Magnolia avenue. Refreshments of ices and cake were served the ladies on the lawn. This meeting was somewhat in the nature of a farewell for Mrs. S. B. Hall, who, with her husband, is leaving the south for the northern climate.

Mr. and Mrs. Guy Colton have planned an extended trip for the summer months. They left last week for San Francisco, and from there they will go to Chicago and on to Kansas to visit with relatives and friends.

Pomona.

THE wedding of Miss Agnes Belle Gray and Lloyd Brehaut was solemnized Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock, in the First Methodist Church, Rev. Clyde Crist officiating. The bride was attired in her going away gown of midnight blue cloth and wore a corsage bouquet of lilies of the valley and white Killarney rosebuds. The Philatheas did the decorating of the church, and Shasta daisies were used with very artistic results. Combined with ferns the daisies appeared on the chancel and altar, with big bouquets on the lower ledge, forming a pretty setting for the ceremony. The newlyweds left at once by auto for Los Angeles, where they took the Coaster for San Francisco, intending to spend at least ten days at the exposition and around the bay. Upon their return to Southern California they will make their home at No. 124 East Third street, in Claremont, the groom being employed as agent for the Pacific Electric Railway at that place. Both of the young people are well known here, having both attended the High School. The groom finished business college here.

Mr. and Mrs. Lester Snedaker en-

Duarte.

THE rarely beautiful days of California in June decided the manner in which Mr. and Mrs. Alexander B. Downe and Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Menager would entertain in compliment to their young friends, for they chose to give an outing party in the canyon to some forty-five guests Saturday. The shady retreat they selected had been arranged comfortably; in fact a wagonload of equipment had made possible the serving of a perfectly appointed luncheon. After the guests left the tables, outdoor sports, photography and mountain climbing, were enjoyed until late in the afternoon, when tea was served. Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Darnellle, Mr. and Mrs. J. Allen Munro, Mr. and Mrs. Park Densmore, Mrs. W. H. Hoagland, Mrs. Kate Wurtzberger, Miss Pauline Munro, Miss Margery Pattie, Miss Wilhelmina Langsdorf, Miss Mary Munro, Miss Mary Alpaugh, Miss Minnie Boyles, Miss Helen Hoagland, Miss Erma Moore, Miss Dorris Downe, Miss Ruth Blain, Miss Marie Maxwell, Miss Dorothy Densmore, and Messrs. Robert and Ralph Densmore, Merton Monroe, Clifford Brelsford, Kenneth Colborn, Norman Moore, Milton Clark and George Moore.

Miss R. M. Files of Shreveport, La., and Mrs. M. C. Tucker of Oklahoma City, Okla., were guests this week at the home of Capt. and Mrs. W. W. Bacon on Duarte avenue.

Mrs. A. Boyles entertained the ladies of the Fortnightly Bridge Club Tuesday afternoon at her attractive home, the rooms of which were gay with fragrant roses and graceful clusters of hydrangeas. Supper was served at the card tables at 5 o'clock and the sixteen guests passed a happy afternoon with Mrs. Boyles.

Puente.

MRS CAROLINE FICKEWIRTH left this week for an extended tour in the Middle West and East. With her went her daughters, the Misses Emma and Louisa Fickewirth. The party will first spend considerable time at the San Francisco exposition, and will then go on to Detroit, where Mrs. Fickewirth has a sister. They will visit in various places in the East.

REASONS FOR THIS GREAT OFFER. For many years the piano manufacturers have been trying to reduce the selling expense of pianos. The old ways of paying solicitors, paying teachers' commission and engaging great artists to play pianos at fabulous sums, we are trying to help eliminate. We are therefore using our advertising allowance money in making this unusual offer direct to the people.

We are manufacturers' agents for pianos of proven quality, comprising some of the world's most famous makes.

You are always sure of finding the best makes of pianos at lowest prices at our warerooms.

The Realty Market
SURVEY OF THE BROAD FIELD

Los Angeles Sunday Times

Part V: 12 Pages
THE EVER-HIGH TIDE.

XXXIVTH YEAR. SUNDAY MORNING, JULY 4, 1915. THE MART: Transactions in Houses and Lots, Bargains in Blocks and Squares.

FACT AND COMMENT.

The real estate activity of the last three weeks in Los Angeles and Southern California almost takes one back to the good old days "before the war" and the Democratic administration. June's record of really important transactions was one that would have been considered quite creditable in even the most prosperous and lively early-summer seasons of the past. Had the business in houses and lots and small tracts of land measured up to that of larger holdings of city frontage and acreage, the month would have ranked with the corresponding period in any other year. As it was, there was enough improvement in the market all around to afford genuine cause for optimism in realty circles.

Best of all, July is starting out even more promisingly, having already recorded two or three notable transfers. The general satisfaction over the turn things are now taking, in the face of all the obstacles to an immediate and complete revival, is bound to be still further increased when several other significant realty transactions and development projects now shaping have been made public. The Fact and Comment man has recently been informed, in confidence, of the existence and progress of deals which, when their details are made known, will furnish sensations in the realty field and which will show in an even more emphatic way than have the big sales and trades recently consummated, the unshaken confidence of capital in local real estate.

Broad Market.

The briefest recapitulation of recent transfers and development activities will serve to show the "broadness" of the real estate market with respect to the variety of the properties changing hands. This broadness of itself is a good sign and the surest indication that the acivity of the past few weeks is no mere flash in the pan.

One of the first of the unbroken series of important real estate deals referred to was the transfer of a large tract of ground having frontages of over 300 feet on both Grand avenue and Hope street and lying just north of the old St. Vincent's College building. The deal was followed by several sales of lots to individual buyers, insuring early improvement of a substantial character and also involves the opening and improvement of Eleventh street between Grand and Hope. Almost simultaneously with the announcement of this big deal, came that of the exchange of a four-story building occupying thirty feet of frontage on Broadway near Second, for a 1400-acre ranch in the San Joaquin Valley.

A day or two later a San Francisco capitalist bought one of the fine apartment houses of the west side, for a large cash consideration and an investor from Kansas purchased a valuable property of the same character in Hollywood. Several important acreage transfers were then reported, these including announcements of several large cash sales in Imperial Valley and a big ranch deal at Hemet, with numerous small land transactions thrown in for good measure. The closing of a lease on a $120,000 apartment hotel to be erected on West Adams street followed. Then came the announcement of the immediate subdivision into five and ten-acre tracts, of the old 4400-acre Encino ranch in the San Fernando Valley.

General Improvement.

Reports of other important deals and projects have followed in unbroken succession, and all the time the business in subdivision lots, small farm plots and residences, large and

FINE HOME FOR FREMONT PLACE.

PLANS DRAWN FOR FIFTEEN-ROOM MANSION OF ITALIAN TYPE—OTHER PROJECTS.

To the list of fine residences already completed or started in Fremont place is to be added another handsome home planned by W. C. Pennell for Miss Helen Matthewson. The house will be in the Italian renaissance style and will contain fifteen rooms.

John C. Austin has started plans for a ten-room residence of the Italian villa type to be erected in the midst of a fifteen-acre tract on West Washington street near the city limits. R. D. Collins is the builder.

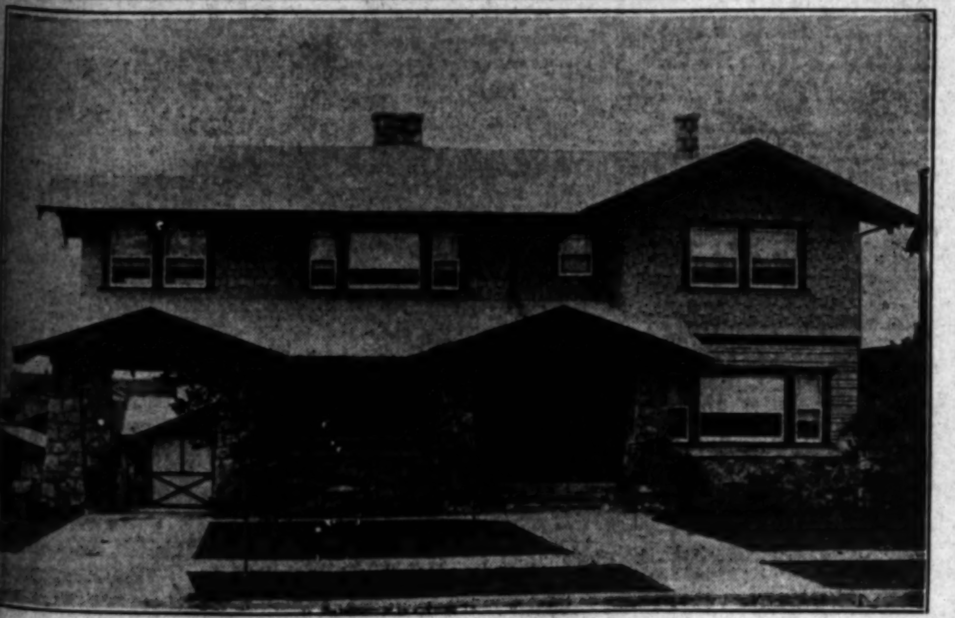
Mrs. Rose Goldenson has had plans drawn for an eight-room residence at No. 993 South Wilton place. M. F. Dixon has been granted permits for two ten-room, double houses at Nos. 820 and 821 West Fortieth place. The same builder will erect a seven-room house on Westchester place in Country Club Park. Edgerton Shore is about to start an eight-room house at No. 1932 Highland avenue and a five-room bungalow at No. 1930 Highland avenue.

Plans have been prepared for a double house to be built by C. E. Dambach at No. 1217 Edgemont street. The contract has been let for a seven-room residence for Stella Le Saint on Bryan street near Marathon. W. F. Markham will build a seven-room house and a five-room bungalow at Nos. 1529 and 1533 Morningside court.

Permits have been issued for six four-room bungalows and an eight-room double bungalow to be built by A. B. Newkirk at Nos. 1022-25 Blaine street. Contracts have been let for two bungalows to be built by W. A. Bennett at Nos. 2220-22 Ivanhoe avenue and for a bungalow for C. F. Clements at No. 2811 Dobinson street. Mrs. A. C. Roques is about to start a six-room bungalow at No. 4074 South Normandie. H. F. Brainerd has had plans drawn for a six-room bungalow at No. 721 Bryan street. M. S. Yeager will build a six-room bungalow at No. 453 North Serrano.

IN SAN GABRIEL VALLEY.

The Janss Investment Company reports sales in its Wilmar and New Ramona Acres, properties in the San Gabriel Valley to the following: M. Vandermark, two plots at Wilmar, $1950; J. H. Campbell, two acres, $1900; C. Hutchins, home and plot, $1150; N. Willis, plot, $900; L. Tucker, plot, $1600; William Cruxsley, acre, $1150; Mrs. A. Johnson, plot, $900; C. Peterson, two plots at New Ramona Acres, $2725; John Downs, house and plot, $1675, and Mrs. Scolley, plot, $1100, and Mrs. Marley, plot at New Ramona Acres, $1600.



THIS BEAUTIFUL WILSHIRE RESIDENCE FOR SALE AT AN ABSOLUTE SACRIFICE

Located on a big 64-foot east front lot, only three blocks north of the Boulevard, in the very center of our fashionable residential district, this elegant 10-room chalet is declared to be one of the most perfectly complete homes in Southern California.

Living room, dining-room and den are finished in genuine selected Tabasco mahogany. The breakfast room is a beauty, being finished with imported paper and overlooking the beautiful sunken gardens in the rear yard. Kitchen strictly cabinet with unusual built-in conveniences. Screen porch contains laundry, automatic water heater, and specially constructed cooling room with ample provision for refrigerator. Splendid basement with perfect furnace already installed. Four extra large bedrooms together with sun parlor and sleeping porch upstairs. Closets are all large and equipped with French mirrors, built-in wardrobes, etc. Two baths, one being tile with pedestal lavatory and other standard fixtures. The very best quartered oak floors throughout. The yard has a fine lawn both front and rear together with a profusion of rare flowers and shrubs. Double garage with cement floor, cement drive, etc. In short, this home is so completely ideal that it has been featured in various trade journals as the most perfect example of superior construction and convenience in Los Angeles. The owner intended it to be his permanent home. Circumstances compel him to sacrifice it immediately. Price only $10,500 which is at least $2000 under the price which this class of property has sold for recently in this neighborhood. Phone us promptly Tuesday morning for automobile appointment to see this big bargain as such opportunities do not last long.

Fills Great Need.

JEFFERSON "HIGH" TO COST QUARTER-MILLION.

Magnificent New Southeast Los Angeles Institution will Occupy Old "Coliseum" Site on Hooper Avenue. Architect Completing Plans for Six Buildings—Practical Courses of Instruction to be Featured.

NO OTHER CITY in the United States is at this time making such provision for the educational needs of its rising generation of citizens as is Los Angeles. The people of Los Angeles, divided on many questions, are a unit on the question of the necessity for keeping up the public school system. This was shown in a striking way last fall, when, in a time of general dullness and financial retrenchment, the voters of the city gave an overwhelming indorsement to the $4,600,000 school bond issue.

Of this huge appropriation, $3,000,000 was intended for new elementary schools and $1,600,000 for high schools. No immediate market being found for the issue as a whole, the bonds were segregated into amounts covering individual building projects. The plan has been entirely successful, each school having been provided for as it has come up for consideration.

Today, less than a year after the bond election, the Board of Education can point with pride to the fact that arrangements have been made for the financing of every building contemplated in the city school programme, including, with additions to old structures, sixty separate undertakings. Fourteen of the new buildings, including the splendid new Franklin High School in Northeast Los Angeles, are now under way. Contracts have been awarded for several more and bids are being taken for others.

Plans are now being completed for the third of the three magnificent new high schools authorized under the big school bond issue. This is the Jefferson High School, which is to occupy the nineteen-acre site comprising the old "Coliseum" grounds at Hooper avenue and Thirty-eighth street. Norman F. Marsh is the architect.

Perspectives of the new $500,000 Los Angeles High School and junior college buildings and of the new Franklin "High," two of the projected institutions of their grade, have already been published exclusively in The Times. John C. Austin, architect of the former group, is now taking bids from various contractors. Construction has been started on the latter group, which was planned by Architects Elmore R. Jeffery and Frank R. Schaefer.

The location of the new Jefferson High School is now familiarly known as the "Stadium," having been christened by the 1915 General Committee. Here have been held many of the principal events of the exposition year programme in this city.

The property fronts 1235 feet on Hooper avenue, 1149 feet on Compton avenue, 952 feet on Thirty-fourth street and 292 feet on Thirty-eighth street. For it the Board of Education paid a consideration of $75,000.

The new school will meet a long-felt and urgent need for proper educational facilities in the rapidly-advancing southeast part of the city. High school pupils from this district have been forced for many years to travel long and circuitous routes to reach the existing buildings in other parts of Los Angeles. The utilization of the large and accessible Hooper-avenue site for scholastic purposes has long been advocated by citizens and taxpayers of the section.

SIX BUILDINGS.

The plans of the board call for the eventual construction of six structures on the site, although only four, the classics, science and manual arts buildings and power plant, will be erected at the present time. Later an administration building and gymnasium will be added. The present outlay for buildings, equipment and site will be slightly in excess of $300,000.

The buildings of the group will all be of brick and concrete construction, being faced with rug tapestry brick and trimmed with artificial stone. All corridors and stairways will be made absolutely fireproof. The classic style will be followed, each of the main structures having a dignified entrance portico, with stone pediment and columns.

The science building will be three stories in height and will cover a ground area of 275x100 feet. The provisions for the various departments will be complete to the last detail, each having its own offices as well as its laboratories and lecture-rooms. The entire second, or main, floor, will be given over to courses in chemistry, physics and biology. Music, art, sewing, millinery and domestic science will be taken care of in the third story, where also will be given instruction in pottery work and metal hammering.

PRACTICAL COURSES.

A large part of the ground floor of the building will be given over to work in agronomy and animal husbandry, the plan being that the school shall offer unusual facilities in these and other practical branches. Both horticulture and agriculture will come in for special demonstration, a considerable area of the grounds being utilized for garden and orchard space. A dairy and poultry plant will be kept in operation by the students themselves under the present plans. Part of the ground story of the science building will be used as a cafeteria.

Emphasis will also be laid upon the work of the manual training department, which will have a two-story building 170x85 feet in size The first floor will contain shops, a forge room, glue and finishing rooms and woodworking rooms. On the second floor there will be, in addition to the offices of the building, the department of mechanical drawing, blue-print rooms and a dark-room.

The classics building will cover a ground space of 310x85 feet and will have a height of three stories. It will have five rooms for history courses and a like number for languages on the ground floor. The second story will contain five rooms for mathematics and six for English work. The entire top floor will be given over to commercial instruction, including departments of stenography, book-keeping, penmanship, typewriting and commercial arithmetic.

SIX CONTRACTS ARE SIGNED.

THAT MANY MORE NEW PUBLIC SCHOOLS TO GO AHEAD AT ONCE.

Contracts were signed during the past week for the construction of six of the new public schools provided for in the big school bond issue. The largest of the structures contracted for was the new intermediate building at First and Vermont, planned by Hunt & Burns and to be erected by the Los Angeles Planing Mill Company. This school will cost in excess of $100,000, with its equipment.

John H. Simpson & Co. were given the contract to erect a large grade building on Ann street. The structure was planned by the architectural department of the Board of Education and will cost about $75,000.

The Huntsberger-Reed Company signed up for the construction of a two-story grammar building to be erected on Rowan avenue. The structure will cost about $50,000.

The Broadway Construction Company has the contract to build a two-story grade school at Jefferson and Key West streets. The building will cost about $30,000.

J. F. Atkinson received the contract for a two-story addition to the present Seventh-avenue school, and John B. Dawson, the contractor, for an addition to the present Hobart-boulevard school. Both additions were planned by John P. Krempel and Walter E. Erkes.

ENLARGES BUSINESS.

Leasing, Insurance and House and Lot Departments of Rush Company Taken Over by Ware Interests.

The Robert L. Ware Company completed during the week a deal whereby it takes over the rental, insurance, loan, business lease and house and lot departments of the Guy M. Rush Company. General offices will be retained on the ground floor at Nos. 733-35 South Hill street.

The rental department now maintained by the Robert L. Ware Company was established many years ago by Edward D. Silent & Co., passing to the Rush company with the acquisition by that concern of the Silent company's business a year ago. Through Albert T. Allen, manager of the business leasing department of the Robert L. Ware Company, the following transactions are reported for the week:

Restaurant business of G. L. Rogers, operating the Olympic Cafe, at No. 117 West First street, to Fred Heinzman. The place had been operated continuously by Mr. Rogers for twenty years.

Confectionery, cigar and stationery business of Harry Williams, at No. 737 South Grand avenue, to W. P. Heichert; Bell Cleaning and Dyeing Works, at No. 4819 Moneta avenue, from Charles Yager to Charles Wagner; for Kramer Estate, Inc., lease for three years on premises at No. 737 South Grand avenue, to W. P. Heichert; sale of residence at No. 1347 West Twenty-fourth street, for Margaretta Kerkow to Millie Rogers, consideration, $6000.

HOUSE-WARMING.

Forty employees and business associates of Dr. Peter Janss, president of the Janss Investment Company, were entertained at his handsome new Windsor Square mansion on Friday evening at a combined smoker and house-warming. Dr. Janss took occasion during the evening to express his appreciation of the faithful service rendered the company by those associated with him.

PLANS FINE CHALET.

Mrs. L. A. Tate purchased last week through the Braly-Janss Company a lot 139x200 feet in size on Lincoln drive in Brentwood Park, for a given consideration of $1500. The purchaser will at once commence the construction of a large bungalow home of the chalet type. The site commands a view of the Santa Monica Mountains and the ocean.

AUCTION VENICE.

Unsold Portion of Original Resort and Town Plat to be Disposed of in Whirlwind Order.

One hundred and forty-five lots, comprising the unsold portion of the original plat of Venice, will be put up for sale at auction by Abbott Kinney next Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Mr. Kinney has been holding the property ever since he opened the popular shore resort as a subdivision nearly ten years ago. Some of the sites are near the business center of Venice and others are on Washington boulevard. All have street improvements and public utilities.

The auction will be held in a large tent on Washington boulevard and will be enlivened by band concerts and other entertainment features. Charles C. Gerth, an eastern auctioneer, will be in charge.

ADDS TO LAND POSSESSIONS.

Local Capitalist Acquires Acreage in Both Northern and Southern California.

An important transfer of California lands was consummated yesterday between two Los Angeles capitalists, when Lycurgus Lindsey sold to W. J. Pearson, 1600 acres of land at Willows, 150 miles north of San Francisco. The property, which is on both the State Highway and the Southern Pacific Railway, is in wheat, alfalfa and rice. The deal was handled through W. J. Pearson and Company, of which the purchaser is the head. The consideration is announced at $195,000, or approximately $125 an acre.

Mr. Pearson expects to build a number of substantial buildings on the land and to convert it into a fine stock ranch. He will ship 150 head of cattle to the holding this week. It is also the new owner's plan to set out about 200 acres to lemons. The purchase, he stated yesterday, is intended as a permanent investment.

Closer home, Mr. Pearson has added to his holdings through the acquisition of fifty acres of land on the county highway just west of Downey. George C. Fetterman, the former owner of the land, received property in Seattle in exchange. The consideration on each side is given at $65,000.

THE HOUSE THAT MRS. JAY BUILT

Out Pasadena way. It is not a stereotyped California bungalow. It is her own idea in concrete form. It is absolutely new. It is so constructed that it can be enlarged without destroying the artistic lines of its Dutch Colonial style. The unique interior has Spanish floor plan—each room opening onto an inclosed patio. Hardwood finish throughout. Mahogany, Birch, etc. Each door is a single panel. Situated on a sightly knoll from which outlook every prospect pleases. The grounds can be easily converted into Italian Gardens. It is a strictly -Made-to-Order HOME. The taste displayed may coincide with yours. We want you to see it. We will tell you why this extremely desirable place is for sale at $6500.

IT REIGNS SUPREME.
NORTH WHITTIER HEIGHTS.
LEMON, AHUACATE, ORANGE AND WALNUT LANDS AND GROVES.
TRACTS OF 5 TO 50 ACRES IN CELEBRATED WHITTIER FOOTHILL DISTRICT.

Mr. or Mrs. Land Buyer, Investor, or those who are looking for the ideal location for a country home, suburban to Los Angeles, we are confident that a careful investigation of the possibilities and profits to be made in horticulture or agriculture in California will convince you that an investment in a lemon, Valencia orange, ahuacate or walnut land proposition in a high-class district in Southern California is not only the most profitable investment but is the "one" ideal location for a country home.

Our North Whittier Heights citrus, ahuacate and walnut land subdivision is being sold in planted and unplanted tracts of 5 to 50 acres, and on easy terms if desired. Some of the most successful orchardists in the Southland are investing in the property, which is an assurance that it has the essential conditions for success.

Call, phone or write for full information and beautifully illustrated descriptive folder, or better still, let us take you out by auto to see the property and district.

FOR SALE—

Why not buy that 5-acre tract at Richfield and be independent. You certainly would be if you had one of those 5-acre tracts, because the land is fertile, and will grow anything; —also water is abundant; best of all, it is a good place to live as the air is delightful and invigorating, and the scenery wonderful; it is close to school and both electric and steam lines, and what is more important, the price is RIGHT—$1750 for the 5 acres, with one share of water stock to the acre. Terms, 10 per cent. down, balance to suit. See

MONEY WANTED—
Real Estate and Collaterals.

WANTED—NOTICE! ALL PEOPLE WITH MONEY TO LOAN, BROKERS, BANKS, BANKERS AND INVESTORS.

The recent bank statements show large reserves on hand. The real estate men and money brokers advertise that money is plentiful. Banking institutions advertise and from time to time give out interviews to the effect that there is an abundance of money available for all legitimate purposes. The booster and optimist are rampant and abroad in the land. The writer of this advertisement believes he knows what constitutes good security, the elements of a desirable loan and the difference between a loan and a donation.

This advertisement is for the purpose of ascertaining the actual uncolored truth about and concerning the local financial situation and, if possible, why it is that so many worthy people and enterprises are today suffering for the want of reasonable financial accommodations, as well as to procure funds for clients of long standing who look to me to handle their paper.

I will engage to produce the following loans, and guarantee to establish the facts that the security is ample—based upon the values heretofore considered as essential—and the standing and personnel back of these loans of the very highest order. I challenge the money loaners, brokers, banks and investors to make good on their statements, advertisements and boasts.

(1.) $50,000 on real estate in Los Angeles county, appraised by banks and real estate men whose appraisements are generally accepted as final, as worth at least $125,000, at 7 per cent., for three years; the signer of the mortgage note is worth in excess of one-half million dollars.

(2.) Farm mortgages bearing interest at 7 per cent., on lands under cultivation and irrigation in various amounts from $1500 to $7000, one, two and three years. In no case are these mortgages in excess of 40 per cent. of the market value of the lands mortgaged, based upon prices for which lands adjoining have been sold and are selling today. Appraisements furnished by real estate experts whose appraisements are generally accepted.

(3.) Short time collateral notes bearing 7 per cent. interest, where the collateral both in point of margin and character is such as has been acceptable to savings banks in this community in normal times. The makers of the collateral notes are of the very highest standing and their net worth is many times in excess of the amount of all outstanding paper.

(4.) To name short time paper bearing 7 per cent. interest, where both parties to the instrument are of the very highest standing and whose joint worth is many times in excess of all outstanding obligations of every character.

Can furnish the above paper in any amount from $2500 to $50,000 and the validity and stability of all offerings can be fully established.

Will pay full brokerage or commission and afford every opportunity for the most searching investigation of every piece of paper offered to any one who will first establish the fact that he actually has or controls the amount of money involved in each transaction.

Such party or parties, however, will have to agree in a satisfactory form to make the loans, provided the representations concerning the same are fully established.

If the conditions in this community are as advertised and the statements uttered from various sources are true, there is no possible excuse for overlooking the opportunity herewith afforded for the safe and profitable investment of money on a most satisfactory basis.

Parties interested may obtain full information by appointment only by addressing L, box 526, TIMES BRANCH OFFICE.

It's Ideal!

HEART'S DESIRE FOR SOME HUSTLING BOY.

Scholarship, Including Room and Board, in Popular San Diego Army and Navy Academy, Makes Strongest Appeal to Many Lads—One will Win this Great Reward for Earnest Work for "The Times."

A PARTICULAR bright and shining star in the constellation of scholarships offered by The Times in the Educational Contest, which will close on the last day of this month, is the scholarship offered in the San Diego Army and Navy Academy, including room and board. This scholarship has an actual cash value of $550.

This offer has made a remarkably strong appeal to the boys engaged in the work of the present campaign. So many boys have their hearts fixed on this splendid reward for earnest labor that it will be a matter of great interest to see who is the one who finally rolls up the biggest score and proudly walks away with the coveted prize.

The very anticipation of the use of this scholarship is a pleasure; the reality will be a solid satisfaction to some hustling boy during all the months of the school year that is to start next fall.

The San Diego Army and Navy Academy is most admirably situated at Pacific Beach—a part of San Diego—on the picturesque slopes above Mission Bay. The school has the advantage of both land and water facilities right at hand; it is at the seat of a military post and in close touch with the waters where frequently ride the men-of-war and other vessels in the government service. The courses of study are practical and thorough; the training is calculated to bring out the manly qualities in every student and to develop the very best that is in him. The surroundings are delightful; the climatic conditions ideal, and the personnel of the student body represents the flower of American youth.

The academy has the forms of physical training that other schools generally have, and, in addition a military training which can hardly be surpassed as a form of physical instruction. It gives symmetrically-developed muscles, erect and manly carriage, sturdiness of physique, and physical endurance; higher activities of the mind are quickened and habits of promptness, obedience, alertness and capacity to work in concert with others are instilled.

Ideas of patriotic citizenship, with its vexing problems and manifold responsibilities, are enlarged by military training and a young man who has received it, even though not contemplating taking up the profession of arms as his life's work, is in position to be of great service to his country in case of need.

Class formations are made in the open air and sunshine. The systematic life, with its "setting up" exercises before breakfast, meals at regular hours, play and study at regular periods, arising and retiring at regular times—these are great factors in a boy's development. Under such a systematic life some of the cadets during the last session gained in weight as much as thirty pounds.

The academy is not denominational, yet a positive Christian influence pervades every phase of its work. Vice-President Marshall has recently stated—and for some time the truthfulness of the statement has been recognized—that "there is not enough of God Almighty in our educational system." From the time of its founding, the academy has emphasized clean speech, clean sports, clean life, truthfulness, honor. Chapel exercises are held each school day and, on Sundays, the cadets attend such churches as their parents may direct. Thus a boy is taught "to be thoughtful of other boys and people—to be kind; to respect father and mother and to be gentle to old age; to be something now."

Small wonder can there be that a scholarship offered in an institution such as the San Diego Army and Navy Academy should excite the utmost competition among the boys engaged in this educational contest.

The work of the contestants during the ensuing two weeks will be one of the greatest factors in the entire campaign in determining who will be the fortunate lad to secure this great reward.

San Diego Army and Navy Academy.

The Times is offering a scholarship, including room and board, in this popular school to boys engaged in work in the Educational Contest, and there are many aspirants for this magnificent reward of $550 actual cash value.

WORKING FOR CASH.

Every contestant is just now especially interested in the vigorous two-weeks' campaign for special cash rewards for the twelve largest lists of new yearly subscriptions. This offer will close at the finish of July 15. This means that you have ten full working days within which to make the most of your opportunities, and to create opportunities to secure new yearly subscriptions.

You have the chance to be one of the twelve winners of these cash rewards—and, best of all, every new subscription advances your vote standing just three times as much as do renewals.

Just a word to the wise: The contestants who have been contenting themselves with simply securing renewals of old subscriptions should "get a hunch" that others will quickly walk ahead of them through the means of new subscriptions unless they get busy on this line. It doesn't take long, with the vote count allowed on new subscriptions, to make notable advances in vote standing, and the lower-score contestants are fully realizing this fact. At the close of this two weeks' campaign, July 15, there surely will be some very interesting changes in the position of candidates and some of the present low-score boys and girls will give the others surprises.

Keep this special offer before you:

To the contestant securing the largest list of new yearly subscriptions up to the close of July 15, $10.

To the contestant securing the second largest list, $8.

To the contestant securing the third largest list, $7.

To the contestant securing the fourth largest list, $6.

To the contestant securing the fifth largest list, $5.

To the contestant securing the sixth largest list, $4.

To the contestant securing the seventh largest list, $3.

To the contestant securing the eighth largest list, $2.50.

To the contestant securing the ninth largest list, $1.50.

To the three contestants having the next three largest lists, $1 each.

Importing Sand from Europe.

[Youth's Companion:] Sand from Europe is helping to build the new subways in New York City. The war has so reduced the cargoes of west-bound vessels that many of them have to use sand for ballast. When they get to New York they remove the ballast to make room for the east-bound cargo, and they find that the cheapest way to get rid of it is to give it to anyone who will take it away. Ten thousand years from now, when the archaeologists of the day are analyzing the remains of our civilization, it will puzzle them to determine why, with Coney Island so near, we brought the sand for our concrete from English beaches at Scarborough and Great Yarmouth.

SCHOOL GRACED BY PIPE ORGAN.

Adds Dignity to Structure Now Property of City.

Van Nuys Plan Never Before Known in the State.

Practical Studies Pursued in Splendid Building.

When the voters of Los Angeles gave their assent a few weeks ago to the annexation of the fertile San Fernando Valley Irrigation District, not the least of the acquisitions which came to this city was a modern and complete high school plant, comparing favorably with any already existing in the older corporation limits. This institution is the new Van Nuys High School, which, as the result of the annexation election, is now a part of the Los Angeles public school system and under control of the local Board of Education.

The valley school is not only one of the best in the State in point of architectural dignity, construction and appointment, but in one respect, at least, is unique among California structures of its character. The Van Nuys High School is the only one in the State, and probably on the Coast, that has a pipe organ.

The organ was really an afterthought upon the part of the school trustees of the town and was inspired originally by H. J. Whitley, general manager of the Los Angeles Suburban Homes Company and prime mover in the development of the San Fernando Valley. "Why shouldn't a public school have the same stirring music as a church?" asked Mr. Whitley.

The idea caught with the people of Van Nuys and its vicinity, having added popularity because of the fact that pipe organs the equal of any made were being manufactured right in the little valley city. The actual order for the organ was placed with the Johnson Organ and Piano Company of Van Nuys after the High School was well under way.

Allison and Allison, the architects of the building, made a few slight changes in the plans for the school auditorium and with no extra expense in designing, the organ was included in the general scheme. Its installation was completed last month.

The organ is a beautiful $10,000 instrument made to order for the school. Its gleaming pipes extend entirely across the proscenium arch above the assembly hall stage. The acoustic properties of the big room are declared to be almost ideal.

Daily, after the opening of the fall term of school, the inspiring tones of the pipe organ will thrill the students of the Van Nuys High School at their morning assembly exercises. The same auditorium has already become the principal place of meeting for all large public gatherings in the community. Close to 1000 may find seating space in the hall.

The High School itself is a stately, classic structure of brick and concrete construction. Its pure white wall surfaces make it a conspicuous landmark in its part of the valley. The central entrance portico of the school, with its six great columns, is a dominating architectural feature. The roof of the building is of green clay tile.

The school, in addition to the regular high school courses, will pay special attention to agriculture and horticulture. All the territory it serves is rapidly being transformed into one vast region of orchards and gardens and with the distribution of the aqueduct water is destined to become the center of one of the greatest growing districts in the Southland. Realizing this fact, the people of Van Nuys have insisted upon the liberal introduction of practical courses into the curriculum.

NAVAL MILITIA OFF ON CRUISE.

CITIZEN SAILORS MAN THREE DESTROYERS, TO WORK AND FROLIC.

Manning three destroyers with their own officers and men, 150 members of the State Naval Militia who live in Los Angeles and vicinity, left the harbor yesterday afternoon for a two-week cruise as regular seamen of the United States Navy. The cruise will combine the hard work of target practice, with the pleasure of parading through the exposition grounds at San Francisco with the rest of the State Naval Militia, and an opportunity to enjoy the fair, later.

With Commander A. H. Woodbine as commodore, the Seventh, Eighth and Ninth divisions, second battalion, formed at the harbor, yesterday morning. The militia training ship, Farragut, stationed at the harbor, was augmented by the destroyers Whipple and Hull. Each Los Angeles division was assigned to a destroyer and the division officers placed in command.

Because of the smallness of a destroyer, it was necessary to grant the majority of the regular seamen leave of absence. However, each boat retained a few old salts and regular officers, to keep a watchful eye on the militiamen and see that they do not try to weigh the anchor with the ship's scales.

The destroyer Lawrence will join the flotilla during the run to San Francisco, coming from San Diego with the navy' militia living in that city. The flotilla should arrive in San Francisco harbor early this afternoon.

Tomorrow morning the divisions from this city and San Diego will report at the marine camp on the fair grounds. Here they will join with the other bodies of State Naval Militia now gathered there. The entire body, 500 strong, will then parade through the fair grounds, led by the marine band.

The destroyer flotilla, manned by the naval militia, will leave the anchorage off the fair grounds Tuesday morning, for target practice. It all depends on how well they shoot whether they may return to the exposition in three or in five days. Following this test, of the embryo sailors' eyes and nerves, the real vacation will commence. The militiamen expect to have an entire week on shore while in San Francisco, returning here about the 17th inst.

FIXES VALUE OF WATER SYSTEMS.

SANTA MONICA HEARS WHAT IT WILL HAVE TO PAY FOR TWO PLANTS.

Fixing the compensation to be paid by the city of Santa Monica to the Santa Monica Water Company at $402,500, and to the Ocean Park Water Company at $377,500, the State Railroad Commission handed down decisions yesterday on the application of the seaside city for a valuation of these properties, precedent to their acquisition and incorporation in a municipal water system.

The auditor of the Santa Monica Water Company estimated the property as worth $577,005, and in briefs claimed a final value of $545,547. The city set the value at $237,299 to $276,761. The commission's engineer put the reproduction cost of the physical structures at $342,725, and less depreciation at $283,972. The company's annual report for the year ending December 31, 1914, shows it has outstanding first mortgage 5 per cent. gold bonds of a total face value of $250,000, maturing in 1937. It had outstanding notes on December 31, 1914, at $129,521.62. In the last fiscal year its operating revenues were $50,747.23 and operating expenses $34,217.17, according to the annual report.

No allowance was made for depreciation. The interest on the funded debt was $12,500 and other interest deductions $6343.39, leaving a deficit for the year of $5204.02. Depreciation is estimated by the annual report at $7625, which deducted from $16,530.06—the reported excess of operating revenue over operating expenses—leaves $8905.06 for interest on investment.

President E. J. Vawter, Jr., of the Ocean Park Water Company estimated the value of the property as a going concern at $115,000, while the city of Santa Monica put a value of $52,591 on the system. The company has 1062 connections for private consumers and thirty-four for municipal purposes, owns a reservoir and two wells, and has bonds of a face value of $50,000 outstanding, bearing interest at 6 per cent. It reports a deficit for 1914 of $1630, after allowing interest on these bonds.

AGAINST THE HUCKSTERS.

Retail Grocers Waging War on Business Grounds—Also Want Pay Telephones Installed.

The Southern California Retail Grocers' Association has again taken up the fight against the peddlers and hucksters and is working out an ordinance which will be placed before the Council, asking that these itinerants be curbed considerably, if not entirely eliminated from the business field.

So numerous and active have the peddlers become since the opening of the fruit season, that many grocers are losing money, some of them heavily and a few having already been forced out of business. "The legitimate grocer is paying heavy taxes to the city and county, in addition to keeping up property that vacant would be a black eye to the district in which it is located," said Secretary Olsen of the association.

"The peddler with an investment of only a few dollars for a decrepit horse and old cart, or an ancient automobile buys the culls and scraping of the markets, undersells the quality goods of the grocer and takes the cream, if not all of the profits from a legitimate enterprise. The danger lies not only here, but in the fact that other established business ventures in order to compete are putting out wagons and selling direct from the factory to the consumer.

"Bakeries have been canvassing from house to house and in less than a year the grocers of Los Angeles have lost the bulk of their bread business. The tea, coffee and spice peddlers are taking these lines away gradually. Butter, egg and cheese peddlers are dipping heavily into these lines. They are not producers in any sense of the word, buying their stock from the wholesalers and taking inferior goods usually in order to get the greatest possible profit.

"Unless the grocers are given some sort of protection by the city, which should attach a license or tax that compares with the amount a retailer has to pay annually to do business, the grocery business is going gradually into dissolution."

Aside from this issue, the grocers are also petitioning the Board of Public Utilities for the passage of an ordinance forbidding the public from using their phones under penalty of fine or arrest, unless these phones are pay stations.

FREE FROM THE YOKE.

Woman, Given Probation, Reports She Has Thoroughly Cured Herself of the Drug Habit.

When Anna Hastings was committed to the City Jail several weeks ago to serve a term of six months for violating the drug law, she determined to cure herself of the opium habit and succeeded. As a result she was given her freedom yesterday morning and as she left the Central Police Station she promised Probation Officer King that she will never be arrested on a similar charge again.

"I am thankful to the city for giving me the opportunity to cure myself. I simply determined to use my will power and now I have no desire to use the drug. I feel that my stay in jail has made a new woman of me and I will ever be thankful for it."

Miss Hastings was one of the most pitiable cases that has come to the attention of the city officers. She had reached the point where it was impossible for her to live without daily potions of the deadly drug and she resorted to nearly any means to secure it. The method she employed to cure herself is not known, but the officers believe she is now entirely free of the desire to use the stuff.

CONSCIENCE THE VICTOR.

Man Gives Self Up to Police, Saying He Shot Another—No Record of the Crime.

"You've been looking for me for nearly a year and I am tired of dodging the police. I shot a man and am ready to give myself up."

Haggard and worn from mental and physical stress, Walter Luschner, a painter, 25 years old, made this declaration when he walked into the Central Police Station yesterday morning. He said he had shot John Brant of No. 914 San Pedro street October 31, last year, as the result of a quarrel over a girl.

"After I shot him I fled," he told the police. "I went to the Mojave desert and got a job. I was soon discharged because I could not keep my mind on the work. I was thinking all the time of my crime. Every man who approached me looked like an officer. I suffered great mental torture and at last I decided to surrender."

As a matter of fact the police have no record of the man's alleged crime and his worry was useless. Inasmuch as he has confessed, however, he will be prosecuted.

CATHOLIC PICNIC.

Date of Annual Reunion is August Fifteenth—the Place to be Announced Within Ten Days.

The 1915 Catholic Reunion Picnic will be held Saturday, August 15. This date was selected last night at a meeting of the committee on arrangements. STORE'S FIFTY YEARS.

M. A. Newmark & Co., will Celebrate Anniversary Next Saturday at Barbecue Picnic.

Several hundred employees of the wholesale grocery house of M. A. Newmark & Co., and members of their families will celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the original Newmark concern at a barbecue picnic next Saturday at the Universal City grounds. The programme of the day will include, besides the feast, music and dancing and athletic games.

The original store was established by Harris Newmark partly as the result of a challenge made to him by a competitor in another commercial line. Mr. Newmark hastily telegraphed to San Francisco for a stock and opened a rival store June 21, 1865, which finally developed into the present well-known wholesale house, one of the oldest commercial concerns of importance in Los Angeles. Of the little group who opened the first store, Mr. Newmark and M. A. Newmark, president of the company, still survive.

PREPARING FOR BIG MEETINGS.

STATE PRESIDENT AND HELPERS ARRANGE FOR CHRISTIAN CHURCH GATHERINGS.

Mrs. Annie Paul Cason, State president of the Southern California Christian Woman's Board of Missions, and her officers and committees, are busy making plans for the State and international conventions of the Christian church which will meet in Los Angeles July 16-25.

The State convention, which will precede the international gathering, will be held in the small auditorium of the Bible Institute. The programme will consist of reports of the year's work and two addresses by women of note. Miss Allena Grafton of Indianapolis, who has charge of the missionary work among the young women of the Christian churches of America, a daughter of one of the leading pastors of Indianapolis and a charming young woman, will deliver an address at the morning session. Miss Kate Miller, a missionary who is just returning from China to visit her home in Louisville, will tell of her work in the foreign field.

Mrs. Annie P. Cason,

State president of the Southern California Christian Woman's Board of Missions, who is taking an active part in making arrangements for entertaining the State and international conventions of the Christian Church.

Another great meeting will be held on the 19th inst. in the main auditorium of the institute, when reports will be made of the world-wide work accomplished by the organization. This meeting will be presided over by Mrs. Anna R. Atwater, international president from Indianapolis. There will be addresses by Mrs. J. McDaniel Stearns, Mrs. Effie Cunningham and others. Emory Ross, a missionary at Liberia, Africa, who is home to visit his mother and take back a bride, will speak on this day. Missionaries from other countries will be present.

Members of the State Board of Southern California are planning a reception and banquet in honor of the visiting friends.

VIADUCT BOOSTERS.

Association is Formed to Urge Construction of Six Proposed Crossings Over the River.

To encourage the construction of the six proposed viaducts over the river and railroad tracks, the Los Angeles City and County Viaduct Association was formed last night with C. B. McClure president and G. C. Metcalf secretary. The association purposes to go throughout the county and instill an interest in the projects which will cost about $4,500,000.

R. P. Benton is chairman of the Executive Committee of five which yesterday appointed a Propaganda Committee of twenty prominent residents o fthe city and county who will boost the proposed viaducts.

Every family should be provided with a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhea Remedy at this season of the year.—[Advertisement.

Dumbfounding.

NICKEL TOLL CURBS SPEECH.

MONEY TALKS NOW ON ERSTWHILE FREE TELEPHONES.

Installation of Slot Instruments Checks Wagging of Tongues and Gives Exchange Operators a Rest. Paralysis of Vocal Cords Seems to Come with Sight of New Device.

Free speech, telephonically speaking, is at an end in Los Angeles, for speaking, telephonically, has gone on a cash basis.

The coming of July not only ushers in the dog days, but it has brought the dog-goned cash register to the mouth of every telephone transmitter in the corner drug store, the friendly bank and other palladiums of priceless conversation.

Thousands of persons have been struck dumb in an instant by the change.

Instead of the shiny little speech-inviting desk instrument that smiled its tongue-loosening invitation from pharmacy and bank counters and in dry goods and department stores and theater lobbies, there now stands a grim-visaged object shaped like a gum-vending machine, bearing conspicuously on its front the information that a wag of the tongue into the box will cost 5 cents.

Furthermore, it is set forth in a few printed words that the nickel must be deposited before the wagging can begin.

Speech also may be had for 10 cents and for 25 cents, but this higher line of talk has to do with the suburbs and long-distance calls. The nickel toll is for city connections.

At the back of the instrument is an aperture for the admission of the Democratic party's war tax of 1 cent, which is tacked onto all long-distance calls, so, you see, Uncle Sam, one of our early exponents of free speech, has his hand in this latest device for the discouragement of chin music. The attention of Mr. Bryan should be called to this on his coming visit to California.

Under the telephone rate ordinance recently adopted by the City Council, the time-honored institution of free telephones went out of existence on July 1, but the telephone companies were unable to install by that date all the necessary pay instruments, and even now some daily patrons of the free-talk circuit are able, here and there, to find an instrument of the old non-payment type.

Within a few days, however, the lid will be on tight and thenceforth money only will talk, thus putting Los Angeles in a class with New York, Chicago and other large cities, where the toll system has been in vogue for many years.

It is amusing to observe the alacrity with which former patrons of the copper circuit discover, on approaching a pay telephone, that they have nothing worth talking about. The "use-me-if-you-dare" aspect of the slot machines seems to paralyze vocal cords, and the familiar procession to the telephone developes into a wide detour, for no one seems to wish to be caught with the frank admission that a call is not worth a nickel.

Telephones that once were besieged by a never-ending stream are deserted under the new plan, and a rvolution has been wrought at the telephone exchanges, where the work of the operators has been reduced greatly.

Just what effect this change will have on the business of some stores—principally the pharmacies—remains to be seen. In some of these places six or eight telephones were provided for the free use of the public. Pay instruments now supplant these, and the avalanche of conversationalists is melting away.

There seems to be no free loophole for the talker for talk's sake. This class either will have to dig up a jitney or take one.

WINE GROWERS COMING.

Large Delegation of American Association to Visit Los Angeles this Month.

The Southern California Grape Protective Association will give a banquet to a big delegation of members of the American Wine Growers' Association the 17th inst. at the Alexandria.

The visiting vineyardists will be in Los Angeles a few days en route to the expositions, and to the International Congress of Viticulture at San Francisco.

During the stay of the delegates in Los Angeles they will be taken by auto to some of the vineyards in this vicinity and to other sites of which the Southland is proud.

WOOLWICH ARSENAL BUSY.

Workmen from All Ranks are Doing as Good Service for the Empire as the Men at the Front.

[London Chronicle:] Never in the history of the empire's great military storehouse have such scenes been witnessed as those now taking place at the Woolwich arsenal and dockyard.

Thousands of men are working night and day. Toilers of Jew, Gentile, Gypsy, Celt and Saxon blood are here, with varied vernacular, wit, humor and pathos. Kipling and Jacobs, Begbie and Wells would be inspired by the midnight mess in the great hall, so reminiscent of Rembrandt at his best.

There are literary men, musicians and philosophers glad to be numbered for the first time among the "horny-handed" sons of manual labor. One can hear Marx and Spinoza, Beethoven and Shelley discussed by laborers.

When one sees Woolwich from within one learns with pride of Kitchener's letter to the yardsmen, to the effect that by working seven days a week they are doing almost as great service for their country as those actually at the front.

Really wonderful is the way in which the millions of utensils are separately examined as they arrive from the manufacturers. The taxpayer would be amazed and pleased at the way his interests are protected by Col. Lambert and his vigilant military and civil staffs.

Old inhabitants would not know the dockyard today. Every dock is filled in and spacious buildings are erected where once ships were born to plow the world-wide seas. But great reforms are still needed, and when the war is ended, without doubt, Woolwich Dockyard will be entirely reconstructed, so far as its roads are concerned.

The question all are asking is, "Can Woolwich return to her old ways?" And the answer is "No." This war has awakened the nation to soberer ways, and the social side of Woolwich—always good from the days when Dr. Gilbert Slater, now principal of Ruskin College, was Mayor—will need still more its progressive policy, in view of the additional thousands who have come to stay in the great arsenal and dockyard center.

STRAWS TELLING HOW WIND BLOWS.

GLEANINGS FROM LOS ANGELES AND SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA DEVELOPMENT FIELDS.

June was a busy month for the Los Angeles Investment Company, which reports having sold many homes. The paving of Vermont avenue from Slauson to Manchester is said to be stimulating activity in the company's Roger Park tract, which, in common with much of the southwest, will be greatly benefited by the improvement. New College tract homes and lots are also in considerable demand.

The Braly-Janss Company reports several new homes under construction in its Brentwood Park tract and plans under way for others. The company has introduced a policy of giving liberal discounts to builders.

Twenty-two new steel passenger coaches of the latest type will be placed in service on the Ramona-Covina division of the Pacific Electric Railway in the near future, according to representatives of the Janss Investment Company. The company, on account of its interests in the Ramona-Wilmar district, has been working for some time to have better cars and a better schedule on the line in question.

It is reported that the Pacific Electric Railway will construct a large freight depot in the industrial district of Culver City. The growth of the Short Line town, it is declared, makes such a building practically a necessity.

An important event of the week in realty circles will be the auctioning off of all unsold lots of the original subdivision of Venice. Abbott Kinney, "father" of the popular resort, announces that the sale will be a regular "clean-up" affair.

SALES AND CONTRACTS.

Realty and Building Concern Reports Several Transfers of Residence Property.

The Cooper-Pyle-Clopine Company reports sales as follows: House at No. 1048 South Oxford boulevard, for Laura H. Carter to Emma Bush, $7500; 60x150 feet west side of Serrano, between Third and Fourth, for the Fifty Associates to Effie Stiteley, $3300; nine-room house at No. 515 South Van Ness avenue, for Mildred E. Cooper to W. Brown, $9000; for Frances E. Burton to Louise Heidt, Elmore apartments, containing eighteen suites, at No. 1319 South Hoover street, $30,000; seven-room house and two and one-half acres on Washington street, Montebello, for Mrs. Samuelson to Paul Neigenfind, $2700; eight-room house at No. 2320 Sixth avenue, through R. M. Bishop, to Mrs. Mary Reed J. Beville, $6850; ten-room house, including furniture, on Wellington road, La Fayette Square, for Louise Heidt to Mary Carroll Thompson, $22,000.

The same company reports having secured contracts to build the following houses: Seven-room house at Venice for Mrs. Adelaide C. Davis, $3000; bungalow for L. C. Miller on Tamarind avenue, Hollywood, $3500; two-story flat building for Albert G. Perry, west side Catalina street, between Wilshire and Seventh, $12,000; ten-room house on Camino Palermo, near Franklin street, Hollywood, for Oscar C. Apfel, $9000; four houses of ten rooms each for S. M. Cooper, on Westmoreland avenue, between Wilshire and Seventh street. The company has just started two houses on Serrano, near Fourth, one for an investment and one for Ella I. Cooper.

WITH THE BUILDERS.

Many New Flat Projects in Various Parts of the City—Fine Apartments for West Side.

Work is to be started this week on a three-story apartment-house projected by R. H. Arnold of the Alta Planing Mill Company, at Ninth and Valencia streets. The building will be 110x120 feet in size and will contain over 100 rooms. It will be of frame construction, with plastered exterior walls.

Building permits were issued to C. H. Thompson during the past week for an eighteen-room flat to be erected at No. 500 South Hobart boulevard, and a ten-room flat to be built at No. 3966 West Fifth street. Albert G. Perry is about to start a flat at No. 741 South Catalina street. A. Kirchgraber has had plans prepared for a flat on Fourth street near Bixel.

Construction will be begun this week on a flat for Esther Anderson at No. 2929 Kenwood avenue. W. H. Perry has had plans drawn for a flat at No. 220 North Avenue Twenty-two. The contract has been let for a flat projected by W. W. Garvin at No. 807 Mallard street. Samuel Haller is about to start a flat at No. 1715 Sunset boulevard. W. F. Risk has received a permit for a flat at No. 607 Heliotrope drive.

OMAHA MAN TO BUILD MANSION.

Nebraska Capitalist Buys Riverside Hill Site—Elks Acquire Valuable Corner Holding.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

RIVERSIDE, July 3.—One of the biggest realty deals closed here in months was consummated this week with the sale by the Chase Nursery Company to James A. Langan of Omaha, of the property known as Victoria Hill, overlooking the Victoria golf links. Mr. Langan is said to have paid $40,000 cash for the twenty-two acre site, and is having plans prepared for a $50,000 residence, which will be erected at the summit of the hill. The property was planted to oranges by the Chase interests in 1902 and a large sum has been expended in beautifying the grounds.

Deeds passed this week transferring from the Woman's Clubhouse Association to Riverside Lodge, No. 643, B.P.O. Elks, the attractive property at the corner of Eleventh and Main streets, opposite the county Courthouse. The building will be remodeled for the purposes of the lodge, which has financed the purchase by the issuance of $25,000 bonds.

TRADES FOR RANCH.

Monrovia Capitalist and Horse Fancier Exchanges Fine Citrus Grove for Cattle and Alfalfa land.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

MONROVIA, July 3.—One of the biggest realty deals of the month was announced today, in the exchange of the C. C. West orange grove in North Arcadia for the cattle and alfalfa ranch owned by the Farmlands Investment Company of Pasadena. The West property, highly improved and containing sixteen acres of oranges, is one of the most valuable citrus holdings in this section. Although the consideration was not given out, it is understood that the total figures will go well over $75,000.

Mr. West is known throughout Southern California for having won seven times in succession first honors in the annual Pasadena Tournament of Roses chariot race. He owned and drove the horses that came first under the wire.

San Francisco Dairy Market.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, July 3.—Butter, fresh extras, 26½.

COMMERCIAL.

Alexander apples will be in Los Angeles after the holiday is over and will sell in four-tier boxes at $2.25. An excellent grade of apple is assured the buying public from all reports and the trade expect to dispose of the shipments as fast as they come in. Cantaloupes in jumbo crates are now selling at $1.50 and watermelons are down to a cent a pound for good stock. Clingstone peaches were again in the market but were more expensive, the trade having to pay $1.35 a lug box. Currants continue to be oeffred to the public at lower prices and as the canning season for the red berries is over prices may be expected to decline still further. A number of changes were noticed in the green vegetable list and the general tone of prices was on a lower level. Wax beans were quoted at 5 cents a pound and the green variety sold for 4 and 4½ cents a pound. Green-top celery was sold for 40 cents a dozen and in crates at $2. The only sweet potatoes in the city at present are the yellow spuds and they are bringing from 6½ to 7 cents a pound. Poultry quotations underwent a few changes yesterday and the revised list places broilers, fryers and roasters at 17 cents a pound, ducks and geese at 11, old cocks at 9, hens at 11 and 15, and turkeys at 14 and 16 cents per pound.

The largest wholesale houses will not be open after 9 o'clock tomorrow morning, and some concerns will not put down their shutters at all. On account of the closing of the Produce Exchange yesterday, egg and butter prices did not change from those of the previous day. Receipts of eggs were a trifle larger and totaled 356 cases while butter receipts were over double with 68,700 pounds reported coming into Los Angeles on the last day of the week. Arrivals of cheese were 7000 and receipts of potatoes and beans were 443 and 9 sacks respectively. Fruit receipts were considerable and as recorded were 375 boxes of apples, 341 lugs of plums, 510 boxes of peaches. Melon receipts remained large and nine cars of cantaloupes and seven cars of watermelons comprised the total amount. Seventy sacks of sweet potatoes and 662 lugs of tomatoes also came in.

NOTE—In the above tabulation of tides the daily tides are given in the order of their occurrence, commencing with the early morning tide in the left-hand tide column, and the succeeding tides as they occur. On some days but three tides occur, the fourth tide occurring on the following morning. The first line gives the hour, the second the height in feet. Comparison will show high and low tides.

PORT ITEMS.

The torpedo-boat destroyers Whipple, Hull and Farragut sailed today for San Francisco on the annual cruise with the Southern California members of the State naval militia. The Hull will pick up the Santa Barbara members. The 150 men will be transfered to the U. S. S. Marblehead for the annual target practice. They will return July 17. Shore leave will be given to see the exposition.

The new U. S. tank steamer Kanawha, which has been here for a week loading a cargo of 65,000 barrels of fuel oil at the Standard station sailed on a cruise today for standardizing tests in the Santa Barbara channel with a naval board in charge. The steamer will call at San Diego and proceed to New York, via Panama.

Grain.

DOWNWARD SWING IN WHEAT PIT.

BUYERS HEDGE TO ANTICIPATE NEW CROP ARRIVAL.

Favorable Weather and Reports Tend to Ease off the Corn Market, While Oats Follow the Action of Other Grain—Provisions Average Somewhat Lower.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHICAGO, July 3.—Hedging on a somewhat broad scale to anticipate liberal new crop arrivals expected by Tuesday gave a downward swing to the wheat market here. Prices closed heavy at 1 to 2⅜ under last night. Corn suffered a loss of ⅛ to ⅝@¾ net, and oats of ⅛ to ⅝@¾. The finish in provisions ranged from 12½ decline to a rise of 2½. Favoracle weather and crop reports tended to ease off the corn market. Oats followed the action of other grain. Provisions averaged lower with hogs and grain.

small, has been steadily, if slowly, improving. A 700-acre tract at Corona was bought week before last by a Los Angeles syndicate for immediate development into one of the largest solidly-planted citrus tracts in the world. The consideration was in cash. A large cash consideration was then paid by a syndicate for frontage on Hill street north of Fourth. Several sales were recorded in Southwest Los Angeles, these including transfers of two large and valuable corners and the sale of numerous lots and bungalows in the Los Angeles Investment Company's tracts. Antelope Valley sales, amounting in one week to $130,000, were next reported. Several apartment-houses and hotels were leased in the period of a few days. The steady demand for West and Northwest Los Angeles residence sites and homes was made apparent by sales reports from many offices.

Last week the largest deal was the exchange of the Black Building at Fourth and Hill for a famous Colorado ranch, the valuation being given at $900,000 on each side. A transaction involving property with a total value of over $500,000, as well as a large cash figure, was represented in the transfer of the modern Ivins Apartment Hotel at Tenth and Figueroa streets for the old "Miramar" homestead of the late Senator Jones at Santa Monica. Among other deals of the week were sales of beach frontage at Santa Monica aggregating several hundred feet.

There is no disputing the fact that men with large capital are coming out of hiding. If such manifestations of renewed investment activity as those of the past few weeks continue without interruption, it will not be long until investors generally will be taking courage. The small investors almost always take their cue from the larger operators in times of recovery from any financial or business stringency. One thing is sure: If every potential investor, large and small, who is now foolishly keeping his money in storage were to get over his and inertia, prosperity of the Los Angeles variety could stored in a month.

TILDEN FALLS IN ROUND OF PLAY AT SEATTLE.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SEATTLE (Wash.) July 3.—Jack of San Francisco, former holder of the California and Pacific Northwestern golf championships, won the annual Potlatch championship here today by defeating George Tilden of Seattle 6 up and 5 to play. At the end of the morning round, Neville led his opponent 9 up, but in the afternoon Tilden more than held his own.

Miss Agnes Ford of Seattle won the women's championship in the morning, defeating Mrs. I. M. Wheeler of Butte, Mont., on the twentieth hole.

BULL FINCH GOES EAST.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

WHITTIER, July 2.—Whittier College may lose permanently Olin Finch, considered one of the best football men that has donned togs in Southern California. Finch left this week for his home, North Loop, Neb., and may not return to enter school this fall. On the other hand, Finch may return and bring with him a group of friends who will add materially to the strength of the new football team for the 1915 season. Finch was a star in the seasons of 1912 and 1914, with an off year in the interim. He is entitled to play one more season and it is hoped that he may show up here in September for work with his old time fire.

WHITE SHADES FREDDIE WELSH.

LIGHTWEIGHT CHAMPION HOLDS ON TIGHT.

Neither Boxer Scores Anything Like a Knockdown—Chicago Boy Outpoints Englishman in Seven Rounds—Latter has Advantage in Three—Freddie in Distress.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, July 3.—Charley White of Chicago to all intents and purposes won the lightweight championship of the world from Freddie Welsh of England at the Brighton Beach Athletic Club, Brighton Beach, tonight. The only thing that prevented the title passing from Welsh to White was the law of this State, which prohibits the referee from giving a decision. White earned the honors of the boxing in seven out of ten rounds. Welsh had a clear advantage in the fifth, sixth and seventh sessions.

Neither lad scored a knockdown or anything approaching it. White was unable to land his knock-out punch because of Welsh's clever defense and ring generalship three times—once in the fourth round, once in the eighth session and once in the ninth session.

White so clearly outfought Welsh and had him in distress with a fusillade of left and right hooks to the body that the champion was forced to hold on to save himself. Several times Welsh pinned White's arms to his sides, thus preventing him from striking a blow when a clear-cut victory was within reach of the Chicago fighter. Time and again White tried to pull away from the encycling arms of Welsh in order to land a swing.

During the fifth, sixth and seventh rounds White was slow. He was saving his strength for the final rounds and for an effective punch. During these rounds Welsh continuously stabbed White in the nose until he had him bleeding.

At the finish White was the stronger and, had the bout been a twenty or twenty-five-round affair, the indications pointed to a decisive victory for White. The body blows that Welsh received, supplemented by occasional right crosses to the face, made the champion puff and blow from distress. Welsh was clever with his footwork and ducking, and escaped many a punch by stepping inside White's swings. Welsh jabbed White in the face many times, but his blows lacked steam.

SKATERS ROLL TO VENICE TODAY.

Thirty expert skaters will toe the mark this morning for the start of the thirty-mile roller skating race to Venice and return for the long-distance championship of Southern California. The race is held under the auspices of the Southern California Roller Skaters' Association and handsome prizes are offered for the winners.

The contestants will start the race in the Broadway Rink and after one mile has been covered there they will go down Broadway to Eleventh street, west on Eleventh to Figueroa, south on Figueroa to Washington, and along the Washington boulevard to "The Race Thru the Clouds," Venice. There they turn around and return over the same course to the Broadway Rink, on the floor of which they finish the last two miles.

Walker's time for 150 miles was 1h. 54m. 55s. He made 200 miles in 2h. 33m. 15s.

TRIPLE PLAY DEMONSTRATED.

Scoggins Excitedly Runs the Wrong Way.

Bees Succeed in Trouncing Pa's Angels.

BY HARRY A. WILLIAMS.

Speaking alliteratively, Los Angeles and Salt Lake flashed nine innings of freakish and fantastic baseball on the film, and the Bees won by the fastidious score of 3 to 2.

No stranger sights than some of the things pulled off have been seen here since the last three-ring circus pried up stakes and left town.

TRIPLE PLAY.

Poll Perritt, Zeb and Koerner staged a triple play in the fifth, the first of its species seen here this year. Shinn was called out in the seventh on a fly ball that Zeb did not catch decisively, while great excitement was occasioned in the eighth when a mental typhoon struck J. Lynn Scoggins in the bean while he was running for another guy. Then, that the fans might not lack anything for their money the two teams staged a mob scene in the seventh that was very realistic, while Harry Wolter got "canned" in the same round. The mob scene was occasioned by the question of whether or not Zeb really caught Shinn's fly ball, or was merely putting over an alibi.

In his keen desire to win, Dillon jerked his original line-up out of all resemblance to itself. Before he quit jerking, Pa had nearly everybody playing some position for everybody else.

CHANGING 'EM.

He started with Slim in the box, allowed Perritt to give a fine exhibition in between and finished with Bill Burns dispensing the pill to the visiting batters. Maggert was allowed to hit for another guy, and Pa himself did the same thing, as well as playing first base. Scoggins ran for somebody, although he ran in the wrong direction, while Buemiller played center field and third base and Koerner spraddled himself all the way from first base to center field. Pa has one of the most versatile ball teams in the world. It is collapsible and reversible, can be started at either end and yanked around to fit any and all situations.

TENTH AND HOPE

The announcement of the Packard "Twin-Six" has created an unusual sensation.

It is the ONE new car which is discussed by every motor car owner.

At the clubs—the restaurants.

In the garages—on the street.

NOTICE IT YOURSELF.

The Packard "Twin-Six" is the one universal topic of conversation.

An interest is shown beyond that naturally to be expected because of its novelty and price.

And why?

BECAUSE THE MOTOR PUBLIC KNOWS THE "TWIN-SIX" IS THE ULTIMATE ANSWER, AND THAT WHEN BUILT BY PACKARD, IT MUST NECESSARILY REVISE ALL IDEAS OF MOTOR CAR SUFFICIENCY.

The 1-25 $2600 The 1-35 $2950

MILITARY ROADS TO BE DISCUSSED.

LOCAL AUTO CLUB OFFICIALS TO LEAD WAY TO THE GRAND CANYON.

Officials of the Automobile Club of Southern California will lead a delegation eastward to the Grand Canyon July 11, to attend the opening of the convention of the National Old Trails Highway Association.

This convention, which will be called to order July 15, is one of the most important road meetings called in the United States this year.

Delegates will attend from every State in the Union, and the majority of them are planning to trek into Southern California by way of Needles after the meeting has adjourned. Over the route which will be followed, the Auto Club has placed the famous sign-posting system which by the end of this month will stretch across the continent from Kansas City to the Pacific Coast.

At the convention, according to Secretary Mitchell of the Auto Club, many matters of national importance will be discussed. Among these will be the plan for national aid in building military highways from the Atlantic sea-board to California.

All motorists who wish to attend the convention should secure credentials and reservations at once at the club headquarters, No. 1344 South Figueroa street. Credentials are positively necessary for admission. All motorists are invited by the governing board to attend.

The cabriolet is the second Maxwell car Miss Eyton has owned. She has motored all over Southern California and has never even considered engaging a chauffeur.

IN MAKE-UP.

A novel "stunt" was introduced recently by one of the eastern dealers in advertising the Cole eight-cylinder car. A typical country man, accompanied by his wife and small son, masquerading under the name of the "Darn Family," appeared in public places distributing advertising literature. By reason of their "backwoods" costumes a crowd continually followed them.

Motorists of Santa Ynez.

AUTOMOBILES VIE WITH THE INCEVILLE INDIANS.

MOST everyone has heard of Inceville, the moving picture camp in Santa Ynez Canyon. It is one of the largest of the twenty-three studios which are located in and around Los Angeles. Inceville is noted for cowpunchers, Indians, horses and automobiles. The machines are owned by the players, who drive to and from the mountain producing headquarters of the New York Motion Picture Corporation, which is under the general management of Thomas H. Ince.

Because of the six-mile trip from Santa Monica to the movie headquarters, this has become one of the large automobile-owning movie families. There are more Fords owned by Incevillians than any other studio. There are just as many high-priced cars driven from here also.

Manager Thomas H. Ince owns and drives two Pathfinders. One is a beautiful lavender limousine, which has attracted much attention on Broadway, and in fact everywhere it has made its appearance. The other machine is a big touring car.

Raymond B. West, one of the youngest directors in the game, owns a handsome gray Stutz five-passenger. But he is not the only one with a big car. J. Barney Sherry, a popular character man, drives a large, fiery-colored American, while dainty Bessie Barriscale is seen always at the wheel of a Hupmobile.

Only this week Director Charles Swickard is showing off in a sixteen Overland. Two leading ladies also have Overlands. They are Clara Williams and Louise Glaum.

Arthur Maude, the English actor, arrives every day at Inceville in a little Buick roadster, and he is always in company with Charles Ray, the young leading man, who drives a shiny blue Buick. J. D. Jennings, chief cameraman, is on time with another Buick roadster, which he has pushed over the canyon roads for many months without having to stop for anything but oil and gas.

Thomas Chatterton speeds along in a Locomobile stripped for racing, with no racing to do.

Thomas Brierly, who designs and erects all the big "sets" for Ince's pictures, goes in search of new ideas in a little Regal. James Fawcett drives a Hupmobile, and Frank Borzage has invested in a blue Chalmers of racy design.

Leona Hutton, one of the leading stars, has two cars, a Ford and a specially built Oakland. The car is painted all cream, even to the lamps, tire covers and switchboard.

No one would ever take Dick Stanton, political director, heavy lead and general actor, for a stage man, because he looks like a doctor when he alights downtown from his black Studebaker coupe. He wears a frock coat and many people often take him for some great physician.

Margaret Thompson, one of the Kay Bee leading women, drives a natty little Mercer to and from her home in Ocean Park. Walter Edwards, who directs big pictures, owns a small Studebaker roadster, which carries him between Santa Monica and Inceville most every day.

The company itself is somewhat of a motor enthusiast, owning about a dozen little busses which it operates between Santa Monica, the end of the car line, and Inceville. In addition there are three big trucks which transport property and scenery and two large touring cars for carrying mobs.

THE PRICE OF THE EIGHT CYLINDER
CADILLAC
WILL BE INCREASED
WITHIN THIRTY DAYS

The following trade letter from the Cadillac Motor Car Company explains itself:

June 27, 1915.
TRADE LETTER.

SUBJECT—THE CADILLAC PRICE.

If the Cadillac price were based on the actual worth of the car in comparison with other cars, the Cadillac would be the highest priced car on the market.

Recent developments have served to indorse and to strengthen the Cadillac Company's position both as to the mechanical features in its car and in the contention that a motor car of the highest grade can be built for around $2000.00.

No Cadillac owner has ever been obliged to suffer an exasperating and humiliating depreciation in the value of his car on account of this company under stress of circumstances being compelled to reduce its price.

The Cadillac price is an honest price. It always has been and it always will be.

It is against the policy of this company to reduce its quality or build to a predetermined price.

The Cadillac factory costs show that the present price must be increased. Notice will be sent you within thirty days.

The Eight-Cylinder Cadillac stands as the most advanced type of motor car and marks the beginning of a new era in automobile engine design and sets an absolutely new standard of car performance and value.

This V-type engine is just one year ahead in point of development over the products of all other American manufacturers, who are now following the Cadillac lead. It is the only American V-type engine which has proven itself.

Look back on automobile history and you will find that the greatest mechanical advances in this industry have been made by the Cadillac Company.

Today's purchaser of a Cadillac secures a value, a satisfaction, and a service which is not obtainable in any other car. More than twelve thousand owners testify that the new Eight is a demonstrated success.

Very truly yours,

An unprecedented increase in the business of the State Motor Vehicle Department is shown in a statement issued by the New Jersey Motor Vehicle Commissioner. From January 1 to May 31 there were 13,247 examinations. During the corresponding period last year the total number of examinations was 8543. For the first five months of this year 68,180 drivers' licenses have been issued. Up to June 1 the receipts of the department amounted to $777,700. The total receipts last year were only $814,535.

She is a great nature lover and at every opportunity drives her King into the mountains of Southern California.

"Getting there is one thing. Getting there without trouble is another. If you want to avoid trouble on the journey go on Diamond Squeegee Tread Tires."

—Mister Squeegee

Some people think the importance of their work is gauged by the noise they make.

Other men do big things without bluster or ostentatious effort.

If the noise he makes over it were the true measure of the importance of a man's work, Grant and Dewey would have been dismal failures.

Diamond Squeegee Tread Tires are going right along about their business, giving wonderful road service and justifying the widespread faith in them, without making it necessary to keep up a constant commotion regarding their merits.

If you wish to know how to secure mileage economy and freedom from tire troubles just ask anybody who is using Diamonds. You will not have to look far.

The gasoline tank, unusually large, is carried directly behind the rear seats, and the two spare wheels are carried on the rear deck. The motor is the regular six-fifty type, developing from fifty to ninety horse power. Light pistons and reciprocating parts, specially relieved pistons and perfect balance of all moving parts make it an unusually successful high speed type of motor, capable of sustaining high speed under the most trying conditions.

GREAT GROWTH FOR FACTORY.

President Earl Armstrong of the Chandler Motor Car Company received word from the Chandler factory last week that the past month broke all records, not only for the Chandler in point of shipments, but for all makers of six-cylinder cars. In four weeks the Chandler company shipped 1282 cars, valued at $1,666,190, an increase of more than 400 per cent. over this time a year ago.

The daily production average has steadily increased since early in April. April 1 the company was shipping forty cars a day. By May 5 this had been increased to fifty a day and three weeks later this went to sixty. Since then the daily average has jumped to ninety and will be 100 in another two weeks.

A large shipment of new roadsters was received last week and eleven carloads of touring cars will arrive in Los Angeles within the next week. The problem of deliveries has been confronting the local agency for weeks and although the factory shipped more than had been allotted the local house, the orders continued to pile up in excess of cars arriving.

Mt. Wilson Trail Reminds of Switzerland.

Says California Cars Stand up Very Well.

Leaves Today for North and will Visit Fair.

C. C. Winningham, director of sales for the Hudson Motor Car Company, bids farewell to Southern California this morning. His next stop is Fresno. From there he goes to Yosemite and Lake Tahoe. Afterwards he will visit at the exposition at San Francisco. From there he will travel up the coast, taking in all the sights from here to Vancouver, then back to his office in Detroit.

Mr. Winningham is mixing pleasure and business on this trip, his first to California since he became one of the heads of the Hudson Motor Car Company.

Few men have more thoroughly enjoyed Southern California or seen more of it than he has in the short week he has been here. He has traveled over the hills of Laguna which go up and down like a giant roller coaster. He has motored up Mount Rubidoux at Riverside, by moonlight. He took the picturesque and tortuous mountain road up to Mt. Wilson. It was thriller and he was as delighted with it as a boy.

Of all the trips, he probably liked the Mt. Wilson run best. No man ever took more pleasure out of looking straight down 2000 feet or more. He gazed in wonderment at the marvelous country that spread out like a fan at each curve the car took as it mounted higher and higher. Mr. Winningham has motored on Pike's Peak, Mt. Washington and among the Alps, but he liked this trip better than any of them. He said it reminded him very much of the Alps.

Nowhere has he seen better roads than in Southern California. "This is the country for the motorist," he said. "I don't see how a man can live in Southern California without having a car.

"Southern California has its share of automobiles. So many retired business men settle here. There is one peculiarity about the automobile industry here, people do not buy cars as often. They make their old cars do. I suppose that is because of the good roads and perfect climate. The wear and tear on cars is not as great as in the East. A machine stands up better in Southern California than anywhere else."

W. R. Humphrey has received a letter from his father, Charles Humphrey, stating that Mr. Humphrey and his party of four had reached Calloway, Neb., in his Ford automobile in thirteen days' travel from Santa Ana. Only one puncture disturbed the tire record. Ninety-nine and a half gallons of gasoline, costing $21, and fourteen quarts of oil were used on the trip.

A bad clutch, carelessly operated, will reduce the life of the rear tires from 20 to 25 per cent.

REGAL

The 1916 Regals Are Ready

And while the prices are unusually low for cars of such a high standard, not a particle of the quality has been sacrificed. To the contrary numerous refinements have been added to these models which embody all the power, sturdiness and attractiveness of design that have made the Regal cars so universally well thought of in the past.

One of the three models is sure to suit your needs exactly. Each has its individual appeal, and all have the dominant characteristics that for more than eight years have been building up the enviable Regal reputation for cars of reliability and abundant power.

Let us demonstrate to you today one of the 1916 Regals.

Light Four $650

It tops the list in the light weight class. It has "stood up" and given service. It is not an experiment but a car that has proven its worth. Completely equipped, electric starting and lighting, down to demountable rims. You'll wonder how it can be produced at the price when you see it.

Standard Four $985

$100 less than last season

No car under $1050 has a more powerful motor, 3¼x5. You'll realize why Regals are noted for power the minute you start. Roomy five-passenger body. Completely equipped in every detail.

DeLuxe Eight $1200

If you want the last word in smoothness and vibrationless power, with every road condition at your mercy, and all at a right price, get this De Luxe Eight. It's unnecessary to pay more—unwise to pay less. Completely equipped—finely finished.

1066 MILES IN TEN DAYS IN A BEARDSLEY ELECTRIC!

—Sets World's Record for Single-charge Mileage

DRIVEN by a woman, a stock model Beardsley Electric has just made the most remarkable endurance run in the history of the Electric pleasure vehicle. In ten consecutive days, and on only ten charges, the car made the astounding record of 1066.4 miles, averaging 106.6 miles per day and per charge.

The ten trips were made over ten different routes on country roads, encountering hills and every condition the gas touring car has to meet. The car returned under its own power to the charging station every night, and during the entire ten days not a single mechanical nor tire adjustment was made.

The car was one of the first Beardsley Electrics built. It had already run over 4000 miles. It carried no extra batteries nor other additional equipment, and was not specially primed for the occasion. Any Beardsley Electric will repeat the performance.

This demonstration, which proves practically and conclusively the wonderful efficiency and conspicuous superiority of the Beardsley Electric, is being continued. Following the ten day test in which the same woman drove the car every day, it was turned over to other owners of Beardsley Electrics, who are now adding to the record already established. The purpose of this is to show that any average driver can get this remarkable mileage out of the Beardsley Electric.

The Car and Its Driver

Premier Power

DEMONSTRATED

The occasion was the pilgrimage of the Shriners to Santa Barbara.

A new 6-50 Premier touring car made the trip. It carried seven passengers, all prominent local business men, top and glass front.

On the state highway this car showed a speed of

65 Miles An Hour

And then to make the demonstration even more convincing the same car with the same load went over the Grand avenue hill on the high.

Wonderful Hill Climbing Ability

Flexibility, high grade material and construction and distinction in design make the new Premier a creation unto itself. Such a car has never before been offered at $2135, f.o.b. Los Angeles.

BENTEL SPEED MANAGER AGAIN.

George R. Bentel of the Pacific Coast Simplex-Mercer agency will have charge of the Mercer racing team in the Tacoma road race today. He left for Tacoma early last week. The Mercers have always made a great showing at Tacoma.

Mr. Bentel made the important announcement just before he left for the East that there would be at least three Mercers in the Corona road race this year should the event be staged over the Circle City course. It was on the Corona course last year that the Mercer, with Eddie Pullen at the wheel, shattered all known records.

LOCAL BRANCH HOUSE ENLARGES.

In order to secure greater storage capacity, the Firestone Tire and Rubber Company has leased the room adjoining its location on South Olive street with the second floor and basement. As soon as alterations can be made the expansion will take place, the company acquiring 5000 additional feet of floor space. A. T. Smith, local branch manager, says if the business continues to grow at its present rate even with the increased room the quarters will be too cramped.

The Firestone branch here receives three carloads of tires from the factory at Akron each week. This means approximately 3500 tires, the number to a car depending on the size of the tires. Storage room is required for from 9000 to 10,000 tires. It requires about thirty days to obtain a carload shipment from the factory after the order is submitted. It is because of this fact that Manager Smith endeavors to carry a ninety-day supply on hand, so that if anything should happen to the railroads during that period he could meet the demand locally.

MOTORCYCLISTS AT SACRAMENTO.

The amateur motorcycle championships of the United States will be run at Sacramento July 21 to 24, and a new Bosch trophy has again been donated. It is a silver trophy, more than two feet high, and will be presented by A. B. Coffman, president of the Federation of American Motorcyclists, to the rider who accomplishes the most consistent performances in the amateur championship races, which are run during the convention of the Federation of American Motorcyclists. The winner of the Bosch trophy receives also the title, "National Amateur Champion of America."

The awarding of the silver trophy is determined by a point system. The winner, second and third-place men in each of the championship events receive a certain number of points each and at the end of the series the rider who has gained the greatest number is entitled to both the trophy and the title of amateur champion.

The Pacific Coast has a large number of experienced and daring riders and many of these riders have a grim determination to keep the 1915 trophy on the Pacific Coast.

HAMLIN TAKES SCRIPPS-BOOTH.

LOCAL DEALER RETURNS FROM EAST WITH REPORT ON AUTO INDUSTRY.

A remarkable feeling of optimism obtains in the automobile industry. All factories are running full time, some day and night. Pleasure car makers are predicting the best year in their history. Spurred on by orders from Europe, the truck manufacturers are running their plants incessantly, employing three shifts. Parts and tool factories are away behind in orders, and many of them are putting up additional buildings to increase their capacity.

This information was brought to Los Angeles by Ralph C. Hamlin, who returned a few days ago from a business trip to Detroit, Cleveland and Syracuse, where he visited the factories of the Scripps-Booth, Rauch & Lang and Franklin automobile companies, the three lines he represents.

At Detroit Mr. Hamlin entered into a contract with the Scripps-Booth company to distribute their cars in Southern California. He makes his announcement today. This is the car he has had under contemplation for several weeks, but about which he did not decide until he visited the factory. "I was impressed that the Scripps-Booth is the light, low-price, economical car I want," he said. "I learned many things about the car and its makers that pleased me."

At the R. & L. plant in Cleveland Mr. Hamlin renewed his contract to act as dealer for another year.

TWELVE MOTOR OLD NUMBER.

Ten years to build a twelve-cylinder motor. That is the history of the Highway Twelve recently announced by the National Motor Company of Indianapolis. In 1905 the National factory built and sold the first six-cylinder cars. At that time the first step was made toward "continuous power," which is the advantage of the twelve. The twelve is born of the six, and in six-cylinder motors automobile engineers made the first step toward the overlapping of impulses.

The National company has an enviable reputation as motor builders, for, in addition to the distinction of building America's first six-cylinder motor, the National built the famous "forty" motor, which still holds the title of world's stock-car champion.

STEAM ENGINE MOTOR EFFECT.

"Steam pushes and gasoline explodes. Therein is where lies the difference between the steam engine and the gasoline motor. It long has been the ambition of automobile makers to learn the way to make gasoline push. They have sought for a power that would flow instead of throb, a power that might be controlled with the utmost flexibility that would not rack the machinery by which it was created.

It is in the twelve-cylinder motor this power has been found, according to Manager Reeve Gartzmann of Hawley, King & Co., distributors for National automobiles, which this year will include a twelve in their line. In the National "12," Mr. Gartzmann says, the twelve cylinders operate on one crankshaft, and there is a continuous overlapping of impulses, so that the steam effect at last is obtained by means of a gasoline motor, for the first time in history.

The new car has been named the National Highway "12," and the smaller brother, the six-cylinder car, is called the Highway "6." This is done by the National company in an effort to popularize long-distance touring.

EIGHT WINS.

In a recent publicity run under the auspices of the Harrisburg Motor Club of Harrisburg, Pa., from that city to Pittsburgh, the Cole eight was the only car entered which pulled every hill on high gear, and took every turn, rut and water break without shifting to low or intermediate. The eight finished with a perfect score.

VISITORS.

E. E. Wiseman and Dr. Charles Thomas of El Paso, Tex., who conduct the Tri-State Motor Company, dealers in Firestone products, were callers at the local branch during the week. "Firestone" Smith also entertained Perry Gavin, the San Diego dealer who came up to hasten his shipments of supplies.

BELGIAN BODY DESIGN LATEST STUTZ FEATU

THE arrival of the first carload of new Stutz models has created a great deal of interest. There has been considerable speculation as to just what Stutz would bring out for the coming year.

Those who have been expecting something radical in the new Stutz will not be altogether disappointed, for the new cars embody a radical improvement in body lines. The famous Belgian design has been followed to a marked extent and the lines of the new Stutz show individuality and character unknown on the American market today. The Stutz has always appealed to the autoist wanting something distinctive, and this new car will be a more forcible appeal to this class than ever before.

There will be very little change in the chassis for the coming season; the Wisconsin motor will be retained, and a slight change in the design of the camshaft has made the motor more flexible and quieter. The rest of the chassis will be practically the same. The springs are more flexible, and the cars easier riding. Bosch magneto, Stromberg carburetor, Hartford automatic shock absorbers and Remy lighting and starting system will be retained for the third consecutive year.

[illegible], Los Angeles branch [illegible] for the Chevrolet Motor [illegible], left on Tuesday for a trip [illegible] factory. He went by the way [illegible] Francisco, where he stopped off only long enough to familiarize himself with the wants of that office and that of the northwest district.

Stanley Smith, who has been making an extensive tour with his bride, will return next week. He has been along the east side of the Sierras, through the Yosemite and Lake Tahoe country, and will be able to outline some of the most delightful vacation tours when he returns. The young bride and groom left here three weeks ago in Smith's new Premier roadster, which was being driven on its first trip.

Capt. H. D. Ryus, head of the local Oldsmobile agency, left yesterday for the factory, intending to be away from Los Angeles about three weeks trying to hurry the shipment of the first Oldsmobile eight-cylinder models.

Harry A. Lozier, whose recent announcement that he would re-enter the motor car field as a manufacturer created widespread interest, is ready with some preliminary information concerning his new car which will very soon be on the market. Mr. Lozier's new undertaking is a twelve-cylinder car, the list price of which is to be $1750. The name selected temporarily is the "H.A.L." and this may or may not be adopted permanently. The "H.A.L." in design, type of motor, lines and weight represents Lozier's own ideas of the latest construction and the best practices in the light of present development and he states that his new car will make its claim for recognition on quality and strength as well as design and type.

All speedometer installations records have been broken by the California Sales Company, the largest exclusive dealers in Stewart-Warner products on the Pacific Coast. Since the first announcement of the special offer to trade the highest grade Stewart and Warner magnetic instruments for old instruments, the service station on East Tenth street has been flooded with cars. It was necessary to double the mechanical force. On account of the popularity of the special offer it has been decided to permit it to remain in effect another week. In addition to speedometers this company is also making special offers on the Stewart vacuum tanks and the new Stewart warning signal.

INCREASE IN MOTOR SALES.

While sales of automobiles at home have been phenomenal this season, exceeding expectations of the manufacturers and breaking all previous records in the history of the industry, the foreign sales, although relatively small by comparison, have increased in great proportion, being more than 68 per cent. greater for the ten months ending April, 1915, than in the corresponding period a year ago.

So far this year the exports have increased at a rate of more than $1,000,000 a month. In April last, 2267 commercial cars, valued at $5,240,481 and 3078 passenger cars, valued at $2,804,741 were exported, making a total of $8,045,222 for the month. This compares with a total of $2,833,154 in April, 1914.

During the ten months ended with April there was exported 8580 commercial vehicles, worth $23,977,968, and 14,641 passenger cars, worth $12,356,472, making a total of $36,334,440, as against $21,598,810 for the corresponding ten months a year ago.

The average hide contains fifty-three square feet, and about a hide and a half is consumed in upholstering an average touring car.

[illegible]NERAL MANAGER MAKES [illegible]TARTLING ANNOUNCEMENT

[illegible] WALDEN, general manager of [illegible] Cadillac Motor Car Company and one of the leaders in [illegible], has been in California [illegible] and pleasure visit during [illegible] week.

[illegible] important announcement [illegible] Mr. Waldon while here was [illegible] price of the eight-cylinder [illegible] will be increased within the [illegible] days. The announcement [illegible] at this time only emphasizes [illegible] that it is against the policy of [illegible] to build to a pre-deter[illegible]. In regard to the change, [illegible] said, "The Cadillac price [illegible] price. It always has [illegible] always will be. The Studebaker-Wagner [illegible] system, the Willard storage [illegible], the Remy ignition, and [illegible] carburetor are the [illegible] motor accessories. [illegible] size and strength have [illegible] the floating rear axle, as [illegible] with that of the other [illegible] cars.

[illegible] WITH LIGHT FOUR.

[illegible] Whitman, local sales manager [illegible] cars, has returned from a [illegible] San Diego and placed an agency [illegible] with the Price Motor Car [illegible] for San Diego and Imperial [illegible]. Mr. Whitney made the trip [illegible] light four model and an accurate [illegible] showed an average of [illegible]-four miles per gallon of gasoline [illegible] the trip.

[illegible]NE ADDED BY ANTHONY.

[illegible] brief wire from Earle C. [illegible] at Lansing, Mich., last [illegible] announced that he had [illegible] with the Reo factory [illegible] California distributor for the [illegible] line, with an allotment of [illegible] cars for the coming season. [illegible] one of the most important [illegible] moves of the year in California automobile affairs.

[illegible] fact that Anthony has [illegible] for 1500 cars for the [illegible] season is argued by [illegible] familiar with motor car affairs to mean that especial interest will attach to the forthcoming announcement of the [illegible] line. From the days of [illegible] first single-cylinder Reos, the [illegible] has always borne a reputation [illegible] of the highest sort, and thousands of Reos are already [illegible] in California.

[illegible] the State-wide sales and service system that Earle C. Anthony, Inc., already maintains, the disposal of Anthony's big allotment of Reos should prove an easy matter. The Reo line at present consists of the well-known four-cylinder model and the six-cylinder which was brought out last January.

EIGHTS SOON TO REACH THE CITY.

C. S. Anthony, distributor of Regal cars, reports the arrival of another shipment of light four models. The demand for this model so far this season has greatly exceeded the shipping allotments allowed by the factory to the Southern California territory, but the shipment just received, and others reported en route, will enable this agency to catch up on back orders and take care of a limited number of new orders for prompt delivery on this model.

The new Regal eight cylinder model is en route from the factory and will be on exhibition at the Regal salesroom about July 15.

New Series Models

Belgian Lines

It is with pleasure that we announce a new Stutz, a car embodying entirely new ideas in body construction and carrying lines which show a radical improvement in automobile design and construction. The new models carry an Individuality that stamps the Stutz as the Leading American Automobile.

It is Stutz Construction, Stutz Design and Stutz Worth that has caused panic in the policies of old-time automobile manufacturers. It has forced them to frantically throw on the market an untried, unproven and entirely experimental product in an attempt to retrieve lost prestige. The price of an automobile cannot be materially reduced unless the construction is cheapened in proportion. The price of high-grade steel and constructive material, such as used in building Stutz Cars, is higher today than it was one year ago. Multiple cylinders necessitates high motor speed, and high motor speed produces crystallization. Multiplication of parts means excessive wear and increase of trouble.

In purchasing an automobile you owe it to yourself to see and thoroughly examine the New Stutz Models. The new Belgian Streamline effects are far in advance of the heavy, cumbersome design in general use today; like comparing a thoroughbred with a plow horse. The Stutz four-cylinder motor has no equal in America today; it is Simple, Economical, Powerful, Flexible and Effective.

The new Special Bulldog, equipped with Fleetwood body, wire wheels, cord tires, etc., together with the new Bearcat, will be on display this week. We invite you to look over our new Models. Deliveries on cars already sold will be made in rotation as the cars are received. Early deliveries can be made on orders placed now.

DODGE BROTHERS
MOTOR CAR

There is no shortage in the general motor car market.

But there is a shortage of Dodge Brothers motor cars.

It is not due to a small production, because the production has been large.

Twenty thousand of these cars have been distributed since January 1st.

This means a production in six months as large as is usually attained in as many years.

And yet there is a waiting list of those who want to be owners in your city.

And there is a similar waiting list in almost every city and almost every town.

You will bear witness that we have made no extravagant claims for the car.

We have merely insisted on its goodness.

And still the car continues to be singled out as one worth waiting for.

OLD TOLL ROAD BECOMES POPULAR MOTOR TRAIL.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

OAKDALE (Cal.) July 2.—The new, short and easy way into Yosemite has been thrown open to the public, with the abolition of the old toll charges over the Big Oak Flat route. The Big Oak Flat way is shorter than other routes into the valley. It is also the easiest grade into the park.

Always the favorite road into the Yosemite, the fact that toll was charged for the use of the Big Oak Flat highway deterred many from entering by that method. While formal transfer of the old toll road has not been made to Tuolumne county, the appraisers appointed by the old toll company and the county have agreed upon a price of $10,000, which is to be paid over July 10. In the meantime, it has been agreed to open the road without toll charges, and dozens of autos are now making the trip daily.

With the opening of this route, and the improvements which have been made on the old highway, the trip into the Yosemite by automobile can easily be made from San Francisco in a day, while the same rule holds good from Sacramento and the south as far as Bakersfield.

From Oakland the road into Oakdale is but ninety-two miles. The journey from this city into the park is eighty-eight miles. With the work done on the highway by the State and by Tuolumne county, the steepest grade over the Big Oak Flat is now but 8 per cent.

Two bad curves around Cascade Hill have also been eliminated, while from Knights Ferry to Chinese the State has completed the major portion of a fine highway.

Service stations are being established along the new highway, so that automobiles running short of oil can be accommodated. Numerous parties for the Yosemite are passing through here daily.

From the south, the road is also to be shortly improved into Oakdale, by the construction of the Salida-Riverbank-Oakdale lateral. The county has already purchased $100,000 worth of highway bonds, the money for which will be utilized in the construction of the lateral. This will connect the Yosemite short road, with the main north and south trunk line, through the State.

At the close of last year the total number of licenses issued in the province of Ontario was 31,700, of which 25,300 were for cars owned in Ontario, and 6400 for outside cars. Up to the present over 30,000 this year's licenses have been taken out by Ontario owners and 3000 by outsiders.

This year the Studebaker announcement is more significant than ever before. It demonstrates more conclusively than ever Studebaker's leadership in the industry. For once again, Studebaker is announcing new cars at prices that completely recast all standards of value in the automobile industry. And never before has a dollar bought so much as it buys in these new Studebakers. They are the best cars in every detail that Studebaker ever built.

But while the prices are remarkably low, Studebaker has made no effort to manufacture a small, low-price car, to compete purely on a price basis.

THE PRICES ARE LOW SOLELY:

1—Because of largely increased volume of production:
2—Unrivaled manufacturing resources:
3—The Studebaker policy of manufacturing our cars complete in our own factories and thus eliminating parts-makers' profits:
4—The greatly increased efficiency resulting from 4 years study and concentration on the manufacture of two chassis:
5—The high percentage of interchangeability of parts in the two chassis.

And Studebaker is merely passing along to buyers of the new cars the FULL benefits of these notable economies. You may question in your own mind the quality of these cars, considering the remarkable reductions in price when compared with our last year's models.

But we simply invite you to make any comparisons you like with last year's cars or with this year's models of other makers to see what resources and manufacturing experience such as Studebaker has at its command can accomplish.

A whole Book of Specifications couldn't begin to convey the impression that your first glimpse of the cars will give—you must see the cars to appreciate them.

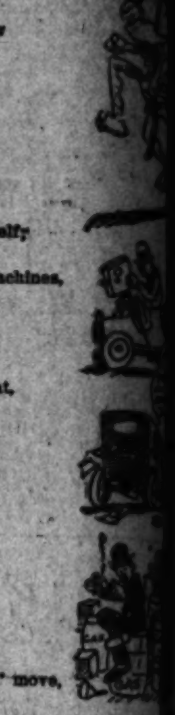
WHAT MAKES THE MOVIES MOVE

BY LEEPSON BOWNES.



Where once the actors trudged on foot,
And weary reached the stage,
They now dash past and travel fast,
For autos are the rage.
The movie star and her motor car
Are very often seen.
Wherever films are being made
There's lots of gasoline.

The stage mechanics loll around
On fine upholstered seats;
No longer do they sweat and toil
With faces red as beets.
The march of progress shows itself;
How speedily Time runs.
They shift the scenes from their machines,
The lucky sons-of-guns.

The boss' car has ninety horse,
The leading man's has fifty;
The camera man's has yellow paint,
And the janitor's is nifty.
The president has eight machines,
And takes his choice each day;
The extra men have limousines
In which to count their pay.

Say, autos cart the actors off
And bring them back again.
They rush them to the sunshine
If at home it starts to rain.
The auto does most everything
That's thrown upon the screen,
The thing that makes the "movies" move,
Is really gasoline.

KATHLYN WILLIAMS HAS VACUUM CUP AUTO VAS

A DAINTY new motor fad, the carrying of flowers in the new vacuum cup vases on the glass doors of closed cars, was inaugurated this week by Miss Kathlyn Williams, the famous picture actress of the Selig studios.

At Nordlinger's last week, Miss Williams was inspecting the new "Fairyland" vases that will cling to any smooth surface by means of the tenacious hold of two little cups of rubber. "Just the thing for carrying in my Packard coupelet," declared Miss Williams, and she bought one of the pretty little vases forthwith.

"I really think it is a clever idea, though perhaps I should not say so," said Miss Williams. "One does not always have flowers to carry in their car, and empty vases are not pretty. Hence I have not carried one of the customary silver vases in my closed Packard.

"With the little 'Fairyland' vase, however, the problem is solved. If you have flowers to carry in your car, it is only a second's work to attach the vase to the window, the lower part of the windshield, or wherever you choose. And when the flowers are faded the vase slips out of sight into one of the pockets in the car. No amount of driving will loosen the hold of the vase, and you can put your flowers just where yo them."

MARY'S FI-FI CLASSY AUTO.

CABRIOLET FINISHED TO MEET REQUIREMENTS OF STAR PICTURE QUEEN.

Mary Pickford, the popular motion-picture star, who has spent the past six months in Southern California, is the possessor of an elegant Maxwell Cabriolet, which she claims is the most beautiful car of its type in the world. Mary's Maxwell necessarily had to possess a certain amount of individuality. She ordered her Cabriolet to come from the factory complete except for its finish, which she desired to choose for herself.

The leather used in the upholstery had to be just the right shade of green—and the soft velvety carpeting for the floor had to be of identically the same color. The entire body, chassis and fenders are a rich cream color, with a green stripe matching the decorations of the interior. The Houk wire wheels are the same color as the body.

The extreme ease with which the Maxwell "25" could be handled appealed so strongly to Miss Pickford that she has taken to driving her Cabriolet as a means of recreation, although she employs an experienced chauffeur to drive and care for her larger cars. She has christened her Maxwell "Fi-Fi."

When Mary left for the East last week she was accompanied by her Maxwell Cabriolet.

UNFILLED ORDERS.

Despite express shipments from the Detroit factory to the Pacific Coast the Master Carburetor Company is unable to meet the demands of the Coast trade. Shipments last week arrived daily at the Los Angeles house, but the demands were such that there are still more than fifty unfilled orders, and more pouring in with every mail as well as many rush orders by wire.

Bender, Plank, Coombs, Morgan, Krause, Dygert, Atkins, Lapp, Livingston, Thomas, Donahue, Houser, Davis, Collins, Baker, McInnes, Barry, Heitmuller, Oldring, Danny Murphy, Lord, Hartsel and Strunk—merely a roll-call of the Athletics which won the American League championship of 1910.

DIFFERENT NAMES.

Look over a Philadelphia box score and note how few of these names appear today. In their place we find unfamiliar ones like Kopf, Malone and Lear.

Danny Murphy was the first to desert to the Feds, which was his prerogative. Bender and Plank followed when Mack refused to meet their demands. These defections removed whatever chance the Athletics might have had for the pennant this year, and Mack sold Collins outright to the White Sox. Soon after that Baker rebelled and went into retirement. It is said that he signed a three-year contract for $7500 when the baseball war started and then the following season came back with a demand for $10,000. Connie refused to stand for it and Baker quit. With the home run baron out of it, the chances of the Athletics making even a respectable showing vanished, and Mack forthwith inaugurated a bargain sale. Coombs, who, although useless as far as any value to the club was concerned, had been carried for two years, was released outright. He later recovered his health and has pitched some winning ball for the Brooklyn Nationals. Pennock was sold to the Boston Red Sox and Bob Shawkey to the New York Americans. Friday Mack just about completed the wreck of his "$100,000 infield" by selling Jack Barry to Boston. Of that famous quartette, Stuffy McInnes alone continues to wave. And Stuffy himself may be on the market for all that we know.

Of the others, Dysert, Houser and Atkins faded without much being said; Donahue and Heitmuller are dead; Morgan drifted to the American Association and thence to the American League; Krause is with Portland and Bris Lord is managing the Mobile team in the Southern Association.

Such is fame and finances.

KNIGHT MOTOR FOR MACHINE.

At last there is to be a popular priced car offered to the American motoring public equipped with a Knight type motor. The new Willys-Knight was formally announced in Los Angeles last Friday night, when Charles Y. Knight, the great American inventor, now a resident of Pasadena, and Joseph H. McDuffie, head of the Willys-Knight department of the great Overland factories, met L. V. Starr, manager, representatives and salesmen of the J. W. Leavitt company's local branch.

While the price of the car was not made known, the details of construction, sales plans, and history of the car, were announced by Mr. McDuffie at the dinner given to the Overland forces.

McDuffie gave the history of the Knight sleeve-valve motor, from its inception in 1903 to its adoption by John N. Willy, and Mr. Knight told the interesting story of his meeting John N. Willys in Egypt, the events leading up to the adoption of the motor and of the secret tests made with a Knight motor in this city for more than a year without anyone except Knight, Willys, McDuffie and the mechanical heads of the Overland factory knowing what was going on.

SALT FISH ON THE INSIDE AND OUT.

ROASTING IS CONSIDERED THE BEST WAY TO COOK TROUT.

Roasted—Clean a small fish, thrust a piece of bacon or pork into the cavity, salt on the outside and impale upon a forked stick, which is then stuck in the ground near the coals and turned occasionally, or the toaster is cut longer and held in the cook's hand. As this can only be done with one fish at a time, it is usual for each camper to roast his own fish. This is considered the best way to cook trout and some other fish as all the juices and flavor are perfectly preserved. It is even better to omit the bacon or pork in trout or other delicate fish in order to preserve the true flavor. This necessitates salting the fish both inside and out. Larger fish may be split down the back and roasted on triple pronged toasters cut from shrubs.

INTEREST IN AUTO DISPLAY.

Interest in The Times Automobile and Floral Show which is to be held early in the fall, is increasing daily. There are inquiries coming into The Times Office every day from eastern manufacturers and dealers in various parts of the country who wish to acquaint themselves with the plans for the coming show which promises to be the greatest automobile show ever held on the Pacific Coast.

Practically all of the 1916 models will be in Los Angeles before the date of The Times show and the displays will be collections of the greatest examples of American motor car manufacture. With the great number of special attractions which will feature The Times show and the central location, in the very heart of the business district, the attendance should break all show records in the West.

Hen Playing Pictures.

top-lays at El Centro and Brawlay with Min when we was down at the mush mellun ranch of Calapatria and when Min she said she read about the race on the Lark by the Cadillac eight when the Lark lost with ease of about time enough to paint a house or take a Turkish bath in China, Min said she wanted a car like that with eight silingders and I said we should be satisfied with all the sillingders we had on our four and six's but Min shes a setting tempterment and she was stuk on that Cadillac and so I never was unakomidating or something so I got on the train and started for Los Angeles to buy a car from Don Lee.

GETS OFF.

when the train stopped at Pomona I got off and called for some grape juice for a stimulants at the drug store and I got back to the de-pot too late and the train was gone and I was like Leon T. Shettler at Maricopia Junxion last year when he got left by the train and all the lokomotive conducters and freight train porters had to laugh at him but there was a crowd over at the corner by the park at Pomona, not Cl-Airmont where they have the Pomonas college but the regular Pomona where they have a lot of oranges in the city limits. They was making some moving pictures.

I saw a swell Jane in the company which I knew and her name was really Jane and I said to her how she was and she said fine and she said hezitate around and we will go in my car and drive a regular race speed and I asked her was her car a fast car and she said sure for a Ford. I said it was alright because she was a lady and I would not punch her for making no kid-ink remark like that but if she was one of those boy actors I would poke her one on the nose, you know me Al.

Then a fellow which looked young like Cap Dillon only not quite so white on the bean came over and said he was the directory and if I wanted know something and I said I wanted to know if he thought he was kidding a half witted guy and he said not that much and I knew that he was not meaning nothing sourkastic so I gave him one of my Murats cigerettes and he said he was the directory the Grass for the University Co. and I said I was pleased to meet him and he said did I want a job and said Jane, the Jane I spoke about already, said I was as funny as a coo-cook entertainer in a cafey where they serve five cent beer for a nichol and the entertainers sing songs nobody wants to hear when they are disturbing the peaceful meal of cod fish or French pastery.

AUTO CLUB FRAT.

I said why should I be a actor? I was modest like that you know me Al and he said never mind and I acted all day digging in a sewer. The pay was 3$'s and I went out to the Stew-dee-o which they call Universe City in Lanky-shimm and I was just going in the gate in the jitney I rented when I saw that nut Grainville and he said as how was Min and the mush melun crops and all my racing cars and I said I was a actor and he said he was sorry for me and then I saw Bob Learned inside with his McFarlan six car and the auto Club sign of Southern California on it and we was like frat brothers in the rah-rah colleges and I said Oh you Bob! Oh my elbow! and he laughed and remembered when we used to see him at the old Grand and I saw Carmine Phillup's and she remembered about Oh my Elbow. Purty soft for me getting in like that Hey Al?

Then I saw Jane again and she took me down to new York street but it is not a street but some dirt between buildings which only got fronts but not no backs or sides. What do you think of that for a fakers skin game and saving the expenses of plumbers Hey al? Harry Edwards was the directory of the L.K.O. company and I saw Billy Richie in his Seymour coat and asked him what was L.K.O. for and he said it was a suggestun for Loafers to Keep Out and I asked him how He got in and he said I should be a sledge hammer with my head. I told him I thought of things too deep for him and he asked if I meant sewer pipes and I said no it was not sewer pipes but something too hard for his head and he said he bet it was bricks.

JONAS WHALE.

When Beverley Griffith said for Mr. Jonas to speak to me about keeping out of the way of the camera men like I had good sense Roy Klafkeys said to get the Whale to help him. I never seen nothing funny in that but every body laughed so I pretended it was a joke and laughed too but that was not nothing funny about it and Jane came up and said I looked like the Grand Canyon and I said why did I and she said my mush was all full of deep wrinkles and I should meet the king and I said if I was a nut to see a king at Universe City I was a hod carry her. Then Hupmobile come up and Herbert Rawlingson got out and they said he was the King of Universe City.

I said hello kink and he never laughed and then I had to get some good nick name for him so I called him Herbie then Herb but he never even looked and some poor fish was taking his pitchers for the rugs galleries or something and if he was a king I am a Earl but not Earls Anthony and the directory assistant Rex Hodge asked Macks Ashes about it and he said I looked perfectly insane to him so I guess its O.K. even if the actors did kid me a little. Then I was introduced to Lillian Peacock and she has a Chandler car and I sat in the car and talked to her about the Phoenix race last year and a fellow of the name of Pink came up with a big Peerless and he was in the Phoenix race and he said it was a good thing I never drove the Hen Special in the race because I would uv got wet and the dobbie mud would have filled up the craks in my face and made me look like a Indiun with tat-twos on his face and I never culd get beer any more.

SUMMER'S HERE.

They was some girls going up the street when the sun was in the west and they was walking east and I was in front but looking back all the time and Jim Crosby hollared Summers Here! I bet he was loking at that picture in The Times what Bill Henry put in about summers here and it was better to look at in the sunshine. Harry Carey came up in a Overland car and said Merry Christmas Prisoners and I said he should shut up and not disturb me when his was looking at Summer. He said Summer but Summer not. He says stuff like that lots uv times. Al and I told him that he was not funny and he said I was a cane actor. That shows hes nutty Al because I have never carried a cane only when I was sick with the room-atism last year. Hey Al?

Al Christie asked me if I wanted a job and I said sure an all I have to do up here is jump out of a All pine tree in the last scene of the picture and it wont be till two days yet when we make scene so I have time to write you this letter frum Mountain Lo here at All Pine tavurn.

When I get back to Los Auneles I wil cume up to The Times offus and get you to meet some of my pals. "Brownie" Vernon who is a leader lady for Directory Charley Giblin's Co. is a swe'l blonde but her father is not the mare of the town where Uncle Tom Mack Carey used to have a-rena and there is a country club where they have only indoor sports. Mare Wall Kamp is got a new car a King and its a eight and when I get back and get my Cadallic eight some class to me with Min in Frisco, hey Al with me being poplar with all the queens even Ella Hall which is queen of the Universe City.

I will mail this down by the P. E. street car and the inclined cableway car from this hotel.

Your Pal Hen.

P.S. The Billy Richie I told you about is not a brother to Willie the Fighting champion. Hen.

P. S. S. O. S. Janes name is Jane Bernoudy and will they have a Phoenix race this year and a Corona Road race. I want to get in the speed you know me Al. Hen.

FIFTEEN ROAD CREWS WORKING.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

REDLANDS, July 3.—The county highway commissioners, who are building the $1,750,000 system of paved highways for the county, now have fifteen crews at work in the county with nearly 600 men having employment. The first road has been completed, from Redlands to Loma Linda, and the day labor gang made record time in the building of it.

The following crews are now at work: East Citrus and Crafton avenues in Redlands; Colton avenue, west of Loma Linda; Loma Linda road between sanatorium and Redlands Junction; La Cadéna drive, between Colton and Riverside; Riverside avenue, between Colton avenue and Rialto; Colton avenue between Colton and Bloomington; Archibald avenue at Cucamonga; Euclid avenue near Chino; Central avenue between Chino and the State highway; Riverside avenue and Highland avenue north of Rialto; Cajon Pass, near Summit; San Bernardino avenue through Rialto; main road in Yucaipa. Two contract jobs are being advertised, Etiwanda avenue and Magnolia avenue in Fontana.

BROILING PROCESS NOT SO DIFFICULT.

COOKING TOO LONG IS COMMON FAULT IN THIS METHOD, SPOILING FLAVOR.

Broiled—Clean and open down the back. Heads and tails and fins of small trout need not be removed. Place in the broiler with a slice of bacon or pork across each half. Do not broil too long or the fish will lose its flavor, dry up and harden. This is a common fault.

America's Greatest "Light Six"

See This Car Before You Buy

If you have in mind spending in the neighborhood of $1500 for a car, find out how much more for your money you can get in the Haynes.

If you have been thinking of putting $2000 or more into a car you will be satisfied with the Haynes, first in performance, second in comfort and lastly in appearance.

Placed alongside of the very highest priced cars, it does not suffer by comparison. And remember, it is made by a company that has had twenty-three years' experience, and is still furnishing repair parts for cars built as long ago as 1899.

See the Haynes and ride in it, test it out—and we will leave it to your own judgment if it is not the biggest buy in the "light six" field.

TORRID RALLY IN EIGHTH GRABS GAME FROM VENICE.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN FRANCISCO, July 3.—An eighth-inning rally, delivered after Roy Hitt had been performing in great shape against the San Franciscans, pulled the session out of the fire for the locals and handed the Tigers a beating today.

San Francisco, threatening all the while, had been shooting wide of the mark up to that closing chapter. They had squeezed around one tally on a walk, a fence hit and a sacrifice fly.

Like thunder out of a clear sky came the rally that broke the Venice team. Schaller grounded to Gleischmann for the first out. Bodie, who has been a weak sister all the week in the hitting line, was walked. Heilman ripped a single in the right spot, over second and out to right center. Ping might have taken third, but he was playing the game safe and waited at second. Downs, on whom much depended, doubled into left, and Bodie scored the run that tied up the session, with Heilman landed on third, waiting for something to happen.

It happened in a hurry. Jones rapped smartly to Risberg, who took the throw for the plate. Heilmann slid under Spencer and was called safe, although the chances are he hasn't touched that rubber yet. Jerry, in the confusion, scooted for third and was tallied as Corhan grounded out to second.

PLENTY.

That two-run lead was more than enough, for in the ninth, the Tigers could do nothing with Reisigl. Gleischmann hit straight at his first-base competitor. Risberg, trying to get out of the way of a pitched ball, hit it to Reisigl and was thrown out at first with no chance to make the bag. Spencer put the sphere to Corhan and the game was over.

Reisigl got away to a poor start, although it wasn't altogether his own fault. Carlisle doubled past first and kept his station as Berger fanned and Wilhoit sent a fly to Corhan. Bayless put the ball through to right and Fitzgerald, in his haste to get his man, made a throw that gave Carlisle the chance to reach the plate.

LONG HOMER.

In the second, Risberg made the circuit on his home run over the right-field fence, the last of the Venice scoring.

Bugs was decidedly shaky in the seventh. Gleischmann doubled to the right-field fence and Risberg fouled out to Schmidt. The element of luck helped the Seals when Spencer smashed one at Corhan that hit Gleischmann. The latter was out on the play and there were two down with a man on first. Hitt's fly to right should have been easy for Fitz. Not only did the San Mateo lad muff the ball, but he followed that up with a heave across the diamond that saw Spencer safely perched on third. Carlisle was purposely walked, and then Reisigl fanned Berger. The score:

NO CHANGES THIS SEASON.

Clarence English of the local King agency returned from the King factory last week with the important news that the price of the King eight would not be lowered and that there would be practically no changes in the present model for the coming season.

$5,000,000 Saved

Yet our late price reduction saves our users about five million dollars this year. And that was our third reduction in two years, totaling 45 per cent.

While we add costly betterments we are reducing your cost. This by new efficiency and multiplied output. We are giving a value in Goodyear tires with which no rival can compete.

Blindfolded Tire Buyers

The Way to the Light

We are fighting your battles as well as ours when we advertise these facts.

Tires are not alike. There are dozens of standards. The fierce competition forces many a compromise.

Two tires may seem almost identical. Yet one may twice outlast the other, and reduce troubles 50 per cent.

How to Judge

Judge tires by the maker. Goodyear standards appeal to every man.

Judge them by known features. Each exclusive Goodyear feature combats a major trouble.

But judge, above all, by records. Not by incidents, not by exceptions. Good luck or mishap affects individual tires. Note that Goodyear tires, after 16 years, far outsell any other. Note how they have held this top place for years. That gives you the broad-view verdict.

By every measure you can use, Goodyear tires are best. Come join their countless friends. Any dealer will supply you.

Features Which Cost Millions

Goodyear Fortified Tires have five great features found in no other tire. They have other features which are rare—hidden features, never missed until the tires meet trouble.

Those Goodyear extras, on this year's output, will cost us $1,635,000. Our 1915 improvements alone will cost us $500,000 yearly.

All this—or nearly all—for things you never see. For things you never miss in other tires until failure shows their lack.

BIG CROWD AT PHILADELPHIA.

Phillies and Braves Break Even for Day.

Southpaw Rixey Wins First Game for Quakers.

Tyler Hands Second Affair to Champions.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

PHILADELPHIA, July 3.—Philadelphia and Boston split even today before the largest crowd of the season, the former winning the first game, 4 to 1, and the visitors the second, 5 to 3.

Each victory was due to the sterling work of "Southpaw" Rixey for Philadelphia in the opener and Tyler for Boston in the closing contest. The scores:

BUFFEDS OVERCOME BIG LEAD, 9 TO 6.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

BALTIMORE, July 3.—Walsh's home run with the bases filled in the opening inning today gave Baltimore a four-run lead. Suggs, however, could not hold Buffalo in check, and the visitors won, 9 to 6. McDonald and Engle also got home runs. Score:

Buffalo, 9; hits, 12; errors, 0.
Baltimore, 6; hits, 9; errors, 4.

Batteries—Krapp and Blair; Suggs, Quinn and Jacklitsch.

REBELS TRIUMPH OVER WHALES, 6-3.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHICAGO, July 3.—Jack Lewis's triple in the eighth inning with the bases filled gave Pittsburgh a 6-to-3 victory over Chicago today. Score:

Pittsburgh, 6; hits, 12; errors, 2.
Chicago, 3; hits, 8; errors, 1.

Batteries—Rogge and Berry; Hendrix and Fischer.

RICKENBACHER LEADS SPEEDERS.

WINS SIOUX CITY RACE WITH LITTLE TROUBLE FROM OTHER RACERS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SIOUX CITY (Iowa) July 3.—Eddie Rickenbacher, one of the favorites, was the winner of the $15,000 300-mile automobile race here today, leading nearly all the way. The victor drove a steady race and averaged 74.7 miles for the distance.

Eddie O'Donnell was a close second, flying across the tape less than two laps behind Rickenbacher.

Tom Alley, a teammate of O'Donnell, captured third money.

Rickenbacher also was the victor in last year's contest.

Dario Resta, who won the Chicago race last Saturday, made a very poor showing, giving out on the twelfth mile. It is said Resta was afraid of the dirt track. Only one accident marked the contest. C. Cox, who took Rawlings's place, ripped the rear of Rickenbacher's wheels on the back stretch and crashed through the fence. At the hospital this evening it was said his condition was serious. His mechanician was only slightly hurt.

Almost 10,000 witnessed the race.

HUPMOBILE
$1195

—a diamond has an intrinsic value that neither changes with the season nor with the pressure of competition.

—with the Hupmobile it is identically the same—jealously has it guarded its well-earned reputation in the motor world—never in any instance risking the sterling name of the Hupmobile for the sake of competition—consequently it is known as the car that will not sell at bargain prices.

—no car that gives as much value—service and satisfaction as the Hupmobile does for $1195—can afford to sell for less than $1195.
—a tremendous increase, however—amounting to fifty per cent over 1915 has made it possible to buy and construct better material for less money—with the result that individual Hupmobile buyers the country over are the beneficiaries.

—selling at $100 less than the popular Model K—the new car, part for part, is worth $200 more than its predecessor.

—the new car with twenty per cent more power assures a pick-up ability that means positive satisfaction—and yet with this additional power it is never-the-less the same economical car on gasoline, oil and tires.

—the real leather upholstering is two inches thicker this year—the seats, soft and comfortable, are a guarantee for comfort—while the underslung rear springs absorb and soften the bumps of the roads.

—to go any farther would be simply to retell the story of a car that never knew an off-year—it is the same well-balanced favorite with a little higher value—and a little less cost.

Fishing on Huntingdon Lake,

The new fisherman's paradise, eighty-six miles east of Fresno in the High Sierras. The lake is five miles long and two miles wide and is thrown open to the public today by the Pacific Light and Power Company, owner of the lake. It has been stocked with trout for three years, nearly 400,000 game fish having been put in it during that time.

Triple Play.

might be a bad day for him. But in this he was mistaken, for in the next eight innings the Angels were able to make but one single off his lame delivery. The way Hunky's became stronger as he went along was a real surprise, it being believed that his right elbow still was in a state of dilapidation as a result of a recent injury, when his case knife slipped and he sprained it.

EXIT SLIM.

Slim Love got by neatly until the third, when the Bees busted through with two runs, tieing the score. Slim, however, continued to flourish until the fifth, when Dillon derricked him following a single and a walk. There did not seem to be anything wrong with Slim's feet yesterday, nor his hands, for that matter. It was just a general breakdown. Shinn opened the fifth with a clean single to center, and then Slim passed Orr. Slim himself then passed from the stage of action, wiping his nose reflectively as is his habit in moments of great embarrassment. Perritt then pranced into the arena. Thus the stage was set for producing the first three-ply play of the season.

Gedeon was at bat, and when Poll tossed up the ball, Joe tried to bunt. The result was a foul near the third-base line, which Perritt caught after a hot sprint. Both of the runners were under way. Poll, amid the excited cries of the frantic multitude, wheeled on his heels, and whipped the pill to Zeb, doubling Shinn. With Jimmy still squirming around in the dust six feet from second base, Zeb hastened the pill to Koerner at first, catching Orr. In calling these three men out, Toman was forced to work his right arm so rapidly that he burnt out the bearing in the shoulder joint. Loud applause greeted the successful completion of the great enterprise, and Poll appeared to be on pretty good terms with himself when he walked to the bench.

UNIQUE STUFF.

The sixth was featured by a unique play, in which Zeb's young and tender anatomy played a prominent and resounding part. With Zacher on first, Tennant drove swiftly to short. The pill struck Zeb squarely in the stomach, making a noise like a snare drum. It bounded therefrom directly into the hands of McMullen, who was standing on second. In this way Zacher was forced.

The big rumpus was reserved for the seventh. Poll started this round prolifically by fanning Rohrer and Hall. Shinn then sliced a Texas Leaguer in left. Rube came tearing in like a guy on a motorcycle, while Zeb threw on the reverse and began backing out into left field. Although under the handicap of running backward, Zeb beat Rube to the pill, and seemed to catch it momentarily. Then he dropped it, and there was nothing momentary about this, as he did not pick it up again until Shinn had reached second.

SETTLED.

The newspaper blokes were pondering over whether to score it as a double or an error when Toman simplified the situation. For once our umpires were not of one mind. Mr. Phyle seemed to lean toward the theory that Zeb had muffed the ball. Mr. Toman, who was much nearer, maintained that Zeb had held the pill long enough to make a fair catch. As he was near the play, his version of the affair was accepted as official. So it was neither a two-bagger nor an error, but a putout. The play was the signal for players to come galloping in from all directions. The Salt Lake players came in to tell their troubles to Phyle, while Pa and his men came in to give Toman their moral support. In five seconds there was not a player left in the infield or outfield. All of them seemed to be trying to stand on the home plate at once. The players were finally dispersed with only slight loss, Wolter being the only guy "canned." Buemiller then went into center field.

However, although routed by the umpires, Salt Lake recovered from the blow with amazing rapidity and put over the winning run in the eighth. Orr doubled and took third on Gedeon's out. B. Ryan fanned. Zacher then selected the great opportunity presented and scored Orr with a clean swipe to left. Tennant popped to Zeb, who did not let go of the ball.

GOOD TRY.

The Angels made a fierce bid in the last of the eighth. Maggert, batting for Metzger, walked, and Scoggins was put in to run for him. Dillon went in to hit for Perritt, and lined out to Shinn, who made quite a catch. McMullen rifled a low, hard fly to left. Buddy Ryan rushed in, tried to pick the ball off his shoe laces and then plunged forward on his face. When he had stopped rolling the ball was not in his hands, but several feet away. Scoggy, who had almost reached second, was so convinced Ryan had caught the pill that he was seized with a panic and beat it back to first. Everybody began yelling to him at once, and the more they yelled the faster he ran in the wrong direction. It was a case of too much coaching. There is such a thing as yelling at a guy so much that you scare him to death. When Scoggy finally discovered that he had been deceived, it was too late. Ryan tossed the ball to Gedeon, forcing Scoggy and taking a perfectly good hit away from McMullen.

ALL OVER.

This tossed away whatever chance the Angels had, but it was a question whether they had any license to win at that, on five hits. They had the breaks with them most of the way, but lost the old "horseshoe" in the eighth. As for Scoggy, he simply thought that the ball had been caught, which was quite natural under the circumstances, and in the excitement lost his chart and compass. Scoggy does not claim to be an expert base-runner, anyway. Tennant ended the round with a brilliant stop of J. Ryan's warm one. The Bees could do nothing with Burns, who worked the last round, while Hunky remained invincible.

A flock of singles right off the bat by J. Ryan, Wolter, Koerner and Zeb gave the Angels their two runs in the first.

Salt Lake tied the score in the third. Shinn doubled with one out. Jack Ryan tried to scoop Orr's drive in right, but missed connections and the pill got away from him for a triple. This scored Shinn. Gedeon fouled out. B. Ryan singled Billy home and took second when Rube paused to juggle the drive. Zacher drove to Slim, who speared him at first.

The score:

DUCKS DOOMED IN SAN BERNARDINO.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SAN BERNARDINO, July 3.—The confines of the new game refuge in the local range, designated in the recent Legislature measure as State fish and game district, No. 28, became known today with the receipt by Assemblyman George H. Johnson of a map showing the boundaries of the district. Hunting of all kinds of game except ducks is doomed in most of the San Bernardino range.

The refuge extends from Devil's Canyon on the west to a point about five miles east of Baldwin Lake in Big Bear Valley, the northern boundary running north of Bear Valley about three miles. On the east the district boundary runs between Mt. San Bernardino and Grayback to the Riverside county line. An irregular line following the foothills marks the southern boundary.

The fine hunting grounds on the north side of the mountains are not included in the refuge and in the lower Deep Creek and the Bald Hills country the deer can still be stalked.

There are 73,300 automobiles and about 10,000 motorcycles in Minnesota, according to license records.

KING

The Price of the Eight Cylinder King Will Not Be Reduced

We consider this announcement necessary on account of the flood of cheap models that have tended to unsettle the medium-priced field. The King company has chosen for its field the medium-priced, high-grade car and it has been the consistent aim of the company to steadily improve and develop the present model. Refinements have been incorporated whenever it was deemed necessary and there will be no change of model.

Cheaper Price
—MEANS—
Cheaper Quality

In the King car is found the most modern construction and the highest grade material. We could make a car to sell at a much lower price and when the paint had been spread on the material it would look the same, but the owner would not get the constant and reliable service which the company wants every King car to give.

This company first builds a high-grade, medium-priced car and then sets the price. Having no obsolete models, it is not necessary for us to set a cut price.

Used Car Clean-Up Week

Studebaker Corporation

1047 SOUTH GRAND AVENUE

The big sale of new Studebaker cars at the Los Angeles Studebaker Branch means that literally hundreds of used cars taken in exchange

MUST BE SOLD

We can't allow them to clog up our space. We cannot keep too much money tied up in Used Cars, therefore every reasonable inducement must be offered to sell them:

FIRST—They are sold absolutely without profit;

SECOND—They are inspected, overhauled, even rebuilt, when necessary; they are refinished, revarnished, repainted, when necessary.

THIRD—We even accept credit terms from reliable parties.

These are the reasons why Studebaker does such a tremendous business in used cars. It is your opportunity to obtain a genuine bargain.

BARGAINS IN ALL MAKES

$200—2-pass. Parry Roadster. Will sell for this much a year from now.

$250—2-pass. Everett Roadster. Your investment in this car is like money in the bank.

OFFICIALS' CARS

1915 Seven-passenger Studebaker, special equipment, in beautiful condition, used by the manager of the Studebaker Corporation—a bargain.

1915 Seven-passenger Touring Car—used for official service at the Los Angeles Branch. Car driven less than three thousand miles—always under care of expert drivers and garage men.

1915 Five-passenger Touring Car, equipped with waterproof slip covers, car in perfect condition, driven less than five thousand miles by Studebaker official.

A few five-passenger and seven-passenger special Studebaker Demonstrators and Exhibition cars at clean-up prices.

Remember that Studebaker is willing and able to extend credit to responsible buyers. Remember that every car is sold at the lowest possible price and without profit and it is in perfect mechanical condition when offered for sale. It has been truly said that the man who uses wisdom in buying a Used Car gets his automobile for nothing because he can always sell it for practically what he pays for it if he buys it right in the first place.

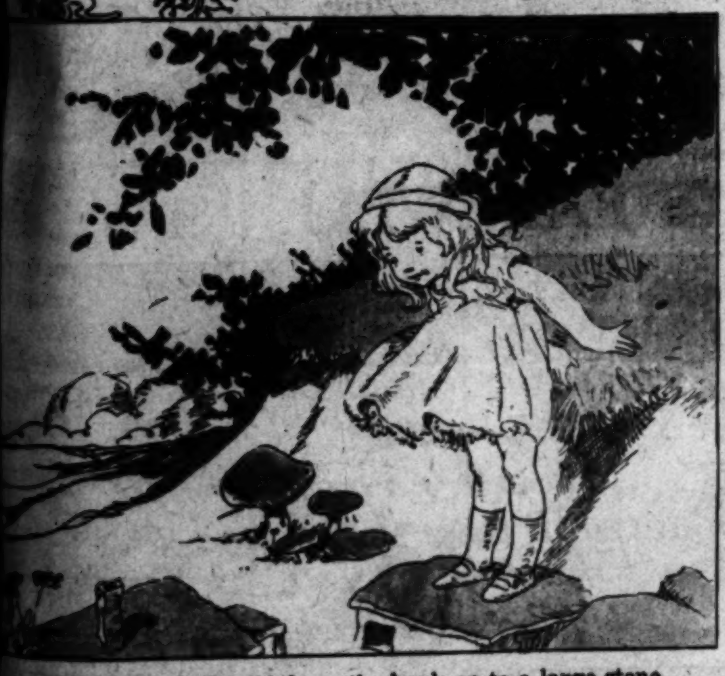
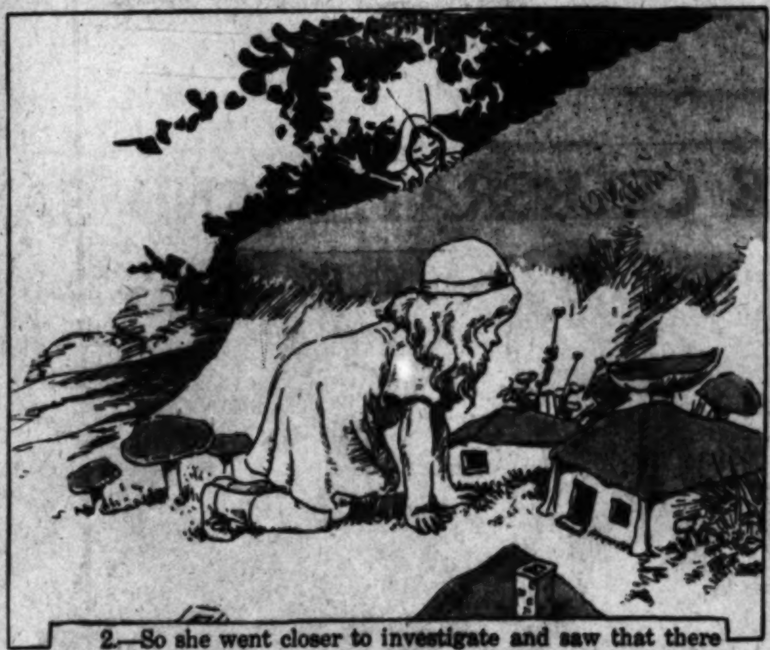
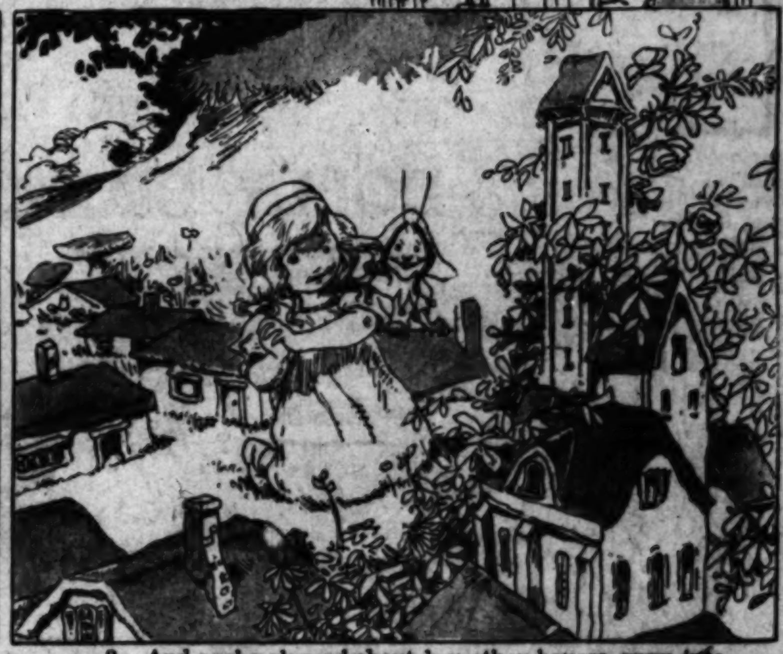
MR. TWEE DEEDLE



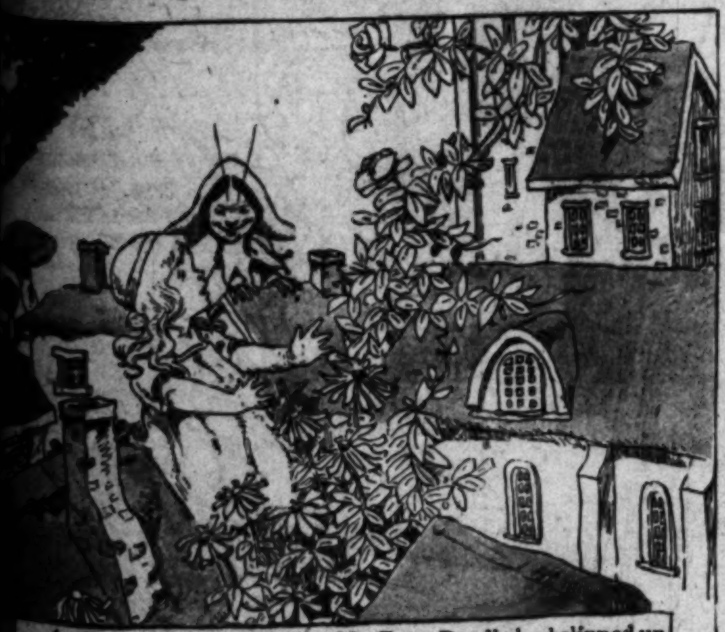
1.—One day Dolly slid down the bank on to a large stone as she struck it it seemed to her that another stone in of her changed into a tiny house.



2.—So she went closer to investigate and saw that there were a number of the tiny houses about her. "It's strange that I never have seen these little houses here before!" she said to herself as she felt them to make sure her eyes did not deceive her



3.—And as she glanced about her other houses grew into sight, and right before her stood a tiny castle all covered with roses and other flowers. "It must be a fairy mushroom village!" she cried, "that has grown in the night!"



4.—Dolly did not know that Mr. Twee Deedle had slipped up hind her and as he made a magic motion with his hand it emed to Dolly that the castle and houses grew in size until could walk through the doors; in reality Mr. Twee Deedle made Dolly small and the houses remained the same size.

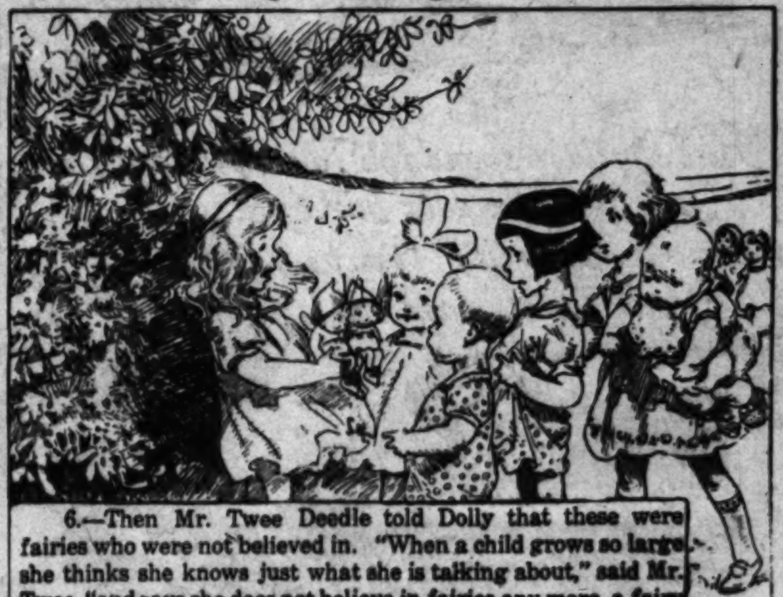
5.—So Dolly walked to the door of the castle and entered a hall along which hung many heavy curtains. When she pulled one aside what was her surprise to see hundreds of little sprites, fairies and gnomes sound asleep on padded shelves.



6.—Then Mr. Twee Deedle told Dolly that these were fairies who were not believed in. "When a child grows so large she thinks she knows just what she is talking about," said Mr. Twee, "and says she does not believe in fairies any more, a fairy goes to sleep and does not awaken until a new child believes in fairies!" So Dolly took two of the cutest little sprites and showed them to a lot of her friends, so that many of the sleeping fairies must have awakened and are flying about doing kindly acts for those who need their assistance.

"Come," says the doll, "let's go. To him There's only one reply."

"Why not?" thinks Dot, "since they'
come out?
At least, no harm to try:
But first, let's thank the kindly folk
Who've loved us, far and nigh.
Farewell!"

And Dolly Dimple now bids you all Good

COMMON SENSE in the HOME

EDITED by MARION HARLAND

ON CONSERVING SMALL FRUITS.

SMALL fruits are in many respects a greater boon to the housekeeper than the large fruits. With all respect for peaches, pears, plums, quinces, and apples, they would have a hard struggle to prove of more service in the home than strawberries, raspberries, blackberries, blueberries, currants, and cherries, either in their fresh state or when conserved by some method for winter use.

Perhaps it is in the latter form that we most appreciate the value of berries. Whether these are made into jelly or jam, converted into refreshing beverages, or canned for use in pies or tarts, they do fine service throughout that part of the year when fresh fruits are infrequent and expensive.

Berries of all sorts are more easily put up than the large fruits, because they do not have to be peeled or stoned. Cleansing and picking over and in some cases removing them from the stems are all the preliminary preparations they need before they go into the preserving kettle.

In the following recipes no attempt is made to exhaust the number of methods by which berries may be put up for household use. The directions should prove helpful to those who have not had much experience or who lack trustworthy instructions; it is hoped they may also call forth suggestions from other housekeepers of different ways to conserve the small fruits at comparatively small expense and trouble.

As strawberries are the first berries on the market, they will have the earliest attention, and such berries as may not yet be ripe will be included with the others. Even if they have not made their appearance in all parts of the country where the Corner is read, when this talk is printed they will not be slow in coming, and these hints will then be useful.

STRAWBERRY JAM.

Pick over and hull strawberries, rejecting any that are soft or spoiled. Turn them into a colander and run cold water over them to rinse off the dust and grit that they may have clinging to them. Drain and weigh. For every pound of the fruit allow three-quarters of a pound of sugar. Put the berries in a preserving kettle, first inverting a thick plate in the bottom of the kettle. Do not put in the sugar now, but crush the berries with the back of a wooden spoon so as to encourage the juice to flow freely. Heat slowly and cook steadily but quietly for half an hour after the boil is reached. Be on the lookout to see that the fruit does not scorch, and stir often, breaking up and mashing the fruit. Put in the sugar at the end of the half hour's boiling and cook for twenty minutes more, with constant stirring. Dip the fruit out into pint or half pint jars, filling them full, and seal while boiling hot. If there is more juice than is required for the jam, dip it out and use it for jelly.

STRAWBERRY JELLY.

Prepare the fruit as for jam and cook until the juice flows freely. At the end of thirty or forty minutes dip out all the juice that will come; then turn the fruit into a vegetable press and squeeze out what more juice can be extracted. Put all juice into a vegetable bag and let this drip until all has run through. Measure the juice, allow a pound of sugar to each pint of juice; return to the fire in a clean kettle, and cook twenty minutes. Turn in the sugar, stirring as it goes in to prevent scorching, boil up hard for one minute after the boil is reached, take from the fire, and put into glasses. Strawberries for jelly should be tart and underripe. The addition of the inside white peel of a lemon to the boiling juice will aid in making it firmer.

CANNED STRAWBERRIES.

Pick over, hull and weigh the berries, and to every pound of them allow a quarter of a pound of sugar. Let the sugar and berries stand together, covered, in an earthen bowl or jar for an hour. Turn into a preserving kettle with a small pinch of powdered alum, cover, cook steadily for fifteen minutes; after they come to a boil turn into heated cans of the self-sealing kind and close immediately.

STRAWBERRIES PRESERVED WHOLE.

Pick over the berries carefully, selecting those of uniform size, and hull them. Put the smaller berries to one side as you come to them. When all are separated mash the smaller ones, squeeze the juice from them in a vegetable press, and let it drip through a jelly bag. To each pint of this strained juice allow one pound of sugar, put over the fire together, and boil for twenty minutes. Weigh the berries you have reserved and allow an equal weight of sugar. Put both berries and sugar into the boiling juice on the fire and simmer for a little while, or until the jelly begins to thicken. Fill wide mouthed half pint or pint jars with this and seal them while hot.

CURRANT JELLY.

Pick the fruit from the stems and put it over the fire in a stone crock; set in an outer vessel of boiling water. Bring to a boil and cook until the fruit is so broken that the juice flows freely. Take out the fruit, a small amount at a time, and put into a vegetable press or jelly bag and squeeze. Measure the juice; to each pint of it allow a pound of sugar; put the juice back over the stove, bring to a boil, and cook fast for twenty minutes. Skim it, turn in the sugar which you may have heated in shallow pans in the oven, stir until the boil is resumed, boil for one minute, and put it at once into heated jelly glasses. Let it cool before covering.

CURRANT BAR-LE-DUC.

Clean and pick over ripe currants, detaching them from the stems. To each pound of the fruit allow a pound of granulated sugar, pour the sugar on the currants, set them in a cool place, and leave them over night. Next morning turn the berries into a colander carefully so as not to break them and let the juice drip from them. If the mixture is too thick to flow freely, add a little water. Put the sirup over the fire and cook steadily for half an hour, drop in the currants, and cook slowly for fifteen minutes. Put up in jelly glasses or small jars. This is nearly as good as the imported bar-le-duc, and is better at the end of a few months than when first made.

SPICED CURRANTS.

Stem five pounds of ripe currants; put with them four pounds of white sugar, one pint of vinegar, two tablespoons of cloves, two tablespoons of cinnamon. Put all over the fire together, bring to a boil, and cook them steadily for half an hour after this. Put up in small jars or in jelly glasses and seal when cold.

CURRANT AND RASPBERRY JAM.

Put up by the directions given for strawberry jam, using one-third stemmed currants and two-thirds raspberries, either red or black, and allowing three-quarters of a pound of sugar to every pound of fruit. Proceed in every respect as with strawberry jam.

RASPBERRY JAM.

For this also the recipe for strawberry jam may be followed. All red or raspberries may be used, or they be mixed in equal parts or in any proportions.

RASPBERRY VINEGAR.

Pick over a gallon of raspberries see that they are clean and free from sects. Put them into a large crock, them well with a potato beetle and an inch deep with good cider Set them in the hot sunshine for a day, stirring six times during the day, put the crock in the cellar at night. next day mash and squeeze the drain off the liquor, throw the away and put another gallon of the vinegar. Repeat yesterday's ment with these. The next squeeze the berries and measure all liquid you have left. To each quart one pint of water and for each pint this allow five pounds of sugar. into a preserving kettle, set over the until the sugar melts, boil up, skim, from the fire, strain, and bottle warm. Cork and seal or wire.

BLACKBERRY JAM.

This may be made like strawberry raspberry jam.

GOOSEBERRY JAM.

Pick over, top and tail the gooseberries and proceed as with the other jams

CANNED BLUEBERRIES OR HUCKLEBERRIES.

Pick over the berries, removing and leaves; measure them and allow each quart of the fruit a heaping spoon of granulated sugar. Put the berries over the fire in the preserving and bring to a boil slowly. Should be a good deal of juice, dip out part before putting in the sugar, after berries have boiled ten minutes, sugar and berries together for minutes and turn into heated cans, each one to overflowing, and screw the tops immediately.

CANNED CHERRIES.

Wash and stem firm tart cherries to each pound of them half a pound sugar. Put with the sugar just water to dissolve it, set over the fire boil to a thin sirup, removing the it rises to the surface of the liquor. it has been well skimmed turn cherries, cook for five minutes, out with a skimmer, pack into self-sealing jars, fill these up with the boiling and screw on the lids at once.

PRESERVED CHERRIES.

Stone and stem tart cherries, the juice which flows from them ing the process. When the fruit pared weigh it and allow a pound of to each pound of the cherries. sugar and juice slowly in a kettle; when melted and well the cherries, cook until the and then turn the contents of into jars and seal.

MARION HARLAND'S HELPING HAND.

Need Almost Everything.

"I HAVE had a number of misfortunes of which I wish to tell you. Early in December last my husband fell sick from rheumatism and was helpless for six weeks. He has not yet fully recovered from the attack. In April I gave birth to twin girls. Both babies are living and doing fairly well. I now have five children living and three dead. My husband has had to do most of the care of me and of the children, sitting up at night ever since I have been sick. He has done no wage earning work and saved no money since last November, and as he is our only support you can well see that we are in need of almost everything. If he could leave me he could get work away from here, but he has been compelled to care for me while I have been so helpless with heart and kidney complications. I have neither cradle nor carriage for the babies. If I had a carriage of any sort my eldest child could help me a great deal in the care of the twins. He is nearly 7 years old. My other children are another boy of 3 and a girl, who is almost 5. MRS. W. A. H."

This is certainly a hard position. I don't know for which I am most sorry, the wife, laid aside by illness and forced to see her duties devolve upon others; the husband, lame and crippled from rheumatism, unable to leave home to get work and so trying to do all he can to spare his wife by taking her place in the home; or the 7 year old boy, who is to be relied upon to "help a great deal in the care of the children." Poor little chap! In any case assistance is certainly needed. I am sure there will be many replies from our warm hearted and generous Cornerites who will give help and advice to the best of their powers. I shall be happy to send the address of Mrs. W. A. H. to any one who thinks he or she can be of service to this needy household.

See a Physician.

"Can any of the Cornerites give me a remedy for a child of 4 or 6 years of age who sucks his tongue? It is done unconsciously, I think, for he does it in his sleep. What is the cause of the habit, and how may it be cured? M. A. M."

This does not impress me as a case for amateur prescriptions. The child should be taken to a physician, or at least a doctor should be consulted. To me it seems that the habit must be the result of some nervous condition for which professional observation and advice are demanded.

Does Own Sewing.

"Having seen in the Corner an offer of patches, patterns, etc., I write to ask you if I could have these, or part of them. I have been a constant reader of the paper for years, and I am also a cripple with a family of four young children. I try to do my own sewing, and this is one reason why I would be so thankful for these and for reading matter. If any one has a go-cart, I would also be grateful for it, since, owing to much sickness and trouble, I cannot afford to get one. HOPEFUL."

Perhaps we could have helped this correspondent by putting her in touch with the friend who offered patches, etc., if she had only given the signature of the writer. As it is, the best that can be done is to print this letter here, put "Hopeful's" name and address on file, and trust that some one may write for these with the desire to send what is needed.

Wants an Old Piano.

"I have a big appeal to send you, but if you will list it and some one else will grant it it would make me completely happy. I want a piano. I am passionately fond of music, and, knowing the Corner goes into thousands of homes, I have thought that perhaps some one having an old piano and no longer wanting it, or who perhaps is buying a new instrument, would give me the old one. I would pay freight gladly. I had a piano once, but lost it through inability to continue the payments on it, and I have never been able to get another. I shall be praying continually that some kind person will send me an old piano. I have some songs, words and music, and some pictures and crochet instructions I will gladly give away on receipt of request and a 2 cent stamp for postage. Altogether, I have about fifteen brand new, pretty pictures, unframed, and eight or nine pieces of music. The instructions for crocheting are for making a purse, a sweater, a knitted scarf, or lace. M. D."

The writer is correct when she says that a piano is a big thing to ask for. Yet we have had pianos given before and this may be another of the occasions when the Corner rises to meet the demand put upon it. Her offer of music, of pictures and of instruction in making various crocheted articles will doubtless be promptly accepted.

Cripple Ready to Help.

"I am looking eagerly to find a trace of Miss Grace Van Court, who sadly needs some information I have obtained for her. All my endeavors to find her have proved of no avail. I know, however, that she always reads Marion Harland's Corner and I believe that a sentence in the Helping Hand would meet her eyes and result in much good to her. Will you insert this and if she sees it and writes to you, put her in touch with me? I shall be greatly obliged to you. And now what can I do for the Corner? Is there not some act of helpfulness a shutin cripple can render? I suppose the great need is for cash, and I have a struggle to keep the wolves away from my own door with nothing to depend upon but my little 'sweets to the sweet.' But here in my chair I can do any copying or writing that would be entrusted to me or anything else that could be accomplished by one handicapped as I am. Do not then hesitate to accord me that pleasure! S. F. R."

It gives me pleasure to print here the request for the name of Miss Grace Van Court and I hope it may meet her eyes and that she will write to me for the address of S. F. R. I am also glad to make public the generous offer of help of this correspondent, not only because it may be of service to some one but also as an example of helpfulness shown by one working under many disadvantages. She will be remembered as the Cornerite who asked for rose leaves a short while ago in order that she might make from them the little sachets she calls "sweets to the sweet," by means of which she supports herself in her crippled condition. There are many kinds of assistance fully as valuable as the gift of cash, and the spirit back of the willingness to aid displayed by this shutin is bound to find an outlet which will be of genuine service to others. I shall be happy to supply her address to those who wish it, either for correspondence, to send her rose leaves, or to get or give other aid.

Chocolate Pie.

"I send you a good recipe for chocolate pie: Make the crust first and let it cool. The filling is prepared as follows: Half a cup of sugar, one tablespoon of flour, one tablespoon of chocolate or cocoa, one teaspoon of butter, one cup of milk, one egg. Cook all together until the mixture thickens, pour it into the baked crust, sprinkle with walnuts or coconut, and serve. MRS. E. J."

We are glad to have this recipe. I should think the pie would be better cold than hot.

Keeps Hairbrush Clean.

"I think you may like to know of the way in which I keep my hairbrush clean. It differs from yours, although it may not be any better. You may care to try it, as hot water is not used and some persons claim that this injures the bristles and softens them. I have used this method many times and have found it excellent: Dissolve a teaspoon of baking soda in a teacup of cold water; let the brush—the bristles only—remain in the water a few minutes, then rub them a little, rinse in clear cold water, and dry in the shade. A comb can be run through the bristles afterwards in order to remove the lint. MRS. E. D."

I am glad to get this direction. I have heard that hot water softens the bristles of a brush and there are also times when hot water is not at hand and it is a convenience to be able to cleanse the brush without its aid.

Needs Material for Fancywork.

"I live quite a distance from neighbors and have a small baby; still there are spare moments in which to do fancy work if I only had the materials. For this reason I would like the address of Marie B. and would gladly give her geranium cuttings and poppy plants in return if she would care to have them. I would like also to suggest a way of cleansing a hairbrush. Mix one part of flour and one part of salt and rub thoroughly into the brush. When this has been done shake and comb out the bristles and the brush will be like new. MRS. M. E. D."

I have sent the address of Marie B. to this correspondent, although I am not sure but that the supply of fancy work to give away has been exhausted. Has any other friend articles in this line to bestow on this Cornerite? Her directions for cleansing a hairbrush are also welcome.

"Will you please tell me the name of the artist who painted 'The Song of the Lark'? What nationality is the peasant girl in this picture? I am a high school pupil and need the answer for my English work. "INTERESTED READER."

I am sorry that I shall have to refer this question. I have seen the picture, but I do not know the name of the artist and my recollection of the figure is not clear enough for me to determine her nationality.

Government Whitewash.

"I wish you would give me the formula for the cement White House paint. I am an old soldier's wife with a great deal of ambition but little money, and want to paint my house—or at least my husband does. "HEWETT."

I suppose that the preparation you wish is that known as government whitewash. I have never heard it given the name by which you speak of it, but the following is the preparation generally in use upon government buildings and came to me from a trustworthy source. It is not like ordinary whitewash and lasts much better: Slake half a bushel of lime with boiling water; cover it during the process to keep in the steam; strain the through a fine strainer or sieve and to it one peck of salt, previously solved in warm water, three pounds ground rice, boiled to a paste and in while hot; half a pound of whiting and one pound of glue dissolved by soaking in cold then hanging over the fire in a hung in a larger one filled with Add five gallons of hot water to the ture, stir well and let it stand a few covered from the dirt. It should plied hot, for which purpose it kept in a kettle or portable furnace pint of this wash mixture, if properly plied, will cover one square yard. ing matter may be added as desired you wish instructions for whitewash let me know and I will give them in the Corner. I hope you find this the preparation for which are seeking.

Would Like Some Magazines

"If Mrs. D. H. M. has not already away the magazines she offers, I like some of them. MRS. K.

I am sorry to say that all the magazines offered by this especial correspondent have been bestowed elsewhere. But I positive there are others with to give away, and I shall file the of Mrs. K. D. in the hope that I shall have an application for it from wish to send her magazines.

Rose Potpourri.

"I would thank you to let me know is used to make a rose jar, Rose petals are put in a jar, I I believe saltpeter is the another substance I have forgotten you tell me what it is?

I have a time honored recipe for potpourri for rose jars, but it does contain saltpeter. The product my directions will hold its fragrance years if the jar is kept closed time and will be delicious to the end. following is the recipe: Gather tals when the flowers are at their and pick them when they are dry when the dew is on them. They fragrant roses, not the climbers roses or others of the varieties which little perfume. Pack them in a layers two inches deep, sprinkling layer of the leaves with two of fine, dry salt. Add to the petals and salt each day until the full, keeping it in a dry, cool place week after the last supply the contents of the jar on a toss until they are loosened. them the following perfumes away to ripen: Half ounce each of violet, and heliotrope powder; orris root, half teaspoon each of mace, and cinnamon; twenty drops oil of melissa and oil eucalyptus drops each oil chiris and bergamot drops oil of roses, two drachms

FOR THE INDUSTRIOUS NEEDLEWOMAN

BY ADELAIDE BYRD

SIMPLE CENTERPIECE for VACATION EMBROIDERING

DESIGNED BY OLIVE G. HAUFLER

FROM every quarter we receive directions not to do any more work than is absolutely necessary during the warm weather, and from experience, we have, no doubt, found out that by keeping occupied we are less apt to think about the heat. It is for this reason that I have selected for today a design which is full of beauty and yet requires very little work to be completed. I admit that a large piece of embroidery should not ion if one is inclined to have ." The design on the page is right size and outline to be into your bag when packing for trip. No matter where decided to spend your holiday, have some leisure moments will feel like taking a few as you rock on the porch or sit

First of all let me draw your attention to the fact that only half of the design is pictured, and that in order to get the entire design on your piece of linen it is necessary to swing the design around rather than turn it over. However, this is very easy to do and will not prove at all difficult. A glance at the miniature drawing of the complete design will show you how the centerpiece should appear.

The complete design can be worked in solid stitches if one does not care to do any more work on it. All-white may be used for the stitches, but I think a prettier effect will be given if black and white be used. Should you decide on this combination, I suggest that the outside of the flowers be worked in white in the solid stitch. Of course, pad this first so that the finished work will stand out in bold relief. Put the padding stitches in the opposite direction from which the solid stitches are to run. This is necessary so that the top stitches will not have an opportunity to sink into the padding. Outline each circle in black.

I suppose it's all right to call the little markings that surround the circles petals but about the sections of flowers, perhaps. This will be an easy way to complete them. Anyhow, these I suggest that you make into eyelets. The tiny circles outside of each flower with French knots.

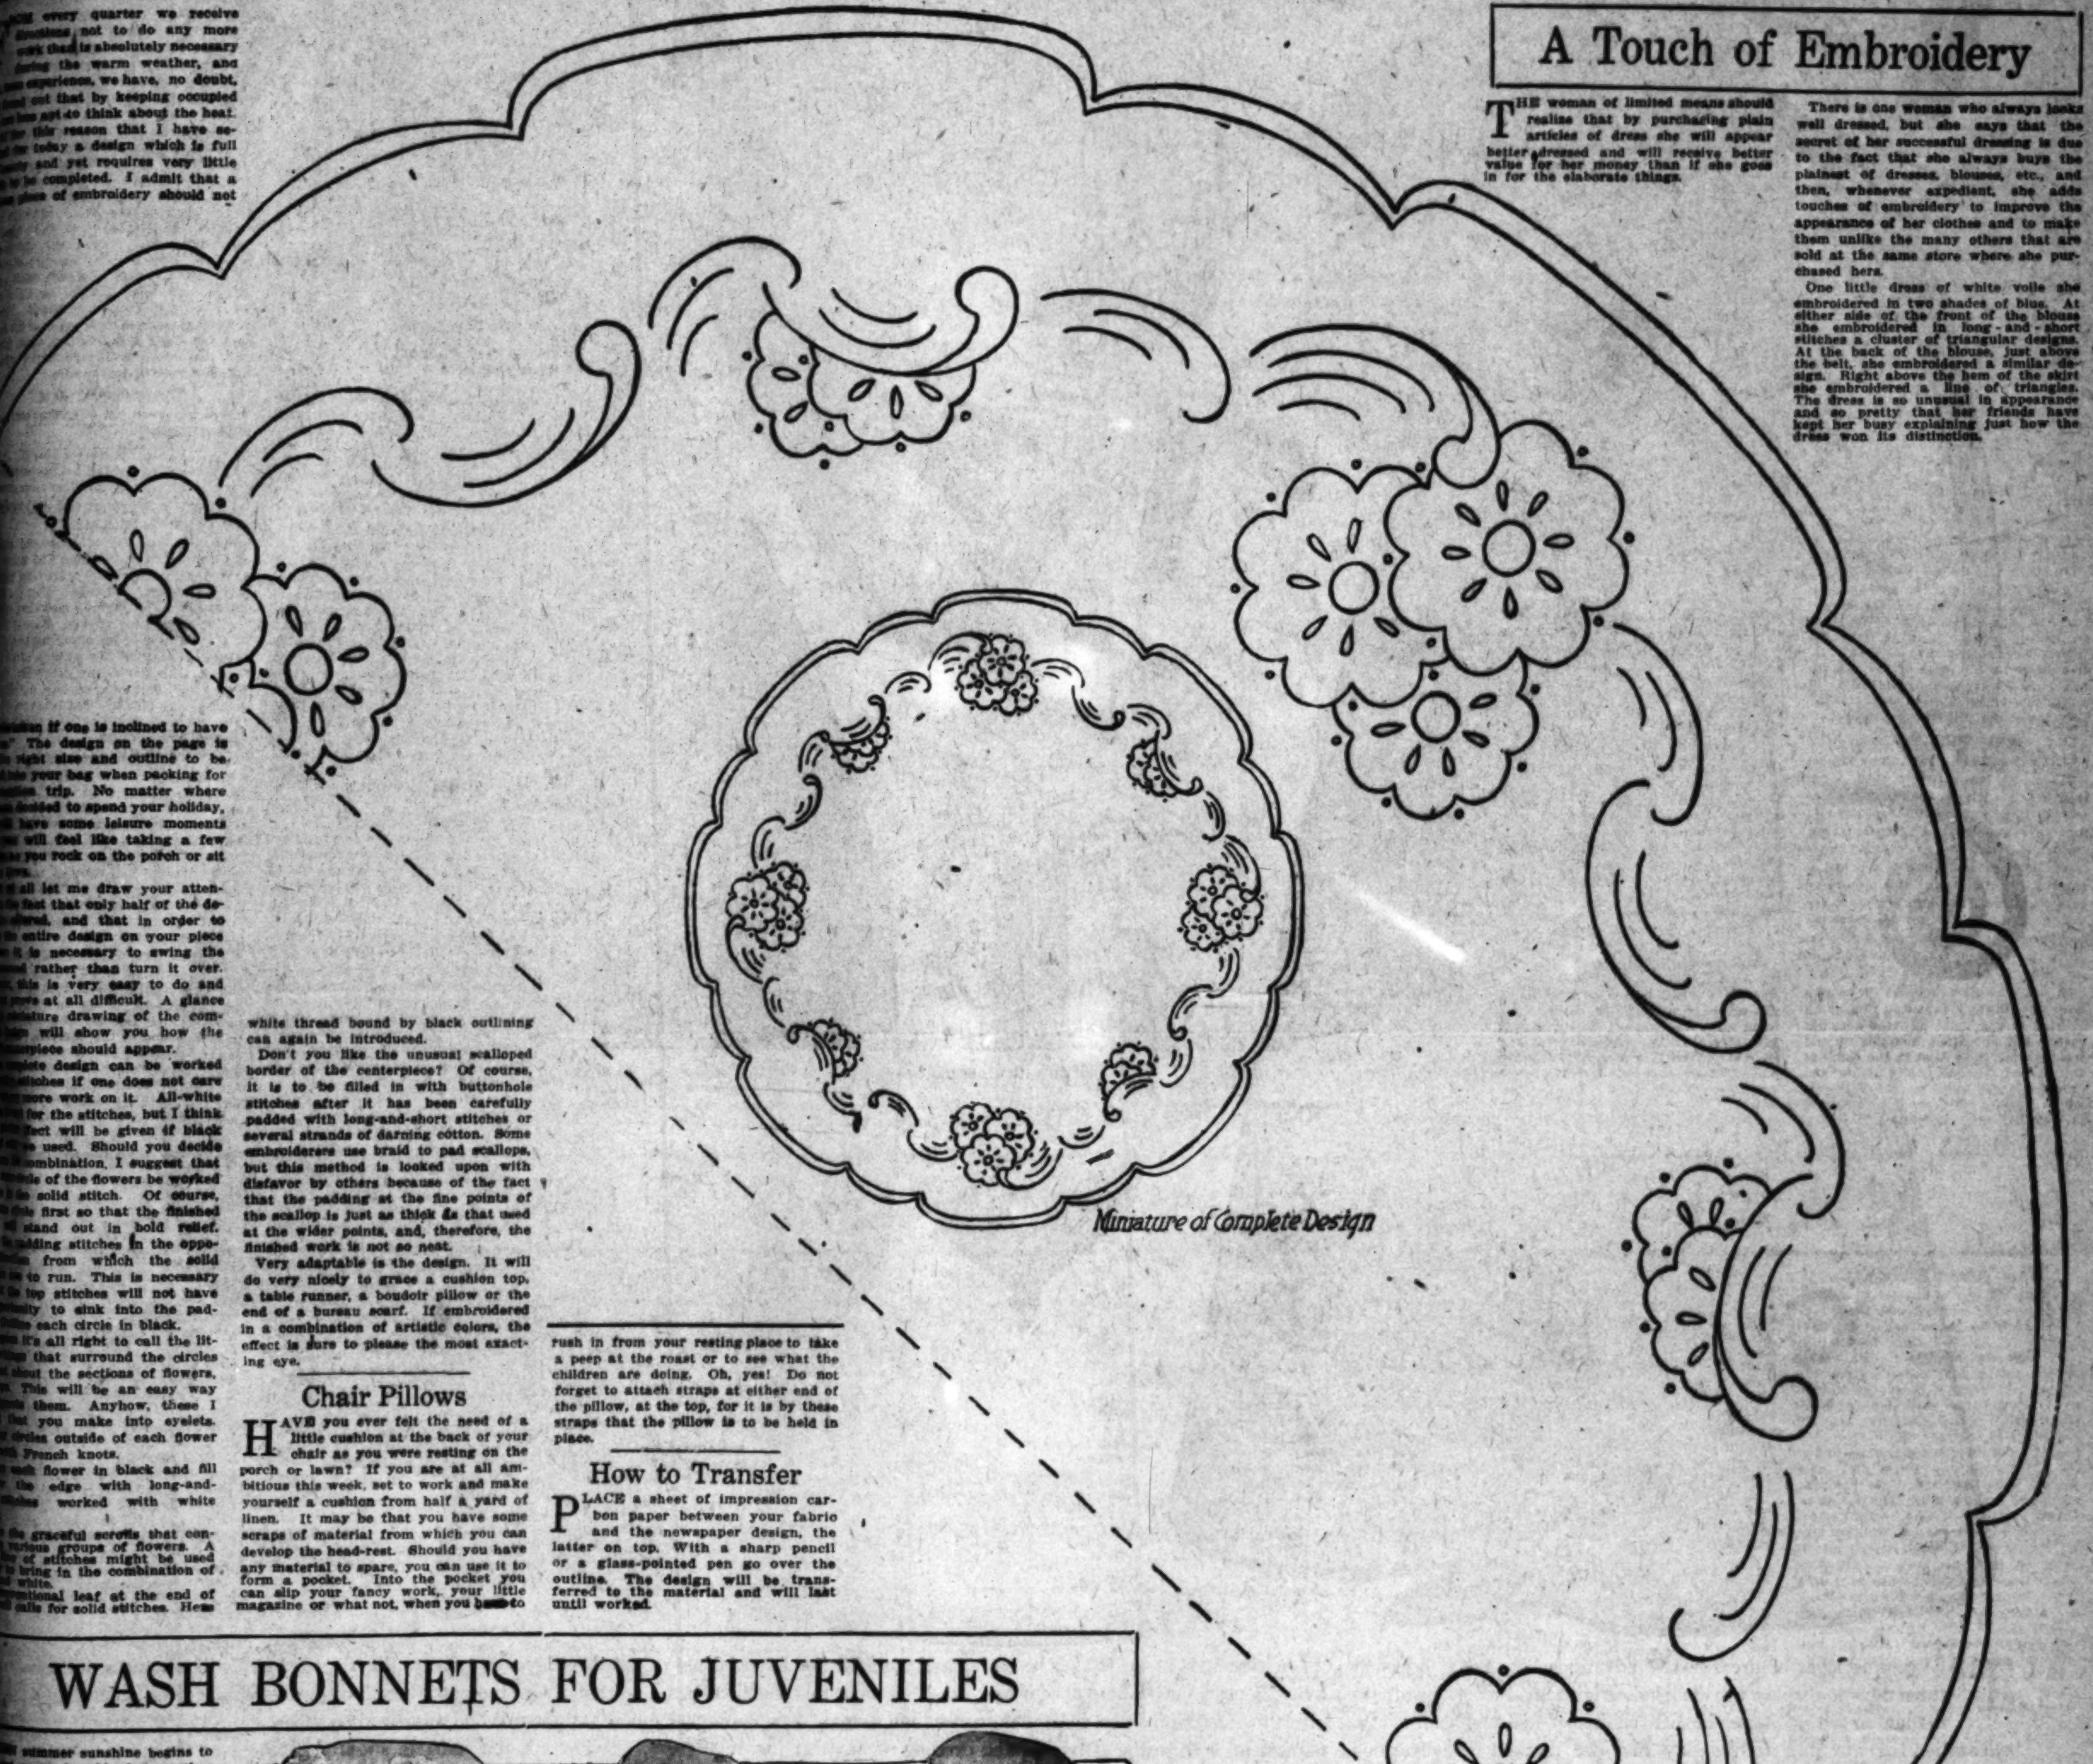
Outline each flower in black and fill in the edge with long-and-short stitches worked with white.

For the graceful scrolls that connect the various groups of flowers, a combination of stitches might be used to bring in the combination of black and white.

The conventional leaf at the end of each scroll calls for solid stitches. Here white thread bound by black outlining can again be introduced.

Don't you like the unusual scalloped border of the centerpiece? Of course, it is to be filled in with buttonhole stitches after it has been carefully padded with long-and-short stitches or several strands of darning cotton. Some embroiderers use braid to pad scallops, but this method is looked upon with disfavor by others because of the fact that the padding at the fine points of the scallop is just as thick as that used at the wider points, and, therefore, the finished work is not so neat.

Very adaptable is the design. It will do very nicely to grace a cushion top, a table runner, a boudoir pillow or the end of a bureau scarf. If embroidered in a combination of artistic colors, the effect is sure to please the most exacting eye.



Miniature of Complete Design

One Half of Design

A Touch of Embroidery

THE woman of limited means should realize that by purchasing plain articles of dress she will appear better dressed and will receive better value for her money than if she goes in for the elaborate things.

There is one woman who always looks well dressed, but she says that the secret of her successful dressing is due to the fact that she always buys the plainest of dresses, blouses, etc., and then, whenever expedient, she adds touches of embroidery to improve the appearance of her clothes and to make them unlike the many others that are sold at the same store where she purchased hers.

One little dress of white voile she embroidered in two shades of blue. At either side of the front of the blouse she embroidered in long-and-short stitches a cluster of triangular designs. At the back of the blouse, just above the belt, she embroidered a similar design. Right above the hem of the skirt she embroidered a line of triangles. The dress is so unusual in appearance and so pretty that her friends have kept her busy explaining just how the dress won its distinction.

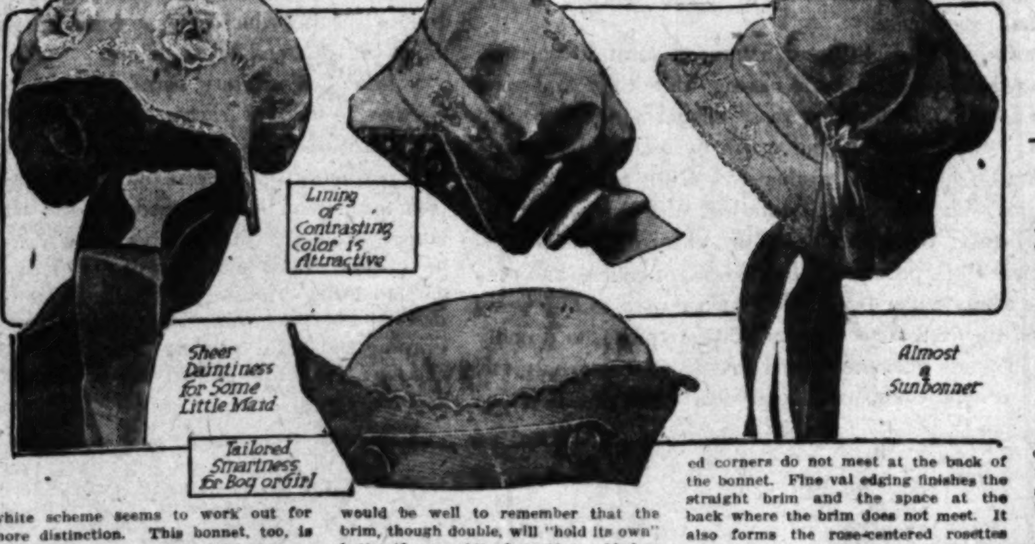
Chair Pillows

HAVE you ever felt the need of a little cushion at the back of your chair as you were resting on the porch or lawn? If you are at all ambitious this week, set to work and make yourself a cushion from half a yard of linen. It may be that you have some scraps of material from which you can develop the head-rest. Should you have any material to spare, you can use it to form a pocket. Into the pocket you can slip your fancy work, your little magazine or what not, when you have to rush in from your resting place to take a peep at the roast or to see what the children are doing. Oh, yes! Do not forget to attach straps at either end of the pillow, at the top, for it is by these straps that the pillow is to be held in place.

How to Transfer

PLACE a sheet of impression carbon paper between your fabric and the newspaper design, the latter on top. With a sharp pencil or a glass-pointed pen go over the outline. The design will be transferred to the material and will last until worked.

WASH BONNETS FOR JUVENILES



Lining of Contrasting Color is Attractive
Sheer Daintiness for Some Little Maid
Almost a Sunbonnet
Tailored Smartness for Boy or Girl

When summer sunshine begins to get uncomfortably hot, mother lays away the little tight muslin cap, and with her loving fingers gathers the wash bonnet to shade baby's eyes from the sun's hot rays just as soon as the baby is old enough to take at least part of her constitutional outside of her gocart and on her sturdy little legs, a bonnet that protects her tender skin and eyes is a necessity. Materials may vary, from finest batiste and handkerchief linen to the heaviest of pique, but they are always washable for summer use, and softly adaptable to a sensitive little head.

Note the outside of the attractive bonnet whose brim is lined with a rose-colored linen. Buttonholing with white cotton holds the two materials together at the edge. This should be done first along a basting thread to mark the shape of the brim and the thread cut away afterward. A very fine edge of pink cotton is worked over the white buttonholing. The embroidered flowers on the pleated crown and the band are done in white, with centers and "stamens" of the pink. The band, which holds the crown in place, is really a piece of white belting. It, too, is finished at the pleated edge of pink. The soft satin ribbon is pink, and can easily be removed for washing if the crown is finished neatly and is merely basted in place, and the whole hat can be taken apart before going into the washtub.

The pique model that might be developed equally well in heavy linen, either white or colored, sports a very plain buttoned band across its turned-up brim. This bonnet will suit the little brother as well as his sister. It may be embroidered with white cotton on white or with colored cottons, but the all-white scheme seems to work out for more distinction. This bonnet, too, is washable if the crown is finished separately and basted into place on the brim.

There should be golden curls for the quaint pique sunbonnet, not a bit of yellow fluffiness, but really-truly curls to fall beneath its outspread brim. The same brim shows a novel method of embroidery in blue and white and worked with stitches to simulate or suggest applique work. This crown, too, is merely basted in place by a foresighted mother. The soft lawn band encircling the crown and the strings to be tied under a dimpled chin are sky blue to match her babyship's eyes. The brim is finished with a narrow cotton braid, which looks very much like a crocheted edge. When laundering this glorified sunbonnet it would be well to remember that the brim, though double, will "hold its own" better if a wee bit of starch is added to the last rinse water. Do not make it too stiff, as that will destroy the slight "flop" which is part of the bonnet's charm.

In one piece, embroidered and trimmed with plenty of lace, is the demure little Quaker bonnet of cross-barred dimity. A pattern for this model may very easily be cut by any mother who has had to cut patterns for more difficult things than bonnets. The spread-out pattern looks very much like a large circle of dimity attached at one portion of its edge to the middle of a straight piece of the goods. To make the cap up, merely shir the circular piece to the ends of the straight band, whose rounded corners do not meet at the back of the bonnet. Fine val edging finishes the straight brim and the space at the back where the brim does not meet. It also forms the rose-centered rosettes which are posed each side of the embroidered basket which spills its little pink or blue flowers over the brim. Lawn streamers are attached near the back of the bonnet, to be tied under the chin.

Where strings are not suggested for these wash bonnets elastic will be needed, and—another hint for wash days—if you will sew snap fasteners on both ends of the rubber and at corresponding places on the bonnet, it will be but a matter of half a second instead of minutes to replace the elastic.

Here are four very different bonnets for just as many little girls or boys, if they are very little; and if you cannot decide which is the prettiest, make them all; it won't take very long.

A Unique Needlecase

A VERY attractive needle case in the shape of a hat is made of two disks of cardboard covered with white flannel. On the top disk a padding is attached to resemble the crown of a hat. Absorbent cotton forms the padding and is covered with light blue taffeta, which, in turn, is veiled with net. A frill of narrow lace edging falls from the bottom of the crown, and a wreath of tiny rosebuds made of ribbon encircles the crown. Near the edge of the brim is placed a pink bow of ribbon. Between the two disks of covered cardboard are three pieces of flannel, their edges being scalloped. It is in these scalloped flaps that the needles are to be kept.

This is a splendid idea for one who is making articles for a summer bazaar.

The Kiddie's Apron

YOU will have no trouble to get your kiddies to put on a cover-all apron if you will make one or two aprons of pretty blue or pink linen and bind them with white tape. Have you ever noticed how much youngsters love pockets in their clothing? Let this be a tip then, and on each apron sew an extra piece of linen, or turn the bottom up to form a deep pocket. On the pocket outline figures of nursery rhyme characters that are dear to your child's heart.

A sunbonnet matching the apron will be worn cheerfully by the little tot who loves to wear bright-colored things.

Easily Made Camisole

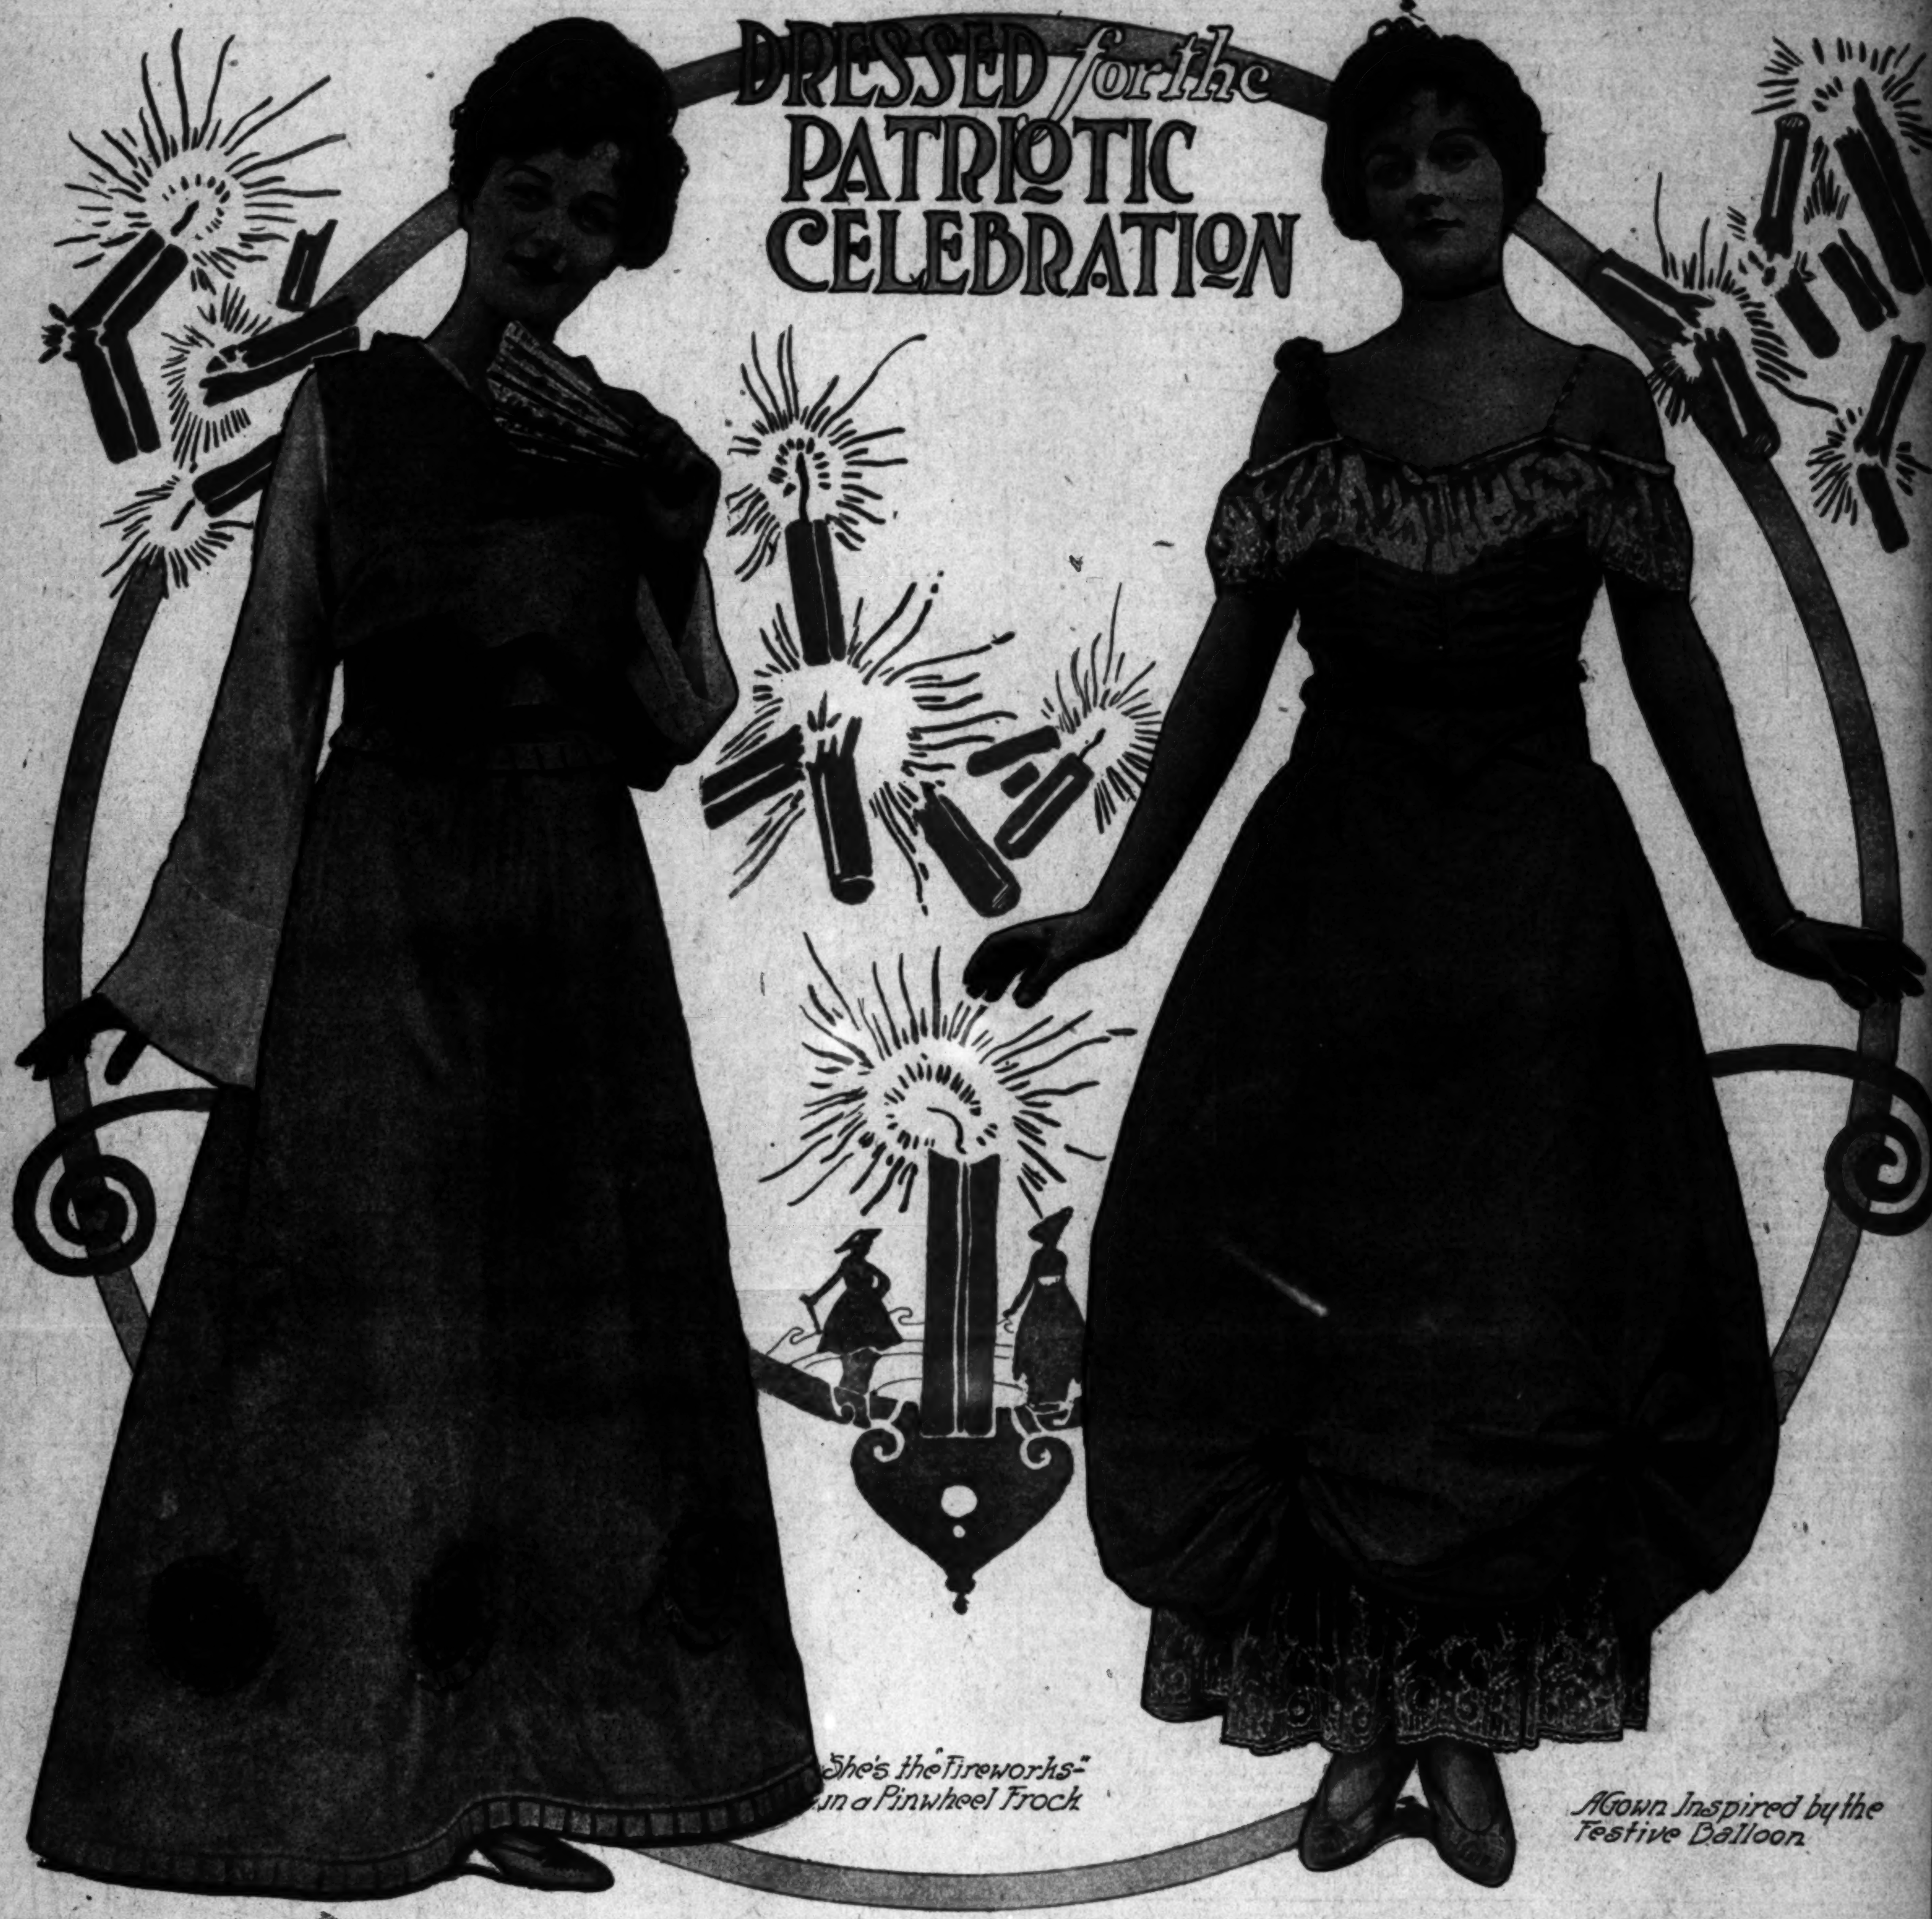
SILK camisoles are very desirable beneath sheer blouses and frocks, but the ready-made ones are rather high priced. However, any woman who can handle a needle can make a garment for herself with very little trouble. All that is necessary is a strip of silk, long enough to pass around the bust with a little fullness and wide enough to extend from the waist line to a line above the top of the corset. To gain a neat fit, curve the lower line slightly and gather it on to a band. Turn a hem at the top of the camisole to form a casing for the ribbon or drawstring. Hold the hem in place by means of hemstitching or French knots. Use ribbon for shoulder straps. Snap fasteners or white crochet buttons can be used for fastening the garment. A neat design embroidered on the front of the camisole will add beauty and value to the piece of underwear.

Handkerchief Chemise

A GIRL who had stacks and stacks of lingerie in her hope chest confessed that the article she cherished most was a chemise of pink crepe de chine, which one of her dearest girl friends had made. So attractive was the garment and so cleverly was it made that there may be in it a suggestion for other brides-elect.

The upper part of the chemise is formed of two pink crepe de chine handkerchiefs, each cut diagonally in half. Two halves form the front of the baby waist—that is really what the upper part of the chemise can be called—and the other two halves form the back. The points of the halves at front and back fall over the shoulder and are joined with short straps of pink ribbon. Fine lace insertion is used to join the waist to the skirt of the garment. Edging to match the insertion is sewed, without fullness, along the edges of the half sections of the handkerchiefs.

DRESSED for the PATRIOTIC CELEBRATION



"She's the Fireworks"—in a Pinwheel Frock

A Gown Inspired by the Festive Balloon

THE genuine lover of dress takes advantage of every occasion these days to display her modiste's originality and her own particular brand of taste in her choice of the modiste. The celebration of any big festive day may be marked with various appropriate and inappropriate ceremonies, customs, table decorations, feasts, etc., etc., but fashionable Femininity invariably takes it as an excuse for special garb or, at least, new garb of varying degrees of charm, according to my lady and my lady's modiste.

There is a tendency during the last few seasons to "dress the part" or to at least have one's gown in keeping with the occasion celebrated. Take, for instance, the Christmas and New Year season, when coiffures and charming gowns have been decked with holly, mistletoe and sprigs of the fir. Then there are the little girls who have for long worn red-white-and-blue sashes upon patriotic days, and, of course, the Easter garments and their pristine glory upon a sunny morning.

But now, if you please, modistes and adherents—that is to say, Fashion herself—have decreed that to dress the part in line, color and appropriateness, in so far as is becoming and graceful, for a special festivity, is quite correct and charming. So it is that this Fashion has given to Femininity two charming frocks that woman may flaunt her patriotism, both in the afternoon and evening of any day in which the flag is given unusual prominence.

"She's the fireworks," all right, in an afternoon gown of blue taffeta, trimmed with reddish-pink roses and having white Georgette crepe sleeves, ornamented with imitations of those sputtering little rascals that father pins to a tree, "safely," and which fly off and burn little Willie, and little Willie squalls, and mother says Willie could have put off his own fireworks with more care than father, who only wanted an excuse, anyhow, to deprive Willie of the pleasure, etc., etc. You remember 'em! Well, these frock pinwheels don't go off, of course, and they look more like the pretty paper pinwheels that one used to buy shiny paper to make, and then sell for a mess of pottage (pins), to proudly pour into patient mother's machine drawer among all her spools, etc. Nevertheless, they are pinwheels, and one does have pinwheels on patriotic days, and one couldn't, under any circumstances but asbestos, go round with the put-a-match-to-powder kind for ornament, no matter how fashionable one wanted to be.

The circular skirt is slightly gathered at the normal waist line, and the quilling which helps to form the pinwheels is carried out about the skirt, neck and bodice edges.

And if Femininity would celebrate by ballooning, all on her two safe sets of toes (at least in effect), there is the charming little red-white-and-blue balloon dress, basket and everything. In color the balloon portion of the dress is like the ones you used to buy for a "jitney" from the man on the circus grounds and which, when you were tired of it, hung over a corner of a family crayon frame till it shriveled despondently to nothing. But the contour of the pretty new frock is that of the sure-enough transportation balloon, with an outline of the carrying basket described by the lace petticoat and a furling of the inflated "bag" by the draping and floral rosettes. The frock proper is of taffeta. At each shoulder the bodice is held up by ropes of rhinestones and flowers, respectively.

Make Your KODAK Autographic

The biggest new thing, the most important photographic development in film photography in two decades, is the Autographic Kodak. It makes the record authentic; answers the questions: When did I make this? Where was this taken? Every negative that is worth taking is worth such date and title, and with the Autographic Kodak you make the record, almost instantly, on the film.

It's all very simple. Open the door in the back of Kodak, write the desired data on the red paper with pencil or stylus, expose for a second or so, close door. When the film is developed, the records will appear on the intersection between the films.

This autographic feature having been incorporated in all of the most important Kodak models, we have now arranged to take care of our old customers by supplying Autographic Backs for all Kodaks of these models.

The old camera can be brought up to date at small cost, and there is no extra charge for autographic film. Make your Kodak Autographic.

The War in Dollars and Cents

By Charles A. Conant

Author of "A History of Modern Banks of Issue," and "Wall Street and the Country"

THE effects of the present war in Europe and the East upon business and finance are the constant preoccupation of business men, financiers, and economists. Some misconceptions and differences of opinion have developed, as the result in many cases of hasty generalization upon insufficient data; but there is no division of opinion upon the general proposition that upon the ministers of finance of the contending countries will fall a task, after the war is over, second only in its perplexities and intellectual travail to the labors of Von Hindenburg or Joffre or Sir John French on the field of battle.

Upon the subject of the cost of the war, there is pretty substantial agreement. It was calculated at the beginning by several economists of reputation, that a general war, involving the principal European powers, would cost $50,000,000 per day. This works out at an outlay of about $1,500,000,000 per month, and about $18,000,000,000 per year. These figures have proved to be substantially accurate and were accepted early in March by the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce of the United States. Other estimates, running up to two or three times these amounts, are based upon fanciful calculations of the actuarial value of the lives destroyed and upon other factors which are apart from the sober details of public finance.

To the man in the street, it may seem remarkable that $18,000,000,000 can be spent in a year, when the entire stock of gold money in the world is only about $8,500,000,000. Of course, to the trained economist, the amount of gold or of any other form of currency is but a side issue. Some gold may be required for the settlement of international balances, but even this requirement is being waived or postponed, to a large extent, in the execution of the big contracts which are being placed by the fighting countries in the United States.

EVEN if the settlement of international balances were made in actual gold, it would constitute but a small proportion of the hundreds of millions paid for war supplies. For the most part, such payments, especially when made within the limits of the same country, are made by the system of clearing, which really rests upon barter. A check upon the Imperial Bank of Germany, drawn by the Minister of War in favor of the Krupp works fully compensates Frau Krupp and her husband for the "Busy Berthas" which they sold to the German army for battering down the walls of Liege and Antwerp. Fortunately for the German bank, which is hanging on to gold with the grip of death, it is not necessary that a dollar of gold, or even in bank-notes, should pass in the transaction. Undoubtedly the feverish activity which is caused by war in certain fields calls for an adequate amount of currency, but this is being provided in most of the countries at war by the issue of additional bank-notes and the courageous policy of the central banks in rediscounting commercial paper for the banks which are not equipped with the same power or lack the same courage.

The question is naturally being asked on all hands, what will be the future of general business when the war stops? Will it require the entire energy of civilized communities to replace the waste of war, or will the return of millions of men to productive pursuits create a producing power which will soon restore the world to its old state of prosperity?

ANSWERS to these questions involve many factors, one of which was pointed out more than half a century ago by John Stuart Mill. The doctrine which he laid down was that all that part of the expense of warfare which was met by changes in the form of current consumption left its impress on the wealth of the community only for the year or the season in which the waste occurred.

The permanent machinery of production, which in his time represented little more than farm houses, dirt roads, and a few factories, has been multiplied many-fold, however, in its relation to annual productive power. In so far as this mechanism has been destroyed or seriously injured, it will take new savings to restore it. Probably, however, when the debris of war is cleared away it will be found that the actual injury to railways, mines and factories is only a small percentage of their total value and that this again is only a small percentage of the thousands of millions which are invested in the machinery of production and transportation throughout the world.

UNFORTUNATELY the cost of modern war is such that not only the present, but the past and the future, have been mortgaged to obtain a large part of the fifteen billions which has already been blown away in powder and shell. If the ministers of finance of the reconstruction era are to preserve their respective countries from financial ruin, they must devise a system of taxation which will raise practically double the amount which has heretofore been required for interest on the public debt and for compensation to veterans and their families. At the same time they must keep intact that elaborate machinery of social service which has been so extended by modern states, especially in England and Germany. If they lay heavy burdens upon the back of labor, the laborer is likely to escape by emigrating to North or South America, where such burdens are still light. On the other hand, if they increase the already heavy burdens which are imposed upon capital, through income, inheritance and corporation taxes, capital itself may flit across the national boundaries and leave nothing behind but agricultural impoverishment, general destitution and the breakdown of civil government which proved the undoing of the Roman Empire.

at the top of the first sheet (for there had been no charge for the early Manhattan calls) was Midvale 0423!

Mr. Busby gasped. His hand trembled a little. He turned and hurried to his room with a reckless speed that gave no evidence he had ever had a broken leg. Miss Loring was standing by the window, looking out at the tree-tops, which were now in full leaf. She turned and smiled as he entered, and then looked out of the window again. Mr. Busby walked to the bedside table and picked up the telephone. He steadied the base of the iron instrument against his chest and placed his hand on the receiver. Against the light of the window Miss Loring's trim little figure was silhouetted neatly. Her uniform fitted snugly from neck to waist and outlined her well-developed proportions. Her little head, in the attractive cap, was very pretty indeed, seen thus from behind, with the light glowing through stray wisps of hair. Mr. Busby removed the receiver from the hook. He opened his mouth to call Helen's number.

"Hello!" he said, and then he paused.

What did he know about Helen, anyway? He had heard her voice, and once only. What did he know about her? She might be some withered old person. She might be some pert, forward, cross-eyed young thing. If he called Midvale 0423 he might be calling some wearisome forcing himself upon her in this way, get rid of. It was one thing to telephone to an unknown when bedfast and quite another to venture into such an affair when his legs were able to carry him to wherever Midvale 0423 might be and when his calling the number imposed upon him the necessity of following up the matter like a gentleman. Miss Loring moved slightly. It was hardly more than the shifting of her weight from one foot to the other.

"Hello! Hello!" called the hospital telephone operator. "Do you want a number?"

"Never mind now," said Mr. Busby.

He replaced the telephone on the table and hung up the receiver. He walked around the bed and to the window. He was so much taller than Miss Loring that he could look down upon the cap on her head. She bent her head forward a little so that he should not see there were tears in her eyes. Mr. Busby let his hand fall on her hand, where it lay on the window-sill, and the career of one trained nurse ended right there!

And never—no, never—did Mrs. Roger Busby tell her husband that while he was so monotonously calling Melrose numbers she had known, all the while, that he could have learned the number he wanted by merely asking the hospital office.

Country Town Sayings

By Ed. Howe, of Atchison

BOOKISHNESS is excused in a school teacher as part of her trade, but there are a lot of people who think bookishness is a polite name for shiftlessness.

Some women when they see a man, have a look in their faces indicating that they are commissioned to avenge the wrongs of their sex for a good many years back.

When Love spoils, it is about the worst mess imaginable.

A woman usually has enough to eat; but she rarely has enough clothes.

Considering that they never learn or voice anything new, the bird singers are mighty popular.

Man is still a savage to the extent that he has least respect for those things that can't hurt him.

It is always the next administration that will save the country.

Fortunately, those who tear down are not as numerous as those who build up. Ants never quarrel with bees. Both are too busy.

Mothers are most apt to be reminiscent of the days when they were young and pretty girls and everybody paid them attention, while fathers seem to run more to jokes. And between mother's reminiscenses and father's jokes, the children are usually worn out by the time they leave home.

In nearly every mail, a farmer gets a request in a one-cent envelope that he help some agricultural paper attain a million circulation.

People who are careful at the beginning of a transaction rarely get the worst of it.

No one seems to entirely agree with another. When the average man goes to heaven, he will say to St. Peter: "I don't, of course, agree with all you say, but some of your ideas are O. K."

You are a stranger to me, but I know one thing about you: you think you look young for your years.

Love is too generous: it gives worlds when it is as poor as a church mouse.

Cheating the devil is the only cheating that is fair.

Making Men Over at Sing Sing

criminal can be dismissed as cured. The judge should merely sentence the wrongdoer to remain in exile from society until he has shown by his conduct that he is fit to return to it.

"There are many men serving life sentences who should have been released long ago. There are others, constitutional degenerates who by the nature of their offences cannot be committed for more than a year or two, but whose indefinite incarceration would give them a chance of salvation and protect society. The indeterminate sentence is the answer. I hope some day to see the principle accepted by every State in the Union."

It may be asked whether there is danger, after the first novelty of the Mutual Welfare League has worn off, of unprincipled convicts building up secret organizations that will enable them grossly to abuse their privileges. On the whole, the warden thinks that this cannot occur. The strong men among the prisoners see clearly where their interests lie, and the strong are guiding the weak in Sing Sing to a much greater degree than in any free commonwealth.

Mr. Osborne cites the following incident as illustrating both past and present, in relation to the jailer as well as to the convict.

"A prisoner, who I shall call Sing Sing No. 5,001, excited my special sympathy because of his shocking physical and mental condition. I did not need to be told that he was a cocaine fiend and that he was still getting the "dope." He had joined the League eagerly enough, but had failed to benefit by it.

"One day he showed me a gold watch, his last possession.

" 'I'm afraid, Warden,' he said brokenly, 'I'm afraid the screw's going to get that.'

"He meant that he would be unable to resist the temptation to exchange it for cocaine, and as I had not located the subterranean channels through which the drug was being smuggled in, I could do nothing to prevent it. In time, he stopped me again to tell me that the watch was gone.

" 'I'm sorry,' I answered, feeling with a certain sinking of the heart that the case was hopeless.

"He more or less passed out of my mind until I ran across him weeks later—a new man, forty pounds heavier, bright of eye and an enthusiastic worker in the League. I was astounded, but before I could ask a question, he declared, beaming. 'Warden, there isn't an ounce of dope in Sing Sing, and I've got my watch back.'

" 'How did that happen?' I asked.

" 'The screw just brought it back. He said that since every one else was square it was time for the keepers to be on the level, too!' "

Better Bicycle Tires $2.48 Each Smooth Tread
For Less Money
$2.75 Non-Skid

It is no longer necessary to pay as high as $4.25 to get the best in bicycle tires.

Goodyear-Akron tires will give you longest wear and maximum beauty and safety—yet they cost but $2.48 each for smooth tread or $2.75 for non-skid. Convict judges presiding in the chapel court at Sing Sing Prison

THOMAS MOTT OSBORNE

Warden at Sing Sing

MAKING MEN OVER AT SING SING

Revised and Approved BY THOMAS MOTT OSBORNE Warden of Sing Sing Prison

M.W.L.

THE other day a plaintiff and defendant faced each other in a Court of Justice which, unlike any other court with which they had had to do, they believed to be functioning for the highest good of both. There were five judges on the bench, a shorthand reporter, counsel, witnesses and thirty or forty spectators in the seats reserved for the public. The case was one of alleged corruption in an election.

It happens every day? Not at all; for all the participants, from presiding judge to defendant, were convicts in Sing Sing. Their court room was the prison chapel. The politics they were striving to keep pure was their own system of self government. The plaintiff, an Italian who could neither read nor write English, had asked the aid of a compatriot in filling out a ballot. He wished to vote for a certain man as the representative of his shop in the inmates' Board of Delegates, but believed that the defendant had taken advantage of his ignorance to substitute the name of another candidate. A clean cut case. Just how it was decided is of no importance. But it spells a revolution in prison methods. Under the senseless tyranny that Thomas Mott Osborne found in vogue when he took charge of Sing Sing on December 1, 1914, the idea of convicts having a vote on any question would have been considered moonshine. That they might be trusted to try their fellows, with power to acquit or inflict punishment, would have fairly terrified the old-fashioned keeper. In four months, they were governing themselves and holding the scales of justice at least as evenly as the citizens of any free community in the United States.

The warden was not present when this election case was heard. He does not find it desirable to make his authority felt unless an appeal to the warden as a higher court is taken, or unless a problem becomes so tangled that the prisoners cannot straighten it out for themselves. The last in which he had to interfere was serious, but by no means discouraging. A man in the boiler shop had been badly pounded in a fight and laid up in hospital. An investigation was opened, but the court found itself baffled by a conspiracy of silence. The sixty odd members of the boiler squad declined in turn to admit that they had even seen the fight. There had been no fight, as far as they were concerned. Consciously or unconsciously, they had reverted to the old ethics of the penitentiary, never to "squeal" upon a comrade.

SOME of the men were lying. The warden explained to them patiently that the condition of the victim proved beyond doubt that he had been engaged with more than one assailant. Nor could such an affair have taken place without attracting the attention of many in the shop. The silent witnesses, as well as those who had been in the fight, were lying. Although the tribunal that was trying to fix the guilt was their own, they were deliberately refusing their cooperation. No democratic form of government could exist under such circumstances. If this spirit gained headway, the rule of the keeper with his rifle and club would have to be restored.

The warden's argument impressed the men, but did not break their silence. He then told them that he would transfer six of their number to Dannemora, a State prison where the old order still prevails in all its rigor. He could not ask them to select the six to be thus disciplined, but they might vote for twenty-five men whom they wished to remain at Sing Sing. There was very little justice in this arrangement; some, perhaps all, of the six would be innocent. But since the squad would not help him to find the offenders, he was compelled to take a leaf from the book of the reactionaries.

The general consternation at this announcement was a tribute to present conditions in Sing Sing. About the last thing that the men wished to contemplate was the risk of being sent to Dannemora. They had gone too far in this particular instance to make the frank confession that the warden had hoped for, but they saw clearly that in the future they must work shoulder to shoulder in support of the law and order which alone could justify the measure of liberty that had been extended to them.

Emphasis is laid on the prisoners' court at Sing Sing, because of its fundamental importance. It is, of course, only part of the plan of reform, which is based upon the Mutual Welfare League. Mr. Osborne founded the League at Auburn prison, nearly two years ago, after he voluntarily had spent a week in that institution as a convict. When he became warden of Sing Sing, he brought the idea with him. Any good he may have accomplished has been by and through the organization. Without it, the warden of Sing Sing could never be more than a kindly autocrat. He might do away with some abuses, but his charges would remain enemies of society, upon whom society was revenging itself, while stupidly depriving them of any incentive to come to terms. With the League, he is able to reclaim much waste human material, by restoring to men their self-respect and hope for the future, and by teaching them the lessons in citizenship which their presence in jail proves that they did not learn outside.

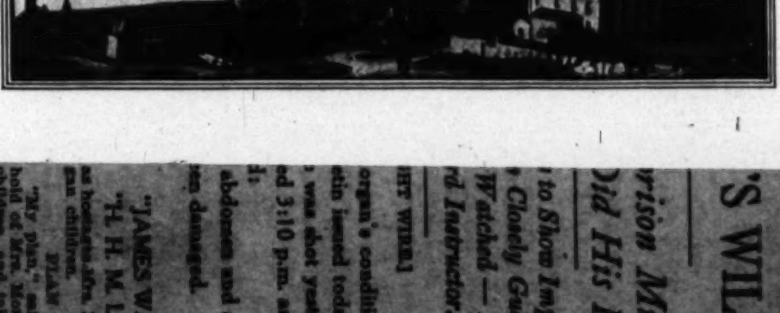
What then is the Mutual Welfare League?

AT SING SING, it is a republic within the prison walls embracing all but a handful of the 1,700 inmates. Its form, its constitution and methods of operation were decided upon by the men themselves. In Mr. Osborne's earliest conception of the movement, he thought that a board of reformers from the outside would have to evolve a scheme and impose it ready-made upon those whom it was to benefit. He realized this mistake in time. Since self-government was to be the most important feature of the League, it was imperative that its members should be free to choose how they should be governed. There need be no fear of giving them too much license. As Mr. Gladstone once wrote when it was suggested that home rule should be kept from the Irish until they had developed sufficiently to make proper use of it: "It is liberty alone that fits men for liberty."

The prisoners are grouped according to the shops in which they work. Each shop elects its delegates to a central governing body, the basis of representation being one delegate for every forty men. The delegates in turn elect an executive committee. Judges are appointed by the warden, as it was thought better to place them beyond the reach of politics. The constitution and by-laws are not unlike those of other mutual welfare organizations, but that they will be lived up to is insured by an honor system, the working of which is something new and fine in the dark history of penology.

The prison official of yesterday understood only one way of performing his functions as a guardian of society—he must keep the convicts safely behind the bars. To this end, he invented a series of cruel restrictions. The men were forbidden, for instance, to talk to each other in shop or mess hall. They might not even glance at the faces of their fellows. During their brief hours of recreation in the yard, they were watched and repressed almost as sternly as while they were at work. The slightest infraction of the rules was punished by confinement in the terrible dungeon known as the "cooler," and by fines altogether out of proportion to the offence. A man whose labor earned him the generous sum of one cent and a half a day might lose three months' savings for smiling at a comrade or muttering his resentment at a keeper's brutality.

It inevitably followed that a convict's first aim was to hide his feelings. All his intelligence and powers of observation were directed to a close study of the guards. He became an automaton, not a man, whose face one could not read. He had no sympathy with a single human being outside his unfortunate class and had reason to think that no one had any sympathy with him. His expertness in wearing his mask was tragic and baffling. The prison officials knew less about him than about a wild beast. They never saw him in a normal and natural frame of mind.



HOW unnecessary were the dehumanizing practices that brought this about is revealed by the daily routine in Sing Sing. The guards have been removed. They are no longer in close touch with the convicts and have no authority to coerce them, except in the rare instances when the bounds of decorum have been overstepped. The prisoners have become real men, instead of the (Continued on page 473)

Beware of Imitations

Mr. Busby's Telephone Affinity

the operator feelingly. "Honest, you'd better find out about him. I think he's off his head."

The day after that, the House Physician having looked Mr. Busby over and having announced he was quite sane, the Superintendent posted a new rule in all the hospital rooms. It read:

USE OF TELEPHONES

Occupants of Private Rooms may have ordinary use of Telephones at the usual charge of $2.00 per week. A charge of 5 cents per message will be made for all messages over ten per day. If to Brooklyn or Queens, 5 cents extra per message will be charged.

Miss Loring read the new rule to Mr. Busby and he grinned.

"That's all right," he said. "I'll make a cash deposit if they want it."

Mr. Busby's progress through the telephone book was not rapid. Time and again he had to hear the reply "Line busy!" and frequently he was made to wait because the hospital operator was herself busy handling some other connection. He happened upon some apartment houses where he was made to wait while the operator called one flat after another to make sure whether there was or was not a Helen in the building. The hospital operator became listless in putting through Mr. Busby's Melrose calls. Before he reached the C's Mr. Busby was himself growing discouraged. When he called the first name beginning with C he ran his thumb along the edges of the uncalled pages. There were eight hundred and sixty two pages still to be done. Any other man would have faltered. Mr. Busby plunged into the C's with dogged persistence. The entire hospital was soon talking about him and his Melrose calls. When Miss Loring ventured into the corridors other nurses asked "Has your broken leg found his Helen yet?"

"He is still calling," said Miss Loring and blushed.

"Who is it he is trying to find?" they asked her. "Is it his wife? Funny if he don't know his wife's telephone number. It looks queer, don't it?"

"I don't think he is married," said Miss Loring and blushed again.

"Is little angel face jealous?" asked one of the older nurses.

"I am not!" scoffed Miss Loring, but she was in a mild way. Until he had begun calling Melrose Mr. Busby had been jestingly pleasant. Now it was "Melrose this," and "Melrose that" all day. He no longer teased her. He had no time but for "This is Mr. Roger Busby. Is there a lady there named Helen?"

MR. BUSBY, the longer he worked through the telephone directory, became more and more discouraged and in the same proportion keen to rediscover the mysterious Helen. It was evident she was a most exceptional woman. She was a woman of wit, of cleverness and a sense of humor. She was a woman with a keen knowledge of the world but unspoiled by it. Evening after evening, when nine o'clock came and Mr. Busby felt he should no longer bother the various Melrose subscribers he lay back comfortably on his pillows and thought of Helen. He thought over what she had said and what he had said and what he would say when he rediscovered her. He planned clever questions that should win from her facts about herself without any suspicion on her part that he was pumping her.

Mr. Busby was, in fact, falling more and more in love with Helen. From the material of their brief conversation he built up a picture of Helen. He fitted this Helen into his life at Riverbank. He saw her one of his "set" there, holding her own in grace and wit. He saw her in his home. He saw his friends warmly accepting Helen Busby, and Helen Busby forming the nucleus of every interesting group. He saw how she danced how she smiled, decided what she would doubtless read. He imagined what she would wear and how she would look in it.

His broken leg was knitting nicely and not giving him much pain at any time and the House Surgeon assured him he would be able to leave the hospital on schedule, if not a few days earlier than he had any right to expect. Mr. Busby therefore planned just what he would do. He would carry the telephone conversations along lightly, saying nothing about the time when he would leave the hospital, and when he did leave he would go straight to Helen. He would arrive with a smile, and he would send in his card, and Helen would come with a smile. Then, artfully, he would begin the real courtship and conduct it so delicately that it would be well along before Helen realized his intentions were anything but friendly.

But the Melrose calls yielded no Helen. Little Miss Loring could not, of course, be utterly ignored. Mr. Busby—as was his custom—made a joke of the serious task he had set himself. He would say, when Miss Loring came to remove his tray, 'And now we will, Helen awhile," or "Just hand me the telephone; I'll shoot a few more arrows in the air." Miss Loring made some suggestions, offering them timidly, as that he call at random rather than consecutively. She was a believer in chance. She offered, when not needed elsewhere, to hold the telephone book and call the numbers to him. She even offered to take a Melrose list and call the numbers from the nurses' home when she was off duty. Mr. Busby did not favor this, but it was not long before Miss Loring was, as it were, a conspirator with Mr. Busby in the hunt for the lost Helen. Mr. Busby loved to turn things over and over in his mind, considering them half humorously—which is the best way to discover truth—and he could do this best when he talked. He used Miss Loring as a screen against which to throw his thoughts so that he could get a better idea of their values. Her replies to what he said did not particularly interest him. Some of them were worth while, most of them were not, but her sympathy for his search for Helen rendered the endless calling of Melrose numbers less wearisome. Miss Loring was undoubtedly pretty—undoubtedly attractive, in a demure way, he ruminated.

FOR several days after he was permitted to get out of bed Mr. Busby shuffled about his room and up and down the corridor with a crutch. Then he had a short period when he discarded the crutch and used a cane. He walked because the surgeon advised it, but only enough to give his leg proper exercise. He returned to the telephone as soon as he could.

It was natural that as the time when he could leave the hospital approached Mr. Busby should grow impatient—more impatient—to discover Helen. It would be almost a catastrophe not to have found her by the time he was able to walk out of the hospital door, but Fate decided that. Mr. Busby at last found himself so fit that he had no remaining excuse for lingering. He was able to walk and to go up and down stairs without a cane, and he telephoned to a hotel and engaged a room—a room with a telephone, of course. He walked to the office and asked for his bill.

"All paid," said the bookkeeper promptly, when she learned his name.

"Paid? How can that be?"

It seemed that the owner of the skidding automobile that had knocked Mr. Busby down had arranged for all that. He had left money for all the expenses. He had also left his card, asking that it be given to Mr. Busby when he was discharged from the hospital. He wished Mr. Busby to call at his office and settle the matter of damages amicably.

"So it is all paid," said the bookkeeper, and then she hesitated. "Unless——" she said.

"Unless what?"

"Unless—I don't know whether he meant to include such things as telephone extras. The patients don't usually call quite as often as——"

"Quite right!" said Mr. Busby. "I'll pay the telephone bill myself."

He pursed his lips and whistled when he saw the footing of the long, itemized bill, but it was not as heavy as might have been expected. He paid and took the receipted bill. It covered three or

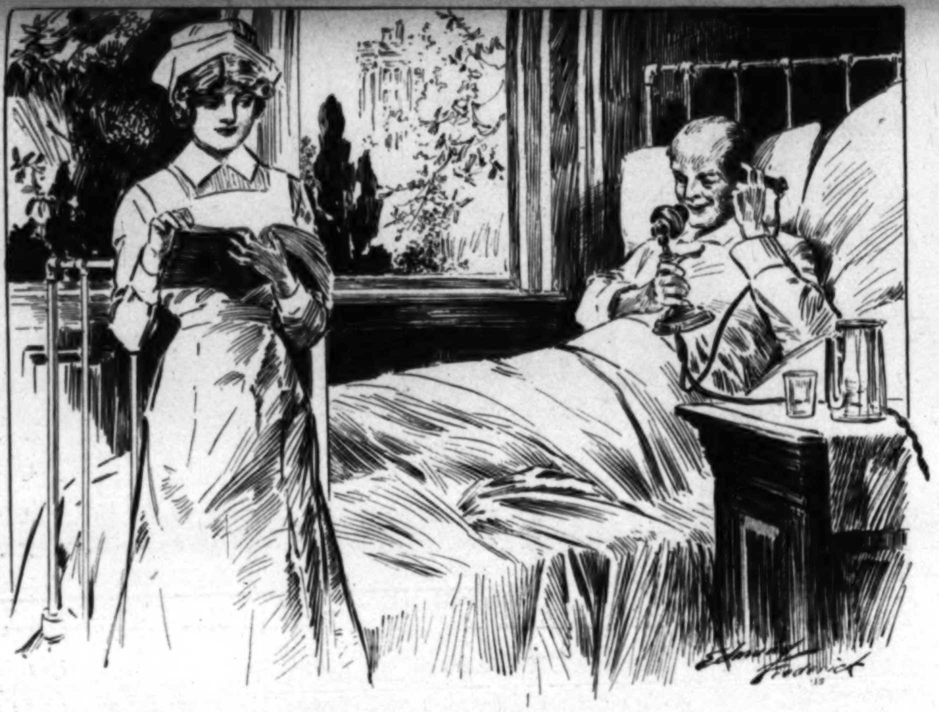
MR. BUSBY'S TELEPHONE AFFINITY

BY ELLIS PARKER BUTLER

Author of "Pigs is Pigs," "The Incubator Baby," etc.

Illustrations by E. Frederick



She offered, when not needed elsewhere, to hold the telephone book, and call the numbers to him

ROGER BUSBY sat propped up in his hospital bed, his broken leg extended in its plaster cast, and an open magazine in his lap. His was a private room but Miss Loring—his nurse— was shared by a number of other patients located on the same corridor and as there were other patients more in need of constant attention, Mr. Busby was left alone the greater part of the time, with a push button on the end of a wire with which to call Miss Loring when he needed her.

The time was late April and through his window Mr. Busby could see the buds bursting in the tree tops. The air was balmy and Mr Busby was conscious of a feeling of unrest. He was a little bored and a little stung by the eternal urge of spring and love. Had he been at home in his small Iowa town, without a broken leg, Mr. Busby would have clapped his hat on his head and he would have sallied forth from his dingy law office to walk briskly down the main street. There, undoubtedly, he would have met some one of the number of maids or widows with whom he constantly conducted a playful flirtation and he would have indulged in the first ice cream soda of the season and a brisk exchange of badinage. After this tribute to Spring he would have returned to his law office with a throbbing pulse and great cheerfulness. But he was not in Riverbank, he was in a hospital bed in New York.

Had he been in a hospital in Riverbank, his glass-topped bedside table would have been covered with flowers sent by Marjories and Mays and Marthas. Notes of cheery tenor would have been piled on the table. The telephone would ring——

Mr. Busby looked at the telephone on his bedside table. It seemed the epitome of uselessness. He did not know a soul in the whole city of New York. There was no one he could ring up and chat with. The telephone seemed to mock him, saying "Here I am. I am the ear of a million fair ladies but for you I am deaf."

Mr. Busby put out his hand and lifted the black metal instrument to his bed. He rested it on his unharmed thigh and placed his hand on the receiver and chuckled as he thought how surprised some one would be if he lifted the receiver from the hook and called a number and began a conversation. He might, for instance, call up a Vanderbilt or an Astor or a Maude Adams or a Mary Pickford. He might begin "Hello! This is Roger. Yes, Roger—Roger Busby. Don't you remember me?" He smiled with enjoyment of the idea. He put the telephone instrument back on the bedside table and, leaning as far as he could, pawed the thick telephone directory toward him. For five minutes he turned over the pages and then he chuckled mischievously.

THERE were nine hundred and seventy-six pages in the telephone directory, and, deducting forty-two in the front and three in the back, there were nine hundred and thirty-one pages, three columns of closely printed names to the page. There were thousands and thousands of names and it pleased Mr. Busby to think that—bedfast as he was in a white room in a hospital—he could, in an instant, speak to and mistify any one of all those thousands. He turned the pages slowly, wondering which number he should call first. Then he had an inspiration that made him smile.

Mr. Busby tore a sheet of paper into slips and on them he wrote the names of the many stations—Orchard, Bryant, Murray Hill, Chelsea, Spring, Rector. He included the Queens and Brooklyn and Bronx and Richmond stations—Midwood, Prospect, New Dorp, Fordham, and the rest. On other slips he wrote figures—1, 2, 3, 4, and so on. He shuffled the names of the exchange stations and drew one at random. He drew four of the slips bearing the figures. The combination was Union 7698. Mr. Busby reached for the telephone instrument and called the number.

"Hello!" he said. "This is Mr. Busby speaking. Mr. Roger Busby. Who is that?"

"This is Hornbeckle & Wirts, the butchers," a coarse male voice answered. "Who'd you say was calling?"

"Never mind," said Mr. Busby. "I have the wrong number. Sorry!"

He had expected this. It was not to be hoped that a sweet female voice would answer at the first trial. Mr. Busby shuffled his slips again. During the forenoon he let his voice enter the offices or business places of a button works, a florist, a laundry, a marine insurance concern, a paper box factory, and a dozen other concerns. He was like a man who opens a door, looks inside, says "Beg pardon!" and backs out again. It was two o'clock before he heard the first female voice.

"Hello!" said the voice.

"Hello!" answered Mr. Busby. "This is Mr. Busby—Mr. Roger Busby. I'm in the hospital with a broken leg. I don't know anyone in New York, and I'm bored. I called your number at random and I don't know who you are. I want someone to talk to, to wile away the——"

"Click!" went the receiver on the hook at the other end of the wire, and Mr. Busby grinned and shuffled his slips again.

THE late afternoon yielded better results, numerically. He reached half a dozen female ears.

"Hello! This is Mr. Busby—Mr. Roger Busby. I'm in the hospital with a broken leg. I don't know anyone in New York and I'm bored. I called your number at random and I don't know who you are. I want some one to talk to, to wile away the——"

The answers he received were various: "Quit kidding!" "The meesus she ban out; she ban back putty soon maybe." "Say, do you think I've got time to spend with a nut?" "Now, Charley! I know you. You can't fool me, Charley. Say—Oh!" The receiver clicked. Perhaps Charley had entered just then. "Aw! Ring off!"

It was not encouraging but Mr. Busby enjoyed it. It was gentle adventuring. Once the answer came in a child's voice, not quite clear, as if the child was standing tiptoe. "Do you want to speak to mamma? Mamma is taking a bath now. I—I guess she'll be down pretty soon." Mr. Busby reserved that number and called it again "pretty soon." Mamma wasted no time. "What impertinence!" she exclaimed, and that was the end of it. At each rebuff Mr. Busby chuckled gleefully. Occasionally he called a number that was no number at all and some pleasant voiced central so informed him. He knew better than to try to inveigle a busy central operator into a conversation. He begged her pardon and shuffled the slips again.

Toward evening the slips gave him "Midvale 0423" and Mr. Busby called this.

"Hello!" he said.

"Hello!" a pleasant voice answered.

"This is Mr. Busby—Mr. Roger Busby. I'm in the hospital with a broken leg. I don't know anyone in New York——"

"A—h!" answered the voice, breathing sympathy for his misfortune, and Mr. Busby sat up straighter.

"I don't know anyone in New York, and I'm bored," he said. "I called your number at random and I don't know who you are——"

"I'm——"

"No! don't tell me!" Mr. Busby urged. "I don't want to know who you are. I want someone to talk to, to wile away the tedious hours. I've been calling numbers all day and——"

"How did you get my number?" asked the pleasant voice.

"I wrote all the exchange stations on slips. I wrote figures on slips. I drew at random," Mr. Busby explained. "Will you have pity on a bedridden individual and talk to me once in awhile? You can't know what it is to be clamped down in a hospital bed like this when all spring is budding."

"Oh, I can imagine it, if I don't know," said the voice. "Did you truly just hit on my number by chance?"

"Just as I told you," said Mr. Busby.

She seemed to consider this a moment or two.

"And you are really bed-fast in a hospital? I'm sorry! I'm sorry for anyone who has to be sick on days like these. What would you want me to talk about if I talked with you?"

"About yourself and myself, of course," said Mr. Busby. "The two most interesting subjects in the world. Why should we talk of anything else—you and I? Don't you see what a wonderful opportunity it is? I know I have never yet had a chance to say about myself all I wanted to say. I have never been permitted to tell anyone all the interesting things I find I am. So let us talk of me, by all means."

She laughed.

"HOW exquisitely delightful that will be!" she said. "You can talk of you and I will talk of me. And if the wonderful things we have to say crowd too thickly upon us we can both talk at once. You are quite young, aren't you?"

"Shamefully young," said Mr. Busby, grinning as he thought of the smooth dome of his bald head and his forty odd years. And you—say something about life—about Life with a capital L."

"Why?"

"Then I'll tell you how old you are," said Mr. Busby. There was a silence and then she spoke:

"Life," she said, "is the opportunity given us by Nature to prove to ourselves that we are less than gods."

"Is that a quotation?" Mr. Busby asked.

"No, original with me."

"You are thirty-eight. You are not married, or if you are you have no children One moment till I think that over again. 'Life is the opportunity given us by Nature to prove to ourselves that we are less than gods.' And you say that at the end of such a beautiful Spring day as this has been! I see unhappiness in it."

There was nothing of unhappiness in the laugh that greeted his guess. It was quite merry.

"It would not be good for us if we thought we were more than gods, would it?" she asked.

"Probably not. Not in the long run."

"And wouldn't it be at the end of such a beautiful

Making Men Over at Sing Sing

abnormal creatures that the law-abiding picture them to be and that, indeed, they were.

The League's delegates, who also serve as squad chiefs, take the prisoners out of their cells in the morning, marshal them to meals and to work, supervise them while at play, and at night return them to the cells. Naturally, they are unarmed; but their authority is respected because they are the personal representatives of the men and because the latter have given their word of honor to act in harmony for the good of all.

This team work has made it possible to allow unlimited conversation, the frequent writing of letters and receiving of visitors, reading of daily newspapers, the freedom of the yard whenever the shops are not busy and all day Sunday, baseball, smoking for ten minutes after meals (to minimize the danger from surreptitious smoking in the shops) and other human liberties denied under the old system. The immediate material results have been the improved health of the men and a marvelous increase in their efficiency. Some of the shops have an output 50 per cent per capita higher than ever before. The moral gain has been incalculable. Visitors during the past four months have seldom failed to comment that the men seemed clean-minded and happy, in marked contrast to the inmates of the ordinary State prison.

The court punishes offenders by suspending them from the privileges of the League, but some of the minor cases never go before the judges. As in the outside world, the leaders know how to suppress the trouble-maker.

In the past, the average number of attempts at escape from Sing Sing was one every three weeks. Since the birth of the League, not a single break has been made up to the present writing. Even the so-called hardened cases feel that they would be guilty of unforgivable treachery to those left behind if they were to jeopardize the League by an act that, if successful, could benefit only themselves.

NOT long ago, Warden Osborne had a conference with a committee of inmates that included several "long-termers" and former "bad men." When it grew late, he invited the entire body to adjourn to his residence, to continue the discussion over a cup of coffee. They followed him, leaving the prison behind them as naturally and simply as might a party of visitors, though some of them had not been outside the walls for years. It was a warm evening. The windows of the rooms were open. The leaves of the trees rustled invitingly, and the road to liberty could be seen winding like a white ribbon across the hills. If the warden thought of these details and the opportunity they afforded his guests, it was subconsciously. He had long since decided that if convicts were treated as human beings they could be trusted to play fair, and he was too wrapped up in the question under discussion to think of anything else. When the time came, however, to say good-night, he noticed that several of the men, absorbed and silent, were staring through the windows at the stars. A little startled, he tested them frankly.

"Men, has it occured to you this evening," he said, "that there has been nothing to prevent you from taking French leave? There are no keepers watching the warden's house."

They were moved beyond conventional expressions of loyalty. Some smiled and shook their heads meaningly. One young fellow stammered as he murmured: "Yes, Mr. Osborne, we was taking it all in. Looks pretty good, the open country, don't it?" Then one and all they rose and filed back in orderly fashion to the confinement that is the greatest hardship that can be inflicted on living creatures. They had been tempted—who would not have been in their circumstances?—but their solemn promises and their duty toward the League had become more important to them than physical liberty.

Perhaps some readers will think that the devotion of the convicts to the League, apart from what they get out of it as individuals, is exaggerated. But the authorities offer abundant evidence to justify their optimism. One of the men attached to the executive staff is an ex-pickpocket, whose prison record began with the House of Refuge, was continued in the State Reformatory, and has just been completed by a term in Sing Sing. Until the movement came into being, he had no idea of being anything but a thief. Out of prison he had been hounded as an outcast and in prison he had been brutalized by cruel punishments. The Mutual Welfare League had brought relief during only the last part of his last "bit." Yet so profound was the effect produced upon him by the revelation that society was actually willing to allow the convict to make good that he has vowed his life to reform work. Incidentally, his position in the warden's department involves a considerable financial sacrifice. Money, he feels, is no consideration to set against an honest career and the opportunity to serve a cause in which he believes.

An inmate officer of the League recently gave the prison authorities a new lease of faith and courage. He had joined in a spirit of skepticism, and had never concealed the opinion that there was no future for him but a return to a life of crime. His term was nearly up, and he went so far as to tell the warden that he had made all arrangements to join the old gang in New York as soon as he was released. Ten days later he stopped the warden and said:

"Mr. Osborne, I've just sent my friends a crooked letter (a "crooked" letter is one that has been smuggled out of the prison, thus escaping the official censorship). I wrote them that they needn't expect to have me with them. I'm going to quit that game, I see very clearly that the officers of the League have got to go straight."

Another convict, whose reputation was that of a desperate character, confessed that he had cherished a dream of revenge to the exclusion of everything else. Believing that two former pals had been responsible for sending him to Sing Sing (he was in for murder with extenuating circumstances), he had proposed when his term was up to arrange for the future of his sister, then find his enemies if it took years to do it, kill them both and commit suicide.

"Why do you tell me this, D——?" the warden asked.

"So's you might understand what sort of guy I was before the League came," he answered. "I'm not going to kill those men. Revenge is no good. The League has taught me that."

IT would take a hopeless pessimist to deny that the men whose cases have been cited are less dangerous than they would have been if society had bludgeoned them, morally as well as physically, to the bitter end. Under the old regime they could not have left prison other than criminals more hardened than when they entered, whereas now they promise to be desirable citizens. And—most hopeful point of all—this change has come from within. Virtue thrust upon men is like a coat of veneer that is apt to crack and peel off under stress. But self-redemption, such as the Mutual Welfare League encourages, is usually permanent.

Mr. Osborne believes that a question vitally important if prisons are to develop their full capacity as agencies of reform is the indeterminate sentence. He says: "The law as it stands does not content itself with punishing crime. It also attempts to fix the amount of guilt and administer the exact amount of revenge. It is humanly impossible to do this with justice. And if, as enlightened Twentieth Century beings, we repudiate the idea of revenge and accept the theory that offenders should be sent to prison in order to reform them, it remains impossible for a judge to decide by the facts of the crime how long reform will take. That is a problem for psychologists; they should approach it soberly and dispassionately, after they have long had the individual case under observation. Prison wardens and their associates should be tried experts in criminal psychology and it should be in their power to say when a Spring day as this that we would think we were more than gods if life had not set us right? Aren't we all gods when we are very young? Before life has given us the opportunity to prove to ourselves that we are mere mortals—even on beautiful Spring days?"

"I beg your pardon! I maligned you. You are twenty-three," said Mr. Busby.

"Why am I twenty-three and not thirty-eight?" she asked.

"Because when we are thirty-eight we do not make epigrams to convince ourselves we are not gods—we know we are not. And I think you have dark hair—either very dark brown or black."

"What! with a pale blue ribbon in it?"

"Is that the truth?"

"Of course it is the truth."

"Then your hair is light?"

"I always wear pale blue ribbons in it, when there are ribbons in it at all."

"You are not an elderly authoress?"

"Heavens, no!"

"And you don't wear morning wrappers in the afternoon?"

"Mercy, no!"

"Then your hair is light."

Mr. Busby heard a ripple of laughter.

"What? Are you trying to mystify me?" he asked.

"No, indeed! It was not I who began guessing about me. Haven't I answered all your questions frankly?"

"Then you are light haired? And not over twenty-three?"

"Light haired, and—you are sure you would not prefer thirty-eight?"

"No, I'm not sure," said Mr. Busby promptly. "I'll tell you frankly that I usually find thirty-eight more interesting than twenty-three. Not always, but usually."

"Then you are not very young after all," said the voice. "You are—you are forty. I hardly think men, until they are forty, base their likes and dislikes on whether a girl or a woman is interesting. You are not playing fair. You admitted you were shamefully young."

"In spirit," Mr. Busby explained. "Do you want me to tell you about my hair?"

"Oh, then, I was right!" she exclaimed. "You are forty."

"How do you know I am forty!"

"Because you must be—you'll excuse me for saying it — getting a little bald, because men do not speak about their hair until it begins to go. They don't seem to know they have any."

"You are thirty-eight, young lady, after an observation like that. You know and like some bald-headed man. Your husband?"

"There ain't no sich animal," she laughed.

"Then you are not thirty-eight. You are—" he paused to consider—"you are twenty-eight. You are twenty-eight and you know a great many men. Let me see! You are a member of a country club or some such organization. You dance the new dances. You are twenty-eight, and when you sit out a dance you do it from preference and there are puffy stout men, somewhat bald, who come wiping their foreheads and beg to be permitted to sit the dances out with you. There may be one of them who quotes bits of Plato to you, or slings bits of Epictetus into quizzical remarks. You may not know it but he has been a great factor in your education. Every girl should have a clean-minded, puffy bachelor friend of forty. A man who can quote without spectacles."

"So you are forty!" she guessed.

"Would a youth go adventuring through a telephone list?"

"No. He would try to flirt with his nurse," she agreed. She paused. Probably she put her hand over the enunciator. "I'm sorry, Mr. Forty," she said when she spoke again, "but I must dress for dinner. I suppose your tray will come floating in on the arms of a fair maid in a cap before long."

"Just one moment before you go!" Mr. Busby exclaimed. "You'll let me call you up again? After dinner, perhaps? Then I should know your name."

"Helen," she said promptly; "and yours?"

"Have you forgotten it so soon?"

"I don't think I quite got it."

"It is Roger."

"Very well, then Roger, you may call me up again after dinner. In two hours? Good-bye!"

"Good-bye!" said Mr. Busby, and he hung his receiver on the hook and put the instrument back on the bedside table. He was smiling pleasantly. It had been delightful to angle thus in the unknown and discover a kindred soul, and it had been especially delightful to trifle thus over ages and hair. It was good amusement to build up a human being—especially a woman—bit by bit in this way and to find her responsive. He was still smiling when Miss Loring entered with his tray.

"Well, nurse," he said cheerfully, "this has been a beautiful day."

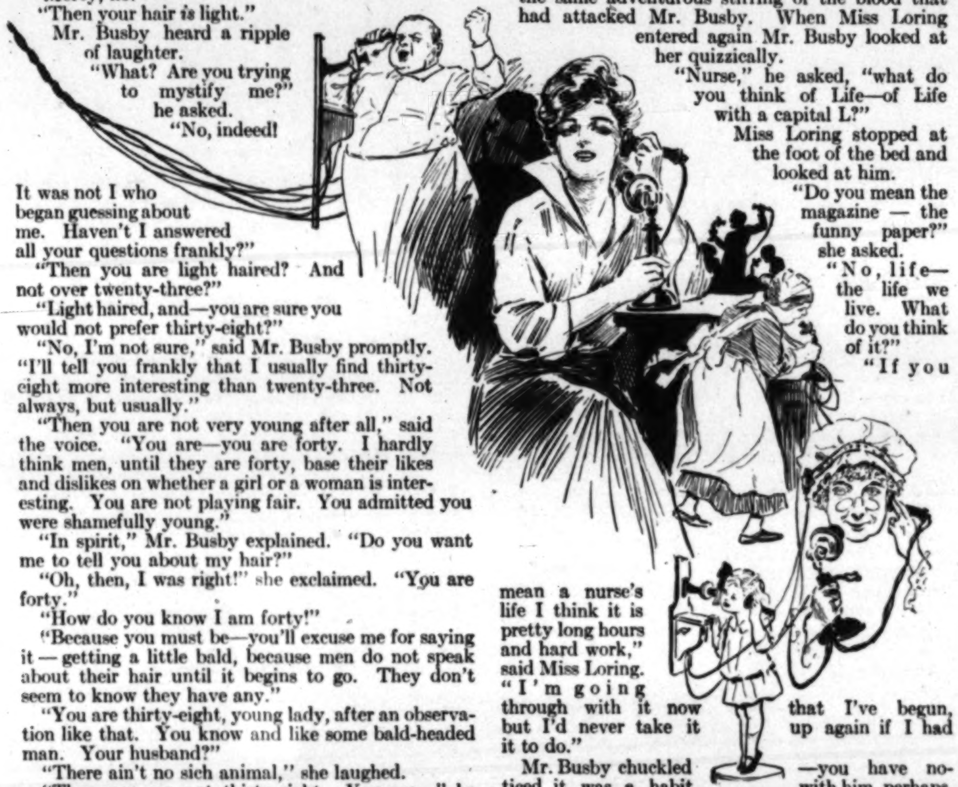
"Yes," she said, "on days like this it is hard to keep the temperature just right in the rooms. Days like this are very tiring for us. Everyone wants attention."

"Stirrings of Spring in the blood," said Mr. Busby.

"Something, anyway," said the nurse. "Is your tray all right?"

"Very satisfactory," said Mr. Busby, and he set to work.

He smiled as Miss Loring left the room. There was, he said to himself, a vast difference in women. Here was Miss Loring, absolutely matter of fact, and there was "Helen," with a mind. To the little nurse Spring meant only a difficulty in temperatures and peevishness on the part of patients; to Helen it meant the same adventurous stirring of the blood that had attacked Mr. Busby. When Miss Loring entered again Mr. Busby looked at her quizzically.



"Nurse," he asked, "what do you think of Life—of Life with a capital L?"

Miss Loring stopped at the foot of the bed and looked at him.

"Do you mean the magazine — the funny paper?" she asked.

"No, life—the life we live. What do you think of it?"

"If you mean a nurse's life I think it is pretty long hours and hard work," said Miss Loring. "I'm going through with it now that I've begun, but I'd never take it up again if I had it to do."

Mr. Busby chuckled—you have noticed it was a habit with him, perhaps. He was vastly amused by the contrasting answers given by Miss Loring and Helen. He knew just such contrasts in his own town of Riverbank. He cleaned his tray and settled back for a comfortable hour and a half. In his mind he arranged the conversation he would have with Helen, and he rearranged it. He imagined her answers to some of the questions he would ask.

Mr. Busby had two propositions he enjoyed proving to his satisfaction over and over again. The first was that all human beings were so unlike at the top that all were interesting; the second was that all human beings were so alike at the bottom that their likeness was interesting. He felt he was a connoisseur of human beings. With the ancient philosophers he laughed at them all, and at himself most of all. He could chuckle over a millionaire's lady who thought herself of other clay than her washerwoman, but he could chuckle quite as freely over the washerwoman for thinking she was made of poorer clay than the millionaire's lady. In his final analysis all women were food-eating, child-bearing animals and all else connected with them were various manifestations of their desire to get food and bear children and nothing else. Some went about it one way, decking their bodies, and some went about it another, decking their minds. At the home dances he divided his attentions about equally between the two, dancing one half the dances with the well-decked in recognition of their worthy efforts and one half with the bright witted for a similar reason. He had not yet decided which kind he would marry when he did marry a little later. He was inclined to believe the self-decking female nearer the norm and therefore the truer to type and the more desirable, but he had to admit that the brighter minds held a remarkable attraction for him. He was reasonably sure that the bright mindedness would come to nothing much after marriage—it would sparkle for other men rather than for him after a few months—but it attracted him none the less. This but convinced him the more that it was a lure, like the garments chosen by other women, but more subtle.

His telephone affinity (as he already called her to himself), Helen, had one advantage over Miss Loring, for instance. Miss Loring, at the end of a telephone wire, would have been quite tiresome. She was attractive to the eye, especially in her nurse's costume. She was sweet-faced and gentle, young and well formed, but all this would be lost at the end of a wire while Helen might be rather homely—although Mr. Busby could not quite believe it—and she still remained attractive, even though many miles of telephone wire intervened. Mr. Busby held Miss Loring in conversation as long as he could and she seemed to enjoy talking with him. For his part he had to admit to himself that he enjoyed looking at her. She left at last, a little rosy in the cheeks and with her eyes sparkling rather more than usual. At first she had been rather afraid of Mr. Busby; now she admitted to herself that he was rather "nice." She stopped at the first mirror to see whether her cap had been at quite the most becoming angle.

MR. BUSBY hardly waited until she was gone before he put out his hand for the telephone instrument. He balanced it on his uninjured thigh and placed the receiver to his ear.

"Hello!" he called.

"Number, please," answered the operator.

"Give me——" Mr. Busby began and paused. He had forgotten the number!

On the bed and on the floor lay the scattered slips of paper, inextricably shuffled, and he had forgotten the number.

"Never mind, it is a mistake," he said, and hung up the receiver. For a philosopher his face was distressingly blank. He looked at the telephone instrument stupidly.

"Well!"

He pushed the instrument onto the bedside table and sat in thought with his hand resting on the bulky telephone book. He drew the book toward him and opened it.

"It was Mil—— or Mel—— or ——. Huh!" He turned over the pages, scanning the names of the exchange stations. He found Melrose and wondered if it had been Melrose. He found Midwood and wondered if it had been Midwood. He found Midvale and wondered if it had been Midvale. There seemed to be no other exchange name that approximated what he seemed to remember and he began at the front of the telephone directory, running his finger down the columns. There were eleven Melrose numbers on the first page. The first was the A. O. U. W. Grand Lodge. The next was a pharmacy. The next said "dresses." One was a stationer and another a butcher. Mr. Busby called the residences.

"I beg pardon," was his formula;" this is Mr. Roger Busby. Is there a lady there named Helen?"

The lady named Helen was, it seemed, invariably not there. Several pages over, and about nine in the evening he discovered a Helen.

"Yes," said the voice, "we have a Helen. She is our cook."

"May I speak to her a moment?"

"I suppose so," was the ungracious response, and after a wait Helen the cook came to the telephone.

"Well, what is it?" this Helen asked crossly.

"I'm Mr. Roger Busby and this afternoon I was speaking to some lady named Helen, and——"

"Well, you wasn't talkin' to me," said Helen the cook and she ended the conversation.

Later than nine Mr. Busby hesitated to call numbers. Even before nine the answers, which earlier had been polite enough as a rule, began to show irritation. One man, who informed Mr. Busby he had got out of bed to answer the telephone spoke most unkindly. He said Mr. Busby was some kind of a fool. Mr. Busby said he knew it.

Sometime the next day the hospital telephone operator, who had to relay the numbers to the central, spoke to the Superintendent of the hospital and he spoke to the Head Nurse, who spoke to Miss Loring. The query was, in effect, whether Mr. Busby, in Room 31, was in his right mind.

"He's callin' all the Melroses in the book, one after another," the operator told the Superintendent, "and he's askin' them is there a Helen there. Honest, if he stays very long I'll have my fingers wore off pushin' plugs. What's he here for?"

"Broken leg. He'll be here at least two weeks more."

"My Lord!" exclaimed

The Hundred Ways Which Don't

End Corns

Perhaps you say—"I've tried and tried, but found nothing that ends a corn."

You might keep trying for years, Madam. There are a hundred ways which don't. Most of them are very much alike.

But remember this:

There is one way which has removed 70 million corns. It is now removing half the corns that grow.

It's a plaster which contains a bit of wondrous wax. It ends the corn pain in a jiffy. It ends the corn itself in two days. It gently loosens the corn until it comes out without any pain or soreness.

When you merely pare corns—

When you use some folderol—

Bear this in mind. There are folks all around you—users of Blue-jay—who never suffer corns. You are wronging yourself when you fail to do what they do.

Storm Bird risked a glance into the glowing, dark orbs; they returned it understandingly, and across his vision flashed the trails of two destinies. One led to a rich white woman, who would bring to him all the luxurious appointments of civilization and the cumulative interests of her thirty-five years. The other pointed toward this unendowed Seminole girl with the one warm claim of her twenty summers. And she would lead him to the Everglade crudities of the tepee, the half-cooked food, the harsh struggle for even that poor existence—and the companionship of bucks boasting a three hundred word vocabulary.

Howbeit, pending any vital decision, there was his vengeance to be sated against the maid for her insolence of the preceding evening. The way, considering his city guile, could be made as pleasant to him as it were perilous to her.

"Magnolia Bloom," the man remarked, suddenly; "has ever a man kissed you?"

"Nay, I am not pledged," she returned, simply; "and my lips shall be given to none but a free Indian of the open, a hunter or a trapper, I am a true daughter of my tribe, and not an imitator of—"

"Oho!" interrupted Storm Bird, craftily; "and what reward shall be given for one of these wild beavers; or, are your words mere pappoose chatter?"

"Aha, my wise friend of the crowded town!" the girl rejoined, and her next words showed that there can be in Floridan Everglades a sophistication almost equal to Broadway's. "Fetch me a fresh-caught pelt from Shovel Tail, and I shall pay for it so generously that you will sicken with dismay when that paleface squaw yields her chill lips!"

Mr. Gale safely returned the surprising damsel to her hotel, and begged another meeting for the next morning. "Tonight," said he, serenely, "I shall capture the beaver, and tomorrow we two will go a-motoring out into the open country that you crave. There, that pouting mouth may, perhaps, learn some softer, sweeter language than the unkind sarcasms of your sex!"

Le-wa-ni-ta mocked him. "Oh, imitation Pale-Face!" she exclaimed, gaily; "you will come again on the morrow with more great words, that is all. You know this vast city's countless streets, that cross and curve upon each other like sunning snakes. Let that suffice! No men, red or white, can have full knowledge of both pave and wilderness. So, do not lose yourself on the vast shores of Beaver Pond, and break the icy heart of that yellow-haired foster-mother who adopted you when a boy! And, were this Florida, I would look for much rain before midnight, and after."

THE sky was clear; but Robin Gale dutifully went to his garage for the toy tonneau with top and side-curtains, and then drove downtown to the Bowery, that complaisant thoroughfare that even on the Sabbath tries to be all things to all men. There, in a curiosity shop, he found half a dozen otter traps of ample strength to hold Shovel Tail; a hunter's axe and a skinning knife.

These contraband articles remained concealed under the rear seats until nearly midnight, Mr. Gale meantime attending upon Miss Norby to, at, and from a sacred concert. Then, he arrayed himself in rougher clothes and a cap, and burned more gasoline Bronxward. At an inconspicuous spot on the Boston Post Road inside the Zoological Park confines, he turned out the front and rear lights, and drove his car under the shelter of a great tree. Rain already had begun to fall smartly.

Thereafter, the carrying out of the enterprise was largely a matter of caution, against the faint possibility that a night watchman might brave the downpour. Storm Bird, with a glad resurgence of his boyhood's cunning woodcraft, selected spot close to the beaver's lodge, and prepared a water set for the first trap.

Strictly by sense of touch in the dark he fashioned a mud platform. The chain was easily fastened to a fallen log close at hand. A stray stick, smeared with castor and stuck upright beside the open steel jaws, served for a lure. Smiling boyishly to himself at this congenial task, Ta-ron-a-mo stood up to stretch his unaccustomed muscles before placing the next trap.

Afar off, he heard the sharp, excited barking of a small dog, evidently headed in his direction. The animal seemed to be following some one or something that fled swiftly before it. Suddenly the dog's triumphant note changed to alarm, as if pursued had turned pursuer; and then an agonized canine yelp ended in the very middle.

The Algonquin knew. Casting the extra traps from him into the deeper water of Beaver Pond, where they fell with a great splash above the rain-patter, he rapidly stole back toward the concealed runabout. Utilizing the heavier shadows and carefully keeping the tree trunks between himself and the animal houses, his plan was to start the powerful motor, without stopping to ignite the signal lamps, slip in the clutch, open the muffler cut-out, and roar away to electric-lighted streets—and safety.

He reached his car, but not in time. Down the old Post Road came The Mandarin, head swinging low, whining his sing-song hunting tune and trotting mincingly on the wet macadam. He showed no surprise at sight of the intercepted man, merely slackening his pace to a determined walk. And this, suggesting a premeditation going back to the afternoon's incident, turned Storm Bird cold to the vitals.

Thirty feet away, the tiger crouched flat and motionless, gathering force and direction for his charge. Then should come the tragic capture of that two-legged, trembling thing, the tearing of flesh, breaking of bones and a horrible mouthing.

WITH the kaleidoscopic memory of the doomed, the Algonquin saw himself again a lad among the pineclad peaks and upon the crystal lakes of the Adirondacks, fishing, hunting, trapping.

Softly, caressingly, his fingers sought the handle of the hunter's axe, and where he had been ice, he turned to instant fire. Gathering himself, with an animal, raging grunt, he rushed to meet the oncoming brute.

Only the fraction of a second, less than the space of a foot did The Mandarin miscalculate through that unexpected attack. It was enough for the desperate Algonquin. Down, with vicious force, whipped his right arm; and the edged steel met its mark fairly, cleaving through hair and hide and skull to the tiger's brain. Rolling over and over, the great cat coughed and choked its life away at the flooded roadside. By main strength, Ta-ron-a-mo hoisted first the heavy forequarters of the beast, and then the lean rump into the toy tonneau, covering all completely with lap-robe and rubber-blanket.

And by two o'clock in the morning—the Hotel Martha Washington being, ordinarily, at that unseemly hour an impassable Eden—Mr. Gale used golden words and money with the doorman to get this cryptic message to Miss Le-wa-ni-ta: "The reward . . . Tame Beaver!"

THE Indian maid came down, wide-eyed and wondering, in a quarter of the time her civilized sisters would have taken. On the sidewalk, she did not hesitate, but obediently took her place in the front seat.

"You do not demand to see the fresh-caught beaver pelt?" the man remarked inquiringly.

"A chief's son," she answered, softly, "would not lie to gain his wish."

"I, who was an untried brave, am now a chief!" he said; and at his tone her heart leaped gladly, because no harm comes to a trusting maid from the tried warrior.

Soon the thoroughfare they traversed became quite narrow, mayhap owing to the fact that the buildings on either side towered into the clouds.

"This is not the road to the open country!" said Le-wa-ni-ta, shyly.

"Nay; lower Broadway! We go by ferry across the Great River."

And in a sleepy, residential Jersey City street, Robin Gale stopped his car under an arc light, a block or so from a destination selected by him.

"Magnolia Bloom," he said, gravely; "just a little way ahead is a pale-face, pastor to whom I telephoned before awakening you. He will make you my wife after the white man's custom. What is your answer?"

"If you have fetched me the beaver pelt, yes!"

"Nay, I did not get it!"

"Then my answer is no! Take me back to my tepee, Tame Beaver! I shall die before my lips shall be the reward of a false brave who speaks with a double tongue!"

Storm Bird did not wince at her scorn. Instead, proudly he reached into the tonneau, withdrew the coverings and lifted a side-curtain. Under the street light she saw the gaunt carcass of The Mandarin, with the hunter's axe blade still imbedded in the grisly skull.

Le-wa-ni-ta would have kneeled and kissed Ta-ron-a-mo's hands.

"Oh, Chief!" she cried, in utter humility; "no more are you 'Wings-that-flee-from-the-rain,' but 'Eagle-who-loves-the-lightning!' And I—I am only fit to be your slave!"

"Nay, but my wife, my sweetheart, my queen!" he replied, lifting her to his lips. . . . "And when we have been made man and wife, I shall caress your feet."

Never, since six fingered riders mounted two-toed horses to hunt the mastodon, was there so extraordinary a honeymoon. Mr. and Mrs. Robin Gale drove straightway, in the joyous rain, from their wedding ceremony to the drab Hackensack Meadows, and disposed of The Mandarin. His formidable teeth were knocked out with the axe, the huge claws chopped loose; and then, the skinning knife brought away that splendid pelt from whiskered muzzle to fawn-tipped tail. After the royal brute had been entirely shorn, the bridegroom carefully weighted the ruddy form and rolled it to a sink-hole in the swamp.

"And now, oh, wife of my heart!" said Lightning Eagle, "the Bronx Zoo shall be telephoned that, from our automobile, we saw a huge tiger leap into the Hudson River, swim but a few strokes and sink, never to reappear!"

"Ah, my one love! But what of the blonde squaw?"

"She? She is as the passing of a fleecy cloud on a sunny day! And for many moons no one may know of your elopement with me. I paid well the pale-face holy man to keep it secret. As for The Mandarin, this downpour will wash away all his crimson trail, so that naught shall seek us out for tonight's work but . . . Love!"

BUT, at daybreak, there were clues in the Bronx Park that the rain could not efface—a small dead terrier near the Lion House, and a broken-legged beaver squealing for dear life in an otter trap. An unctuously circulated official report averred that the giant Korean tiger, succumbing in the night to an infectious disease, had been hurriedly laid away. Thus, the Zoo management bettered Mr. Robin Gale's invention.

But, alas! the afternoon newspapers succeeded in doing that which Miss Norby's detectives could not. And when front pages erupted into scareheads and pictures of a jilted pale-face fianceé, redskin Cupids, Minnehaha and Hiawatha, tigers and beavers, Norma telephoned Mr. Wadsworth Nicholas Schuyler for reinforcement against the importunate reporters.

"I much dislike the doocid notoriety," he drawled; "but send the writer-fellows to me, and I'll deny everything for the honor of the family. Your father is an ancient crab for scuttling off to the Bermudas in this emergency.

"And by the way, speaking of Indians, how about a substitute for 'Rain-water-in-the-countenance'? Why not take me? Tell you what! I'm game to forego a church affair and, I'll do a Lochinvar with you into Jersey just to get hunk!"

And Miss Norma Croxton Norby, of Park Avenue, et cetera, yielded that "yes," which might as well have been said to the same patient cavalier seventeen years previously.

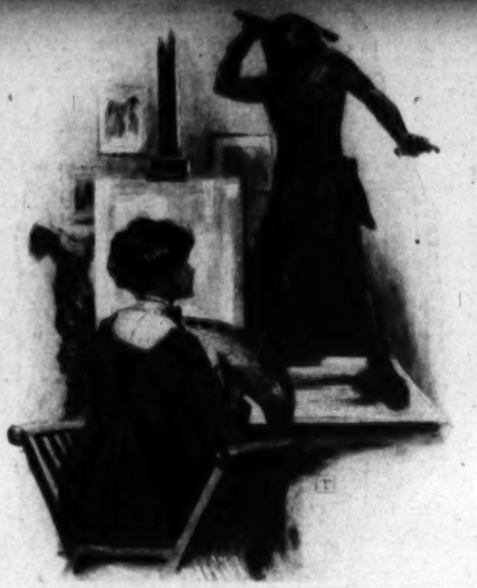
RED BLOOD

By WILLIAM MARCUS MacMAHON

Illustrations by NEAL A. TRUSLOW



The model was Mr. Robin Gale

THE SEASON BEING late Fall, with gallery exhibits inspiring emulation, Miss Norma Croxton Norby, of Park Avenue, Palm Beach and Lake Placid, took to palette and camel's hair with the determination of doing something really worth while. Her subject was, curiously enough, "At Bay!", the full-length portrait of an harassed Indian chief.

Of course, the model was Mr. Robin Gale, her Iroquois-Algonquin protégé. Born Ta-ron-a-mo, or "Storm Bird," and a chieftain's son, he had, in his fifteenth year, rescued that charming young heiress from the black terror of being lost from her Adirondack camp all night in the great North Woods, and he had been rewarded with a Carlisle schooling. Combining tribal eloquence with pale-face education, he had become a lawyer in the metropolis, and his success was such that at twenty-six, the towering, dark-eyed aborigine promised to become a noted figure in metropolitan legal and political circles.

And an impressive model he made, bared to the waist and crowned with eagle feathers; cheeks, brow and breast ochre-striped, and in his upraised right hand a warrior's tomahawk. Critics say that the fair artist imbued the inert canvas with a flaming aspect; but it betrayed more of the ardor of Love, than the ire of War!

There came a sunny Saturday too seductive for studio or office work, when dusky Robin called for blue-eyed Norma, and carried her out Long-Islandway in his six-cylindered runabout. Nassau County turnpikes, free of motorcycle police, were yielding a pungent, hazy incense to the modern gods of Gasoline, Petroleum and Caoutchouc. At an average gait of thirty-five miles an hour, the twain whirled along, forging up to a roaring, rocking seventy on clear stretches.

MAKING a megaphone of her gauntleted hands, to defeat the thunder of the motor exhaust, the artist leaned toward her broad-shouldered escort.

"Storm Bird!" she cried. "There's a town ahead, and that sign said: 'Slow down to ten miles an hour,' not one hundred. . .

"Now, we can converse without strangling. Is not this a day of days? And never a speed-maniac overtook us; you jockeyed that foreign racing car in the narrow road like a professional. And can I prevail upon you to bring out father's closed car for me tonight at eight-thirty?"

"Charmed, Miss Norby."

"Thanks! And I hope some of today's swiftness will linger in your veins. You see, our family chauffeur will drive me no faster than a foxtrot. So, this evening while the placid Henri is grinding jiggers, fitting thingumbobs and adjusting whirligigs in the garage, you will have to be my unpaid pilot."

"Delighted! To where, please?"

"Madison Square Garden. And, remember, if a single taxicab catches up to us on Broadway I shall go back to a coach-and-pair!"

"Never fear! Since the last Tammany triumph, I almost could do murder on the Island of Manhattan! The traffic squad calls me 'Big Chief' to my face!"

"Fine! Wear evening clothes under your auto coat. The occasion is the Florida Show, you know; and I wish to compare the Seminole Indian display with the Adirondack camps of the Ong-we-hon-we (Superior Men of the Six Nations)—which we both love!"

Less than the space of a foot did The Mandarin miscalculate

"You are the soul of kindness to say that, Miss—Norma."

Miss Norby blushed becomingly, like a school-girl, to the base of her yellow crown. It was the first time she had ever heard her given name from his guarded lips. Providentially, an open road loomed before them. Mr. Gale judiciously fed more and more gas and spark to the hungry cylinders, and in another half minute further conversation became unnecessary, if not impossible. His blonde passenger was devoutly thankful for this, as never before had her clever tongue been so tied.

MISS Norma Croxton Norby approached a thirty-fifth birthday with its pitiless self-appraisal. An only and motherless child, she had been a dilettante from her girlhood days, traveling when die wanderlust urged, devoting herself to Schubert or Chopin, and even to Beethoven or Liszt, when the taste of music lured her accomplished fingers; and again, reveling in oil at the alluring feel of color. Possessed of all these emotional outlets, she was another example of the many attractive women in this uncloistered world who remain unkissed by choice.

Norma's copper-colored gallant becoming pointedly attentive, it would be necessary for her to consider carefully the mesalliance that impended. She was not one, as has been shown, to accept blindly the attentions of any man, much less those of a Red American Indian—veneered though he be like unto that Society pawn and Fifth Avenue fashion pattern, Wadsworth Nicholas Schuyler, her second cousin, who had consistently proposed marriage to Norma as a birthday gift each year since her eighteenth.

Robin Gale had not only adopted white ways, but he "belonged." Daily, he immersed his stalwart form in cold water, brushed glistening teeth thrice every twenty-four hours and made of manicuring a religious rite. Of a beardless tribe, his firm features bore the clean glint of beaten copper, and he kept a thick shock of straight, blue-black hair severely pompadoured.

That Saturday evening the Norby limousine was outrageously hustled down-town through a heavy before-the-theatre traffic. Nothing vehicular, except a Fire Chief's red devil, could have overtaken them! Escaping collision and avoiding arrest by miracles, they arrived safely at the Garden. There, the gracious little lady and her bronzed escort attracted almost as much attention as the exhibits. She was radiant in blue broadcloth and white marabou. He, despite conventional evening clothes and correct top hat, conveyed the impression of a magnificent out-of-doors animal, caged.

HONORING the presence of a favorite Wigwam orator, the Garden band blared forth into "Tammany," followed by "Ogalalla," "My Little Kickapoo" and other popular aboriginal airs. Miss Norby, conscientious musician that she was, found the tunes reminiscent, but smiled with Mr. Gale at this not unpleasing public recognition.

And then, at the Seminole display, the loop of Kismet coiled for the cast. Behind the souvenir counter stood a strikingly handsome brunette girl. Tall and grave, an imperious nose and a scornful mouth gave her that intrinsic stamp of virtue which is a lofty pride beyond the air of wealth or breeding. Alas! Herself honest to the uttermost, dressed in real buckskin garments and with an enormous string of natural claws and teeth about her perfect neck, she was calmly selling imitation wampum and impossible moccasins to the gullible.

Miss Norby imagined the splendid young creature to be a white masquerader, say the booth owner's daughter—so seldom are commercial entities what they seem in adulterated Greater New York. Mr. Gale, instantly recognizing femininity of his own blood, said aloud, with all a chief's haughtiness, and disdaining to bare a sable poll:

"Young woman, kindly show this lady some Indian bead-work, if you have it!"

The Seminole maid looked him up and down deliberately. Then, she beckoned to another clerk and stepped away, remarking over her shoulder in precise English: "Tame Beaver!"

Norma Norby, sensing in the scene a scorn more than Caucasian, laughed nervously. Robin Gale flushed a fiery bronze. He did not mind the slight implied in her turning him over to a subordinate; but the Seminole's two cryptic words cut him to the quick.

Of all the North American wild animals, even the wary mink, the bristling porcupine and the voracious wolverine may be tamed in some degree; but never the solitude-loving beaver. He shuns the white man's settlements, avoids the very streams profaned by lumber-jacks, and makes his lodge in some remote fastness where falls only the foot of the hunter. So, the young squaw meant, derisively, that here was a redskin brave pretending to be that which his birthright forbade, and pandering to pale-face practices.

"Oh, Robin!" whispered Miss Norby, contritely; "speak to the girl in her own language and explain that we did not know she was Indian!"

THE Iroquois-Algonquin, masking the righteous ire of an arrogant buck, removed the offending top-hat and bowed with a humility that might have won over the austere Supreme Court of the United States. Then, he launched into a pigeon-patois picked up at Carlisle, since his Iroquois dialect would have been unintelligible to the Floridan girl. He spoke with directness, as might have spoken his raw brothers of the tepee. . . .

. . . The white lady with him was not his wife, but a very kind patroness. He had been much advanced in knowledge and wealth by her assistance, and was accordingly grateful. Nevertheless, he was still a red man and would uncommonly prize the acquaintance of this high-spirited maid of his own race and belief.

. . . Would she, waiving all conventions red or white, meet him on the morrow, a Sabbath morning, to go a-walking and a-talking, say in the Bronx Zoological Park. There one could get at least within hailing distance of Mother Nature, whose loyal children they both were? . . .

The Seminole maid looked him up and down deliberately

Having made a friendlier assay of this imposing brave, Le-wa-ni-ta gave him a straightforward gaze from her midnight eyes and replied without hesitation that she would go.

. . . Where should he call for her? . . .

Now, the tawny beauty flushed and stammered before answering. She, a guest of the Hotel Martha Washington, was not sure—even though her tepee stood many trees high—but that some shame dwelt in revealing its location. Down upon the banks of the Kissimmee River she would have perished before an Everglade brave could wring from her this casual information. It is the racial view-point.

Mr. Gale gave Miss Norby a translation of that conversation, as they strolled away from the Seminole display, that assuredly was not verbatim. The white woman, keenly appreciating the necessity of proving any lapse in her gallant's pre-marital devotions, laughingly suggested that he take the attractive Indian maid for a joy-ride in his high-powered car. This so fell in with Storm Bird's intention that he was nonplussed for a moment. Norma, noting his constrained air, quietly determined to put a tracer, bright and early the following Monday morning, on Robin's out-goings and in-comings. If her sudden fear proved groundless, he should be granted a tete-a-tete in the dim conservatory; or, better yet, somewhere out under the glorious Fall moon, a chance to declare himself.

At nine in the morning of that intervening Sunday, Mr. Gale guided the runabout to East Twenty-ninth street and took on his pretty, dark-eyed guest. She manifested no surprise at the up-to-date conveyance, and did not comment upon Ta-ron-a-mo's evident skill in manipulating it. He swathed her in a fur great-coat and, both goggled to the verge of anonymity, drove northward in a cautious zigzag of the more unfrequented streets. For this was the hour when the Norby town-car usually joined the motor throng along upper Fifth avenue or Riverside Drive; and it was well to take no chances of meeting it, should the French Snail diverge into some side street, to investigate the imaginary ills of magneto or carburetor where no traffic cop could complain.

On their arrival at the Zoological Park, Le-wa-ni-ta was not greatly interested in the unwieldy elephant, the awkward giraffe, the torpid hippopotamus and the surly rhinoceros; but the lordly bison in their spacious enclosure won her sparkling admiration. At the bear dens, she became eloquent, which was a revelation to Mr. Gale, himself a professional orator of Tammany training.

"When 'Boy-Afraid-of-Darkness' was as yet an untried brave," quoth the Seminole maid, "he one day went deep into the tangled Everglades to court the young squaw, 'Magnolia Bud.' On the way, a black bear—larger than any here, and fierce of temper—barred his path.

"Proven warriors might honorably have turned aside from a dispute so uneven. Armed only with a tomahawk for trail-cutting, since his mission was one of love, the youth suddenly ran forward, and with one terrific blow brained the huge beast.

"For that deed, the war chieftains of all the Okechobee country met in council and renamed him, 'Chief-Without-Fear!' "

Storm Bird gazed speculatively upon the furry monsters caged before them, noted the armored skulls of the grizzlies, remembered that most American tribes have some such tradition of a legendary hunter's prowess—and smiled to himself.

Le-wa-ni-ta read his thought.

"Last night," she said, calmly, "I wore the black bear's teeth and claws about my throat. That brave tomahawk man was my father, and I am called by my own people, 'Magnolia Bloom,' after my dear dead mother."

In the lion house, they viewed the King of Beasts, the leopards, the South American jaguar and the Northern puma, and then joined a gaping throng before The Mandarin's cage.

Jungle-bred and a circus cast-off because of his man-killing record, the giant Korean tiger was this day in a dangerous mood. Snarling a menacing sing-song, to and fro he strode, alternately taking three outside steps with each ponderous fore-leg. His mincing hind feet lifted his narrow hips with a dandified swing, that but emphasized a ten-foot length and five hundred pounds of carnivorous fury.

"See! I will conquer this savage beast with the unaided human eye!" whispered Mr. Gale, facetiously, to his companion. "I'll wager your father would give much to get his skinning knife under that magnificent pelt!"

"Nay, this is not a fur-bearer, but a devil! Ah, he is watching us! Walk aside from me, and note if his gaze follows you!"

Storm Bird smilingly made the experiment. The amber eyes of The Mandarin blazed steadily after him, attracted by this spectator's height, if not his Oriental coloring. Then, the man raised his arm in mock defiance.

IN RESPONSE to the motion, the tiger launched himself insanely at the intervening steel-wire netting. It sang like a Titan's harp struck in all the strings. The crowd hurriedly pressed back. Women screamed aloud; men muttered ashamedly; children began to cry. A keeper ran to the cage with an iron goad.

Dissimulating his rage, the regal beast dropped back to the center of the den, sank to his haunches and yawned prodigiously. In the ensuing hush, he lowered his chin between his fore-paws, as if to show that marvelous face-mask and the peculiarity of his eye-pupils, which contracted in the light to dots instead of to slits like those of the other cats.

Then a small white terrier nosed open the rear main-door of the lion house, and began to trot along close to the cages. Reaching The Mandarin's quarters, the dog edged away tensely in a careful detour, and returned unconcernedly under the very noses of the Barbary lions to the front door. The incident was more impressive than a certified shikari's lecture on the terrible tiger character.

Ta-ron-a-mo, clutching Le-wa-ni-ta's arm protectingly, left with a careful rearward glance. An eon ago, he—a pre-Adamite armed with a stone-hatchet—might have had to defend his cave-woman from such a beast, striped as now, but saber-toothed.

The beaver pond, as one and a half million visitors confirm annually, lies in about the geographical center of the Park. Here, the Indian girl, trembling with eagerness at the "sign" of felled trees, gnawed stumps and the ingenious dam, was the first to sight "game." All to be seen of the shy animal was its twitching snout and beady eyes showing between the interstices of the lodge. It is doubtful if Norma Croxton Norby, even if aided by her opera glasses, could have made out that unobtrusive living patch against the deadwood background.

"Look, Storm Bird!" cried Le-wa-ni-ta, "Wild Beaver!"

"Might be a tame one!" insinuated Robin Gale, meanly.

"Nay, a captive. Were it not for his iron bars, Shovel Tail quickly would make a portage to the Hudson, and travel ever northward until the coal smoke of the pale-faces no more vexed his nostrils, and he sniffed the pine fires of your people—and mine."

"—and he said, 'Rest alone isn't enough for you'"

WHEN overwork, worry or illness have sapped your strength, rest and quiet will help you—but you still feel you need something to rouse the appetite—and above all, something to strengthen the enfeebled nerves.

And it is then that many physicians will advise rest—and Sanatogen. For they know that Sanatogen, combining the nutritive qualities of a food with the invigorating properties of a tonic, will reconstruct the wasted tissues, RE-build and RE-vitalize and help the enfeebled system gather up new energy and a new fund of health.

Sanatogen
THE FOOD-TONIC

Sir Gilbert Parker, M. P., the eminent novelist-statesman, writes from London:
"Sanatogen is to my mind a true food-tonic, feeding the nerves, increasing the energy and giving fresh vigor to the overworked body and mind."

Col. Henry Watterson, the famous Editor writes:
"I feel I owe it to truth to state that I have made a thorough trial of Sanatogen and that I have found it most efficacious and beneficent. I do not think I could have recovered my vitality, as I have done, without this Sanatogen operating equally upon the digestive organs and nerve centers."

Such has been the grateful experience of scores upon scores of others whose very names must be convincing. And remembering that over 21,000 physicians have testified in signed letters to the medical profession's belief in Sanatogen, you surely can have no hesitancy in turning to Sanatogen for the help that your system needs.

Sanatogen is sold by good druggists everywhere, in three sizes from $1.00 up.
